FOUR KNOWN DEAD IN SANTA FE WRECK.

Passenger Trains Crash on High Bridge Over the Los Angeles River.

College Students, Returning in Crowded Cars from Claremont Athletic Meet, Victims When Overland and Special Collide Near Elysian Park—Many Injured, and More Bodies May Be Buried in Wreckage.

FOUR persons were killed outright, one other was fatally injured, a dozen were hurt seriously and a score or more were bruised, cut or scalded, in a head-end collision of passenger trains at 8:15 o'clock last evening on the Santa Fé bridge across the Los Angeles River, just north of the Buena Vista street viaduct, and close to the entrance of Elysian Park. Other dead bodies were believed, at midnight, to be in the mass of wreckage. The wreck was the worst for many years within the city limits of Los Angeles.

A special train loaded down with college students and their friends, returning from a day of athletic sports at Claremont, crashed into the heavily-laden Overland train of the Santa Fé, which left the Los Angeles station a few minutes late.

THE DEAD.

HOWARD EDWARDS, student Occidental College, residence No. 126 West Fifth street.

FRD H. HODGSON, student Occidental College, residence No. 155 North Griffin avenue.

C. G. FRANKLIN, student University of Southern California.

J. C. GAIL, student Occidental College, residence No. 5938 Pasadena avenue.

The injured:

CONDUCTOR T. J. CUTTING of the special train, residence Boyle Heights, both legs broken, internal injuries, probably fatal.

E. F. SMITH, No. 631 West Forty-fifth street, cuts about the head.

F. M. WORRELL, No. 3929 LaSalle avenue, both legs fractured.

J. C. M'MILLAN, 3700 Hough avenue, [illegible] very serious.

R. W. WILSON, West Fifty-eighth street and city limits, scalp cut open in several places, internal injuries.

FRED WALKER, engineer of special train; leg broken, and terribly bruised about the body.

H. H. BEALE, fireman of special train, bruises about head and chest, suffering greatly from shock.

A. GROSSMAN, of Philadelphia, passenger on the overland train, slight cut on forehead.

All of the fatalities were on the students' special, and most of the victims were college youths who were riding in the baggage car of the train. Some of them were frightfully mangled.

The collision was charged by the police to the crew of the Overland train. According to their information, the outbound train should have waited at Tower No. 1, south of the bridge, for the arrival of the special. It failed to stop at the tower, and the crash followed within two minutes.

Santa Fé officials last night declined to discuss the cause of the wreck. They were densely ignorant, or appeared to be, of the extent of the disaster, and shortly before midnight claimed to be unable to give the names of the dead and the injured.

THE HORROR OF IT.

In all of its aspects the wreck was of the most horrible kind. The trains met on the single-track bridge, 400 feet from its southerly end and just over the bed of the river, in which at the present time a considerable stream is flowing.

The two monster locomotives, each drawing a heavy train, jammed together in a crash that was heard for blocks; the baggage car of the inbound special was telescoped by the engine just ahead of it, and the day coach immediately following plunged up against the rear of the locomotive drawing the special.

There was no escape for the luckless passengers in the baggage car, the sides and roof of which clambered over the tank of the engine, while the floor was bent and twisted by the impact. Caught in the wreckage, some of the young men were crushed in a sickening manner.

One of the college boys, J. C. Gail, was hurled out of the baggage car onto the track, where he was crushed by the wheels of the still moving train; his body then fell to the top of a cement pier of the bridge, where it was found a few minutes later by a number of his companions of the day.

HURLED INTO THE RIVER.

The fireman of the special train, H. H. Beale of Los Angeles, was hurled from the cab of the locomotive and fell to the bank of the river, forty feet below. Although he was injured severely, he managed to gain his feet, and shortly afterward was taken in charge by a rescuing party of railroad employés, policemen and city firemen. With others of the injured railroad men, he was taken to the Santa Fé Hospital, on Boyle Heights.

Some of the dead were found in the wreckage of the baggage car. Two of them, Franklin and Edwards, were pinned against the roof of the car. They were killed instantly. Their bodies were carried out over the roof of the special train, and were placed in a rear car, which, with several others, was switched to the Salt Lake tracks on the east side of the river, and thence hauled to the Salt Lake passenger station on East First street.

The body of Hodgson likewise was found wedged in between the baggage car roof and the locomotive tender. The only method by which it could be removed was to tie a rope around it and lower it to the river bank below, where it lay for several hours beside that of Gail, awaiting the arrival of the undertakers' wagon.

RESCUERS HANDICAPPED.

Hardly any wreck on a mountain division could have occurred at a more inaccessible place. Perched high on the narrow steel bridge that spans the river, the trains could be reached only with difficulty by the army of rescuers that were on the scene almost instantly.

At the south end of the bridge are the yards of the Santa Fé and the Southern Pacific, side by side. Switching trains of both roads pushed back and forth over the network of tracks, to the great peril of the rescuers. It was only when the crowd of spectators became so great as to be unmanageable that the police succeeded in inducing the Southern Pacific officials to stop the switching of cars and to protect the lives of the crowd of curiosity-seekers.

Only by placing ladders against the piers of the bridge could the wreckage be reached from the south and west sides. The two engines, in vise-like grip, and with hot steam escaping in clouds, blocked passage over the single track from the south.

From within the cars of the special train poured scores of college students, with young women and men who had gone to the field meet to cheer them on in their sport. They all rendered valiant service in the work of rescue.

RESCUE DIFFICULT.

[illegible] difficulty attended with much danger, for they had but a narrow footing on the girders of the bridge. The sides and top of the wrecked baggage car, high up on the tender of the engine, shook back and forth with every step that was taken by the rescuing party. Back there in the darkness, after four bodies had been found, they felt certain that more victims were pinioned, possibly still alive. With lanterns and torches they made a careful search, but without avail, and it finally was decided to pull the wedged engines apart, and to haul the mass of splintered wood and twisted steel to the Santa Fé yards.

Even in the yards it was impossible to make a thorough search for more bodies, the floor of the baggage car and the tank of the engine being jammed so tightly together that they had not been separated at an early hour this morning. With the coming of daylight it was expected that the full number of the fatalities would be learned.

BODIES IN RIVER?

It even was feared that some bodies might have been thrown into the river and washed down stream. At least two of the victims, the unfortunate Gail and the injured fireman, were tossed from the bridge in this manner.

In the confusion that followed the collision, it was impossible for even the claim agents of the Santa Fé, who were on the ground shortly afterward, to learn the names of all the injured passengers. Many of the college men were injured more or less seriously, but after lingering around the wreck for an hour, they left for their homes to quiet the fears of their relatives.

That the collision was not attended with more fatalities is due in part to the fact that the trains were not moving at top speed. A rate of eight or ten miles an hour is maintained while crossing bridges. The special train, it was stated, was moving at little more than ten miles an hour; the Overland at a slower gait, owing to the fact that it was climbing a slight grade.

TREACHEROUS SPOT.

The Santa Fé bridge crosses the river at an acute angle, and just beyond, to the north and east, there is a sharp curve. The engineers of the approaching trains did not discover the danger until their trains were almost together. Engineer Kelly of the Overland applied his air brakes so quickly that passengers on the train, many of whom were standing in the aisles and on the platforms of the cars, were thrown violently against seats and windows. Crashing glass caused most of the injuries to passengers on the Overland. This train, after a delay of about three hours, was sent around over the Salt Lake cut-off and went onto the Santa Fé main line at a point just east of the bridge.

It was reported by the police shortly after the wreck that the crew of the Overland had disappeared. The engineer, fireman, conductor and brakemen did not linger around the scene of the disaster, but it was reported at the Santa Fé offices that they had gone to their homes or to the hospital to have slight injuries dressed.

ENGINEER'S GRIT.

Engineer Walker of the special displayed courageous grit after the collision. He stuck to his post to the last, and when they took him out of his cab, badly scalded and bruised, his first inquiry was as to the fate of his fireman, who had been cast from the gang-plank of the engine to the bed of the river. Walker was greatly relieved when he learned that the

FIND SAILOR IS WOMAN.

Officers of Battleship Vermont Are Startled by Discovery of Female Bluejacket.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There was consternation among the officers of the battleship Vermont last Thursday night when it was discovered that a woman was on board, masquerading as one of the sailors.

According to the story told by marines and sailors, the woman sailor has been on the Vermont engaged in routine duties for four days. She was discharged immediately, it is said. Who the woman is remains a mystery.

She gained access to the ship by masquerading under the name of a sailor on shore leave. She wore his uniform, and her hair was clipped short.

All went well with her until she overlooked one of the ship's rules, and took a bath after taps.

RECORD HEAT IN CITY OF WINDS.

WARMEST MARCH DAY IN TWELVE YEARS IN CHICAGO.

Unusual Torridity Drives Thousands Into Parks and Boulevards. Summer Gardens Open Two Months in Advance—Cyclones Feared as Result of Equinoctial Wave.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] This was the hottest day of the year, the hottest March day in twelve years, and as a culmination of the freak hot wave, equalled, at 3 o'clock p.m., the records for the last thirty-three years—or since the establishment of the government weather bureau.

As a result of the torridity, thousands of persons this afternoon got away from work early and the parks and boulevards were thronged. From every direction there was a rush of those anxious to get to the parks and cool places.

Another result was the announcement of many summer-garden proprietors that their places were open tonight for business—fully two months in advance of such openings under ordinary circumstances.

Fears are entertained that cyclones and tornadoes will follow as a result of the equinoctial hot wave. The last two days of high temperature have caused many to predict that there will be little fruit this year, declaring that all vegetation will be ruined if frosts should follow.

While the thousands on the street were sweltering as a result of the unequal March temperature, the man in the weather tower was wondering at the barometric and atmospheric phenomena.

Forecaster Cox could see no end to the most remarkable stretch of March weather ever known in Chicago. Throughout the West, the hot wave extends—from the Dakotas into Oklahoma. New records were made in many States, and in the Southwest the terrific heat is causing prostrations.

LAURIER IS BUSY AT HOME.

OTTAWA (Ont.) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] On account of slow progress in the House, Laurier seriously contemplates the cancellation of his arrangements to leave April 5 to attend the colonial conference at London. When the conference was arranged for April, the Dominion asked a postponement for another month, but it was not granted, as it would have upset plans relative to other Premiers. The Canadian and English press point to the importance of Canada's first citizen attending, but unless the parliamentarians show greater dispatch during the next two weeks than they have been doing, he will be unable to attend.

MAJ. PENROSE IS ACQUITTED.

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) March 23.—Maj. C. W. Penrose of the Twenty-fifth infantry was today acquitted of the charge of neglect of duty preferred against him at the instance of the President of the United States for alleged misconduct in connection with the "shooting up" of Brownsville, Tex., by negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry last August.

LAFOLLETTE LOSES POWER.

MILWAUKEE, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Has Senator LaFollette lost his grip in the State or is his support of Stephenson a bluff put up for the purpose of deceiving the Marinette man, are discussed since the Senator's visit to Madison. The impression among those best posted is that neither is exactly correct. When the Senator left Madison he left behind him a feeling that he would very much like to see Stephenson sent to Washington for the short term. Yet his argument made little impression on the members committed to other candidates and even on those who were committed to nobody. Many of those who listened to the Senator's arguments said in effect:

"Senator, if it was you, we would be with you, but this is another question and we will have to decide as we think right."

This is the hub of the whole situation. Senator LaFollette for himself can have anything, but when it comes to some one else his arguments are acted upon or not, just as his adherents think best.

INDICTMENTS FILED.

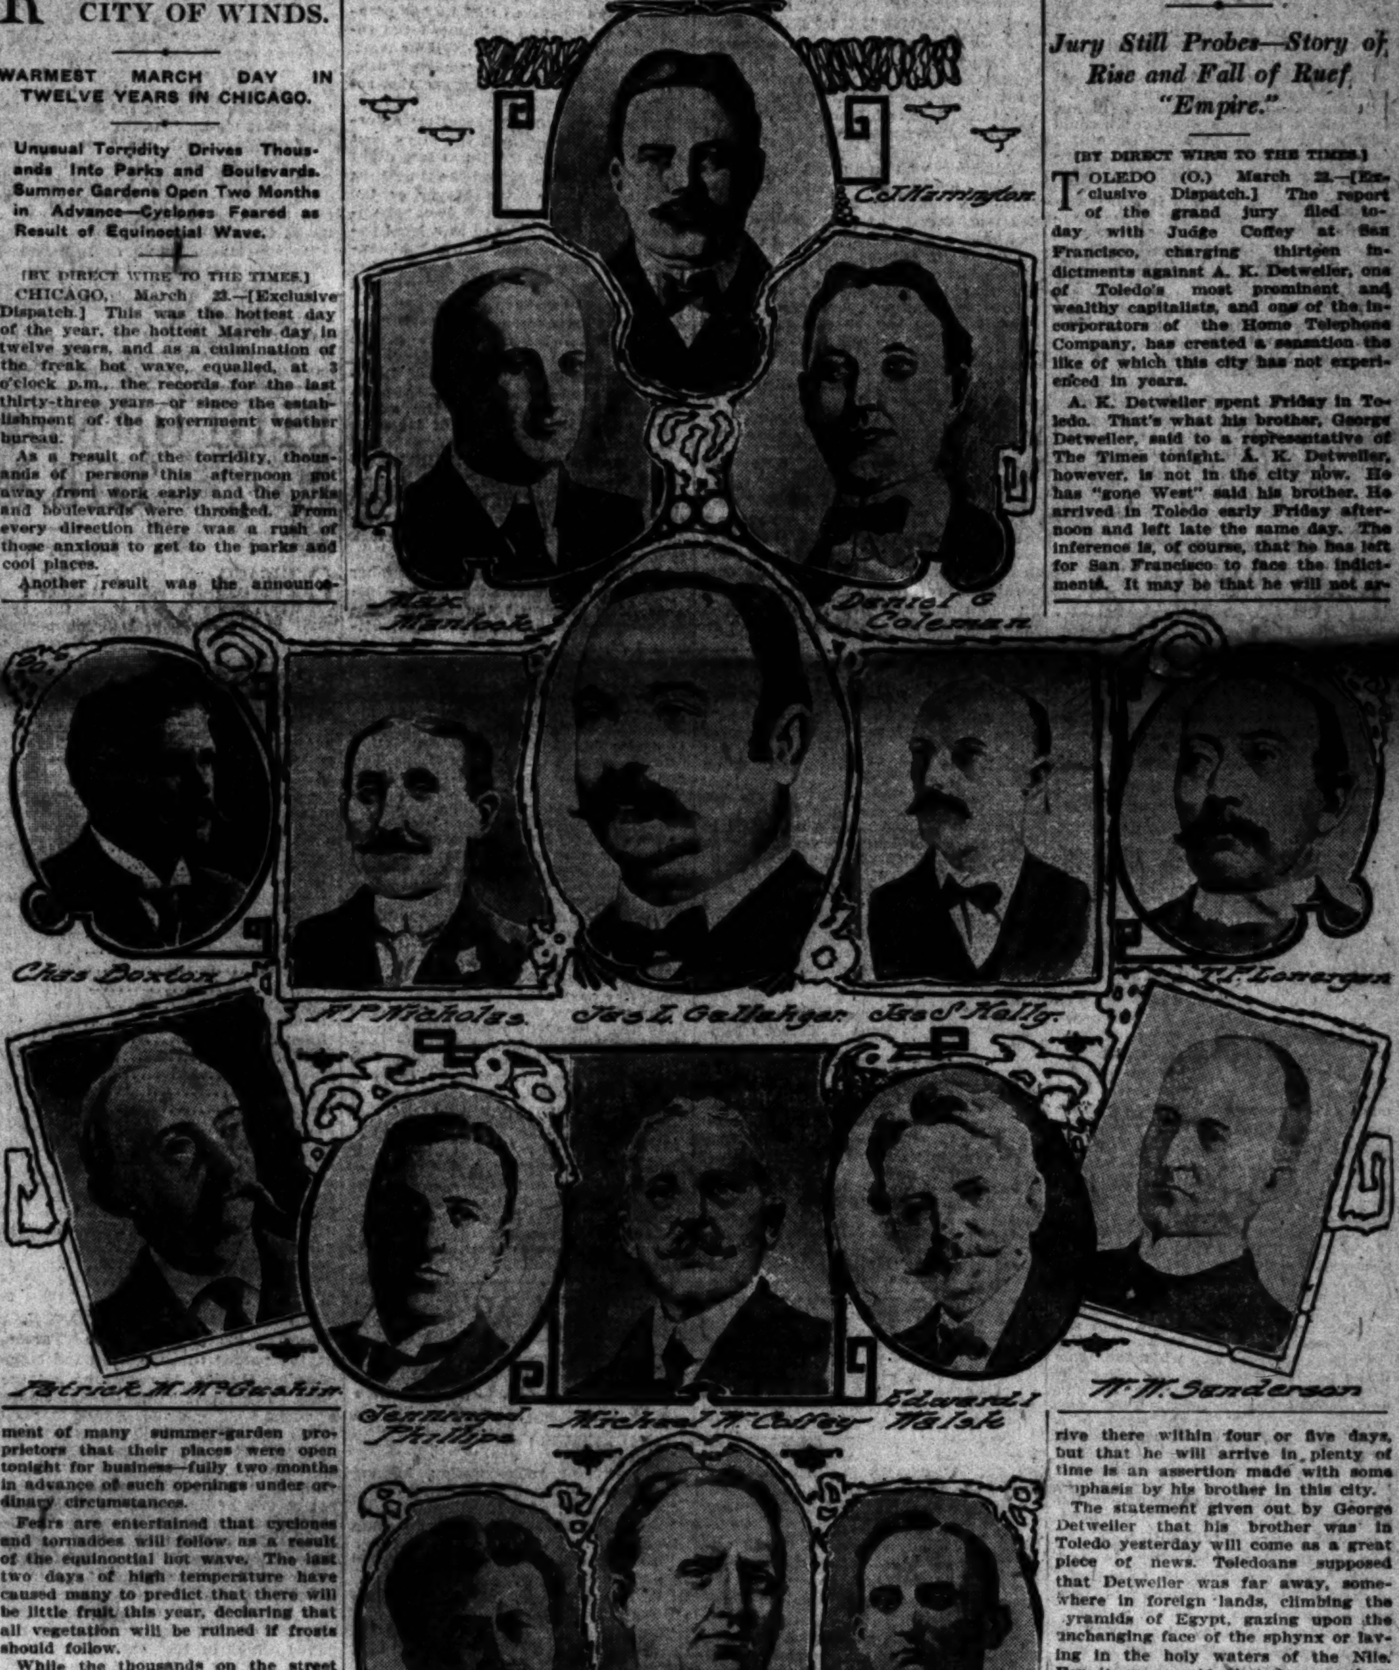
The San Francisco grand jury yesterday filed twenty-two secret indictments against A. K. Detweiler, Toledo capitalist, and Louis Glass. Thirteen were against the former, nine against the latter.

Bench warrants were issued for both men.

Schmitz denied having made any deal for terms regarding a confession.

Detweiler, former vice-president of the Pacific States Company, is reported to have left Toledo Friday for the West. Glass is in Nevada.

Interesting facts developed concerning rise and fall of the Ruef "empire."



The yellow-dog Supervisors of San Francisco, who stole all they could and then betrayed their accomplices.

PENITENTIARY BETTER THAN THE POORHOUSE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, March 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] E. H. Harriman was asked today what he thought about Senator Cullom's remarks about him. Harriman said:

"Senator Cullom, I am sure, does not really wish to put me in the penitentiary. He simply regrets that I am not in the poorhouse.

"Eight years ago we found the great railroad of his great State of Illinois in a moribund and decadent condition. It had accumulated over a series of years a stockholders' surplus, but was unable to get any benefit therefrom except through a further expenditure of more than $20,000,000.

"The capital of the company at that date was about $22,000,000. A syndicate of more than one hundred, represented by four managers, bought the road at the going market price of $175 to $200 per share, investing therein nearly $40,000,000, and $3,000,000 for fifty-eight additional miles.

"As investors in Chicago and Alton at this high cost, we could have remained quiet and have even seen our property shrink and shrivel by the millions, and tens of millions, under the 30 per cent. reduction in railroad freight rates, which has taken place in the past eight years in that territory, and the road and its owners might have been on the way to the poorhouse.

"Now, I prefer the penitentiary, if that is the reward for the upbuilding of the railroad properties of this country, rather than the poorhouse, which is the reward of unprogressive railway

Detweiler and Glass Located.

Glass Snow-bound on a Nevada Train—Warrants Are Issued.

Jury Still Probes—Story of Rise and Fall of Ruef "Empire."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOLEDO (O.) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The report of the grand jury filed today with Judge Coffey at San Francisco, charging thirteen indictments against A. K. Detweiler, one of Toledo's most prominent and wealthy capitalists, and one of the incorporators of the Home Telephone Company, has created a sensation the like of which this city has not experienced in years.

A. K. Detweiler spent Friday in Toledo. That's what his brother, George Detweiler, said to a representative of The Times tonight. A. K. Detweiler, however, is not in the city now. He has "gone West" said his brother. He arrived in Toledo early Friday afternoon and left late the same day. The inference is, of course, that he has left for San Francisco to face the indictments. It may be that he will not arrive there within four or five days, but that he will arrive in plenty of time is an assertion made with some emphasis by his brother in this city.

The statement given out by George Detweiler that his brother was in Toledo yesterday will come as a great piece of news. Toledoans supposed that Detweiler was far away, somewhere in foreign lands, climbing the pyramids of Egypt, gazing upon the unchanging face of the sphynx or laving in the holy waters of the Nile. For it was said that some three months ago Detweiler left San Francisco for a long trip across the water for the benefit of his health. That he has returned will be news to his many friends in this city.

BROTHER NOT SURPRISED.

The news that A. K. Detweiler had been indicted by the San Francisco probers for alleged connection with transactions relating to the granting of a franchise to the Home Telephone Company in that city, did not come as a surprise to George Detweiler, as he did not seem to be a bit surprised to hear that his brother had been indicted.

"A. K. had an intimation of that," he said. "He was in the city yesterday afternoon and left late yesterday afternoon for the West. He said that if there was anything in it he ought to be on the ground."

"The West" is such a general term that it may be some days until Detweiler shows up in San Francisco. He is no under arrest at this time.

"My brother arrived in New York four days ago," asserts George Detweiler today, "and, of course, he had some intimation of what was about to occur. He had read the newspaper accounts, of course. He left San Francisco about three months ago with his wife, and had been in Europe up to his arrival here. Coming to Toledo, he left Mrs. Detweiler here and then left for the West yesterday afternoon. He is in excellent health."

IS PROMINENT THERE.

A. K. Detweiler is one of the most prominent citizens of Toledo, but has having invested much of his capital in western enterprises, chief of which is the telephone business, the securing of the franchise for which in San Francisco, immediately after the earthquake of last April, being the cause of the present trouble.

It was also learned on reliable authority this afternoon that a representative of Dist.-Atty. Heney of San Francisco has been in Toledo for the past two days, looking for evidence in the Federal grand jury inquiry of A. K. Detweiler's connection with the granting of a franchise to the San Francisco Home Telephone Company. The man who was here is a son of Detective Burns of San Francisco. Just what he accomplished is not known, but he left last night without giving his destination.

To friends he stated that he wanted, above all other things, to locate the present "hiding place" of Detweiler, and next, to secure what local evidence he could for the assistance of the District Attorney in the trial of the case.

On various features of the San Francisco case George Detweiler did not care to make any statement, though it was plain that he believed in the innocence of his brother and in his ability to clear himself when given an opportunity by trial.

CONFIRMS STATEMENT.

The fact that Mrs. A. K. Detweiler is in the city and at the present time stopping with George K. Detweiler leaves no doubt as to the truth of the story that A. K. Detweiler was in the city Friday, and in all probability left Friday night.

Mrs. Detweiler was located at George K. Detweiler's residence on Jefferson avenue, and said to the Times reporter:

"Mr. Detweiler left Toledo for the Coast Friday night. We landed from our trip abroad only a week ago, and at that time I wanted to stay in New York, but Mr. Detweiler insisted on coming on."

"Is it to be assumed that the Coast means San Francisco?" was asked.

"I am in no way intimate with Mr. Detweiler's business deals, and could hardly throw any light on them if I cared to. If you know that he is indicted you know more about it than I do."

"Then there is nothing in the statement that was given out this afternoon alleging that Mr. Detweiler was in Antwerp or in Cuba waiting to interview his attorney?" was asked.

"Absolutely nothing," said Mrs. Detweiler. "The fact is we were not in Belgium on our recent trip abroad. We left San Francisco three months ago, and spent most of our time in the Orient and in Southern Europe. Neither Mr. Detweiler nor myself were in Cuba."

At this juncture George Detweiler, who has been zealously guarding the avenues of news relative to the San Francisco imbroglio ever since newspaper intimations have been made about the affair, interposed and refused to allow Mrs. A. K. Detweiler to continue in conversation with the reporter.

ELECTION JOKE CITY'S TRAGEDY.

STORY OF RISE AND FALL OF THE "RUEF EMPIRE."

Petty Merchants and Mechanics Induced by Bassoon Schmitz and the Curly One to Run Against Forbidding Odds—Biographical Notes of Some of Them.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Supervisors who have just confessed their bribery and have been given assurances of immunity by Heney, are about as cheap a bunch of grafters as San Francisco has ever known.

The only gang that ever surpassed them for ignorance, incapacity and love of boodle, was the first Legislature under the new Constitution. Most of these men were petty merchants, or mechanics, before they accepted the union labor party nominations.

With the two old parties combined against Schmitz and the union labor party, it looked as though there wasn't one chance in a hundred of any one of the party winning out. So poor was the outlook that most of the men approached by Ruef and Schmitz refused to go on the ticket. They said frankly that it would be a waste of time and money. So Ruef's henchmen finally got the present city officials, and the Supervisors, and a guffaw went up even in their own camp when the nominations were made.

The present Auditor, Sam Horton, was sporting editor of the Post, and went on the ticket as the result of a josh. He thought Ruef was fooling him until he read of his nomination. Then he had to stand the drinks for several days, and he never ceased to be "joshed" until the night of election day, when his success was announced.

LUDICROUS LONERGAN.

Of the Supervisors probably the most original and certainly the most ludicrous is Thomas F. Lonergan, who was a journeyman baker by trade.

Lonergan is a witty Irishman without any education. Personally he was so dirty that when he delivered bread for his boss many of his patrons complained, as they objected to his handling the clean bread with his dirty hands.

After election he suddenly blossomed out in the style of a "swell" barkeeper, with diamond shirt studs and patent-leather shoes. He drank like a fish, and bragged about his relations with Ruef. He inherited some money from Ireland, and put it into real estate and recently was cited before the local labor council because he rented one of his buildings to Japanese.

John J. Furey was a blacksmith prior to becoming a member of the Board of Supervisors. He was president of the local Blacksmiths' Union, and was recently elected sixth vice-president of the national organization at the national labor convention held in this city. He conducts a saloon on the corner of McAllister and Webster streets.

L. A. Rea was appointed by Mayor Schmitz about three years ago. Prior to his appointment he was engaged in the decorating business, employing a number of men. After the fire he engaged in the real estate business, and erected a number of buildings on the ground between Turk and Eddy streets on Fillmore. He is chairman of the Street Committee.

OTHER SUPERVISORS.

W. W. Sanderson held a lucrative position with Hooper & Jennings, wholesale grocers, prior to his election. He resigned his commercial position shortly afterwards. About three months ago Sanderson, who is a consumptive, went to Arizona for his health.

Sam Davis was a drummer in the Tivoli orchestra, and a member of the Musicians' Union. Davis is chairman of Supervisors. After the fire he erected the Davis Theater, in company with his brother, Moses Davis. Complaints have been made that it is a fire trap, but nothing has been done to shut it up.

Edward I. Walsh was foreman in a shoe factory. After his election he resigned that position.

C. J. Harrington was engaged in the saloon business on the corner of Eighth and Harrison streets at the time of his election.

Jennings J. Phillips is a printer. Previous to his appointment he was circulation manager for the Evening Post, which position he still holds.

James S. Kelley, when elected, was a piano finisher and polisher and a union member. He was employed for a number of years by Sherman, Clay & Co.

MAMLOCK'S RISE.

Max Mamlock was an electrician at ordinary wages prior to becoming a member of the Board of Supervisors. After the fire he became engaged in the automobile business, renting machines from a garage on the corner of Golden Gate avenue and Octavia streets.

F. P. Nicholas was a carpenter, and was president of the local carpenter's union. He was made chairman of the Building Committee of the Board of Supervisors. He is interested in a cigar stand on Eddy street.

Patrick M. McGushin, prior to his election, was a saloon-keeper. At one time he was a deputy in the County Clerk's office. He recently opened another saloon.

Charles Boxton is a dentist by profession, and has been on the Board of Supervisors for the last seven years. He saw service in the Philippines and was promoted from the rank of captain to colonel in the California volunteers.

Michael W. Coffey was a hackdriver prior to his nomination. He was president of the Hackmen's Union and a considerable factor in labor circles.

GALLAGHER'S RECORD.

James L. Gallagher is an attorney. As chairman of the Finance Committee of the board, all bills payable must go through his hands. He filled the unexpired term of Harry T. Creswell as City Attorney some twelve years ago.

Gallagher was appointed by Mayor Schmitz about three years ago to champion his cause against the Brandenstein Board of Supervisors. He has been a Democrat, and then a Republican, in politics. Since his appointment on the board he has not practiced his profession, claiming his entire time was occupied with matters "pertaining to the board's meetings." During Mayor Schmitz's visit abroad, and while he was in Washington, Gallagher was acting Mayor.

Gallagher has the unique distinction of having pinched 5 per cent. out of the bribe moneys that he handed each of the Supervisors. Ruef made him the go-between and he said he thought the labor of passing the bills was worth 5 per cent.

GETS AN EASY JOB.

Daniel G. Coleman is the youngest member of the board, and his first visit, as he has confessed to the office of one of the bribe-giving corporations, resulted in his enrollment on the company's pay roll at $150 a month, with no proviso of having to do any work.

News came to him that some of his confreres were getting rolls in four numbers, big dollars, too, and Coleman was in a quandary. He extricated himself from the dilemma of being seemingly a cheap man by resigning his $150 a month job. Then he was seen by the four-number roll man and had something to confess when the opportune time came.

He is alleged to have thus pulled in $5000 from the Home Telephone cash drawer and $3500 from the Pacific States Company.

"Yes," he is reported to have said in reply to a question, "I thought I was on the high road to wealth, but I guess now that it would have been better for me to have been contented with my job in the lumber office. I wish I had never seen the Supervisors' office."

Still, Coleman is a good rustler and he has a job in Pope & Talbot's lumber office.

RUEF'S FIRST ALARM.

As far back as last November Ruef became alarmed over reports of lavish expenditures along Fillmore street by Supervisors who had no property and no known income outside of their salary of $100 a month.

Many of them spent $20 a day for drinks and cigars and autos and others ran this up to $50. Everywhere they were hailed as liberal spenders and when the graft investigation first began, Ruef issued an order that all Supervisors must have some regular business, and that those who kept autos must prove to him that they have a legitimate income to warrant this lavishness.

The boss's remonstrance checked the open and flagrant spending for a few days, but the effect was not permanent and soon Lonergan, Coffey and others were cutting as wide a swath as before.

It is this open and notorious carousing that prevents the public from having any sympathy with these men. They have boodled—that was plain even to a child—and they have spent their ill gotten money like drunken sailors. Hence the public believed they should be punished and not coddled, and that they should be thrown out neck and crop, like any other thieves who crawl into public offices.

SCHMITZ DENIES ANY DICKERING.

SAYS HE DIDN'T NEGOTIATE FOR CONFESSION.

Heney and Burns Refuse to Discuss His Reported Offer—Langdon Confirms Statement That Wholesale Removal from Office of Corrupt Men Is Not Intended—Progress Made in Probing.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—Mayor Schmitz today in a statement to the Associated Press, indignantly denied that he had, through an intermediary, offered to confess on condition that he would not be prosecuted, and would be permitted to remain in office.

The Mayor declared that he has nothing to confess, and denounced the report as absolutely false. Neither Asst. Dist.-Atty. Heney nor Detective Burns would, in any way, discuss the reported offer of the Mayor.

Both Heney and Prosecuting Attorney Langdon confirmed the story sent out by the Associated Press last night that no attempt would be made at present to remove the Mayor or the Board of Supervisors, and declared untrue the report published in a local paper this morning that a wholesale removal of city officials was being planned, that the Federal government was interested in such a step, and that a citizens reconstruction committee should administer the affairs of the city.

As the result of the work of Dist.-Atty. Langdon's office ninety-seven indictments were found by the grand jury this week, or a total of 114 since the investigation began.

GRAND JURY MEETING.

The grand jury met at 11 o'clock this morning, half an hour later went to Judge Coffey's court to file the indictmenst and reconvened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Miss Nellie Smith, the stenographer for Gerstle, Frick & Beedy, the attorneys, who represent the Home Telephone Company, was the principal witness in the afternoon.

Miss Smith is regarded as the most important witness in the alleged telephone deal, and it is from her that the prosecution has for days been endeavoring to get the information which, it is claimed, would be the connecting link between Ruef and the Home Telephone officials in the matter of the $62,000, which, it is charged, was paid to the former for the Supervisors.

Miss Smith has heretofore been a recalcitrant witness. She was interrogated for an hour today, and the prosecution seemed to be much pleased with the results of the day's work in the grand-jury room.

The grand jury will meet again Monday afternoon to resume the telephone investigation. The probing of the alleged overhead trolley deal by the United Railroads will be commenced the latter part of next week.

The attorneys for Ruef, emphatically deny the persistent reports that there is misunderstanding and lack of harmony among them over the conduct of his case. They promise to issue a statement Monday.

TO WITHDRAW AGAIN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—It is stated that counsel for Abe Ruef of San Francisco will take steps in the Supreme Court of the United States on Monday next which will amount to seeking a withdrawal of the habeas corpus proceedings instituted in the tribunal in his behalf.

TOLEDO 'PHONE MAN IS NOW INDICTED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The grand jury today filed with Presiding Judge Coffey of the Superior Court thirteen indictments against A. K. Detweiler, a capitalist of Toledo, O., and one of the invorporators of the Home Telephone and Telegraph Company, accused of having bribed Supervisors in the interest of that corporation. Nine indictments were returned against Louis Glass, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific States Telephone Company, also accused of having bribed members of the Board of Supervisors.

Bail was fixed at $10,000 on each indictment, and warrants for service on the accused men were given into the hands of Detective Burns.

Detweiler is believed to be en route home from Toledo, and Glass is said to be in Nevada. These indictments were found last week, but placed on the secret file and not turned into open court until today.

The grand jury filed the twenty-two indictments in Judge Coffey's court at noon today.

Detweiler, it is alleged, spent $65,000 in bribing the Supervisors of this city to vote for the franchise to that company.

Glass, it is said, spent $45,000 securing the votes of nine Supervisors for the purpose of inducing them to oppose the granting of the franchise to the Home Telephone Company.

BENCH WARRANTS ISSUED.

Bench warrants were issued in each case and Glass, it is expected, will be arrested very soon.

When the grand jury had taken their seats in the court Judge Coffey asked if the body had any report to make. Foreman Oliver said:

"Your Honor, we have to report thirteen indictments."

"That is a lucky number," said Judge Coffey.

This remark caused laughter throughout the courtroom. Foreman the court and Judge Coffey, looking them over, said:

"They are all of a like kind."

"Yes, Your Honor," replied Foreman Oliver.

"Do you wish bond or bail fixed?" asked Judge Coffey.

"Yes, Your Honor," replied Assistant Dist.-Atty. Heney.

"Let the securities be $16,000, and the cash bail $5000 in each charge," said Judge Coffey.

The Supervisors whom it is alleged Lewis Glass, vice-president of the Pacific States Telephone Company, bribed, and the amounts which it is alleged he paid for their votes, are as follows: Supervisor Lonergan, $5000; Manlock, $5000; Walsh, $5000; Nicholas, $5000; Phillips, $5000; Coffey, $5000; Boxton, $5000; Wilson, $5000; Coleman, $5000.

The Supervisors whom it is alleged Detweiler bribed, and the amounts alleged to have been received by each of them, are as follows: Lonergan, $3500; Harrigan, $6000; Davis, $6000; Duffey, $6000; Wilson, $3500; Phillips, $3500; Coleman, $3500; Gallagher, $10,000; Manlock, $3500; Nicholas, $3500; Kelley, $6000; Coffey, $3500; Furey, $3500.

MISS SMITH ON STAND.

The grand jury devoted this afternoon to the examination of witnesses on a variety of subjects. Miss Nellie Smith, stenographer for the law firm of Thomas, Gerstle, Frick & Beedy, was again placed on the witness chair.

She took luncheon with Detective Burns in a Van Ness-avenue restaurant, and was accompanied by that detective to the grand-jury rooms. This was to the inquisitoral chamber. On the two previous occasions she was not communicative in relation to correspondence between the firm by which she was employed, and Abraham Ruef, in respect to the franchise of the Home Telephone Company.

Yesterday she was sweated for an hour by Asst. Dist.-Atty. Heney, and the prosecution expressed itself as satisfied with the result.

Joseph Goddard, who, for ten years, was a deputy county clerk, was among the witnesses examined.

PLEADS FOR HONESTY IN BUSINESS WORLD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Judge Elbert Henry Gary, executive head of the United States Steel Corporation, was asked today for his views upon the present business and financial condition of the country and how he regarded the uprising of the public against the operations of railroad managers and speculative financiers.

"That is a great problem," said Judge Gary, "my solution is this:

"Let all men who occupy positions of responsibility and influence, foster a disposition to improve their methods and get into a condition where they will be above reproach and attack.

"If the men who are complaining of movements calculated to bring exposure and to rectify wrongs will themselves become investigators and reformers they need fear no attacks from others."

"What influence has the present depression in the stock market had on real business?" was asked.

TO DIVORCE WALL STREET.

"Up to the present it does not seem to have had any. I don't know whether they have done so as yet, but it would be a good thing for the business interests of the country to divorce Wall street."

"What have you to say concerning the claim sometimes made that large aggregations of capital are to be deplored?"

"Except for our enormous capitalization," replied Judge Gary, "we could not maintain our expensive organization or afford the perfect equipment that enables us to get the foreign business what we now do. It is impossible to keep pace with the times and to promote and protect the business interest of this country without the aggregation of capital. This country is fast becoming the manufacturing center of the world.

"In speaking of great capitalists and organizers who should become reformers and thus avoid fear of attack, of course, I have no particular corporation or individual in mind. I have not given the question of Federal control of corporations through licenses sufficient thought to render an opinion worthy of importance on the subject. But I should hesitate to speak against it. I am not certain that it is objectionable. Large aggregations of wealth have great opportunities to do good, but this necessarily involves opportunity to do wrong. Therefore, there should be control of some kind, whether by the Federal government or some other power."

SAYS REFORM IS HALTED.

MUST NOT PLAN IN FRENZY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, March 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In a statement published in the New York Times today, former President Cleveland makes an eloquent appeal for sane and sensible management of the problems precipitated by the recent stock flurry. He says that the present agitation only halts reform.

When an angry public attacks the railroads the people hurt themselves. Government control of railroads, to be beneficial, cannot be planned in frenzy. Cool judgment and common sense must be enlisted to guide the present general demand for reform into safe channels.

INDORSES PRESIDENT.

"KITING" IS TOO FREQUENT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOLEDO (O.) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] President Eugene Zimmerman of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad, has proclaimed himself to be in favor of the announced policy of President Roosevelt in taking from States the supervision of railroads and placing the control of the roads in the Federal government. Just before leaving for New York this afternoon, Zimmerman said:

"I am with the President in so far as the supervision of railroads is concerned. Federal supervision instead of State supervision would be much better for the roads in that it would allow them to work under one law rather than under different laws of different States. Better for the railroads, better for the public. There has been too much kiting in Wall street," continued Zimmerman, "and I don't think they are through pounding the stocks down yet. There is more to come, in my opinion."

BANKER AMUSES CHILDREN.

Oak Park's banker, John Farson, having passed through the pupil stage of roller skating, is recruiting a large class. The latest seeker of knowledge of wheel walking is Dr. Daniel T. Denman pastor of the First Baptist Church at Oak Park. Farson announced today that he was having little trouble with his new pupil except that he was not certain of the condition of some of the asphalt where the minister made his maiden attempt at roller skating. When interviewed the millionaire banker was mounted on a pair of roller skates enjoying the sport with fifty boys and girls of Oak Park. The children of that city have turned the paved walks of his extensive lawns into a skating rink and Farson is the biggest boy of them all. The banker has hatless. In the place of his usual business frock, he wore a red jacket. Farson said several of Oak Park's society were going to enroll as pupils.

SHE'S A WRESTLER.

William H. Immes, No. 4411 Vinnces avenue, will never again doubt his daughter's ability as a wrestler. Immes is in Mercy Hospital with a split knee cap and a broken leg and other injuries as the result of a wrestling match with his daughter, Iona, who was formerly a star basketball player on the Rensalaaer (Ind.,) college team.

CHICAGO WILD WEST.

Herman Koetter, 14 years old, of Jersey City, having gained the impression through reading novels that Chicago was the home of the cowboy and the scene of many "shootings," stole $40 from his father three days ago and hurried West to become a cowboy and scalp Indians. He was arrested at the stockyards this afternoon while dickering with a cowboy for the purchase of a pair of large spurs which the latter was wearing.

BLIND WOMAN BURNS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DES MOINES (Iowa) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Carrie Tillotson, a blind woman of this city who recently became famous by receiving 100 proposals of marriage in answer to an advertisement, was today burned to death in her home. She was wealthy and had asked a husband to share her wealth and care for her. When suitors became numerous she scorned man and gave all her wealth to the Latter Day Saints at Lamona for a place in their home for the aged. She was to have left her own home tomorrow.

PURCHASES BOSTON ESTATE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON (Mass.) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] David C. Williams of Chicago has purchased the famous Francis B. Hayes estate in Lexington, a Boston suburb, and plans to use it as a summer home. It is the show place of Greater Bostoh, the house costing $300,000 and the twenty-eight acres of land being worth as much more. The house resembles an English castle, while the shrubbery and trees about it were imported from Japan and other countries at great expense.

OTTAWA PLANS REUNION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OTTAWA (Ont.) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ottawa is preparing for a monster summer carnival and old boys' reunion, to take place in the Canadian capital. Sports and amusements of all kinds will be provided, and over 100 visitors will be present while the carnival is in progress.

When Mrs. Levi Jett of Ashland, Ky., a relative of Curtis Jett, of Breathitt county feud fame, was bathing her infant she suddenly fell dead. The babe fell from the lifeless arms of its mother into a tub of hot water and was scalded to death.

Dolan-Morgan-McGowan Corporation Files Articles in Indiana, With Authorized Stock of $25,000,000, and $10,000,000 Bonds—Negotiations for Other Property Is Now on.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With the filing of articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State this afternoon, there was completed the gigantic traction merger which has been under way, and by which many of the Indiana lines, as well as lines in Ohio and Illinois, are taken in by what is known as the Dolan-Morgan-McGowan syndicate.

Stock amounting to $25,000,000 has been authorized, together with $10,000,000 in bonds. The company which will have control of the lines will be known as the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern Traction Company.

This company was organized some weeks ago by Indiana capitalists, and a small amount of capital stock was issued, for the purpose of constructing a through line between this city and Terre Haute. The capital stock is now raised to $25,000,000 and the merger will embrace the Indianapolis and Eastern Traction Company, the Richmond Street and Inter-Urban Railway Company, the Indianapolis and Martinsville Traction Company, the Indianapolis and Northwestern and the Indianapolis and Western Traction Companies, known as the Indiana Syndicate lines.

Some time ago the syndicate began negotiations for acquiring the property of the Terre Haute Traction and Light Company, and on Monday a proposition will be submitted to the owners of the property which it is expected will be accepted. This includes the Terre Haute property, the Sullivan, Clinton and Brazil traction lines, and a line that is under construction from Terre Haute to Danville.

RAILROAD RECORD.

PUT RAILWAYS OFF "CHANGE."

Ryan Says Oust All Tickers From Road's Offices.

Actual Operators Should Be Absolute in Control.

All Must Aid President to Reach Just Solution.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Thomas F. Ryan of New York was in Washington today, en route to his country home in Virginia. Speaking of present railroad problems, Ryan said:

"The railroads are really owned by the people and not by Wall street brokers. They should be taken out of Wall street and the stock quotation tickers should be taken out of the railroad offices. The practical railroad men who are charged with the responsibility of operating the railroads should be in absolute control. They should welcome every opportunity to confer with the President, aiding him in his efforts to reach a solution that will be fair and just to the country and to the corporations and insure strict obedience to the law.

"One of the bad features of the present financial situation is that every money center in the world is finding use for its capital in the promotion of home industries, and is using every effort to prevent its money from going into speculation. While I think we have money enough to take care of legitimate business, I don't believe, unless we can draw very largely from European money centers, that there is enough to carry on an active stock speculation in Wall street. I think it is the duty of the money lenders to frown upon any undue speculative movement in any direction."

PROTEST AGAINST RAISE.

SAY RAILROADS ARE UNFAIR.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CINCINNATI, March 23.—The board of directors of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce has adopted a memorial, which has been sent to President Roosevelt, to the Interstate Commerce Commission and to the presidents of the leading railroads of the country, protesting against any increase in freight rates, on the ground that the railroads have themselves announced that, owing to present lack of facilities, they are unable to furnish a reasonable service, the protest maintaining that, in view of this admission, it is manifestly unjust to attempt to raise rates.

HILL FILES HIS LINE APPRAISAL.

ASSERTS ITS VALUE PREVENTS LOWERING RATES.

Northwestern Pioneer Forestalls Act of Congress to Ascertain Worth of Properties and Action by Interstate Commerce Commission—Same Question Is Involved in Other Suits.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As a defense in the Spokane rate case under consideration by the Interstate Commerce Commission the Hill system has submitted a statement that its property which sold in 1897 for $170,000,000 is now worth $390,000,000 and would cost that to reproduce and that in consequence its rates cannot be reduced. This action on the part of the Hill system brings forward the disputed question of what "a just and reasonable rate" is as contemplated under the Interstate Commerce act.

The railroads contend that in fixing a rate the commission must take into account the value of the property.

Repeated attempts were made in Congress to pass some legislation looking to the appraisement of the railroad properties of the country, but nothing has been done and the Hill system has forestalled any action by the commission by submitting its own valuation of its property.

Commissioners Prouty and Harlan, who conducted the hearings in Chicago last week, are considering whether the appraisement made by the Hill people of their system is a correct one. The same question will be involved in practically every rate-making case which the Interstate Commerce Commission is compelled to pass on.

ONE THOUSAND ARE POISONED.

LEAVENWORTH VETERANS EAT HASH WITH PTOMAINE.

Nine Hundred Are Being Treated in Hospitals, and Scores Are in a Critical Condition—Government Physicians Taxed to Their Utmost to Save Them from Death.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LEAVENWORTH (Kan.) March 23.—More than 1000 veterans at the National Soldiers' Home here are suffering from ptomaine poisoning, the result of eating meat hash at breakfast this morning. No deaths have been reported so far.

The first symptoms of trouble were manifested several hours after breakfast. Soon the Home hospital was crowded with sick veterans, and the ambulances were rushing in from the barracks with loads of them.

There was an apparent effort upon the part of officers to suppress the real condition of affairs, which didn't become known until after noon.

Nine hundred of the veterans are being treated in the hospitals tonight. No deaths have yet resulted but there are several hundred in a critical condition.

The government physicians and nurses at the home have been taxed to the utmost since noon without ceasing and have probably succeeded in saving a score who were in a dying condition when found.

The infection worked slowly, nearly four hours elapsing between the meal and the development of the symptoms. Then the men began to drop by the hundreds. Ambulances and stretchers were in so great demand that many lay for hours without attention. In the case of aged patients this will make it more harmful.

MARE ISLAND'S FLUSHER AIDS.

Contrivance Proves Successful in Channel.

Permanent Relief Afforded by Engineer Ross.

Navy Yard Channel no Longer Clogged by Silt.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Navy Department is in receipt of flattering reports concerning the flusher which was designed and installed at Mare Island by Civil Engineer H. R. Rousseau, before that officer came to Washington as chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

For years, as is well known in the service, more or less trouble—much of it of an expensive sort—was encountered at Mare Island with the changes in the channel. Every now and then the approach to the navy yard clogged up so that it was impossible to get vessels in and out without much risk. It took steady dredging to relieve the situation.

As an aid to the deeper channel, which was created by the construction of bulkheads, Engineer Rousseau installed a flusher which operates on the principle of a large spray lowered to the bottom of the channel. Water is pumped through at a high velocity, throwing the silt into suspension and enabling an increased current to carry the material to the bay. There is reported an enduring, and probably permanent, relief from the old conditions which threatened at one time to cause the closing of Mare Island yard.

There is also, of course, a consequent saving in the constant outlay which was formerly necessary in dredging the approach to the yard.

SEEK ADOPTION OF WIRED GUNS.

TESTS PROVE VALUE OF NEW CONSTRUCTION METHOD.

Suggestion Is Made That San Francisco Defenses Be Equipped With Lighter Style Cannon—New Army Supply Station at Fort Mason to Have Modern Appliances.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The proposal has been made to the War Department to have the first of the new 14-inch guns which will be built as the substitute for the 12-inch guns of the coast defense armament, built on the wire-wound principle, instead of being of the built-up type.

This is the direct result of the tests which have been going on at Sandy Hook between the Crosier and Brown guns of the wire-wound pattern. The demonstration has been quite conclusive, and added to that fact is the adoption of the type by the English some years ago.

It is considered that the 14-inch gun might very profitably be of the wire-wound type. One of that caliber would weigh no more than does the present built-up 12-inch gun. It is expected that San Francisco's defenses will be among the first to be equipped with 14-inch guns.

In the plans which have been approved by the Quartermaster-General of the army, and which contemplate the establishment at Fort Mason of an extensive army supply station, to cost $1,500,000, every advantage is taken of the latest appliances for saving time and labor.

Every device for the quick handling of supplies will be adopted, and altogether the plant will be a model one. It will be one of the important commands of the army, with its six big storehouses and huge piers—sufficient to accommodate four army transports at one time. It is too early to speculate on the officer who will command the place, but when it is ready it will undoubtedly afford an opportunity to assign to duty there one of the general officers. Provision is being made for quarters for twelve officers, which fact indicates the importance of the station.

The Navy Department is in the market for the annual supply of butter for the service, amounting, this year, to 700,000 pounds, which is 50,000 pounds less than the amount purchased last year. There is a quantity of the tinned butter on hand, so it is possible to purchase less for the next year. There is a departure from the present practice in that the contractor will be paid for his butter when it is placed in storage at designated warehouses at such central points as Jersey City, Chicago and San Francisco.

BUFORD CARRIES RELIEF.

ACTION IS DECLARED LEGAL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The army transport Buford will leave San Francisco about June 5 with a quantity of relief stores for the sufferers from famine in China. There was some question whether this could be legally accomplished, but it was found that the use of a transport to convey relief under such circumstances is in conformity to precedent and will constitute under the existing conditions of emergency a lawful and proper use of a vessel of the transport fleet.

The Buford will carry about 5000 tons of cargo, and all the space will be available for relief supplies. She will proceed to Shanghai and recoal after discharging the supplies intended for the famine sufferers and will continue on to Manila, returning to San Francisco ultimately with the headquarters, band and two squadrons of the Seventh Cavalry, which are due to come home.

The Buford will be utilized on the outward passage to convey a party numbering fifty or sixty members of Congress, who are to pay a visit to the Hawaiian Islands.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS.

Open Warship Bids April 1.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Plans and specifications for the two new battleships authorized by the last session of Congress will be ready for competitive bidding April 1. Bids will be invited upon the department plans, and there also will be given an opportunity for bidders to submit designs of their own work, especially with a view to encouraging heavier armament and greater speed than are contemplated by the department designs. The government designs are likely to be adopted, however, according to the views of the naval constructors. Secretary Metcalf is anxious that every encouragement be held out for a record breaking progress in the construction of battleships, and this consideration may materially influence the bidding.

Equips Mine-Laying Ship.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The Navy Department has ordered the equipment of the United States ship San Francisco as a mine-laying vessel. The navy has heretofore lacked a feature of this character, but the importance of mines, as demonstrated in the Russo-Japanese War, decided the department to make arrangements for equipment for the laying of mines during war. The San Francisco is now laid up at Norfolk.

English Have Marvin Boy.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Third Assistant Secretary of State Wilson tonight received a cablegram from the American Consul at Portsmouth, England, saying the authorities there have a boy who answers the description of Horace Marvin, kidnapped recently from Kettshammock, Del.

Attend Pan-American Meeting.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Secretary Root and Director Barrett of the Bureau of American Republics, will attend the meeting of the international commission in New York, April 15-17. It is believed that Root may at that time forecast the attitude of this government at The Hague conference to be held in June. A further explanation of this country's attitude toward the Latin-American countries is also expected from Secretary Root.

Probes Title to Islands.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Richard R. Rogers, general counsel for the Isthmian Canal Commission, who started today for Panama with Secretary Taft and his party, will investigate the titles to the three small rocky islands in Panama Harbor and recommend what steps shall be taken for their acquisition by the United States. The Pacific Mail Steamship Company is using one of the islands, having storehouses and shops there, and claims title to the property. The Panama Railroad has also been making use of some of the property.

UTAH BROKERS QUIT BUSINESS.

LOS ANGELES BRANCH WILL ALSO CLOSE APRIL 1.

Gibson Stock and Grain Company Announces Retirement, Due to Flurries in Market and Ill Health of Concern's Officer—Is Not Financially Embarrassed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SALT LAKE (Utah) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Recent flurries in the stock market and the nervous prostration of their chief correspondent in San Francisco, caused the retirement from business today of the Gibson Stock and Grain Company.

The Los Angeles branch of the company will be discontinued April 1. The Gibson Stock and Grain Company has been in business here about nine years.

Until a few years ago, the firm was A. A. Gibson & Co., but after its reorganization, a branch was established in Los Angeles and correspondents appointed in Denver, Pueblo and Colorado Springs, Colo., and San Francisco.

Officers of the company assert that they paid an average of $58,000 a year to the Western Union Telegraph Company as rental here. They say they made considerably money, particularly in the last year, and that the retirement is not due to financial embarrassment.

HELPS LOCATE MARVIN BOY.

President Responds With Hearty Aid to Appeal of Father of Kidnaped Son.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—President Roosevelt today addressed the following letter to H. N. Marvin of Dover, Del., who asked the President if government aid could not be extended toward the recovery of his missing child:

"My Dear Mr. Marvin.—I am in receipt of your telegram of the 22nd inst. Anything that the government can do to help you will, of course, be done; for save only the crime of assault upon women, there is none so dreadful as that which has brought heartbreaking sorrow to your household. I have at once communicated with the Postoffice Department, asking that all aid be given that we have in our power to give along the lines you mention, or in any other way which may prove practicable. Believe me,

"Sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

In his telegram to the President, Marvin said that many threatening letters are sent him every day, saying that his boy may be killed by a supposed captor, and suggested that they be looked into. He also said that he had sent out pictures and notices regarding his kidnaped boy and was told that the postmasters were not allowed to display them in the public buildings. The father said he believed a word from the President to the Federal authorities, he suggested, might be the greatest aid of all.

WANT TO KNOW EARNINGS.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—The counsel for the telegraphers at the meetings of the board of arbitration yesterday advanced the proposition that his clients were entitled to have the statement of net earnings of the Southern Pacific, as issued by Harriman to the board of directors in 1906. The request was vigorously opposed by the attorneys for the railroad on the ground that no question was involved of the ability of the company to pay a fair compensation to the men, and furthermore, that the men were not concerned in the net earnings of the road.

In view of the admission of the attorneys that the road was abundantly able to pay fair compensation to its operators, and also as the Southern Pacific company is obliged by law to render a full annual statement of receipts and expenditures, the board decided that the request seemed superfluous and was denied.

WHAT is it to coin a word? Schilling's Best coined money back.

POLITICAL.

TAFT PREFERS CHIEF JUSTICE.

He Does Not Oppose Renomination of President.

Chief Executive Is Still Popular With Masses.

Many Leaders Hug Their Hatred in Silence.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] William H. Taft does not take his Presidential boom very seriously. He has said more than once in the intimacy of private conversation, "I wouldn't amount to anything as a Presidential candidate without the President's favor and backing."

He would rather be chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. He is not going to let himself become so deeply involved in any plans looking to his elevation to the Presidency that he cannot withdraw should the opportunity offer for President Roosevelt to appoint him to the chief justiceship. So definitely made up is Taft's mind that it might almost be said that if the Republican convention on June 30, were to nominate him and if Chief Justice Fuller should resign on June 29, Taft would declare himself for the bench.

Republicans who were closely allied with the management of the last Republican national campaign say today that unless some unforeseen change occurs in public sentiment, Theodore Roosevelt will control the 1908 convention as absolutely as he controlled the Chicago convention of 1904. Probably one-third, maybe one-half of the so-called Republican leaders throughout the country detest the President's methods and policies. Yet none of them, with the exception of Senator Foraker, has the courage openly to set up an opposition. This phenomenon has been commented on before.

PRESIDENT GRINS AT FOES.

Before the first session of the Fifty-ninth Congress adjourned last June the halls and the committee-rooms of the Senate and House were buzzing with horrid imprecations and hostile criticism of the President. Republicans from nearly every State had harsh things to say. In the face of all this, two-thirds of them went home and appealed to their constituents for reëlection on the ground that they were supporters and champions of Theodore Roosevelt's legislative proposals. The President knew of this feeling against him and used to grin when it was spoken of in his presence.

Some of the very ablest politicians and managers in the Republican party today, men who are thoroughly familiar with the inner workings of the national organization of the party, have let it be known recently that they firmly believe the President could be renominated unanimously by the next convention if he chose to say the word and that if renominated today he would carry more States than in 1904; in other words that he would break the "Solid South" and carry at least three of the States that went for Parker in the last national election.

But the President has no present intention of trying for a third term. If his dreams come true he will come forward as a candidate again in 1912 or 1916. Now he aims toward doing his share and perhaps a little more in seeing that the Republicans elect next year a man who will continue "the Roosevelt policies."

Every Republican with any claim to a voice in the national councils in the party is watching Gov. Hughes like a hawk. The President is at the head of this list. He has announced that he will ask Gov. Hughes to visit him this summer "to talk about things." If the President finds the Governor in accordance with him on such matters of national importance as the control of the corporations and a stronger and more rigid supervision of the transportation lines, Hughes's chances of becoming the President's nominee next summer will be that much stronger.

CHICAGO NEAR "BRAIN STORM."

BITTER MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN NEARS CLIMAX.

Dunne Denounces Traction Settlement Ordinance as a "Complete Surrender"—Busse Squarely for It. Democratic Camp Chaotic—Republicans Stand Solid.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With the bitterest and most complicated mayoralty campaign in the history of the city nearing its climax, Chicago is apparently verging rapidly to the point of "brain storm."

The issue has been plainly stated in the first week of the whirlwind campaign. Mayor Dunne has denounced the Traction Settlement Ordinance, known as the "partnership plan," as a complete surrender to the traction companies, declaring that the terms of the ordinance make it impossible that the city will ever be able to acquire the properties. Fred A. Busse, Republican candidate, is squarely for the "partnership" ordinances, and immediate improvement of the street car service.

For the first time in many years all factions of the Republican party are united on a candidate for Mayor, and in this is seen their brightest prospects for victory.

Congressman William Lorimer, kingpin of the so-called "Federal combine," is working tooth and nail for the ticket, while Gov. Deneen, leader of the "State crowd," will next week come to Chicago and take the stump for Busse.

In the Democratic camps the situation is chaotic. Many of the Democratic Aldermen who helped to pass the traction ordinances over Mayor Dunne's veto, are up for reëlection, and in each case they are opposed by Hearst Independence League candidates, who are for Dunne and against the ordinances.

The Democratic managers insist, however, that these party fights will help Mayor Dunne in that a full party vote will be polled. As far as indicated by the betting the chances are even, neither side being willing to offer odds on the result.

As a result of their first poll the Republican managers claim that Busse will receive at least 160,000 votes. The Democratic committee base their claims on the result of the county elections last fall, when the leading Republican candidates won with a total vote in the city of 119,310. The Democratic candidate received 89,774 votes and the Independence League, now supporting Dunne, had 47,577 votes.

Methods employed by William R. Hearst in his New York campaigns are to be evoked for the purpose of electing Mayor Dunne. Arthur Brisbane, chief editorial writer of the Hearst newspapers, has entered the Chicago campaign, bringing a staff of writers and cartoonists with him from the East. With the exception of the two Hearst organs, Mayor Dunne is contending against a solid line-up of the Chicago papers.

That at least one influential paper is swayed by selfish reasons is contended by Mayor Dunne's friends, who point to a suit brought by the Mayor to vacate a lease of public school ground held by this paper, because of alleged questionable methods employed to secure the property at a reduced valuation.

Personalities also have been injected into the campaign. Thousands of copies of an anonymous pamphlet designating Mayor Dunne as "glutton, drunkard and libertine," have been circulated. In return, affidavits were published holding up the Republican candidate as the boon companion of "thugs," and as engaging in "drunken street fights." More sensational "revelations" are hinted at.

SEEKS MANAGER FOR TAFT BOOM.

SECRETARY'S BROTHER ASKS VORYS TO ENTER FIGHT.

Calls Ohio's Most Prominent Leader of "Practical" Politics for Conference—Acceptance Means Determined Fight Against Foraker-Dick-Cox Machine—Will Soon be Started.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Washington papers print a dispatch from Cincinnati which says that Charles P. Taft, brother of the Secretary of War, has returned from the East and today he invited A. T. Vorys of Columbus to Cincinnati for a conference. After their conference Taft said:

"On returning from my visit to Washington, I requested Mr. Vorys to come to Cincinnati. I had a talk with him, and proposed that he undertake to discover the sentiment of the people of the State toward William H. Taft. He has a wide acquaintance over the State, and I said to him that I would like for him to give as much time and attention to the matter as he can. He has said he will give me definite answer by next Monday."

The enlistment of Vorys as manager of the Taft fight in Ohio—for that is what Ohio people in Washington say it would amount to if he should accept the invitation extended to him by Charles P. Taft—will be recognized as the opening of a great political campaign.

Vorys has been one of the largest figures in practical politics in Ohio. He was Insurance Commissioner under Herrick, and was very close to Cleveland, who is now enlisted under the banner of opposition to Foraker and Dick.

Charles P. Taft, confronted with the big proposition of organizing a great fight in Ohio, came to Washington for aid and comfort. Taft is a good business man, and a good newspaper man, but the proposition of organizing Ohio for a fight on such a power as the Foraker-Dick-Cox machine was rather a large contract.

Taft found encouragement in Washington. He found the President sympathetic and he found Theodore E. Burton ready to get into the thick of the fight. He went home encouraged, and determined to go to work immediately.

PILLAGE HOMES OF CHRISTIANS.

ROUMANIAN UPRISING IS ANARCHISTIC, SAYS MINISTER.

Cabinet Official Asserts Outrages Are Not Only Anti-Semetic, but Inspired by Lust for Loot—Peasants, Armed With Cudgels, Threaten Death to Employers.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BUCHAREST (Roumania) March 23.—The Roumanian government says that the uprising of the peasants in Moldavia is more of an anarchistic character than anti-Semetic. In reply to requests for a statement upon the subject today, Finance Minister Ionescu wrote the following note:

"The present regrettable movement is not only of an anti-Semetic but also of an agrarian and anarchistic character. The houses of Christians, both owners and tenants, have been destroyed. The government has taken all possible measures to cope with the movement which now must be regarded more as an anarchistic campaign than anything else."

According to the latest advices received here the movement is spreading southward. Bands of peasants in the Brahitov and Buzeu districts, mostly armed with cudgels, are marauding over the farms, threatening the proprietors with death unless they ameliorate the conditions of work.

The government claims that the disturbances have been quelled in the districts into which it has been able to get sufficient troops. A regiment of cavalry left here today for the Bacau and Vaslui districts.

In the Bacau, Vaslui and Roman districts, the peasants are well organized. Most of them have served in the army and they have formed themselves into companies and regiments under officers, and are plundering small towns and villages, wherever there is an insufficient number of troops to overawe them, without distinction as to nationality. In several districts the land owners have yielded to the demands of the peasants and the raids have ceased.

In the attack made by the peasants on troops at Blegesti in the Bacua district which resulted in fourteen of the attackers being killed, the peasants seized Col. Poltzer, who was in command of the troops, and locked him up in the house of the Public Prosecutor, which they were preparing to burn when the troops dispersed them.

A serious encounter between troops and peasants has occurred at the small town of Misalleni near the Bukovina frontier in the district of Borohol. Many peasants were killed during the fighting.

The disturbed sections of the country have been placarded with an announcement made by the government that the bill against farming trusts will be submitted to Parliament during the present session.

PEASANTS RAID TOWNS.

TEACHER INCITES MASSACRE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

VIENNA, March 23.—According to a telegram received here today from Czernowitz, on the Roumanian border, Verpole and Pudsti have been captured by peasants who took the places by assault and pillaged and devastated them. The attack on Misalleni, Roumania, continues, the peasants persistently assaulting the town. The troops have thus far been unable to drive back the peasants and many have been killed or wounded on both sides.

A letter has reached the Israelite Alliance, from Podullacti, Roumania, stating that every Jewish building there has been destroyed and that a great many Jews and their wives and children have been injured.

The peasants who attacked the place were incited by speeches delivered by a teacher belonging to one of the public schools, who urged the expulsion of all Jews from the farms, and residences occupied by Jewish tenants.

Cacona, Bosia and Baprikani, Roumania, are reported to have been completely destroyed by a band of two thousand peasants. Only buildings where the inhabitants placed crucifixes between lighted candles in the windows were spared.

INDICATES SYMPATHETIC MOVE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

KISHINEV (Russia) March 23.—The agrarian disorders in Roumania have incited a sympathetic movement on the Bessarabian side of the Prauth. The peasantry are in a ferment everywhere and the villagers of Mindger have taken possession of a private estate. A detachment of Cossacks has been sent there.

MAXIM'S NEW DISCOVERY.

Inventor of High Explosives Tells of Safety Detonating Fuse, Result of Ten Years' Work.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, March 23.—Hudson Maxim, inventor of high explosives, made the dinner tendered Sir Percy Sanderson, retiring British Consul, by the Canadian Club, tonight, the occasion of the first announcement concerning a new safety detonating fuse which he has invented, after ten years of experimenting, and which he declares has been the aim of inventors for years. By it, he said, it was possible to send a shell through armor, and cause it to explode at exactly the right distance behind the armor desired by the gunner. It will not matter whether the armor is one inch or twelve inches in thickness, the inventor said.

Besides the new safety detonating fuse, Maxim told about a new smokeless powder, stabilite, which he has just begun to manufacture. This new weapon of warfare, Maxim declared, will wipe out many of the elements attaching to the use of smokeless powder. The speaker prefaced his remarks about high explosives with a talk on the comparatively undefended seaboards on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States. The tremendous expense of modern warfare, he said, makes the unprepared nation the only inviting bait. Poor old China is a good example of what may happen to a nation unprepared to maintain its own peace by being prepared for war.

PANIC ON BOURSE.

BERLIN, March 23.—There was a panic upon the Bourse today owing to yesterday's advices from New York. Prices in all departments suffered a sharp relapse, mining shares losing 10 points. Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania declined 5 points and Canadian Pacific 11 points. The tone upon the London Stock Exchange today was unsettled and a nervous feeling prevailed with a declining tendency in almost every section, due largely to yesterday's break in American securities.

FIRE IN PITTSBURGH.

PITTSBURGH, March 23.—The plant of the Bached Machinery Company on Liberty and Twenty-fifth streets, the Simmonds Manufacturing Company and the plant of Brown and Zeortman Manufacturing Company were damaged by a fire late this afternoon. PROMINENT HOSPITALS SAY

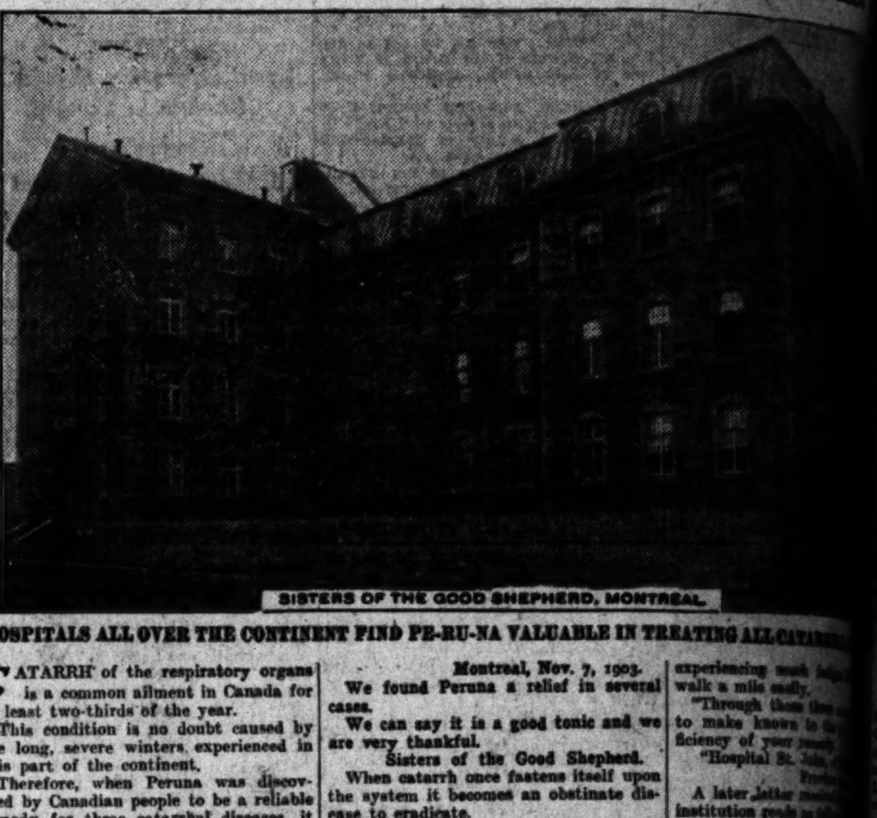
PE-RU-NA IS EFFICIENT

IN RELIEVING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES



SISTERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, MONTREAL.

HOSPITALS ALL OVER THE CONTINENT FIND PE-RU-NA VALUABLE IN TREATING ALL CATA

CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common ailment in Canada for at least two-thirds of the year.

This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent.

Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a reliable remedy for these catarrhal diseases, it at once became a popular medicine, not only among individuals and in families, but in the great hospitals, where it was used as a perventative and relief in hundreds of cases.

These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of their poor and sick.

Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorsement:

The Peruna Company,
Columbus, Ohio.

Having used Peruna for the past few months, for our sick and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd,
August 20, 1903.
Montreal.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remdy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms:

Montreal, Nov. 7, 1903.

We found Peruna a relief in several cases.

We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful.

Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

When catarrh once fastens itself upon the system it becomes an obstinate disease to eradicate.

A systematic remedy—one that reaches every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity.

Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process.

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write as follows:

"We are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 68 years old, Renoui Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years.

"A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna caused to disappear.

"As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic.

"Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. I walk a mile easily.

"Through these lines to make known to the ficiency of your remedy

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Leo Mathias, a sculptor in the Rue Daguerre, was at work on a statue to be entitled "Evening," which he hoped to exhibit at the next salon. It was a nude study, and Mlle. Gabrielle was his model. Not only was she perfect as a model, but in the sculptor's thoughts she was perfect as an ideal woman, for he loved her. Many long hours of mingled love for her and for his model did Mathias devote to the statue. One fine day, however, Gabrielle disappeared. The sculptor was so overcome that he decided on suicide. He carried to the of his studio all his statues and and various unfinished works arranged them in a semicircle. the center he placed the unfinished of Gabrielle, then in the midhe erected a scaffold and hanged

Daughter of John D. Rockefeller, With Her Young Child and Maid Faces Death.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, her 6-year-old son and her maid narrowly escaped serious injury and perhaps death today when the coach in which they were being driven to the West Twenty-third-street ferry was run into and smashed by a Sixth-avenue trolley car.

The driver, Thomas Stapleton, the private coachman of John D. Rockefeller, was thrown from the box and so seriously injured that his recovery is doubtful. He is in the New Hospital.

Mrs. Prentice, her child and maid were saved by the fact that the horses in their flight after the collision ran between two express wagons. The wheels of the Rockefeller coach became locked and the thoroughly frightened pair of spirited animals tore for near a mile.

Mrs. Prentice, with her maid and child, was on her way to catch the ferry which connects with the early afternoon train to the Prentice home, No. 5 West Fifty-third street.

The driver took the route down Fifth avenue and, to avoid the crowd, turned west in Twenty-fifth street, intending to follow that less-used thoroughfare to North River instead of Twenty-third street. The carriage was totally wrecked.

CARACAS (Venezuela) March 16, via Willemstadt, Island of Curacao, March 23.—It is unofficially reported that Gen. Juan Pablo Penalosa, the Venezuelan revolutionist, who, with 400 men, invaded the State of Tachira from Colombia, March 17, was met by 4000 regular troops under Gen. Celestino Castro, brother of President Castro, and defeated. Details are unobtainable, as the telegraph wires are out. Another report says that Celestino Castro was not engaged with Penalosa's forces, but with a band of guerillas.

ACCUSE SUPERVISORS.

FRESNO, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There has been considerable feeling stirred up over the sale by the Supervisors of the county farm for $25,000. It was purchased at this price by W. J. Cleary, who was one of the two bidders. Now that the sale has been made old members of the Fresno Trotting Horse Association state that they were deterred from entering bids owing to the fact that the Supervisors had stated all bids would be rejected in favor of the Agricultural Association, who would have bought it on condition that a part of it should have been reserved as a race track. The Supervisors strenuously deny having made any statements which would scare off bidders for the tract or having misrepresented the case in any way. However, on Monday, C. A. Schwertzer of the Fresno Trotting Horse Association will bring suit against the Supervisors to stop the sale on the grounds of illegality.

ARBITRATORS DISCUSS PRICES.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—The greater part of today's session of the arbitration court in the dispute between the Southern Pacific Company and its telegraphers was consumed in reading affidavits of employés stationed in the cactus deserts of Southern California and Arizona. In these affidavits it is alleged, that the men were obliged to live in the huts and broken box cars with rattlesnakes and horned toads, in the hottest climate on the globe, to do without even the commonest necessaries of life, and to pay what they call "desert prices" for their groceries and foodstuffs.

LONDON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Americans who pass their time in London on research work are going to meet with disappointment in London this year, for the order has gone out to close the reading room of the British Museum for six months beginning in April. This is necessary in order to give the two million volumes in the library a thorough inspection as well as to repair the dome, which is said to contain several dangerous looking cracks, besides paint is necessary. According to an attendant it has been just fifty years since the interior of the library was painted.

LEVEES HOLD, HOPE RISES.

Rain Still Falls but People Are Optimistic.

Tide Will Bring Higher Water, Says Forecaster.

Districts Already Inundated to Swallow Overflow.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, March 23.—While there was no apparent improvement in the flood situation in the island district south of this city today, the belief prevails that any reclamation district levees that withstood the force of the flood wave of Friday has a good chance to pull through.

That the water will go higher tomorrow morning and still higher Monday seems to be the belief of Weather Observer Scarr of this city, but it will be due to a slight rising of the tide. This, however, is not expected to be very trying to the levees.

It is thought that the heavy rain of this morning, which was general all over the valley, will do little more than pour water into the already flooded districts to the north, and that it will not be appreciably felt in the lower island district. The sentiment today is hopeful.

Early in the morning word was received from Fair Oaks that George Dassouville and Fred Frane were drowned while trying to take a small boat with government mail across the river, and that Christ Anderson nearly lost his life in attempting a rescue.

From 2 a.m. until noon today 1.33 inches of rain fell and the sewer sump pumps could not lift the water. In order to prevent the sump station from flooding, the sewer gate at Fifteenth and S streets was shut down, resulting in flooding O, N and M streets from Eighteenth to Thirty-first street.

In a few instances water entered basements, but practically no damage was done. When the rain ceased the gate was raised and the streets were drained.

Sacramento sits dry inside its strong levees and there appears to be no danger from any quarter. In fact, since the beginning of the flood this city has been in no danger, and with breaks above and below, it seems impossible that any rise in the river will throw water into this city.

Early in the morning a rumor was in circulation to the effect that the levee had broken at the Herget place, a mile above Washington, in Yolo county, and that there was danger that the town would be swept away. The rumor, however, proved groundless.

Two relief boats with provisions, bedding and barges left this city early in the morning. Those persons who have been driven to the levees will be brought to this city if they desire to come, and food, clothing and bedding will be distributed.

At 9:45 o'clock tonight the Union's correspondent with the relief boat sent the following communication from Isleton, in the southern part of this county, covering the entire situation in the rich island district:

"On the west side of the river the country between Sacramento and Clarksburg, in Yolo county, is inundated, including the Lisbon district, the Ryde district and several other and smaller ones.

"Below Clarksburg, on the west side, Merritt and Grand islands are intact, though seepage and surface water is noticeable in a limited degree, caused chiefly from the lack of fuel for the engines at the pumping plants.

"The levee systems of these islands appear to be intact and should meet every demand made upon them at present. A considerable raise could be taken care of in both places. Sacks of sand are used in low places, but these are infrequent, chiefly in runways and depressions in front of residences."

"Grand Island looks particularly strong, and both it and Merritt present assuring appearances.

"On the east, or Sacramento side, there is no break in the levee between Sacramento and Freeport, but a large volume of water is in reclamation districts 535 and 673, from the breaks in the back levee and several breaks between Freeport and Courtland on the Bryan and Terry ranches. There is one break in the Bryan and two in the Terry levees and these flood the entire district between Freeport and Courtland. The levees are also broken in the private reclamation districts of the Johnson, Gammon and Dwight Hollister ranches, and others.

"At the lower end of the Hollister ranch the Presson district and Randall Island levees seem to be in a precarious condition and heroic work was being done there. It is recognized as the key to the safety of the Pierson district, which in all other respects seems to be safe. Farmers from miles away went to Randall Island and did some of the most effective work ever accomplished in battling high water along the river. The levee is holding and is probably safe.

"Tyler Island levee went out at 6 o'clock this evening and is past the possibility of repair until the river shall have fallen. A hard fight was made for six hours, 600 men participating in the work. Several breaks were repaired, but the work was of no avail. The break is a hundred feet wide and will be a quarter of a mile by morning.

"Upper, Middle and Lower Andrus Island districts are in excellent condition as to levees on both sides of Georgiana slough and Front levees, and the only fear the land owners have is that the Brannan Island levees may go out and let the flood in over the back levees.

"The Brannan Island levees are in the most critical condition of all the island levees that are not flooded. The water is dangerously near the top and at the McDonough, Runyon and Crump ranches several hundred men are at work with scrapers and sacks and some were hauling material from Isleton.

"There have, at this writing, been no breaks at the city of Isleton and although the situation is grave and the water has raised several inches there is hope that the Andruss Island will be saved. The water at Isleton is two feet higher than ever before known.

"The water in Georgiana slough, the Mokelumne, and San Joaquin River is not dangerously high and no immediate concern is felt on their account."

HEAVY RAIN FALLS.
PRUNE CROP SUFFERS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN JOSE, March 23.—The heaviest rain of the season fell here this morning, 1.20 inches being precipitated in two hours. Many of the streets were temporarily flooded and Los Gatos, Guadaloupe and Coyotte creeks, running through this city, are higher than during the recent storm, being almost up to the bridge.

The country below here is flooded and trains are held up. A large section of track is out at San Bruno. In the Santa Cruz Mountains many extensive landslides came down last night, covering the county roads.

Col. Philo Hersey, president of the Santa Clara County Fruit Exchange, is authority for the statement today that this present storm on top of the preceding one has destroyed half of the prune crop of the valley by washing the pollen from the blossoms.

The Guadaloupe has broken out of its banks south of town and a wide and deep stream is flowing through the suburbs, stopping street cars and threatening to wash away many residences.

The large warehouse in Milpitas belonging to William Osterman and Company, one of the largest in the State, blew down early this morning.

SANTA CRUZ INUNDATED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SANTA CRUZ, March 23.—As the result of a terrific storm last night the San Lorenzo River, which flows through the center of this city, overflowed its banks. All the lower part of the residence district was flooded and a few inhabitants forced to vacate. A bridge at Brookdale and another at Boulder Creek were swept away by gigantic redwood logs which came down the stream in vast numbers. Many men, armed with long poles, managed to save the local bridges.

ROADS BLOCKED.
TRANSPORTATION IS PROBLEM.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, March 22.—Transportation conditions are much mixed here. There is no direct rail route to San Francisco because of a landslide in Niles Cañon and interruption between Tracy and Lathrop, and Tracy and Port Costa.

It is expected to get repairs made by Monday so that a train may run from here to Port Costa, via Stockton. The line to Marysville is interrupted by a washout near Wheatland. portage over that break will be secured by Sunday evening, it is hoped. The line on the west side, via Knights Landing, is blocked by overflows and washouts, and is cut off between here and Davisville by washouts.

The road over the mountains is clear. Passengers from the East are sent from here to San Francisoc by steamer. There will be no steamer Sunday, however. The Knights Landing bridge is safe. The line to Placerville is open and has been.

POURS IN STOCKTON.
RAINFALL IS ENORMOUS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

STOCKTON, March 23.—The fierce wind of last night was followed by the heaviest rainstorm of the season, and nearly two inches of rain fell in this vicinity.

The rain is general all over this section of the valley, extending up into the hills. Telephone messages to the Mail from several points are to the effect that the rainfall for this storm is enormous and the streams are again rising.

This adds to the gravity of the situation at Stockton. The local streams have been rising steadily all morning and it seems certain that another flood will result.

Information reached here this morning to the effect that the Salt Spring Valley reservoir, five miles above Milton, is bankful. Men are guarding it, and if the break appears inevitable the embankment will be cut, so as to relieve the pressure gradually. Everything is in readiness to send warning of a sudden break. Should this reservoir give way it would send a great volume of water towards Stockton.

Information from the island reclamations indicates a decidedly grave condition of affairs there, and though Roberts Island is still dry, with the heavy rains of this morning and the high wind of last night, which washed waves against the levees and weakened them, there is not much hope of preventing a general overflow when the water from up-country comes down.

THINK THEM BAD MEN.

In the arrest of A. McDonald and H. P. Anderson on Jackson street last night, the police believe that they have two bad men. An officer followed the men for some distance and he says that they loitered in dark places and acted very suspiciously. The descriptions of the men are said to correspond to those of two highwaymen. In searching McDonald the officer found a revolver on him. Both men had money. McDonald is held on the charge of carrying concealed weapons and Anderson is held on suspicion.

ANGRY CITIZENS ARREST.

A number of angry citizens took J. Egstrom to the County Jail last night and told the officers that he had stabbed William Sheppard and seriously wounded him at Thirty-eighth and Santa Fé avenue. According to the informers Egstrom had insulted two women and Sheppard interfered. The citizens said that Egstrom drew a knife and stabbed Sheppard several times. Sheppard was removed to his home.

TRAIN FATALLY INJURES.

An unidentified man was fatally injured a few miles north of Mojave last night by an inbound special train. The train was running at high speed and as it rounded the curve it struck the man. Evidently he was a laborer. He was sent to Los Angeles and when he arrived here was taken to the Receiving Hospital. Surgeons say he cannot survive many hours.

GLITTER DECEPTIVE.

J. F. Connelly was arrested near First and Alameda streets last night. According to the police he was selling worthless jewelry, representing it to be real gold.

FIGHT FIRST NAVAL BATTLE.

Central American Republics War on Water.

American Gunners Serve on Honduran Boat.

Nicqraguan Ship Is Forced to Flee or Be Sunk.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS (La.) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The first naval engagement in the war between Nicaragua and Honduras was fought one week ago today, twenty miles off Truxillo, resulting in a rout of the Nicaraguan gunboat Ometepe, with a three-inch field shell through her hull and another hole in her side near the water line.

It was a distinct victory for the Honduran navy. These two little gunboats, the Ometepe, of the Nicaraguan navy, and the Tatumbla, of Honduras, have been skirmishing about the Atlantic coast ever since hostilities were declared.

The Honduran boat had two American gunners, John Arnett of Pennsylvania and Charles Ackley of Georgia, aboard to handle her guns. Both of them are young Americans who served in the Spanish-American War, and were skilled. The moment the two warships got within range the Americans began handling the guns with telling effect. The firing of the Nicaraguan boat was wild. In a few minutes the Tatumbla sent a shell through the prow of the Ometepe. With another she pierced the hull at the water line.

Then things became too hot, and the Nicaraguans took flight, finding refuge in Truxillo harbor, the only town on the Honduran coast now in the hands of the Nicaraguans. Honduras is moving 5000 men to the rear of Truxillo in an effort to recapture the place.

Simultaneously with the land attack, the gunboat Tatumbla, with the American gunners at work, will attack from the harbor. This battle is expected daily. The fruit steamer Habil, of the Vaccaro line, which was seized and searched off Ceiba, arrived today, confirming that report and bringing the first news of the first engagement.

TRUXILLO FALLS.
NICARAGUA CAPTURES TOWN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CEIBA (Honduras) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The city of Truxillo has fallen. The Nicaraguans took the town by surprise completely off her guard. The Nicaraguans have occupied the fortifications and are well entrenched, their war fleet consisting of the Omatipi, the San Jacinto, two gasoline schooners and several smaller vessels which are in desperate straits because they have no coal and gasoline. If the Hondurans should come along now with their vessel they could capture the whole armada.

Tuesday, March 12, the Nicaraguan armada appeared before the city of Truxillo, which has a population of 6000 and is situated at the base of a range of lofty mountains. There was a garrison of seventy-five non-suspecting Honduran troops in the city. The Nicaraguans landed a force about a mile to the west of the city and marched on the city with bands playing and flags flying.

The United States ship, Marietta, Commander A. F. Fulham, arrived at Truxillo, March 18. A consulate guard of ten men and a machine gun were landed under command of Ensign Frank Rorsback, no American or American interest have been interferred with. The Nicaraguans burned the native village west of Truxillo March 16. Three or four women burned to death.

REPORTS VICTORIES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Señor Corea, the Nicaraguan Minister, received a dispatch from Señor Ganez, the Nicaraguan Minister for Foreign Affairs, confirming the press dispatches of a great victory for the Nicaraguan army near Mariata. In addition to this victory he says the Nicaraguan army probably will take Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, tomorrow. He also says that the following additional towns upon the northeast boundary of Honduras have fallen into the hands of the Nicaraguans: San Pedro Sula, Esperanza, Paz and Comayagus, the ancient capital of Honduras.

OIL INDUSTRY.

ON OPENS A NEW FIELD.

STRUCK AT ONLY EIGHTEEN HUNDRED FEET.

Only Two Miles from Center of Fullerton and Two Holes Drilled Inside City Limits. [illegible] Was Expected at Less [illegible] Thousand.

WIRE TO THE TIMES.] [illegible], March 23.—[Exclusive [illegible] reached town tonight [illegible] Oil Company has just [illegible] a depth of only eighteen [illegible] on its Bastanchuty ranch [illegible] will be continued to a [illegible] with hopes of strik- [illegible] a great surprise to the drillers who figured on going down 3000 feet before a strike, and will be news to some oil men who had little faith in that part of the field. This strike opens a new field less than three miles from the center of town, and near the city limits. Thousands of acres in this new district could have been purchased a few years ago for less than $100 an acre. Today it would take many thousands to buy one acre. From a reliable source it is now learned that wells will be drilled inside the city limits soon.

The nearest wells to the new find are those of the Murphy in the Coyote hills about two miles away on a straight line. The result will doubtless stimulate prospecting all the way from Whittier to Fullerton, and between the latter town and the present established field where there are miles of territory of similar surface appearance to that on which the new well is located. Most of this is, however, held by the Murphy and Union Oil Companies. There are, however, bodies of unproven land lying to the north and south that are open for acquisition and doubtless they will be well prospected during the year.

NEW WORK PLANNED.

The Builder and Contractor furnishes the following details of plans for work in the future now in the hands of various architects:

Charles E. Shattuck is drawing plans for a one and one-half-story seven-room frame residence for George T. Holman, at Glendale.

S. Tilden Norton is making plans for the new store fixtures for the Mammoth Shoe Store, No. 519 South Broadway. A new balcony will be built, the interior rearranged and quarters for offices built.

Theodore A. Eisen is preparing plans for a two-story eight-room frame residence on Oxford avenue, near Sixth street, for Thereon L. Rice. The same architect is also preparing plans for alterations to the Harris building, No. 439 South Spring street, preparatory to the occupancy thereof of Harris & Frank, clothiers. They will occupy the entire building. The plans call for new birch fixtures and finish, new electric elevators, ladies' parlors and quarters for private offices.

Lester S. Moore has prepared plans of a two-story attic and basement frame residence on Shatto Place, near West Sixth street, for J. A. Anderson, president of the Board of Public Works. The foundation walls, porch and columns will be of Chatsworth Park sandstone. The exterior will have resaw rustic and shingle treatment; plate and leaded glass windows and cement porch floors. It will contain eleven rooms and have three baths, toilets, etc. The interior will have hardwood floors, oak and maple trim and white enamel finish on second floor. There will be four tile and one brick mantels. The building will be 50x62 feet, and will be equipped with an automatic water-heating system, high-grade plumbing and electrical conveniences. The same architect has prepared plans of a two-story frame residence to be built at Hollywood for Harry Gordon, Fay building. The exterior will have waterproof cement plaster and shingle treatment. It will contain eight rooms and have hardwood floors, with oak, birch and stained O. P. for trim; tile mantels, plumbing and electrical conveniences. The basement will be fitted for laundry purposes and connected with a solar-water heater.

P. W. Ehlers will be ready to receive bids after March 25 for the construction of three-story frame apartment building on lot 6, Flower Court, at the northeast corner of Flower and Court streets, for Mrs. N. A. Ransom. The same architect is preparing plans of a one-story brick business building, 70x80 feet, at Whittier for A. J. Stevens. It will be divided up for the use of an auto garage and storeroom. The foundation will be of sufficient strength to sustain an additional story. Plate glass and iron fronts cement floor and gravel roofing will be specified. The same architect is preparing plans of a one-story and basement brick and frame business building on the corner of Lake Shore avenue and Temple street for John Glahn. It will be 50x106 feet, divided into storerooms with plate-glass fronts, gravel roofing.

ALLEGED PEACE DISTURBER.

D. Cruz was arrested at Sixteenth and Alameda streets last night, on the charge of disturbing the peace. Cruz is said to have threatened violence to a family which lives near his home. The police are investigating the case.

New Orleans Racing.

NEW ORLEANS, March 23.—Chinn and Forsythe's colt Montgomery, the favorite, won the $10,000 Crescent City Derby today with a length to spare. Temaceo, winner of the California Derby, was second, while Gargantua, at 75 to 1, came third with a neck lead over Yankee Girl, winner of last week's City Park Derby.

Montgomery gave a splendid exhibition of speed. The nine starters rounded the turn into the stretch so closely bunched that it looked like anybody's race. Up to that point Montgomery had been as bad as fourth, after being cut off at the first turn by Sir Toddington and Morales. Results:

Six furlongs: Donna Elvira won, Bosserain second, Posing third; time, 1:13 3-5.

Four furlongs: Mollie Montrose won, Montebert second, Bitter Sir third; time, 0:47 2-5.

Five and a half furlongs: Colloquy won, Southern Cross second, Charlie Eastman third; time, 1:06.

Two miles, selling: Gamester won, Dr. Young second, Sanction third; time, 3:30 2-5.

One mile and an eighth, the Crescent City Derby $10,000, value to winner, $8000: Montgomery, 117 (Shilling,) 5 to 2, won; Temaceo, 122 (Lloyd,) 3 to 1, second; Gargantua, 110 (Foy,) 75 to 1, third; time, 1:52 2-5. Yankee Girl, Pinkstar, Sir Toddington, Tileing, Morales and Halbard also ran. Pinkstar and Morales, Fizer and Woodford entry.

Two miles: Amberjack won, Layson second, Mae Lynch third; time, 3:33 1-5.

One mile and a sixteenth: Agra won, Bye Bye II. second, Delmore third; time, 1:47 1-5.

TAKE MONEY AND WATCHES.

Burglars broke into the home of Miss E. Foster, No. 835 South Figueroa street, during her absence last night and, after rifling the house, took $26 and two watches. The police investigated the case, but were unable to secure any clews.

WORK OF SNEAK-THIEF.

A sneak thief entered the room occupied by E. W. Caty in the Ohio House last night and rummaged through the closet and the bureau. The robber took a suit case and a watch. The police believe the robbery is the work of a boy or an uneducated crook.

CLAIMS EVELYN HAS CHILD TWO YEARS OLD.

Wealthy New Yorker Makes Sensational Statements—Declares Thaw's Wife Loved Actor Morgan—His Peculiar Death Recalled.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That Evelyn Nesbit has a child 2 years of age, and that White was killed through her connivance in order to prevent the world from learning it, is the sensational statement made by W. C. Mudge, a wealthy young New Yorker who is in this city to avoid testifying in the Thaw case.

"I have known Thaw since he was a schoolboy," said he, "and I have known White many years. The only man Evelyn Nesbit ever loved was a young actor, Edward Morgan, who was the best and dearest friend I ever had.

"Morgan met Evelyn Nesbit while she was a model for Irvin, the artist. They fell in love with each other, and later Evelyn Nesbit had a child, of which Morgan was the father.

"Thaw and White were then, or soon after that, in love with the Nesbit girl.

"One morning Morgan was found dead in his room, and the story was sent out that he left the gas on in his gas stove and that it killed him. I was in the room and know that the bed clothes and Morgan's clothes showed that a struggle had taken place.

"There was other evidence to show that he had been strangled after a struggle.

"It was my opinion at the time that White had something to do with it. White learned that the Nesbit girl had a child which she sent to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to get out of the way.

"He told her he knew, and she admitted it. That is the secret of his power over her. She was forced to go with him or do what he said to prevent him from telling what he knew about the child. The child is still in Poughkeepsie. It must now be about two years old.

"White was madly in love with Evelyn Nesbit and refused to let her alone. She was always afraid of him. In order to get him out of the way she would tell Thaw that he abused her and that he insulted her.

"Thaw is an inveterate drinker of dripped absinthe and her continued stories affected him a great deal. I know, by the way he talked. I was with him a few minutes before the killing. He had been drinking.

"Evelyn Nesbit is not now in love with Harry Thaw. The man she thinks a great deal more of is stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria at her expense, although Harry Thaw does not know it, nor has he the slightest suspicion of it."

THAW AFFIDAVITS DECLARE SANITY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, March 23.—Affidavits of the defense of Harry K. Thaw as to his mental condition and as to whether a commission in lunacy should be appointed to examine him were filed at noon today with the clerk of the Supreme Court.

There were eight affidavits, of which that of Delphin M. Delmas of Thaw's counsel was first. Delmas, in his affidavits, declares it to be his opinion that Thaw has been and is capable of understanding the nature and object of the proceedings going on against him; of comprehending his own condition in reference to such proceedings, and of conducting his defense in a rational manner, and during the whole of the trial he has understood the nature and object of such proceedings; has comprehended his own condition in reference thereto, and has conducted his defense in a rational manner.

His opinion, the affidavit says, is based upon the professional relations that Delmas had with the prisoner since the trial began and the many communications he has sent to Thaw and received from him. Written letter received by Delmas from Thaw during the trial and several slips of papers containing reference to the conduct of the proceedings actually going on, which were handed him by the defendant in the courtroom, are made a part of the affidavit.

PREFERS DELMAS.

The letters attached to the affidavit contain numerous suggestions concerning the conduct of the case. In one instance Delmas is requested to personally conduct the examination of all witnesses. In a letter sent during the examination of Mrs. Thaw, the prisoner said:

"My wife's strength is ebbing. She cannot recuperate until after the cross-examination. It will be unfortunate if she breaks down and her testimony is stricken out. Her condition of nervousness and sadness is grave. Cannot Dr. Evans be kept back?"

Another letter from Thaw to Delmas reads:

"Please arrange for Mr. Carroll Beckwith's testimony. Mr. Peabody has a brief thereon. We do not wish Jerome to further attack Mrs. Thaw in his rebuttal. The further facts proved by Mr. Beckwith and the superior impression he will produce, may discourage Jerome from annoying Mrs. Thaw."

Beckwith is one of the artists for whom Mrs. Thaw once posed.

MENTIONS "VICTIM."

In still another letter Thaw declares that he knows a respectable young married woman residing in Wisconsin who is willing to come on and testify that "S. W." enticed her to his studio and mistreated her.

Attached to Delmas's affidavit is a note from Thaw which says:

"Dear Mr. Delmas: This is only to congratulate you on your successes. Your first long objection was, of course, obvious, but you trapped Jerome wonderfully by your reference to a new planet. . . . The second long one, against a new production of evidence in chief by the prosecution, was pronounced in a very powerful and high plane. I fear I am confused as to the 'sexual perversion' that Jerome urged. I was not excited against White by any such, according to our evidence. Mrs. Thaw in her testimony could have stated that the Thomas girl is dead. Thomas was a fraudulent name. The women herself is alive, and I hear now is trying to escape her horrid association.

"Very sincerely yours, H. K. T."

Thaw dated a number of his communications to Delmas from "101 Center street," the Tombs number. In one of his many notes passed to Delmas in court, the prisoner said:

"Evelyn told Hummel nothing of appendicitis or anything else, except geography."

Again he said:

"Jerome is easier beaten than persuaded, it appears. Seventy-eight letters, all very good, today, and six specials. I spoke to my wife and my mother, and I think, with Dr. Wagner, of White's boast of having spent $120,000 upon himself in one year, 1903, or 1904, I think. Don't you wish this in the evidence, so you can use the point that he spent several times more money than I did annually. Mr. McCaleb appeared better than Jerome in the matter of club conviviality and club confidences."

Thaw's letter to Delmas directing him to assume full charge of the case before Justice Fitzgerald is very explicit. "No one but you," he says, "has any right or authority to make any argument or stipulation in any manner relating to the conduct of the trial."

All of Thaw's attorneys make affidavits, in which they declare he is perfectly capable of understanding the nature of the proceedings against him and of advising with counsel.

The alienists, Drs. Evans, Wagner, Jelliffe and Hammond, make similar declarations and set forth daily conversations they have had with Thaw since the trial started. Dr. Wagner's affidavits tell of various corrections Thaw made as to the statements James Clinch Smith made upon the stand concerning his conversation with the defendant on the night of the tragedy.

Mrs. Thaw, in her affidavit, does not touch upon the present mental condition of her son Harry.

Justice Fitzgerald will indicate to the opposing counsel Monday if he desires a further hearing of the subject. Whether a commission will be appointed rests solely with Justice Fitzgerald.

IS CHIEF EXHIBIT.

The chief exhibit cited by Delmas is the note from Thaw appointing him chief counsel. It will be remembered that the first day of Thaw's defense was decidedly disastrous to his case.

Under date of February 6, Thaw wrote Delmas as follows:

"Not as principal, but as husband, I must hear your notes for my wife's testimony, as I shall permit nothing but the truth and wish to prevent any unintentional misrepresentation. Today a witness, not the stage doorkeeper who I was pleased to hear stand straight and safe on facts—perjured himself in a very natural manner. This grieves me, and forces me to insist upon my right as a husband if not that deference to my wishes as principal."

Another note of the same date says:

"Mr. Comstock comes after my wife, I presume? Will she testify Friday or Monday? My mother testifies tomorrow, I suppose, and some others, possibly, Mr. Catlin, or other witnesses of White's two revolvers (the last the unusual one) and his threats and his ring. He always told her 'You know nothing at all yet.' That removes danger of 'contagion' of ring or other matters. I hope you can now answer my early note. This requires none."

In one of his letters to Delmas, Thaw enclosed five pages of questions which he declared Anthony Comstock might answer as to Thaw's work with him.

Mrs. William Thaw's affidavit is confined wholly to family history and begins:

MOTHER'S AFFIDAVIT.

"The move by the prosecution for an inquiry into the advisability of a lunacy commission for my son, Harry K. Thaw, affords me the long-desired opportunity of giving all the facts in relation to the alleged inherited insanity stripped of all verbiage which malicious misrepresentation and gross exaggeration have thrown around them.

"First, I wish to emphatically state that in the direct line of descent for four generations, if we include that of defendant himself, there is no trace of either epilepsy or insanity."

With regard to the alleged insanity of Josiah Copely, Jr., a brother of Mrs. William Thaw, she declares that he has a most brilliant mind and was class-day orator at Amherst College. His oration impressed the faculty as so profound in its erudition that they injudiciously decided not to limit him as to the time, with the result that its close was immediately followed by an attack of brain fever, which shattered for a time his nervous system.

Josiah, Jr., was discharged after seven months enlisted in the Civil War, was a prisoner in Libby Prison and, according to the affidavit, "is now in vigorous health and sound mind at three score and ten."

The other cases of derangement, Mrs. Thaw's affidavit continues, "is the one brutally referred by medical experts for the prosecution as being 'imbecile from his birth.' On the contrary, Henry Copely, uncle of the defendant, was until six years of age, in perfect physical and mental condition. In the dusk of a summer's evening two vicious boys, trespassing on our place disguised with horrible masks pursued him until he fell with a scream of terror in my mother's arms. I was but two years older, yet the scene is imprinted on my memory. Ever after as the country practitioner, Dr. Deemar, has testified, he was of feeble intellect, and incapable of engaging in business or any steady intellectual employment, yet so desirous was he of serving his country that he enlisted near the end of the war, yet under age. He lives, Dr. Deemar has testified, to be nearly 40 years of age.

"Let me say, once for all, that there is no secret to be guarded nor family skeleton to be hidden on either side of the family of the defendant."

BASEBALL HURTS GIRL.

SEATTLE, March 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A batted ball struck Annie Kraus on the wrist, caromed to her left eye and caused a severe inflammation that has been followed by iritis and cataracts and will soon leave the girl blind. The ball was batted in a game at Stones Landing last summer and today J. B. Kraus father of the girl, began suit for $10,000 against Charles Betts, proprietor of the Stones Landing camping ground, P. S. Carpenter and others.

Kraus says in his complaint that he was visiting at the camp of A. M. Rosseau when baseball teams began to play a short distance away. Kraus claimed he warned the men to quit their game but they continued.

One of the men, whom Kraus does not identify, batted the ball that struck his daughter. She was rendered senseless by the blow and has never recovered from the effects.

This is the first suit of damages arising from injuries at a ball game which has been filed in this county. There is no enclosed diamond at Stone's Landing.

FOUR KNOWN DEAD.

fireman had escaped with comparatively slight injuries.

Railroad men at the wreck were inclined to place the blame for the wreck upon the crew of the special train. They pointed to the fact that the Overland, which left the Los Angeles station on time at 8 o'clock, had the right of the track; that it was the duty of the conductor and engineer of the special to keep out of their way unless they had special orders to come into the Los Angeles yards before the Overland should cross the bridge.

The train dispatcher for this division of the Santa Fé is located at San Bernardino. Just what orders he may have issued to the special and to the outbound Overland was not known at the local offices of the railroad company.

If the story told to the police by one of the crew of the special is correct, the crew of the Overland is at fault in attempting to leave tower No. 1, in the yard limits, before the arrival of the special.

CHEERING WHEN DEATH COMES.

HORRIBLE SCENES FOLLOW THE FATAL CRASH.

Times Reporter on Train Describes Accident and Joyous Enthusiasm of Students Preceding It—Marching Through Aisles and Joking and Singing—Heroic Conduct of Co-Eds.

The Santa Fé special excursion train left Claremont at 6:45 o'clock p.m., immediately after the conference field meet. The train contained, besides the baggage car, seven day coaches.

Crowded into these was a party of 700 students, from the University of Southern California, Whittier and Occidental colleges and spectators from Los Angeles. The train reached Garvanza at 8 o'clock and proceeded toward Los Angeles at about twenty miles an hour.

As the student party neared home and the lights of Los Angeles were observed, they gathered in the aisles of the coaches and cheered and sang.

From car to car they marched, shouting and singing college songs; rollicking, happy, hilarious. Suddenly above the cheering of joyous student voices came the horrible crash of a collision. Hurled into a heap, girls screamed and men groaned. The horrible sound of hissing steam added to the terror after the crash of the collision was over.

There was a mad rush for the rear. Cloaks and wraps were left behind in the eagerness to get out of the charnel house. Lights went out in the coaches and added to the fear which possessed the passengers.

Following the crash it seemed as if the engine had suddenly backed away from something in front. The baggage car crushed through the front of the chair coach and the engine, tender was hurled backward upon the baggage car. Glass flew in all directions and the horrible sound of crashing timbers continued for several seconds. Horror gripped the passengers in the front coach. Many women and girls fainted. Jammed together on the bridge, engine and baggage cars were locked fast.

From the wreckage came the pitiful groans of the dying. College men rushed forward and began at once the work of rescue.

All of the passengers who were not injured were helped from the coaches to the bridge, along which is a narrow plank path. All were obliged to walk along this dizzy path beside the coaches to safety.

That any in the chair car survive seems a miracle. There were many narrow escapes from death or injury. Several men who were riding in front seats of the chair coach left the train at way stations before the accident happened.

Pinned beneath the wreckage of the baggage coach Howard Edwards, an Occidental student, was found. He had been struck on the head and his lower limbs were crushed. He died as the rescuers were about to extricate him.

J. C. Gail, an Occidental student, was hurled from the platform of the chair car and alighted on his head on the cement column of the bridge. His skull was crushed and he died in a few moments.

Two bodies were found directly under the tender of the engine. The first proved to be that of C. G. Franklin, a U.S.C. student who had gone forward into the baggage car to get some of the athletic paraphernalia that had been placed there after the meet.

The second was that of Fred H. Hodgson, the Occidental yell leader. During the day, Hodgson had done his best to cheer his college on to victory. He had stood all afternoon before the crowded bleachers, leading the songs and yells. They found his cane with the black and gold ribbons, red with his life blood.

Identification was possible in the case of each student found. It was only necessary to expose the white face of a wreck victim and his name was spoken by a dozen lips.

Eagerness to leave the train as soon as possible caused Franklin and Hodgson to go forward to their death. They were in the baggage car with Conductor Cutting, sorting over the goods, when the crash came.

The coach following the telescoped chair car was turned into an emergency hospital. F. M. Worrell and J. C. McMillan were cared for by women passengers, who did all they could to relieve their sufferings.

Courageous co-eds waited upon the injured and laid out the dead as if they had expected to be called upon to perform such offices. The work done, several of the girls fainted and were taken from the awful scene.

Escorted by a squadron of cuirassiers, Ambassador White and the staff of the American Embassy were driven this afternoon to the Elysee palace at Paris, where the new Ambassador was warmly received by President Fallieres and Foreign Minister Pichon.

SAYS HE SAW TWO BODIES.

At 2:30 o'clock this morning one of the members of the Santa Fé wrecking crew crawled under the telescoped baggage car of the special train and under the tender of the locomotive. He took his life in his hands in making the trip but was determined to investigate the report that there are other bodies under the wreck.

He reported finding two bodies, but stated that they were so far under the tender that he could not reach them. By the dim light of his torch he says he indistinctly saw two terribly crushed human forms.

The work of clearing away the wreck may not be completed before noon.

COINCIDENCE IS TRAGEDY'S CAUSE

CLAIM HUSBAND MET WIFE'S TITLED LOVER BY CHANCE.

Encounter Between Man Who Returned from Far North and Count Podhorski, Despoiler of His Home, Is Said by Witnesses to Have Been Accidental.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Evidence elicited today lends substance to the theory that the meeting in Goldfield of Count Constantine Podhorski and John C. Hines, his slayer, was purely a coincidence.

The statement of Hines and his wife, borne out by friends of both Hines and the dead nobleman, tend to such a conclusion. They say the most compromising relations existed between Count Constantine and Mrs. Hines in Seattle. Hines heard this and hurriedly left Nome, Alaska, and arrived in Seattle to find that the titled despoiler of his fireside had departed some weeks previous.

Both Hines and his wife had every reason to believe that Podhorski had sailed to Japan. Hines and his wife, after a reconciliation in Seattle, journeyed to Goldfield, where many of Hines's friends are operating, the two appearing affectionate on the train.

Curley Lovell, a mutual acquaintance of both the dead man and his slayer, noticed the names of John C. and Mrs. Hines on the register of the Columbia Hotel the morning of their arrival in Goldfield. He had heard of the threat of Hines to kill the Count on sight and informed Frank Biggs, an intimate friend of the Count. That same evening Biggs warned Podhorski and urged him to flee, but, instead, the Count invited Biggs to dine with him at the Sunset Café.

In the meantime, Hines met, among other of his old friends, Cole Leatch, who invited Hines and his wife to dinner at the Sunset Café. Leatch, with Hines and his wife, drove to the café and, by mistake, entered the barroom, just off the dining-room, where Count Podhorski and Frank Biggs were dining.

Mrs. Hines saw the Count and hurriedly stepped back. The three left the house and Mrs. Hines attempted in vain to dissuade her husband and Leatch from returing by the ladies' entrance. Finally, she alone entered by that door and passed swiftly over to the Count's table to implore him to leave.

At the Count's request, Biggs withdrew to the bar, where Hines was ordering drinks. The Count made light of Mrs. Hines's fears, and taking her hand, seated her at his side. After their drinks, Hines and Leatch came in from the bar. The jealous husband caught sight of his wife with the Count, and coolly stepping up to within three feet of his quarry, shot him to death.

This same story is told by Joseph King, an old Alaska friend of the Hines, who owns the Angelus Hotel, where Mrs. Hines is now lodging.

Mrs. John C. Hines was Edith Marr, the daughter of Archie Marr, a prominent citizen of Oakland. She is a beautiful woman, 23 years of age, and is an expert stenographer.

Five years ago she and two sisters went to Nome. There she met Hines, at that time a traveling salesman for the Northern Commercial Company. They were married at Nome on August 29, 1904. Joseph and Mrs. King, at whose hotel Mrs. Hines is now stopping here, had been wedded just a few days previously on the steamer St. Paul, off the Nome coast.

John C. Hines is 30 years old. He is not related to Harry Hynds, who killed Walter Dinwoodey under similar circumstances in Salt Lake several years ago. Hines lived in Arizona and San Francisco for many years and left the latter city on the first stampede to Nome.

The Northern Commercial Company, by which he was employed, was closely allied with a Siberian company with which Count Constantin Podhorski was prominently identified. The Count bore the relation of employer to Hines. He and Mrs. Hines met only casually in Nome. If there were illicit relations between them they began in Seattle at the time Mrs. Hines was visiting there and the Count happened there on business. It is true they were often seen together at cafés and theaters, and by the statement of Hines's attorney today, it may be inferred that Mrs. Hines virtually confessed her guilt, claiming that she had been victimized.

Hines was arraigned today and his preliminary hearing was set for the morning of March 28.

No reply has as yet come in answer to cablegrams sent to relatives of the late Count in Russia and Poland.

O'ROURKE MATCHES HUSKY PUGILISTS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Tom O'Rourke has at last succeeded in matching two boxers to appear in the star bout at the opening of his club, the National Sporting Club, which is to be held at Lyric Hall on Sixth avenue near Forty-second street on April 1. They are Maurice Sayers, the clever and sturdy lightweight, of Milwaukee, and Dave Depler, the New England pugilist, who will engage in an eight-round bout. These men ought to put up an interesting bout.

SLOPE MEN TO TRY WRESTLERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An almost international aspect will be given the National A.A.U. wrestling championship to be held under the auspices of the Newark Turn Verein next week, by the entry of three Pacific Coast mat men. The trio, which arrived in this city last night, comprises H. W. Kerrigan, of the Multnomah A. C. of Portland, Or.; F. Vance, of the Seattle A. C., and W. Frank.

These athletes have crossed the continent in order to represent the Pacific Northwest Association of the A.A.U. in the annual wrestling matches and while none of the trio are big men, they expect to do well in the lighter classes. Kerrigan was a member of the American team sent to the Olympic games in Athens last summer.

Pimples Off In Five Days

The New Calcium Sulphide Treatmnet Does Wonders to Every Kind Of Skin Eruption

Trial Package Sent Free to Prove It

You don't want to wait forever and a day to get rid of your pimples or other skin eruptions. You want to get rid of them right now. Next week you may want to go somewhere you wouldn't like to take pimples along.

You can get rid of them just in time by taking Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

These wonderful little workers have cured bad boils in three days, and some of the worst cases of skin disease in a week.

They contain as their main ingredient, the most thorough, quick and effective blood cleanser known, calcium sulphide.

Remember this, too, that most pimple treatments reek with poison. And they are miserably slow besides.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers have not a particle of poison in them. They are free from mercury, biting drugs or venomous opiates. This is absolutely guaranteed. They cannot do any harm, but they always do good—good that you can see in the mirror before your own eyes a few days after.

Don't be any longer humiliated by having a splotchy face. Don't have strangers stare at you, or allow your friends to be ashamed of you because of your face.

Your blood makes you what you are. The men and women who forge ahead are those with pure blood and pure faces.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers will make you happy because your face will be a welcome sight not only to yourself when you look into the glass, but to everybody else who knows you and talks with you.

We want to prove to you that Stuart's Calcium Wafers are beyond doubt the best and quickest blood and skin purifier in the world—so we will send you a free sample as soon as we get your name and address. Send for it today, and then when you have tried the sample you will not rest contented until you have bought a 50c box at your druggist's.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 95 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

WOULD SAVE BY OWNERSHIP.

SO SAYS CANDIDATE EARLEY IN PASADENA.

Declares That the City Can Get Money Cheaper Than Any of the Water Companies Can Do Business. Drives Arguments Home in Favor of Municipal Water Plant.

Office of The Times, No. 24 S. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, March 24.—The Earley rally at Woodmen Hall was well attended last night and the discussion of campaign issues was listened to with great interest by the citizens present. The speakers confined themselves to the issues at stake and refrained from throwing any mud at the opposition, but the state of affairs, now existing, was carefully gone over and the principles of the Citizens' party explained in every detail.

J. Howard Patton presided ably at the meeting and introduced the different speakers.

Seward A. Simons spoke at length on the subject of taxation. Mr. Simons is an acknowledged authority in this matter and his remarks were received with interest. He had some valuable information to give concerning the questions under consideration.

Mr. Earley spoke at length upon the issues of the campaign, particular attention being given to the water situation. Water has been the slogan of the Citizens' party and no opportunity to make the situation clear to the voters is being lost. In the course of his address the speaker said:

"The water question is something that should interest every man in Pasadena, rich and poor alike. The city of Pasadena can get money cheaper than any of the water companies can do business. Suppose that the city owned all three companies; we should build large reservoirs on a good high elevation and save all of the water that is now going to waste, and by doing so we should save just that much water, have just that much less pumping to do in the summer and save all that extra expense and give our citizens that much better service.

"We want municipal ownership of water, which we voted for two years ago nearly two to one. If you want anything done well you must have men who believe in it. If the administration had put in the same amount of money securing the water plants that they did in securing electric lights we should have been using municipal water long ago.

"The people voted for it by a big majority. Now the people that worked and did everything they could against the project, and a great many of them are the strongest supporters of the administration, are using the same old stories about rotten pipe that they did two years ago. I believe that the vote of the people should be carried out and that no Council should have power to rescind that vote. If they have then the people have no voice in the business of the city.

"We should own our water plants, for water is the life of Pasadena, as all know who were here during the dry seasons.

"In my judgment Mr. Fitz Gerald has been the dictator and real power behind the throne, especially in the water matter. The people asked for his resignation by petition, signed by 1161 citizens. He resigned, after a time, but was at once employed by the Council as special counsel on the water question, just what the people did not want. He opposed municipal ownership of water and has used all of his legal ability since to defeat the people's vote and we, the people, have been paying him for it.

"The question at issue is not whether we paid too much for the water plants. The people settled that when they voted to buy them. We agreed to buy, but has the administration carried out the wishes of the people? That is the question, gentlemen, have they been faithful to their trust? If I thought that they had been I should not be a candidate against Mr. Waterhouse."

BUYS ON OAK KNOLL.

An important realty transaction was reported yesterday by the William R. Staats Company. Chester W. Chapin, a millionaire railroad magnate from Lebanon, N. Y., purchased a lot in the Oak Knoll tract and will at once begin the erection of a handsome residence. The consideration is given as $12,000 and it is understood that the purchaser contemplates the building of a residence which will be an ornament to the locality.

Mr. Chapin is a director in several railroad companies, including the New York Central. He is the son of the builder of the Boston and Albany and has been connected with railroading all of his life. He intends to make California his home for the greater part of the year henceforth and will make his Oak Knoll property one of the show places of the city.

DRAWS KNIFE IN COURT.

M. J. Quinby, who on several occasions has been in trouble and has threatened Justice Klamroth with bodily injury, drew a knife in the justice's court yesterday morning, apparently with the intention of carrying out his threat. Before he could do anything, however, Deputy Constable Carpenter was upon him and had disarmed him.

Quinby was charged with disturbing the peace and the judge sentenced him to serve fifteen days in jail for the offense, taking no cognizance of the apparent intention to commit assault. The man is thought to be somewhat off mentally as on several occasions he is said to have acted in a strange manner.

DINNER PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Holyoke of Bangor, Me., gave an elaborately appointed dinner party yesterday evening in the Colonial dining-room at Hotel Green.

The white walls of the room were delicately etched with asparagus plumosus with which was twined pink sweet peas, the ornamentation being heavier over doorways and windows. The electroliers were wreathed in these fine ferns and swet pas, and in the center of the table was a low mound of these fair blossoms with ferns.

Covers were laid for twenty-two and the place cards were decorated with pink sweet peas in water colors. At the plate of each woman guest was a large corsage bouquet of the same flowers tied with pink gauze. Pink shaded candelabra and pink tulle added to the charming color.

Those dining besides host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Tait, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Bevelle, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett, Mr. and Miss Dyas, Mr. and Mrs. Ross; Mmes. Edwards, Osterhout, Crampton, Best; Messrs. Frederick, Curtis, Crook; Misses Marston and Cutts.

CITY FREES ITS WHARF.

Bargain Is Made by Long Beach Trustees With Bath-house and Water Companies.

LONG BEACH, March 23.—The City Trustees have made an agreement with the Seaside Water Company and Long Beach Bath-house Company, two corporations which claim control, practically, of the beach front in this city, whereby it is agreed on the part of the city to abandon proceedings commenced to open Seaside boulevard, the street along the beach, from Chestnut avenue to Pine avenue.

In return the two corporations agree to relinquish claims to the site upon which the pier has been built, namely Pine-avenue prolonged.

Another feature of the proposition is the agreement on the part of the city to remove a row of booths along the west side of the pier, the income from which belongs to the city, and replace them with a row of octagonal booths a few feet farther east, or through the center of the promenade of the pier. In return for this the Seaside Water Company has agreed to deed to the city a strip eight feet wide, adjacent to the pier on the west side.

The presentation of the agreement resulted in a controversy between rival factions in the board; but it carried by a vote of three to two.

SEASHORE DRIFT.

Bee Chrisman, a young mechanic employed in this city by R. Loyens, was struck in the eye by a bit of flying metal when strolling past a shooting gallery on the pike today. Just as Chrisman passed the place some one fired a gun at a target and it is supposed that a bit of metal back spattered.

George H. Bixby of this city has accepted the office of president of the Los Angeles Dock and Terminal Company, succeeding Dana Burks of Ocean Park. Mr. Bixby will at once assume the duties of the office.

William Schilling has announced his candidacy for a position on the Board of School Trustees which will become vacant on April 5, through the expiration of the term of Rev. Charles Pease.

Work has been begun by contractors on the new postoffice building which is to be erected at the corner of Second and American.

PORCH FALL BREAKS ANKLE.

South Pasadena Woman Has Two Bones Fractured by Unfortunate Tumble.

SOUTH PASADENA, March 23.—Mrs. Towle of the Hotel Capitola sustained an unfortunate fall Friday night, thereby fracturing two ankle bones. She was calling on some friends and inadvertently stepped off backward from a low porch. Dr. Rose attended her.

Building development is increasing in South Pasadena. Mr. Althouse has built three or four new houses on Oxley and Fremont. Abraham Miller is building a home on Hope street. Mr. Mendison is putting on an addition to his bungalow, corner Brent and Hope street.

The Ladies' Aid Society gave an all-day sewing bee in the Methodist Episcopal Church parlors.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church gave their monthly dinner at the home of Mrs. Sawyer.

A musicale will be given at the Hotel Capitola this evening, G. F. Anchrist's Society Orchestra furnishing the entertainment.

W. B. Fleming will make his home on Brent street.

Mrs. Anna Breed and family have moved to Los Angeles where they will reside on Vermont avenue.

AVALON.

AVALON, March 23.—Last spring John de Court went back to Madeira to visit his home folks and on his return brought with him a little nephew, Manuel de Court. Thursday last Manuel was amusing himself by climbing about a big eucalyptus tree when he got a terrible fall, striking a limb in his descent so that his right arm was almost torn from the socket at the shoulder. The skin and flesh were so torn under the arm that Dr. Peckham put in eighteen stitches in closing the wound.

Alfred L. Beebe of Portland, Ore., who spent two months in fishing here last spring is again enjoying the sport. Mr. Beebe was one of the first members of the Light Tackle Club and he is now bent on winning a gold button.

George Exton, a Los Angeles music man, accompanied by C. W. Noyes of Chicago, son of ex-Gov. Noyes of Ohio, and E. N. Cluteman of San Francisco, have been enjoying the island fishing for a few days.

Dr. R. F. Stocking is another enthusiastic angler now wielding his rod to good effect here.

Commodore H. H. Sinclair of Pasadena and Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Sinclair of South Orange, N. J., are registered at the Metropole.

THE best, modern, sunny flats, cottages and tents at Catalina are for rent by J. Albert, opp. Pacific Hotel.

POMONA.

POMONA, March 23.—E. S. Williams, who was injured in the gas explosion at Cressaty's restaurant, Los Angeles, last month, and has been in the hospital in Los Angeles recuperating after having his leg amputated, will be brought to his home here tomorrow. F. H. Merrill, who was more seriously injured, having had both ankles broken, and who has been at the California Hospital, is gradually recovering, but as his limbs are still in cases he must remain at the hospital longer. Ed L. Davis, the other Pomona victim, is now able to be out on the streets in a wheel chair.

The total rainfall here for the season is now 26.76 inches, the most copious in years.

The contract for the improvement on Rebecca street has been awarded to Lou Fleming. This is one of the largest street jobs undertaken here and will include about two and one-half miles of cement work.

WANTED—BABIES.

Eastern Star at Monrovia and Duarte Encouraging Increase of Population by Gifts.

MONROVIA, March 23.—The population of Monrovia and Duarte is not endangered in the least, so long as President Roosevelt and the Eastern Star hold out. To encourage increasing the population of these cities, the Eastern Star has inaugurated the system of presenting to the youths of this section, as they arrive in the world, souvenir spoons. It makes no difference whether they come in pairs or single-handed and alone, each gets a present.

As yet there has been no donation made to triplets, but at the meeting of the chapter last night Joseph Fowler was called to the front, and was presented with two souvenir spoons, which, in turn, he was to present to his Marjorie and Dorris. Mr. Fowler received the gift blushingly.

At the same meeting Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wheeler were the recipients of a like testimonial for their new son, Newton. The innovation inaugurated by the Monrovia chapter is quite likely to be contagious, and may help the President out materially in his fight against race suicide.

SWEET PEAS AS FAVORS.

Mrs. Hugh Haven entertained at luncheon at her Myrtle avenue home yesterday afternoon. Sweet peas were the favors, and the decorations of the dining hall were pink and white. There were present Mrs. W. Judson Smith and her mother, Mrs. Geddis, Mrs. George Spence, Mrs. Ruth Featherstone, Mrs. C. F. Moore, Mrs. Anna Spence, Miss Kate Spence, Mrs. Frank A. Van Vleck, Mrs. Willis E. Farman, Mrs. Unruh and Mrs. Renssolaer Daniels.

M'CULLOUGH SURPRISED.

H. T. McCullough received a genuine surprise Friday night. After waiting long and patiently for a gentleman to appear to "see his prize birds," at about 9 o'clock a large company presented themselves at the door and demanded admission. They were all loaded with good things from the culinary department of La Vista Grande. In the party were Messrs. and Mmes. M. H. Graham, J. N. Ward, Beck, Thompson, Stanley Bartle, Mrs. John Doyle and Misses Ermiston and Sue and Lillian Ward.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The Young Men's Club of this city, destined to be the Y.M.C.A., will be officered the coming year as follows: President, Dr. B. C. Davies; vice-president, Rev. Clark H. Marsh; secretary, Charles Crandall; club reporter, J. L. Burr; chairman Social Committee, Robert Scarborough; chairman Membership Committee, Jesse Wilson.

There was a large attendance at the Saturday Afternoon Club today. Mrs. W. G. Warren of El Monte was chairman.

Plenty sunshine at Coronado.

WATER FOR VETERANS.

New Well Being Sunk at the Soldiers' Home—Other Improvements.

SOLDIERS' HOME, March 23—Along the line of improvements in this branch may be noted the completion of the nurses' cottage; finishing the interior of which is now under way. Contractors are at work on the foundation of the great shop building, within which are to be assembled the various industrial concerns of the Home.

At the recently discovered group of springs just south of the big dam, a well six feet in diameter by twenty feet in depth is finished, and the casing is ready for a gas engine now being constructed for use there.

A contract has been awarded to C. Parcells of Sawtelle for the boring of a well of water, a trifle north of Brown's Lake. The well is to be twelve inches in diameter and limited to a depth of 250 feet.

Improvements for which bids will be called for in the near future, are the construction of an oil tank of 500 barrels capacity; also for an oil tank wagon. The latter for use in oiling the roads of the Home—soon to be undertaken. Extensive contracts for painting are to include the south annex to hospital, Memorial Hall, the band stand and the roof of the power house.

PICKET SHOTS.

Ed C. Gird, news agent here, has just erected an addition to his store, a pretty little pagoda-shaped building that confronts passengers when stepping off the cars at the Los Angeles-Pacific station.

Rev. C. B. Cory of Los Angeles, who was a drummer boy in the Civil War, delivered a pleasing address to the "boys" at the Friday meeting of the veteran branch of the W.C.T.U. in Memorial Hall. He rendered, also, several old-time songs in manner to delight the veterans.

DEATHS.

Notice has just been received here of the death in San Diego on the 11th inst., of William O. Mauck, late Cos. H, D and E, First Texas Cavalry. Mauck, who was a native of Germany, was admitted to the Home from Santee, in 1905, and died while in furlough, aged 78.

William Richards, late Co. K, Fifth United States Infantry, also on furlough, died in San Diego March 16. Richards was admitted from San Diego in 1891; was a native of England, and aged 81.

Ebenezer B. Hunter, late Co. F, Fifty-seventh Indiana Infantry, a native of Indiana, admitted from San Bernardino in 1904; died March 21, aged 66.

William G. Stone, late United States navy, a native of England, admitted from Helena, Mont., in 1893; died March 23, aged 74.

VETERAN DIES SUDDENLY.

VENICE, March 23.—William Bowen, veteran lately from the Soldiers' Home hospital, fell dead this morning while fishing off the Venice pier. As he was a sufferer from, and under treatment for, partial paralysis, it is thought probable that death resulted from heart failure. Bowen, who served during the Civil War in Company D, First Nevada Cavalry, was a native of South Wales, Great Britain, admitted to the Home from Helena, Mont., in 1893, and was aged 64. The records show that his widow, Mrs. Ella Bowen, resides at Livingston, Park county, Mont.

ALHAMBRA.

ALHAMBRA, March 23.—The graduates of the Alhambra High School have reached the conclusion that they can teach the youngsters a thing or two in the way of sprints, hurdles and hammer throwing, and have challenged the High School field and track team to a contest on Saturday afternoon on the new athletic field of the school.

A study of the report of the City Building Inspector shows continued activity in building, a permit a day for a month past being recorded.

PARALYZED BY UNIONS.

Business in Butte Suffers Deadly Grasp.

Absurd Demands by Unions to Be Broken.

As Only Hope of a Resumption of Business.

BY HELEN FITZGERALD SANDERS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

BUTTE (Mont.) March 20.—Three months ago, Butte, Mont., was in the heyday of prosperity. The discovery of copper, miles beyond the limits of the so-called "copper zone," had brought in millions of eastern capital to push the work of development. Never in the history of the town had so many public buildings, private residences and cottages for laboring men been under construction. Real estate sales had taken a mighty impetus, and there were not sufficient houses and rooms for rent to accommodate the rapidly-growing population. The cause of this prosperity was self-evident. The price of copper was very high, and the opening of new ore bodies made Butte more and more important as the largest producer of a metal in demand throughout the industrial world. The stock market reflected the general confidence of the people, and the exhilaration of fortune at the high tide, made even the conservative a bit reckless.

Meantime, the cost of labor and the necessities of life were steadily increasing. Concession after concession had been made to the small trades unions, whose prices and rules were rapidly becoming extortionate and unbearable. In November, 1906, a rumor went from lip to lip that the miners would demand a raise of 50 cents per day, increasing their pay from $3.50 to $4, per shift of eight hours. On the 10th of November, notices were posted at the mines, stating that owing to the unprecedented price of copper, the Amalgamated Copper Company would raise the wages, to $3.75, this scale to continue as long as copper sold for 18 cents a pound or over. The issue was thus brought to a crisis, and the company's offer was virtually a compromise.

WOULD ACCEPT INCREASE.

The conservative miners, more especially the married men, were in favor of accepting the new scale, but there were many who opposed it upon the ground that the ultimate result would be a greater reduction of the wage and a waiver of the union scale. The conservative element prevailed, and on the 15th of November the $3.75 wage went into effect.

The popular impression was that the matter was settled, but the fire was smoldering, not dead, as has been demonstrated by subsequent events. Had prices remained the same, perhaps the demand for $4 would not have been made. But it is of record that on the day the $3.75 scale was adopted, some landlords raised room rent and the price of food and clothing went up perceptibly, therefore, the 25 cents extra pay was at least offset by the new conditions.

A general movement of discontent was in progress, which affected every branch of labor. Almost simultaneously the telephone girls and the pressmen went out, leaving the town without newspapers or telephonic communication. It is a noteworthy fact that eight pressmen in the two towns of Anaconda and Butte caused the shut down of the newspapers, throwing numbers of men out of employment who desired to work, and who are the bread winners of dependent families. It was an infectious evil, and it spread rapidly, breaking out everywhere in petty strikes. The paper hangers and painters followed the pressmen, then the gas men went out. This left the city absolutely without gas for lighting or fuel, or motive power for numbers of small presses, making any kind of printing practically impossible. Restaurants depending on gas for fuel were closed, and 1000 families were left without the means of cooking their meals. Sixteen hundred gas ranges, which were in use, were left cold and idle.

REPAIR MEN STRIKE.

The next development was one which has caused the gravest apprehension. The repair and laboring men at the waterworks struck. A rumor ran through the streets that city water supply would be shut off. This was not true, but the conditions are serious. What if a break should occur in a water main? The officers of the laboring men's union are quoted as saying that it is very doubtful if they would permit men to work for the "city or any other parties at $3.50 per day, so long as the water company refuses the scale." Suppose a fire should start and the water mains be found faulty? What protection would the city have? Fires are imminent. Of the 1600 gas ranges rendered useless, a fair percentage have been supplanted by coal-oil and gasoline stoves. One fire has already been recorded as the result of cooking with gasoline instead of gas. Thus it will be seen the chances for fire are increased materially, and the facilities for meeting the danger are crippled. Any district may be left without water if a break in the pipes occurs, and as Butte has little or no well water for drinking puroses, disease would of necessity follow.

The last news is of the strike of the repair men employed by the street car company. Within sixty days the conductors and motormen have received a raise of 5 cents per hour, and so far as is known, they are satisfied. The company will keep the cars running as long as possible. This leaves Butte, a city of 80,000 souls, without local newspapers, without gas, without laborers for repairing broken water mains, and, possibly, without street-car service.

MINERS LAID OFF.

It was during the days of silence, silence that seemed sinister in its uncertainty, when newspapers and telephones were still, that word was passed from mouth to mouth that the Miners' Union was about to call off its men. The Amalgamated Copper Company dismissed the painters, surface men and miners who were not actively engaged in extracting ore for shipment. Development work ceased and about 3000 men "went down the hill." On the streets groups of intent miners talked together and as in the days before newspapers, hand bills were circulated. Since then there have been numerous meetings between the Miners' Union and the officers of the Amalgamated Copper Company. The nucleus of the whole situation is this: The miners and the companies must unite to put down the exorbitant and disproportionate wage scale of the little unions or work must cease until hard times and gaunt poverty bring men to their senses.

The miners, on their part, agree that the rates of the trades unions are unfair. It is by the miners and poor, hard working men that the abuse of the little unions is most bitterly felt. The merchant who is forced to pay extortionate wages raises the prices of his goods to cover his own loss. The people make up the deficit out of their pockets, and in the course of time, they are growing weary of the drain.

THE RIDICULOUS DEMANDS.

The ridiculous lengths to which these trades unions have gone, not only in the matter of wages, but of rules, which encroach upon the liberty of citizens, might be enumerated indefinitely, but our purpose is merely to see how they affect the position of the miners, and to contrast the wage scale of these surface workers with that of the men under ground. The key to the whole difficulty is this set of false values; this forcing of prices up until a purely arbitrary and artificial condition exists.

Should the mines of Butte close, thousands of men would be thrown out of employment and the result would be far-reaching. The Washoe smelter, the largest plant of its kind in the world, which is the life of Anaconda, would close, the plant at Great Falls would be shut down also, the small companies and individual mine owners would be forced out and eastern capital, generally capricious, would be driven away altogether. Looking at the more personal side of it, there would be grave want. One real estate company alone has built 500 little homes for miners during the last year. These are to be paid for on the installment plan; if the payments are not met the homes are forfeited. And it must be remembered distinctly that it is the home builders who are the contented workers, and who would be sacrificed in spite of their own wishes, by the loud-talking, hard-drinking contingent of the saloons.

AN OMINOUS SILENCE.

Except for the lack of papers and a curious reticence on the labor question maintained by both sides, the casual observer would see no evidence of a crisis. Some of the journals of the yellow persuasion have printed a lot of highly colored fiction concerning absolute paralysis of business. This makes a good story and exciting reading, but it is not true. One marvels, rather, at the nonchalance of the people; the easy, half-laughing manner with which they meet the hint of trouble. The most conspicuous fact is the silence. Nobody knows anything; nobody says anything; men meet and talk of the weather and the commonplace things, while all are thinking of the one mastering theme.

The negotiations between the Miners' Union and the Amalgamated Copper Company are still pending, but the best information is that when the ultimatum of the company is put to a vote a favorable understanding will be reached. Both sides have made concessions. The company is willing to grant the $4 wage to all miners under ground so long as copper remains at 18c per pound, or over, and it reserves the right to reduce the wage to $3.50 when the price of copper drops below 18c. Committees from the Miners' and Smeltermens' unions have arrived at an agreement regarding the terms of the settlement, and there is little doubt that it will be ratified by the general vote to be taken on the 24th of March.

The outcome of the small strikes is not so certain. The telephone girls are back at work, the Business Men's Association having insisted on a compromise. The newspapers stand firm, the gas and water companies refuse to yield, and the unions are obdurate. Meantime the people stand by silently and await results.

BOND ISSUE PROJECTED.

Residents of Lowell Joint School District Will Vote on Matter in April.

LA HABRA, March 23.—Residents of the Lowell joint school district, situated partly in Orange and partly in Los Angeles county, have called an election for April 5 to vote bonds for the purpose of purchasing and erecting and equipping a schoolhouse. The district is a new one, made by slicing off portions of the East Whittier and La Habra districts, and joining these together.

The trustees of the new district are Walter F. Morse, S. B. Guthrie and W. W. Dull. Bonds to the amount of $3750 are asked. O. L. Baldwin will serve as election inspector and W. J. Gregory and Oliver Reece will act as judges.

NEW INDUSTRIES.

This little town is growing rapidly, and to satisfy the demands of the community a warehouse, lumber yard and planing mill will be put in, by Los Angeles parties, J. G. Lawson selling two acres of his place to be used as a site for the new industries.

The Union Oil Company is installing a new pumping plant and engine here.

The new Coyote oil district is to have a boarding and lodging-house for the men employed by the Murphy Oil Company.

Indian Cure for Neuralgia.

Here is a simple method of curing facial neuralgia. If the neuralgia is in the right side of the face the left hand should be placed in a basin of water as hot as can be borne. Or if neuralgia is in the left side of the face then the right hand should be placed in the hot water. It is asserted that in this way relief may be obtained in less than five minutes. The explanation is that the two nerves which have the greatest number or tactile nerve endings are the fifth and the median nerves. As the fibers of these two nerves cross any impulse conveyed to the left hand will affect the right side of the face, or if applied to the right hand will affect the left side of the face. This is on account of the crossing of the cords.—[East Indian Review.

A Voice From The Stomach

A Bloodless Fight Between a Tablet and a Habit—The Tablet Wins.

At the age of 22, Clarence had good digestion. He had gastric juice that could dissolve doughnuts and turn apple-skins into good blood corpuscles.

At the age of 24 he began to be profuse about the waist and lean backwards. He also began to cultivate several chins. In his new-found pride he began to think it his duty to gorge himself on everything, the good and the bad, for appetite feeds on appetite—and every good thing is abused.

His pictures showed that he took on weight after he put his collar on.

At the age of 26 Clarence married and went to boarding. On top of all this, he attended oyster suppers and wine dinners, which reduced the size of his collar from 16½ to 15. With still abiding faith in the strength of his stomach he gulped his meals, and chewed them afterwards.

At the age of 28 Clarence began to hear an inward voice—a warning from the stomach. After each meal he would feel bloated—and belching became a habit.

He began to be a light eater—and a heavy thinker. He tried to think out a cure, for now he would sit down at his meals absolutely disgusted at the thought or sight of anything to eat.

He would sit down at his meals without the trace of an appetite, just because it was time to eat.

He would often feel a gnawing, unsatisfied "still-hungry" feeling in his stomach, even after he was through eating, whether his meal was well cooked or not.

And he suffered a good many other things with his stomach that he could not explain, but that made him grouchy, miserable, out-o'-sorts and generally sour on everybody and everything.

Finally he read an account, something like this, about the truly wonderful results obtained from Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all cases of stomach trouble, dyspepsia, and so on. He bought a 50c box at the drug store and took the whole box. When he started, he had little faith—and less appetite. When he finished he had absolute faith—and more appetite and more good cheer. Things began to taste different and better to him.

Now he has no more dyspepsia, no more indigestion, no more loss of appetite, brash, irritation, burning sensation, heartburn, nausea, eructations bad memory, or loss of vim and vigor.

Remember, one ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest for you, 3000 grains of food, just as it did for Clarence.

This relieves your stomach of the work of digesting until your stomach can get strong and healthy again. Your stomach has been overworked and abused. It's fagged out. It needs a rest.

Let Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do the work of your stomach. You will be surprised how fine you'll feel after eating, and how lusciously good everything will taste to you.

Heed the call of the stomach now! There's a world of good cheer in one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets—at any drug store, 50c.

FIREBUG SCORE ELEVEN.

Incendiary Is Still Active in Redlands Notwithstanding the Efforts to Catch Him.

REDLANDS, March 23.—The firebug was again in action on Chestnut avenue last night, this being the eleventh time since February 9 that fires have been started within a radius of fifty feet on that thoroughfare. The first several attempts were upon the residence of Edward Judson Brown, who in fright vacated. Then the firing of barns and outhouses of near neighbors began. In these fires two barns have been burned, and the outhouse, the last of the latter last evening. It was on the rear of the premises of Mrs. Elizabeth Horsefall. The fire was discovered between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock last night and was put out by the aid of the garden hose. The loss was not more than $15. An oil can was found near the ruins, indicating that oil had been used in making the fire. In nearly every instance either rubbish or oil has been found, showing plainly that the fires are of incendiary origin.

Many of the residents of that section are employing private watchmen, and Deputy Sheriff Ward of San Bernardino is on constant watch. Today Sheriff Ralphs has spent the day in Redlands in an effort to secure some clue to the miscreant, but at a late hour this afternoon no arrest had been made.

OAK GLEN PROSPECT.

The preliminary survey for the Redlands and Yucaipe Mountain Electric Railway having been completed, the promoters now have in the field men who are surveying the lots in Oak Glen Park, which will surround the proposed mile-high hotel and which will be sold for private residence.

Mountain water will be piped to the mile-high hotel from Wilshire Cañon. A sewer system is to be installed. The boulevard proposition is meeting hearty approval, not only from the people of the valley but from the people of the Yucaipe as well, many of whom have expressed their willingness to give strips from their ranches for the construction of the road.

REDLANDS BRIEFS.

The Redlands canal east of town, which supplies the domestic water system much of its water, has burst and will not be repaired until Wednesday. It is possible that consumers from this canal may suffer some slight inconvenience, although there is probably enough water in the reservoir to last until necessary repairs are made.

The Brookings lumber and box factory at Fredalba, which was destroyed by fire early in the winter, will again be running by May 1. The new mill, which is being constructed with all possible speed, is on the same site as the old one was. Four carloads of machinery have already arrived.

The Women's Union of the Congregational Church held its annual Easter sale yesterday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Frank Settelle was chairman of the Committee on Arrangements.

Prof. O. L. Lienau is looking into the matter of weekly concerts by a local brass band for Redlands the coming summer. The work of forming an organization for this purpose is being agitated by the Boosters' Club, and it is thought that a band will be formed.

Automobile events at Coronado Saturday and Sunday, March 30 and 31.

ONTARIO GOES UP.

Postoffice of That Town Is to Be Raised to Second-class on First of Month.

ONTARIO, March 23.—The Ontario postoffice will on April 1 be raised to the second class. The increase in business for the twelve months is something over $2000 more than that of the year previous.

Arguments on the case concerning the High School tangle of Ontario and Upland will be heard in the Superior Court, San Bernardino, April 4. The trustees of Chaffey College have petitioned the Superior Court for permission to deed to the Ontario High School, land on the college campus for a new building, and permission to use the income from the Chaffey trust fund to defray the expense of the Ontario High School. The trustees of the Upland school district are to appear in the Superior Court on that date and show cause why the petition of the Chaffey College trustees should not be granted.

Much interest is being shown in the preparation for the play, "All the Comforts of Home," by Jane Gardener, to be presented by "The Thespians," a local dramatic club, on April 4 and 6. The cast includes some of the best local talent in the colony.

D. W. Feltham, wife and three children have arrived from Wahpeton, N. D., to make their home in California.

Rev. Fiennes Clinton of Vancouver, B. C., and Rev. C. Meany of Los Angeles will assist at the Palm Sunday services in Christ Church, tomorrow.

Auto races at Coronado March 30-31.

UPLAND.

UPLAND, March 23.—In the presence of members of the families at interest, and a few invited friends, C. H. Clark of the firm of Clark & Everetts, and Miss Mabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Chaffee, were united in marriage last evening, Rev. H. P. Lane, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Clark expect to reside in Upland.

At the last meeting of the City Trustees an ordinance passed its first reading which is designed to make it uncomfortable for all the fellows who have been playing penny ante poker, as well as indulging in other forms of gambling. There is little doubt that the ordinance will pass by a safe majority.

A home talent entertainment is now in course of preparation, and will be given at Magnolia Rink, on April 4. The affair is under the auspices of the Women's Literary Club. "The District School" is the play to be given.

S. Holtz, an Iowa man, who has been spending the winter in Southern California, has bought ten acres on Seventh street, formerly known as the Tracy property, the price paid being $7000. He expects to remove here from the Hawkeye State.

The total rainfall for Upland so far is 25.83 inches. At the Sierra powerhouse in the San Antonio Cañon, the gauge reads something over 34 inches.

Dr. William H. Craig says he will not be a candidate for school trustee.

Better weather at Coronado.

KIDD LOSES RESTAURANT.

Casa Blanca Man, in Jail for a Liquor Law Violation, Suffers By Fire.

RIVERSIDE, March 23.—The restaurant owned by J. L. Kidd at Casa Blanca was destroyed by fire last evening, caused by a defective flue. On account of the distance of the building from the city it was impracticable to send out the fire apparatus. Fire Chief Schneider went to the scene of the fire, however, and, by directing the efforts of a bucket brigade, he succeeded in saving the adjoining buildings. The contents of the restaurant were removed, but the building was a total loss. No insurance was carried. Ill luck in double measure is following Mr. Kidd, who at the time of the fire was at the City Jail, serving out a sentence for selling liquor contrary to the prohibition ordinance.

RIVERSIDE BRIEFS.

Mrs. E. Nelson Blake, a Boston contralto, who is wintering in Riverside, gave a song recital at the Loring Theater this evening, assisted by local musicians. The concert was given for the benefit of the clubhouse fund which the Women's Club is raising. The assistant musicians were Signor Valenza, harpist; Miss Gregg, pianist; Mrs. Grace Burnett Kennedy, Miss Hammond, D. D. Gage, P. S. Castleman and Leonard Coop, vocalists, and Miss Gregg and Mrs. A. S. Parker, accompanyists.

A marriage license was issued in the County Clerk's office today to Gerome B. Carr, aged 32, a native of Colorado, and Mrs. Harriet R. Hollingsworth, aged 34, a native of Iowa. Both are residents of Los Angeles. Marriage licenses were also issued today to Geo. M. Colburn, aged 22, a native of Nebraska, and resident of Upland, and Vera Pearle Wright, aged 18, a native of Oregon and resident of Riverside; and to Carlos Silvas, aged 40, and Fannie Contreras, aged 18, both natives of California and residents of Casa Blanca.

Class night exercises were given in Hicks Memorial chapel last evening by the class of '06 of the normal department of the First Methodist Sunday-school, which has completed its teacher-training course, together with a year of post-graduate work. Mrs. Stella B. Irvine, superintendent of the normal department as well as a Sunday-school worker of national reputation, reviewed the history of the department and of the retiring class. The class numbers twenty, each of whom took part in the exercises.

Robert Neustadt and his bride, formerly Miss Altadena Green, who were married at Los Angeles last Thursday, are at the Glenwood, where they are passing a part of their honeymoon.

VENTURA WOMEN BUILDERS.

Clubhouse Association Is Preparing for Erection of Structure for a Home.

VENTURA, March 23.—The Women's Clubhouse Association of this city is preparing to build on the lot of the association on Chestnut street, between Main and Santa Clara, and before the year is out it is expected that a pretty little edifice, with auditorium attached, will be a certainty. The ladies of the association have been working faithfully to this end since the organization of the body several years ago. By their efforts they have secured a handsome site, which is paid for, and they have enough money in the treasury now and pledged to warrant going right ahead with a building. A meeting has been called for the 25th inst., at which steps will be taken looking to the consummation of the plans, and when definite steps will be taken for the erection of a building.

NOTES OF VENTURA.

Frank Tallow, for a long time a resident of this city, has moved to Los Angeles.

Another half-inch of rain fell here Friday evening, increasing the total for the season to 26.70 inches.

Better climate at Coronado.

SMALLER THAN PINHEAD.

Comperella Bifusciata, Perissopterus and Other Bug Guests Attack Scale at Anaheim.

ANAHEIM, March 23.—Edward K. Carnes and Fred Maskaw, members of the California State Commission of Horticulture, have arrived here from Chula Vista, bringing with them colonies of parasites for red and purple scale. These parasites were procured in China recently and in about three weeks will be liberated in all of the orange districts of Orange county.

Mr. Carnes stated this morning that the little parasites are much more delicate than is the insect that has about exterminated the black scale in this State, and that they cannot be shipped to the various points of California. The gentlemen in charge of the work will probably go from point to point until colonies have been established in the leading orange districts of the State.

The new parasite includes four species, the Comperella Bifusciata and Perissopterus working on the red scale, and the Aphelinidae and Prospaeta working on the purple scale. The insects are much smaller than a pinhead. The parasites are kept in a number of boxes and are now in course of incubation.

The debate here last night between the Anaheim High School and Throop was well attended, the local school winning by 51 to 49 points. This is the third victory for the Anaheim school, it having won over the Santa Ana High School and the Polytechnic of Pasadena. Anaheim was represented by Roy Firebaugh and Max Carmichael and the Throop debaters were Ross M. Nichols and J. T. Dickinson.

F. A. Korn, aged 79, one of the best known residents of this city, died at his home Thursday. He had lived here since 1867.

ORANGE.

ORANGE, March 23.—P. W. Ehlen, president of the Orange Public Library Board, has received a letter from Andrew Carnegie's private secretary, signifying Carnegie's willingness to give $10,000 toward a building on condition that a site is provided and not less than $1000 be pledged by the City Trustees each year for its support. There was $1200 raised last year and there is no doubt that this sum can be raised every year. The library board will ask an additional $2000, making the building fund $12,000. Public-spirited citizens have given a fine site on the corner of Chapman avenue and Center street.

Ten cars of oranges were shipped from Orange last week.

Best time to visit Coronado.

SANTA ANA.

SANTA ANA, March 23.—Half the votes cast at the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company election last Tuesday have been counted, and the indications are that all the proposed amendments to the company's bylaws will be lost by fully 2000 votes. Out of 16,944 shares there were 12,789 shares voted. The principal amendment proposed to raise the capitalization of the company to $500,000.

Marriage licenses have been issued to Percy Ellwood, aged 25, and Martha Landon, aged 18, both of Los Angeles; Walter S. Ford, aged 21, and Grace E. Wilson, aged 18, both of Los Angeles; Guy W. Villikett, aged 25, and Minnie Messmore, aged 23, both of Los Angeles.

SALTON SEA NO RAINMAKER.

WEATHER EXPERT COMBATS POPULAR BELIEF.

Shows That All the Water in Salton Basin Would Hardly Suffice for One Good Shower Over Arizona. Moreover, Excessive Rainfall Preceded Creation of the Inland Sea.

In a bulletin on the effect of the Salton Sea on the climate of the Southwest, Prof. A. J. Henry of the Weather Bureau says:

There is a growing belief in the extreme Southwest, and possibly in other parts of the country, that the creation of Salton Sea is, in large part, responsible for the heavy rains of the last two years, not only in Arizona, but also in the Rocky Mountain States, and thence eastward over the plains. So strong is this belief that some persons have gone so far as to publicly advocate the maintenance of the present Salton Sea, notwithstanding the efforts now being put forward to shut off its supply.

Like other popular fallacies, the present one doubtless arose from a careless consideration of the facts in the case, failure to consider whether the supposed cause was capable of producing the observed result, and finally, a misconception of the physical laws under which moisture in the atmosphere is condensed and precipitated as rain.

EFFECT BEFORE CAUSE.

The rainfall of October, November and December, 1904, was not out of the ordinary, but beginning in January, 1905, and continuing throughout February, March and April, and extraordinary amount of rain fell over a belt of country stretching from Florida to Southern California, and the region of heavy rainfall also extended into Eastern Colorado, Eastern Wyoming, Western South Dakota, Western Nebraska and Western Kansas. With the coming summer the locus of heavy rains shifted to the States of Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota and Oklahoma and Indian Territories. September and October were generally dry months, but in November heavy rains fell in Texas and thence westward to Arizona. December was dry. In 1906 practically the whole of that great region west of the ninety-fifth meridian received more than the normal rainfall, the regions of greatest excess being Central and Western Kansas, Central and Western Nebraska, all of Utah and Central and Southern California. The excess in Arizona was not strikingly large.

The Salton Sea was not formed until after the heavy rains of January, February and March, 1905, so that to ascribe the increased rainfall to the Salton Sea would be to place the effect before the cause.

ENOUGH FOR ONE SHOWER.

Admitting for the sake of argument that a body of water of the dimensions of the present Salton Sea existed before January, 1905, let us examine its probable effect on the rainfall of the Southwest. Its present dimensions are approximately sixty miles long, eight miles broad, and, say, twenty-five feet deep on the average. These are rough estimates, but they will serve the purpose. The cubic contents therefore would be two and two-tenths cubic miles of water.

The normal annual rainfall of Arizona as determined by Section Director Jesunofsky is 11.75 inches. The excess for 1905 was 14.85 inches, an amount more than equal to the normal rainfall. An inch of rainfall per square mile is equal to 72,516 short tons. As the area of the territory is 112,956 square miles, the excess for 1905 would be 122,717,500,000 short tons, or twenty-seven cubic miles. This quantity is twelve times greater than the total volume of the Salton Sea. In other words, the total volume of the latter would barely suffice to produce one-twelfth of the surplus rain that fell in Arizona, to say nothing of the rainfall in adjoining regions. The total amount of water now in Salton Sea, if uniformly distributed in Arizona, would cover the territory to the depth of about an inch and a quarter, or the equivalent of one good soaking rain. How then could the evaporation from Salton Sea, even if it amounted to eight feet per annum, granting that it was all condensed and precipitated to the earth, produce the enormous quantity of water that fell in Arizona in 1905?

The obvious deduction from the foregoing is that the Salton Sea is not responsible for the phenomenal rainfall of 1905 in Arizona.

MODIFIES LOCAL CONDITIONS.

The effect of a small body of water such as the Salton Sea on the climate of the surrounding territory may be recognized in its equalizing effect on the temperature, and in the increased amount of water vapor thrown into the air by evaporation, since more water is evaporated from a water surface than from forests or fields. Owing to the fact that a water surface warms up much more slowly than a land surface and retains its heat much longer, the water surface will, in general, be warmer at night than the land and cooler in the day time. Thus there will be a tendency toward lower maximum temperatures and higher minimum temperatures in a narrow zone immediately surrounding the lake, but especially on the leeward shore.

At the temperatures which exist in the Colorado desert, and under the general conditions of aridity which prevail, the atmosphere takes up vapor as a sponge absorbs water. It should be remembered, moreover, that the capacity of the air for vapor is vastly greater at nigh than at low temperatures, the problem in the Southwest, therefore, so far as the production of rain is concerned, is not essentially one of increasing the vapor contents of the air, but rather of diminishing the temperature to the point at which condensing takes place. There is sufficient moisture in the air to produce abundant percipitation if means of cooling it were at hand.

HUMIDITY OF DESERT AIR.

The absolute humidity at Yuma is slightly greater than that of St. Louis, and only a little less than that of Vicksburg, both of which points have, in general, an abundance of rain and a so-called moist atmosphere.

The amount of vapor in the air over Salton Sea must be considerable in the course of a year, but to adduce definite and satisfactory proof that it has increased the rainfall is a very difficult problem. That it has increased the relative humidity in a slight measure is undoubtedly true. Aqueous vapor in the absence of a strong wind circulation is diffused very slowly throughout the atmosphere. It is, therefore, improbable that any considerable portion of the local supply of vapor ever passes beyond the immediate confines of the desert.

A Suitable Home.

Tastes differ. If one knew just where a suitable home could be purchased in the right location, the task of making a selection would be much simplified. Often times a search of the real estate advertisements or the "For Sale Houses" columns in the classified department of The Times will be rewarded by suiting your taste exactly. If not, a little "Liner" advertisement, setting forth your requirements, inserted in The Times, will accomplish the result, saving you worry, time and money.

WILL TELL THE JURY.

Prominent Local Capitalists, Subpoenaed to San Francisco, Deny Knowledge of Bribery.

Prominent Los Angeles business men, subpoenaed to appear before the San Francisco grand jury to testify in the graft investigation, declare, almost with one accord, that they know nothing of the alleged bribing of the Ruef Supervisors in the matter of the Home Telephone Company franchise. They will tell the grand jury all they know, they say.

As told in The Times yesterday morning, five subpoenaes had been served up to a late hour Friday night. Six more were served yesterday, making eleven in all. Those who have been summoned to tell the grand jury what they know of the manner in which the Home Company obtained its franchise are:

A. B. Cass, president of the Home Telephone Company of Los Angeles, and one of the promoters of the San Francisco company; W. C. Patterson, vice-president of the First National Bank; William Mead, president of the Citizens' National Bank; J. S. Torrance, capitalist; J. H. Adams and T. W. Phillips of the Adams-Phillips Company, brokers; Frank M. Brown and James R. Martin, employed by the same company; J. M. C. Marble, formerly president of the Los Angeles Home Telephone Company; Charles F. Sloan and A. M. Dole, the latter of Pomona.

It was stated by Messrs. Patterson, Mead and others that they had no knowledge of the transaction with which their names have been connected. Mr. Torrance declined to make any statement for publication. What he might have to say, he announced, would be told to the grand jury at San Francisco.

Many of those who have been subpoenaed said they had no connection with the Home Telephone Company of San Francisco at the time the franchise was granted by the Supervisors. Some of them said that they knew only through hearsay of the sending of a large sum of money to San Francisco shortly after the disaster for the purpose of securing the franchise.

Those who have been subpoenaed probably will leave for San Francisco today, to appear before the inquisitorial body tomorrow.

Rupture

New Scientific Appliance, Always a Perfect Fit—Adjustable to Any Size Person—Easy, Comfortable, Never Slips, No Obnoxious Springs or Pads—Costs Less than many Common Trusses—Made to Order for Men, Women and Children.

Sent on Trial

I have invented a rupture appliance that I can safely say, by 30 years' experience in the rupture business, is the only one that will

"There is no reason now for any person to suffer the tortures of rupture"—C. E. Brooks absolutely hold the rupture and never slip and yet is light, cool comfortable, conforms to every movement of the body without chafing or hurting and costs less than many ordinary trusses. There are no springs or hard, lumpy pads and yet it holds the rupture safely and firmly without pain or inconvenience. I have put the price so low that any person, rich or poor, can buy, and I absolutely guarantee it.

I make it to your order—send it to you—you wear it, and if it doesn't satisfy you send it back to me and I will refund your money.

That is the fairest proposition ever made by a rupture specialist. The banks or any responsible citizen in Marshall will tell you that is the way I do business—always absolutely on the square.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Write me today and I will send you my book on Rupture and its Cure, showing my appliance and giving you prices and names of people who have tried it and been cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember I use no salves, no harness, no lies. Just a straight business deal at a reasonable price.

Seven people out of ten are said to have Piles. Not one man in a million need have them and we are proving it every day at our own expense. We send a sample package of the wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure to any person absolutely free.

We don't do this as a matter of amusement or philanthropy, but because it is to our interest to do so. We know that we have got the greatest remedy in the world for piles, and we are ready and willing to stand or fall by the verdict of those who make the trial. We have been doing this for some years now and we never yet have had occasion to regret it.

And the remedy at the drug store is exactly the same as the sample we send out. As, for instance, here is a man who got such immediate relief from the sample that he at once bought a box. Was it just the same? Undoubtedly, since it cured him after all sorts and kinds of things had failed.

Here is a sample of the kind of letters we get every day and we don't have to ask for them:

"Received your sample of Pile Cure and have given it a fair trial and it has proven the best I ever tried and effected a complete cure. I can recommend you highly in this vicinity. Have used your sample and one box and it has been a complete cure. It has been worth $100 to me. Thanking you for the sample and the cure, I will recommend you to everybody. ## TOPICS OF THE STAGE.

New York is seeing "The Holy City." Last Saturday's Evening Post says: "For many years speculative managers have been trying to put the Passion Play in some form or other upon the stage. Of late they have succeeded in making productions which resemble it more or less closely. The latest of these experiments is called "The Holy City," and it is to be presented at the Lincoln Square Theater on Monday evening.

"Though purporting to be founded on the Biblical story, it seems to consist largely of perversion and invention. (Consult Los Angeles notices.) The central figures are Mary Magdalene, who is presented with a lover in the person of Barabbas—who appears as a revolutionary patriot instead of a robber—and the supposed adventures of these two are interwoven with the closing incidents of Christ's earthly career."

All of which indicates that the reception of this bit of religious sentimentality will not be as flattering in New York as in Southern California.

The play, of course, cannot be considered as true to the Scriptures or even to the dramatic unities, but to thousands of people who do not make regular theatrical visitations its Palestinian atmosphere and its treatment of characters—admittedly reverential—formed the ultimate dramatic opportunity.

Hence Mr. Ferris's four weeks and the 100,000 admissions at the Auditorium, which far exceeded every play record ever made by any company in this city.

THE LOCAL WEEK.

The long-prepared production of Dr. Bachmann's new California play, "Under the Bear Flag," will be seen for the first time today, at the Burbank Theater.

As related in detail in a previous dramatic column of The Times, the story of the drama concerns that interesting and romantic period in our State history when California was for a brief time a republic, for three weeks owing no allegiance to any flag save her own.

Readers of Dr. Bachmann's manuscript say that the play-maker has wrought upon the subject with dramatic effectiveness and literary skill—which, of course, may be judged today.

Mr. Desmond and Miss Gilbert will have the leading parts, and the entire strength of the company will be seen in the production.

Mr. Ferris, at the Auditorium, will offer "Parsifal" to his audiences, beginning Thursday night.

Most theater-goers have at least seen a dramatic presentation of this mystic legend, if not the operatic version, as presented here by the original American cast, and may realize the scenic and "production" difficulties that confront the Auditorium.

The opening is fixed for Thursday, merely because getting it ready for tomorrow would have been an absolute impossibility. "Theodora" will continue for the next three days.

Mr. Kammermeyer's orchestra will be doubled in size, and the Wagnerian music will proceed through the play, incidental to the dramatic dialogue. A fanfare of trumpets will sound the call in the foyer—a la the Metropolitan—and from the beginning of the overture until the end of the first act, no one will be seated.

Miss Stone will play Kundry, Mr. Robson will be seen as Parsifal, Mr. Scott will play Klingsor and Mr. Von Meter will be the Amfortas.

Nat Goodwin and his company will return to the Mason Operahouse, commencing a two weeks' season tomorrow night.

"The Genius," the really delightful new comedy in which he scored a pronounced local hit last year, will be repeated tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, and at the Saturday matinée On Friday and Saturday nights he will present one of his best-known pieces, "A Gilded Fool."

EDNA GOODRICH.
Nat Goodwin's beautiful leading woman will be seen here again next week. In fact, Mr. Goodwin may be said to have a penchant for beautiful leading actresses, developed to its fullest degree by his statuesque wife, Maxine Elliott, and well sustained by the present young woman. Tomorrow evening Miss Goodrich will reassume her delightfully girlish characterization in "The Genius."

During his second week he will produce a new comedy of English life, "What Would a Gentleman Do?" "An American Citizen," "When We Were Twenty-one" and will be seen in trial scene of "The Merchant of Venice" as Shylock.

Miss Edna Goodrich, the beautiful young actress who was with Mr. Goodwin last season, is still his leading support. A capable company is promised.

May Tully and her company in a playlet by Matthew White, Jr., entitled "Stop, Look and Listen," are the headliners at the Orpheum this week. The sketch is said to be an antidote for young women desirous of delusive stage honors.

Bert Levy, cartoonist, will depict famous men and events. The novelty of the act is in a greatly enlarged projection of the original sketch on a screen, as executed by the artist. The electric apparatus used is of Mr. Levy's own invention. The Olivettis, instrumentalists, have a gypsy sketch in which melodies from guitars and violins play a principal part. Johnny Johns is advertised as a singer and story teller.

The holdovers are the Dancing Daisies, Byron and Langdon, Quigg, Mackey and Nickerson, and the acrobatic Flood brothers. New motion pictures will be shown.

"The Manxman," accounted one of the strongest bits of really dramatic literature that has ever come from the industrious pen of Hall Caine, will be the bill at the Belasco during the coming week.

The story is a familiar one. There are a number of splendidly drawn characters in the piece. Bradlee Martin will make his first appearance gith the Belasco company in this play.

The Gillette farce-comedy, "Because She Loved Him So," will be the next production at the Belasco, and will introduce John Daly Murphy, who has just come to Los Angeles after a long season with the Chicago Operahouse stock company.

"A Stranger in Town," with Frank Beamish in the comedy role, is the week's bill at the Grand. This is a comedy with music, so-called, said to be one degree removed from the genuine musical comedy. Theater-goers who witnessed the original production of the Charles Hoyt musical comedies will recall Mr. Beamish's successive and successful appearances in all these plays. Since those days, however, he has been playing in "straight" work.

He has as his chief support Rita Knight, of the original "Liberty Belles" cast, and a company promisedly sufficient.

A new vaudeville bill at the People's will be put on at the Tuesday matinée.

Dramagraphs.

"The Veil of Happiness," a comedy by George Clemenceau, the present French Premier, is to be produced in Italy by Riccardi. Signor Martini is to make the translation.

Richard Mansfield will close his season on April 27, and will sail for England on the Tuesday following. He will spend the summer at an estate on the Thames, adjoining Windsor Castle.

Edna Wallace Hopper has been engaged by Thomas W. Ryley for a leading role in "The White Chrysanthemum," which will have its premiere in Philadelphia on March 25.

Cecelia Loftus is to star next season under the management of Henry Miller. Though no contract has yet been signed, an agreement has been reached. A play will probably be written for her.

William Faversham expects to use as part of his repertoire next season Echegaray's "The Great Galeoto," which he put on for a single performance in Boston a few weeks ago, under the title of "The World and His Wife."

Clyde Fitch sailed for Europe on March 9 to arrange for the production of several of his plays in London and the Continent. He will spend the greater part of the ––– in the country near Munich.

"The Lion and the Mouse" will end its long engagement at the Lyceum Theater, New York, on Saturday, April 6, at which time it will have established a record of over 600 consecutive performances.

Mrs. Wiggs and her cabbage patch are to be transplanted and placed on the English stage. Mrs. Madge Carr Cook is to head the cast, playing her original role, and the engagement will open on April 21. Gus Weinberg is to play Mr. Stubbins.

Maurice Maeterlinck will publish, this month, through M. Fasquelle, "L'Intelligence des Betes et Autres Essais." His fairy play, "L'Oiseau Bleu" (The Blue Bird,) which will be performed next season in New York and in Moscow, will be published at the same time in English and Russian. The author is at present working on a play founded on an episode of the French Revolution.

Arnold Daly has begun rehearsals of "The Boys of Company B," the new comedy by Mrs. Rida Johnson Young. The production will be presented in Philadelphia for the first time, and will be under the immediate direction of Daniel Frohman. The company engaged thus far includes Frances Ring, Florence Nash, Jennie Eustace, Howard Estabrook, Roy Fairchild and Robert McWade.

Clara Bloodgood is the latest Frohman star to go over to the camp of the independents. She will open at Daly's in New York on May 1, on which day that historic playhouse passes over to the Shuberts. She will be seen in "The Truth," and her former success, "The Girl With the Green Eyes," both by Clyde Fitch. In the meantime, Mrs. Bloodgood will make a flying trip to London to look over a new Sardou play for future use.

Robert Mantell's plans for the next two seasons are extensive. He is to revive both "King Richard II," which has not been acted in this country since Booth was in his prime, and "King John." For special performances he will do Macklin's old comedy of "The Man of the World," playing, of course, Sir Pertinax MacSycophant. In 1908-09 he is to produce Ibsen's "Brand," in an acting version prepared by Marie Booth Russell, his leading woman, and Frederick Donaghey, his personal manager, and at the end of that season here he is to go to London, where he will open in "King Lear."

"Cleo" and Mrs. Carter-Payne have reached the final parting of the ways. Mrs. Carter is to appear in April under the direction of Henry B. Harris in a revival of "Zaza." At about the same time "Cleo," the long-deferred adaptation of "L'Article 47," by Edwin Milton Royle, will be produced with Miss Nance O'Neill in the title role. Miss O'Neill will then become a Dillingham star, and she will be supported by the following players: W. L. Abingdon, W. L. Courtleigh, W. J. Ferguson, McKee Rankin, Neil Moran, Frank Dekum, Ida Waterman, Mabel Morrison, Leila Repton and Lizzie Hudson Collier.

London, it seems, can never have enough of "Peter Pan." Mr. Barrie's fantasy has just completed another of its long runs at the Duke of York's Theater, but it will resume its career next winter.

Fritzi Scheff has been seriously ill since March 4, and last week returned to New York to rest until Easter Monday, when she hopes to be able to resume her tour. Edna Fassett will play her role in Mlle. Modiste until Mme. Scheff recovers.

Guy Standing has joined Alla Nazimova's company and will be featured in the role of Assessor Brack during the Russian actress' current engagement in "Hedda Gabler" at the Bijou Theater, New York.

Seymour Hicks, in a recent interview in London, stated that the object of his career is to acquire, with as little delay as possible, as much money as will enable him, while still a young man, to retire upon a moderate but ample competence. He is already reputed to be quite a wealthy man.

Heinrich Conried has resumed active work at his office in the Mentropolitan Operahouse building. He announced last week that he would retire from operatic management at the expiration of his present lease of the operahouse, which will not be until 1911.

Mr. Conried says that "another composer will visit America next year to conduct performances of his works at the Metropolitan, but I am not at liberty to give his name yet." Massenet, or Saint-Saens, would be a plausible guess.

When Mrs. Fiske was looking about for a play in which to appear with her Manhattan Theater Company this season she declared that she would accept no play that did not make a universal appeal. She wanted one that had as its subject a question in which as many persons as possible were interested. Langdon Mitchell, the son of Dr. Weir Mitchell, himself a novelist of high attainments, submitted the scenario of a drama in which divorce was the central theme. "The New York Idea" he called his play, and Mrs. Fiske was so taken with it that she accepted it at once and put it in rehearsal. When it was produced it was a success from the start. Most of those that have commented upon it have placed the fact of its success largely to the circumstance that it deals with the divorce question. It is a fact that this year sees more dramas upon the American stage, at least, in which this problem is treated, than any other season has seen. A distinguished French dramatist several years ago originated the modern vogue in his "Divorcons," a play in which Mrs. Fiske has appeared in this country as Rejane and other noted foreign actresses have substantially added to their reputations by playing abroad.

Charles Klein and Henry B. Harris have an intense antipathy to the introduction of incidental music during the progress of a play unless specifically demanded by the action, for they believe it to be a disturbing and inartistic accessory. The leaders of the various orchestras throughout the country are not in accord with this belief and conflict often ensues between them and the managers of the Henry B. Harris attractions. "The Lion and the Mouse" company recently appeared in one of the smaller cities in the South. Here they encountered an unusually stubborn leader, who after the manager of the company had gained his point sulked visibly, rendering the entr'act music in a very indifferent manner. However, he did not defy his orders until the end of the third act, where the "mouse" in a torrent of indignation berates the "lion." As Josephine Lowett, the Shirley of this organization, made her exit in a passion of rage she caused an eruption of the leader's musical temperament and to her amazement the orchestra crashed violently into the familiar strains of "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

When Dorothy Donnelly appeared the other week in "The Daughters of Men" at the Grand Operahouse in New York she invited her 7-year-old niece to the matinée. At the close of the performance Miss Donnelly and her little guest were joined by four other feminine members of the family, to whom Miss Donnelly proposed they dine at the Waldorf-Astoria to avoid the fatigue of a long journey uptown. Incidentally Miss Donnelly thought it would be rather a treat for her niece, who had never been permitted to visit a large hotel. After some persuasion the child's mother consented. Arrived at the Waldorf-Astoria, they proceeded to the palm room, the child open-mouthed and open-eyed at the display of, to her, untold magnificence. Seated at the table, the child's mother, at the request of Miss Donnelly, began to order with fluency and prodigality for the elder members of the party, then turned to her daughter and asked what she would like to have. To their surprise she answered: "If you are all going to eat all that I guess I'd better not have anything—I don't want to make Aunty Dorothy awful poor."

ANDREW ROBSON AS PARSIFAL.
The centerpiece in the remarkabe mystery play which Richard Wagner brought into artistic prominence is indeed a complex character, but Mr. Robson will probably solve these problems to the entire satisfaction of his many admirers. The accompanying photograph was made for The Times by Mojonier.

Lavedan's latest effort, which is to be produced at the Gymnase shortly, is, Frohman says, the direct opposite of "The Duel," being the merriest of farce-comedy. Then there is "Miquette," which is now past its hundredth performance at the Varieties. Mr. Frohman has arranged to produce an adaptation of this piece in London next autumn, and among his other purchases are several Parisian novelties for "Nelly Neil," the piece by C. M. S. McLellan, in which Edna May is now starring. One of these is a certain "talking drum," and perhaps the fact that the new piece at the Aldwych needs to be bolstered up in this fashion is not without significance. One hears, in fact, that Londoners are not exactly falling over each other to see McLellan's piece, but it was evident on the first night that all it needed was judicious "brightening," and as its astute producer realizes this, all may yet be well.

An English phonograph company has persuaded Adelina Patti to sing for it. It is of some interest to know what songs this "vocal link with the great past" chose at this stage of her career to give future generations some idea of her voice and style. There is a Spanish chanson, "La Calesera;" "Ah! non credea mirarti," from "La Sonnambula;" "Casta Diva," from "Norma;" "Connais-tu le pays," from "Mignon;" Tosti's "Serenata," and Crouch's "Kathleen Mavourneen."

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

The closing symphony concert of the year will be played at the Auditorium, with Archibald Sessions, organist, as soloist.

An organ solo, as incidental music to a symphony programme will be something new in Los Angeles, but the union of this great instrument—under such capable hands as Mr. Sessions—with the sixty instruments of Mr. Hamilton's orchestra should be productive of inspiring melody.

The symphony year has been remarkable for several things, perhaps the most notable of which is the indomitable pluck and persistence of Director Hamilton, who, in the face of almost absolute physical incapacity, has rehearsed and conducted some of the heaviest programmes ever given here.

For another thing, public attendance has increased remarkably, and likewise public appreciation. Notwithstanding the enormous and unprecedented patronage of grand opera here this year, and the numerous concert demands, no symphony audience except the last one has felt the diminution from these outside affairs.

A large amount of new music has been played during the year, and special attention has been paid to the masterworks of north Europe. The educational advantages of this artistic zeal are evident.

The timbre and tonal quality of the orchestra has likewise been bettered to an unlooked-for degree.

The local dates of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra have now been definitely settled, and the organization will play in Simpson Auditorium, April 19 and 20. Alexander von Fielitz will direct, and the Apollo Club, augmented by 100 other singers, will interpret several choral masterworks.

The soloists will include the celebrated 'cellist, Franz Wagner, the Chicago bass, Dr. Hugh Schlussler, Marie Zimmerman, soprano, and Elaine de Sellam, contralto, of Ohio. The tenor will in all probability be Mr. Towne, who for the past five years has been at the head of the vocalists connected with the Chicago orchestra.

The matinée performance of the orchestra will be devoted entirely to a symphonic programme while the evening concerts will be of combined nature.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clifford Lott will leave about May 1 for a year's absence in London, Paris and Berlin.

On April 22 they will give a recital with Mr. Sessions, at which time this organist will formally open the organ of the Independent Church of Christ, on South Figueroa street.

Francesco Ferullo will continue his programmes of good music at the Angelus gardens, Eighteenth and Main streets.

During the past week the Ferullo band has offered several lists of unusual brilliance, and the director promises that during the coming week the standard will be maintained.

Director Moore, at Eastlake, has prepared a good programme for this afternoon's concert. It includes Gounod's "Romaine," Elgar's "Serenade Lyrique," a selection from "Romeo and Julliet," and several other interesting numbers.

Mme. Ester Adaberto and Orlinto Lombardi will be heard in recital at Long Beach this afternoon, in conjunction with Vessella's band concert.

Sig. Lombardi will sing Apolloni's "L'Ebreo," and an air from "Ernani," and Mme. Adaberto will give Tosti's "Ideale," and the jewel song from "Faust."

William H. Sherwood, the well-known Eastern pianist, has been spending some time recently in Pasadena, on his way to the northern part of the Coast.

Mr. Sherwood is delighted with the climate and scenic surroundings here, and avows his desire to return next winter for a longer stay. While in Pasadena he gave an interesting lecture-recital, and a brilliant concert programme.

Mr. Plutti will give the second in his series of piano recitals on Tuesday evening, in Chickering Hall.

M. and Mme. Planel, well-known French artists, will give recitals soon in one of the halls of the Auditorium building. Mme. Planel has attained considerable celebrity as an actress in Paris, while her husband is a splendid violinist, belonging to the school of Alard, Massart and Vieuxtemps.

Alexander Petschnikoff, the Russian violinist, will be heard in recital on the evening of April 15, and at a matinée, April 13. He will be assisted by his wife, Mme. Petschnikoff.

Mackenzie Gordon, the Scotch tenor, whose impassioned singing won him many friends here a year or two ago, has returned to Southern California, and will be heard in recital here April 12.

Mrs. Beatrice Hubbell Plummer has returned to Los Angeles, after two years' work with choirs and concert appearances in New York.

Gertrude Cohen will give a piano recital at the Belasco Theater on Tuesday afternoon, April 9. Young Miss Cohen and her extraordinary talents are well known to local music followers. Mme. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop will assist.

A. Rae Condit, well-known locally as a whistling soloist of phenomenal abilities, and as one of the most delightful "good fellows" of the Pomona College Glee Club, has just finished a successful season in the Middle States with the Peterson concert organization, on tour. During the summer Mr. Condit will fill Chautauqua dates in the South, and in the fall will go out, for the first time, at the head of a company bearing his own name.

Miss Margaret Goetz has resumed her "historic song recitals," which she will give at the Woman's Club House, on South Figueroa street. Her first programme was presented yesterday. The second will be on next Saturday.

Victor Enterprise.

Mme. Melba's present season in America, which has already been twice extended owing to the great demand for her appearance in opera and concert, has now been further prolonged owing to the enterprise of the Victor Talking Machine Company, which has made her an offer unique in musical annals.

Instead of sailing for Europe on the Kron Prinz William on March 26, the day following Mme. Melba's final appearance at the Manhattan Operahouse, she will now stay in New York until April 2, and during the entire week between these two dates she will sing only for this talking-machine company, which is making great preparations to secure a series of perfect Melba records.

In order to obtain this concession from the prima donna, the company, it is said, has entered into a contract to pay Mme. Melba $50,000 for the week, and guaranteeing further a continued payment of royalties so long as the records are sold.

No record is to be placed on the market without her approval and orchestral or piano accompaniment as desired by the prima donna. All facilities are to be placed at her disposal by the contracting company.

Hammerstein's Plans.

One of the special features of the Manhattan Operahouse's second season will be opera comique. Such is the important announcement that Oscar Hammerstein made early this week, adding that he has obtained the exclusive rights for the United States to Charpentier's "Louise," which has never been heard here, Debussy's "Pélleas et Mélisande," based on Maeterlinck's play of the same name, and Massenet's "Manon," and that he will produce all of these modern French works early next season.

In view of these plans Mr. Hammerstein has engaged Mary Garden, the Scottish-American soprano, who has long been a prime favorite with the Paris public; Perier, the French baritone, of the Opera Comique, who will receive $600 a night, and Abraham Didur, a Polish basso, prominent on the French operatic stage. Miss Garden's contract guarantees her $1800 a night, with a stipulation that she shall sing twice a week. She is engaged for a term of five years.

Mr. Hammerstein will sail for Europe at the end of April to engage more French singers, a French conductor and probably a French stage manager. He will bring back the scene painters of the Opera Comique and have them duplicate for him the Paris settings of the operas that are to be the special features of his opera comique and repertoire. He is especially enthusiastic over "Louise" and expects to give it twenty times during the winter. At the same time grand opera will not be neglected. Most of the older Italian works will be dropped, but the best of the modern Italian and French operas will be given, as will also Weber's "Der Freischutz" and Waggner's "Tannhauser," "Lohengrin" and "Des Fliegende Hollander" in either French or Italian. Mme. Melba will appear in several roles she has not sung this winter. According to present indications the opening performance next season will be "Der Fliegende Hollander," with Melba, Dalmores and Renaud in the principal parts.

Mary Garden, who is a young woman of classic beauty, was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, but was brought as a child to Chicago, which became her home. She began her studies for a professional career with Mrs. S. Robinson Duff of Bangor, Me., and in 1898 went to Paris. She made her début at the Opera Comique in the title role of "Louise" on April 12, 1900, substituting at the last minute for the singer who was to have taken the part.

The list of singers thus far reengaged by Mr. Hammerstein includes Mmes. Melba, de Cisneros, Trentini and Giaconia, and Messrs. Dalmores, Bassi, Renaud, Sammarco, Ancona, Gillibert and Arimondi. He considers Mr. Bonci also reëngaged. Mary Garden, Zenatello, Perier and Didur comprise the new-comers announced as yet.—[Musical America.

ART NOTES.

Alice and Frieda Ludovici held a joint exhibition of miniatures last week at the Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, the one showing people and the other dogs. Both the sisters are refined and accomplished artists. The pictured dogs were quite as individual as the pictured people.

John M. Donovan's exhibition of marines opens tomorrow at the Nicholson gallery, Pasadena, and will continue for one week only. Another Pasadena exhibition is that of Benjamin Chambers Brown, which opened at Bentz's, No. 49 South Raymond avenue, and will continue for one month. Thirty-one canvases are shown.

A most interesting model is now posing in the life classes of the Art Students' League in Blanchard Hall. This is Treloar, an ex-Harvard oarsman, who posed for Lopez's statue of "Sin," exhibited in the St. Louis fair, and who has starred as a man of wonderful physical strength in the Orpheum circuit. Treloar is now instructor in physical culture at the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Hobart Bosworth has a fine attic studio in his new home on East Avenue 41. The probabilities are that Rob Wagner will share it with him.

Twenty-three members of the Palette Club made a pleasant and profitable trip up Mount Wilson last Sunday morning, bringing many sketches with them on their return the same evening.

The fire in the School of Art and Design last Thursday in no way interfered with the classes, which opened at 9 a.m. as usual the same day.

Walter H. Pritchard, known as "the submarine painter," has opened a very handsome and artistic studio on Oakland avenue, Pasadena.

Charles Ward's new studio is on Hancock avenue, East Los Angeles.

CARROLL M'COMAS.

This petite Los Angeles girl, who is soon to be heard in concert here, has whistled her way completeyl around the world. Though a model of school-day ingenuousness, Miss Carroll has been a vaudeville headliner in Paris, Berlin and London and has made concert appearances in Zulu Land, at Cape Town and Calcutta and in Australia.

The Art of Leonard Lester.

To the layman, the ubiquitous "average person" who loves pictures because of the story they tell or the message they bring, the question of their technique will never be (fortunately for his peace of mind) of paramount importance. The wherefore and the how of the laying on of paint concerns him not. If a picture makes an appeal that he can understand, he is content.

And after all isn't the layman almost wholly in the right? A picture is painted for its message, and not to exploit the skill of the painter. We want it beautifully done, of course, but not at the expense of thought and emotion. The painter, as well as the poet in words, must "let art be all in all"—which is by no means the same as saying that he must let technique be all in all.

Leonard Lester, who is showing twenty-four landscapes at Gould's gallery this week, is first and foremost a bringer of beauty, a lyric poet in paint, whose message is so delicately and exquisitely expressed that we must needs pause to listen attentively or we may miss it completely. He sings to the accompaniment of no loud and brazen cymbals, but to the sweet and elusive pipes of Pan. He lures us on to nature's sylvan solitudes, away from the clamors of the market place. We look and listen, and know that great nature has whispered many wonderful things to the painter.

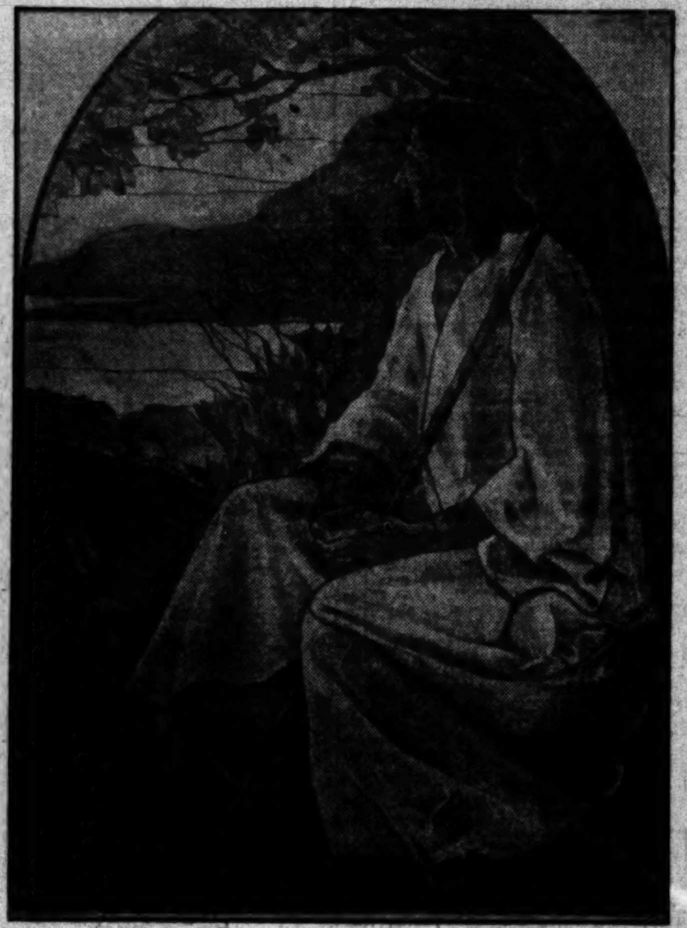
We learn what the night has to say to "those mild things of bulk and multitude, the trees—God's sentinels." We feel and are thrilled by the holy mystery of the evening star and the "gibbous moon." We hear the light laughter of the wind in dancing eucalypts. We see the wonderful glory of Montecito's sunshine.

The charm of these pictures grows subtly and irresistibly upon us, and we never stop to think of the technique—though that, be it said, is always adequate and sometimes exceedingly good. If, now and then, it seems a trifle labored, we know that this is because our artist—who is really an artist, true to his great trust, and not a sleight-of-hand performer or a smirking poseur—has been loth to lay aside his tools till the last noble syllable of his message has been revealed.

Mr. Lester's interpretation of landscape is his own. Nature has been his constant teacher, though he learned to draw, and unusually well, in two of the best art schools of America, the Art Students' League of New York and the Art Institute of Chicago. He is of English parentage, and came to this country when he was eighteen years old. His earlier work was in magazine illustration and in lithography, but for a number of years he has devoted all his time and talent to the painting of landscape. He has painted England and Italy, yet California is the land of his strongest affection.

Note the repose and harmony of his night thoughts—"The Dryad's Grove," "The Opal Moon," "When All the World Is Still," "Silent Night," and "Nocturne." Mark the richness of coloring in his late afternoon effects—"Twilight Harmony," "Above the Valley," "Golden Eve," "A Charmed Shore," and that lovely canvas, "The Afternoon Breeze," where the moving air can almost be felt, ruffling the leaves of tall slim eucalyptus trees.

We have seen in late exhibitions many pictures that showed greater technical dexterity, but none that had a more abiding charm or were more satisfying to the spirit than these quiet canvases by Leonard Lester. They are the work of a man of thought as well as dreams, of knowledge as well as inspiration.



THE GOOD SHEPHERD, by RENE DE QUELIN.

This is a cartoon of the stained glass window that Rene de Quelin, the well-known Los Angeles designer, is now making for a church in San Diego. Mr. de Quelin has worked with both Tiffany and La Farge.

Some Pictures by Miss Purcell.

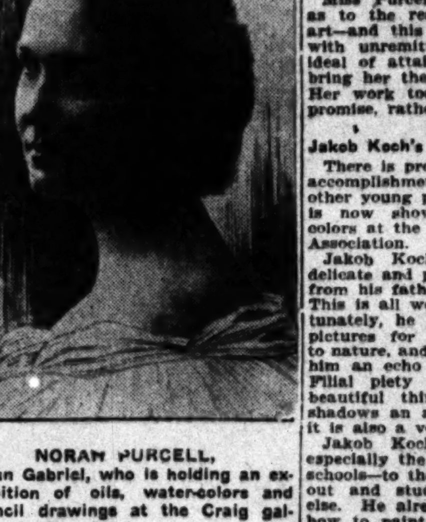
Norah Purcell, who received her art instruction under Bond Francisco and in the Art Students' League of Los Angeles, and who has also studied with Alonzo P. Latimer in San Francisco, is holding a small exhibition of oils, water colors and pencil drawings at the Craig gallery, No. 315 East Colorado street, Pasadena.

A number of pleasant impressions of nature are shown, the pencil drawings being perhaps the best technically. Indeed, Miss Purcell shows a decided aptitude for this very difficult medium, handling it with ease and dexterity. A number of her pencil drawings have been reproduced in Harper's Bazar and other eastern magazines.

Of the oils, "Evening" and "Afterglow" are by far the strongest, and are painted with directness and simplicity. The best of the water colors are "Path in the Redwoods," "The Footbridge," "The Lifting Fog" and "At Terminal," all direct and sincere studies of nature.

Sincerity, indeed, is Miss Purcell's main characteristic. She has a genuine love for nature, which she tries to express without pose. She often fails, mainly, I think, because she has not yet mastered the rudiments of her craft. Her drawing is often weak, and her color sometimes lacks clarity. Time and hard work will, however, remedy these faults.

Miss Purcell has no false illusions as to the real aim and meaning of art—and this fine keenness of vision, with unremitting devotion to a high ideal of attainment, will undoubtedly bring her the rich reward of success. Her work today is interesting in its promise, rather than in its fulfillment.



NORAH PURCELL,

of San Gabriel, who is holding an exhibition of oils, water-colors and pencil drawings at the Craig gallery in Pasadena.

Jakob Koch's Water Colors.

There is promise, rather than actual accomplishment, in the work of another young painter, Jakob Koch, who is now showing thirty of his water colors at the gallery of the Fine Arts Association.

Jakob Koch is the possessor of a delicate and precise technique, learned from his father, the late Henry Koch. This is all well and good, but, unfortunately, he has gone to his father's pictures for inspiration, rather than to nature, and this procedure has made him an echo instead of a free voice. Filial piety is a commendable and beautiful thing, but when it overshadows an artist's own individuality it is also a very dangerous one.

Jakob Koch should fling tradition—especially the tradition of the Munich schools—to the winds, and go straight out and study nature, and nothing else. He already knows too much of how to paint a picture—let him now learn the true forms and colors of Southern California. Then let him paint our hills and live oaks as he sees them with his own eyes.

However, hampered as he has been, Jakob Koch has already painted many charming bits in water color. Some of his skies are clear and beautiful. Some of his trees are finely drawn, for his sense for form is keen and true. His technique is too good—it quite overtops his knowledge, making him finicky where he should be broad and free and simple. His color lacks quality, because it isn't studied out of doors.

"Fair Weather" Clothes!

WHENEVER the weather is damp, away goes the shape of these clothes.

The coat shoulders "wrinkle" and "hump"—my vest gets too tight—and my trousers draw up, and pucker and "bag."

And I paid a good price, too.

The first damp day taught me how uncertain shape is in most makes of men's clothes.

Since then I've studied the matter a bit, and found WHY—and how to avoid it.

You see—wool shrinks.

Whenever it gets damp, it draws up out of shape.

The first damp day brings trouble.

Now, all cloth comes from the mills unshrunk.

Kaufman Garments $15.

Weavers will not shrink it, because they sell it by the yard and shrinkage means loss.

So the clothes makers have to do their best for you, but "their best" is not always very good and more often is pretty poor. The clothes of men who pass you in the street give abundant proof of this "poorness."

Perhaps these clothes makers try to shrink the goods—but they haven't the process—they can't.

But you never see such defects in Kaufman Garments.

For, by the use of a special shrinking process, the Kaufmans are able to give you a shape permanence that you simply cannot get in other makes of clothes at any price.

Every bolt of cloth that comes to the great Kaufman Tailoring Establishment is treated with the Kaufman "Pre-Shrinking" Process, which takes all the "shrink tendency" out of the fabric before it is made up into Kaufman Garments.

Herbsts Celebrate.

Mr. and Mrs. William Herbst of No. 1109 East Eleventh street celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their daughter, Mrs. G. A. Theile, of No. 1139 Trenton street. Decorations were in golden poppies and yellow hyacinths. The bride wore her own wedding gown of rich silk, which was well preserved, and in the quaint fashion of fifty years ago. The affair was quiet, owing to the death of their son, Paul Herbst, some weeks previous. Only most intimate friends and members of the immediate family were present.

Mrs. Low Returns Home.

The many friends of Mrs. Carroll E. Low will be glad to learn that she has just returned from a six months' trip through Europe. Mrs. Low went through England, Italy, Holland, France, and spent several months in Paris at the Louvre, where she copied tapestries and other pictures. Mrs. Low is a versatile artist, and was most appreciative of the works of the old masters, and, like many others, thinks no one has painted children and Cupids quite as beautifully as Rubens.

Mrs. Low has secured some very fine baskets to add to her elegant collection of five hundred Indian baskets. Mrs. Low probably has the finest collection of Indian baskets in the city, and she is now adding baskets from various foreign countries to swell the collection. She has brought home some wonderfully beautiful bronzes and brass pieces, many of the rare and old ones. Most interesting are the handsome brass braziers which Mrs. Low brought from Naples, Italy. They are of unique and beautiful lines, and are used in Naples in the streets, being filled with hot coals, and when any poor traveler comes by, shivering, he picks a fan from the brazier, fans the coals into fire, and warms himself.

Mrs. Low is a beautiful, brown-eyed woman, and stunningly gowned. The picture shows her clad in one of her gorgeous Paris frocks, of which she has an exceedingly attractive and tastefully-chosen variety.

Mrs. Low is planning to build a home on Wilshire boulevard soon, and an interesting feature of this artistic house will be the window from Versailles, and another from Naples, Italy, which she has had sent here.

Mrs. Low and her young daughter, Miss Glendolean, are living at the Westminster Hotel, and will be at home to their friends on the first and third Mondays of each month.

MRS. A. J. TAYLOR, young matron, who will be hostess at an affair on Thursday, given for the benefit of the McKinley Home.

Plan Largest of Benefits.

The Brownson House vaudeville benefit to be given on the evening of April 1, at Gamut Club Auditorium, promises to bring a crowded house.

At the head of the arrangement committee is pretty golden-haired Miss Gertrude Workman, and if enthusiasm, youth and beauty can make anything a success, she will make this one of the best ever produced by amateurs. Society is taking a great interest in it and society artists are giving their talents. It is really hard to say just which act will be the best, for there are so many good ones. Pretty girls are to sell candy and flowers between acts, and are to be in the old Southern costumes, with the curls and poke bonnets and fetching fichus, and also the quaint nosegays. Young belles who are to sell the sweets include Misses Anna McDermott, Lita Murrieta, Ruth Kays, Mary Bernard, Joanna Malony, Mabel Murray and Ann Troconiz. The programmes are dainty affairs like the Orpheum ones, in yellow adorned with shadow pictures of old-fashioned girls in poke bonnets. The posters, dainty water colors of old-fashioned girls in yellow gowns and hats, are the artistic work of Miss Catherine Sawtelle, one of the young buds, not yet out. The orchestra is said to be a work of art, for it was organized by G. Allen Hancock, and Mr. Kammermeyer is to direct. Included in the orchestra are Frank Rule, Hancock Banning, A. MacLeish, Frank Edwards, C. A. Kenyon, G. Allen Hancock and A. C. Winans.

First on the programme is the living picture advertisements. These are very clever, and presented by well-known society girls, representing "Queen Quality Shoes," Bishop's Chocolate Girl, the "Chiclets" girl and other well-known pretty advertisements, as well as some funny ones, such as "Sunny Jim." Then there are six acrobats from the Y.M.C.A., who will do wonderful "stunts." They include Messrs. Russell Cromwell, H. G. Dorhauer, Johnson, A. F. Moulton, Alton Ordway and Walter Schekels.

Mary Thekla Romadka, who is a cousin of Miss Marie Mullen is to whistle, and the trills and bird notes of this unique musician are said to be most fascinating. Walter Goldsmith, a clever monologist, is to appear, and the Royal Sphaggetti Opera Company will be a hit. Mrs. Mary Schallert and Henry Daly are appearing on the bill as Maria Schallerti and Signor Enrique Frederico Dali. They promise the "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore," and other numbers.

Then there is a little one-act comedy, "The Burglar," in which the following are to take part: Misses Alma Holmes, Marian Porter, Catharine Sawtelle and Gertrude Workman. Very clever are the "lightning change" artists, for they appear in three different costumes, with no time for change at all. These clever amateurs are the following young society buds: Misses Hazel Benton, Helen Emery, Marian Gartsman and Eva Wolcott. A "sensa-

Your Easter Hat
We have the most beautiful showing of stylish millinery for Easter that we have ever assembled. Especially noteworthy is our display of trimmed hats at $5.00, $7.50 and $10. They embody the very latest and most fashionable ideas—Quaker hats, mushroom effects—Marie Antoinette, Shepherdess and Empire shapes—the very cleverest of the season's accepted styles, trimmed in the most perfect taste.
Your time for selection is short now. We urge you to come early in the week while the display is at its best. You will find here, besides the trimmed hats, a fine line of shapes, flowers and millinery accessories.

Persian Trimming Ribbons

Priced at a Mere Fraction of Their Worth

To people who don't know this store the following will sound preposterous, wholly beyond reason:

In spite of this season's unprecedented demand for Persian trimming six thousand pieces of three-quarter to one-and-a-half inch Persian trimming ribbon came to us at a figure that will permit selling at

Inexpensive Drapery Stuffs

Anticipating the scarcity and the consequent advance in price of all cotton drapery stuffs we placed advance orders for tremendous stocks, and own them at last year's prices.

36-inch curtain madras in rich color designs that give the effect of a heavy woven fabric; perhaps 20 designs, in colorings that will stand sunshine and washing; 12½c a yard.

Our own importation of figured madras in many exceptionally handsome designs, 50c to $1.50 a yard; no other fabric at like cost equals this in beauty and serviceability.

Tapestries in many new designs and colorings, 75c to $6.00 a yard.

Domestic and imported curtain swiss in dots, stripes and figured effects; will launder well; 12½c to 50c a yard.

As an inexpensive hanging for bungalows or for couch covers, Monk's cloth and Friar's cloth has the call. Fifty cents a yard for these heavy 50-inch fabrics. Choice of green, red, natural and brown shades.

36-inch linen taffetas in various handsome patterns, 50c yard.

The most popular and effective drapery silk of the season is the rough effect in solid colors. We've probably 20 colors in the 85c grade, and even more than that in the $1.25 Rough Skikii.

OUT-OF-TOWN SOCIETY

Pasadena.

SOCIALLY Pasadena has been rather quiet during the past week, there having been but two notably large functions, but there have been the usual number of smaller affairs, the most elaborate of which have been given at the hotels.

The largest function of the week was the progressive euchre party given Wednesday afternoon in the Moorish room at Hotel Green by Mrs. A. H. Sellers of Chicago, assisted by her sisters, Mrs. Frank Logan and Mrs. William Harvey. While many of the sixty guests were staying at Hotel Green, there were some twenty of Pasadena's society matrons present. The floral decorations were unusually profuse and arranged with great artistic skill. The prizes were costly and elegant, and were won by Mrs. Edward Groenendyke, Mrs. J. B. Stubbs, Mrs. G. H. Smith, Mrs. Henry Vilas, Miss Manning and Mrs. Franklyn Tower. Misses Gibbs and Logan assisted in distributing the lone hand markers, which were expensive trifles of jewelry and bric-a-brac. The collation was served after the games at the card tables, and throughout the afternoon the Venetian Women's Orchestra furnished music.

Thursday was made memorable by a delightful five hundred party given by Mrs George H. Frost in honor of her sister, Mrs. Charles H. Wells of Oak Park, Ill., who is a guest here. Spring blossoms were used in beautifying the house, purple and white iris and Lady Banksia roses being most in evidence. Mrs. Frost was assisted by her sisters Mrs. Frederick Burnham and Mrs. Charles Woodbury. Tables were arranged for twenty-eight players, and handsome prizes were awarded. Mrs. Wells will be the guest of honor at a dinner given Monday evening by Mrs. C. H. Maxwell at Hotel Guirnalda.

One of the gayest little functions of the week was the surprise party which was given Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Lutz, South Orange Grove avenue, to celebrate Mr. Lutz's birthday anniversary. The affair was arranged by Mrs. J. Dawson Thomson and Mrs. C. E. Cristy. There were twenty of Mr. and Mrs. Lutz's friends invited, and the evening was spent playing bridge and five hundred. Together with the collation which the guests furnished were brought many comical gifts which added to the fun of the occasion. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Thomson, Col. and Mrs. C. P. Morehous, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hurlburt, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George Stimson, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Claypool, Mrs. Cristy, Harland Cristy, the Misses Claypool and Miss Sherman.

Mrs. Edward S. Hunter and Mrs. Charles Hunter, whose homes are adjoining on North El Molino avenue, are giving a series of duplicate bridge parties. The first games were played off Thursday afternoon at the home of the former, and Saturday afternoon Mrs. Charles Hunter entertained. Those who are interested in these games of skill are Mmes. W. P. Nelson, Lawrence Newman, John B. Murphy, John S. Kinnan, Fred Elmer Wilcox, E. W. Taylor, George Smith, Lewis Farlow, Ernest B. Hoag, F. G. Bland, P. L. Auten, Ellis, C. S. Byington, Misses Cudahy, Auten and Brown.

Mrs. Charles W. Woodbury gave a prettily-appointed luncheon Tuesday in honor of Mrs. Charles H. Wells of Chicago at her home on South Madison avenue. In decorations, favors and accessories St. Patrick's memory was suitably recognized, the color scheme in floral ornamentations being green and white and shamrock, clay pipes and plump pigs being used as souvenirs of the pleasant gathering. Those present were Mmes. Robert Kennan, W. B. Clapp, Edward Hahn, Harr, Prinz, Thomas Barnes, Joseph Blick, Charles Lockwood, George Frost, LeRoy Henderson, C. Mortimer Henderson, Hubert Ives, William Frederickson and F. H. Roberts.

Mrs. A. T. Newcomb and sister, Miss Stratton of South Marengo avenue, gave a five hundred party Tuesday afternoon complimentary to Mrs. G. T. Hobbs of Chicago. There were forty present, and after the games a collation was served.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Wagner of Madeline Drive gave an informal reception Tuesday afternoon complimentary to Mr. Wagner's brother, Robert, whose work as a portrait painter is well known. The reception was in the nature of a private view, and was enjoyed by some fifty of Mr. and Mrs. Wagner's friends.

Mrs. Charles C. Bragdon entertained with a luncheon Tuesday at her home on South Grand avenue in honor of her friend, Mrs. Smith, of Flint, Neb., who is a guest this winter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Eddy on Euclid avenue. Covers were laid for nine, the other guests being Mmes. W. H. Turner, P. L. Auten, Theodore Coleman, A. A. Libby, Carter Harrison and Miss Ransome.

Dr. and Mrs. W. N. Holmes of Altadena entertained with a dinner Monday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Johnson of Minneapolis.

Mrs. Walstein Root of Grand avenue gave a delightful bridge party Wednesday afternoon complimentary to Mrs. Myron T. Herrick of Cleveland. Drummond, John Lambert, Henry Thompson, Harvey, Carter Harrison, Miss Ruth Adams.

Tailored Silk Suits

New Models Just Received

It is exceedingly difficult to produce satisfactory tailored suits in silk. We have some late models in strictly tailored styles, that are remarkable in their perfection of line and finish. They are in shades of pongee—extremely smart, the last word in women's fashions for spring.

We find that many women believe we carry only tailored garments. This is not true. We show many very dressy models, quite different from the more severe tailored effects. Among them are suits in silk, in serges and voiles. Every model is exclusive—and of a quality that insures satisfaction to the wearer.

EASTER ATTIRE

Temptingly Priced

The style artists of two continents have contributed their best efforts to this showing of Millinery Models, Costumes, Coats and Tailored Suits.

Paris Modes are here in plenty---one of a kind, of course. But the New York tailors are turning out garments that are just as effective as those from foreign shores---and for less money.

Imported Pattern Hats are shown side by side with Fifth Avenue creations and models from our own workrooms---and you'd hardly know which was which, except by looking at the foreign labels.

The hat shown on the figure below is a new mushroom shape, exquisitely trimmed with shell pink louisine ribbon, lilies of the valley, large rhinestone buckle, and two magnificent male ostrich plumes. Entire crown of Tom Thumb roses. The price is fifty dollars.

The hat on the figure at the right is an imported model, of fine French chip. This is also a mushroom shape, magnificently trimmed with three splendid shower plumes in the new sulphur shades---and burnt onion ribbon in pompadour effect. Price fifty dollars.

The costume and opera coat reproduced here were sketched from garments shown on live models in our second floor salesroom.

ELIPH' HEWLITT AND THE BIG STICK.

He Expatiates on Things Roosevelthian to Mr. Gilthorp, and, of Course, Mr. Gilthorp Is Richer by a Copy of Jarby's Encyclopedia of Knowledge and Compendium of Literature, Science and Art.

"NAW," said Mr. Gilthorp, the butcher at Gallup's Junction's, Iowa, "I don't want no books, and if I did I wouldn't want that cyclopedy of your'n with that there appendix of the Russian War printed in the simplified spelling. I see how Congressman Hicks from this district is agin that simplified spelling, and what is good enough for him is good enough for me."

Eliph Hewlitt, the little book agent, with the sandy-gray whiskers, laid his sample copy of Jarby's Encyclopedia of Knowledge and Compendium of Literature, Science and Art on the counter and smiled at Mr. Gilthorp kindly.

"Yes," he said, "That's what Jarby said, of Jarby & Goss, publishers of this world-renowned work, comprising useful information on one thousand and one subjects, twenty thousand references in all, from A to Z, including the lives of all the world's great men from Adam to Roosevelt, price $5, $1 down and $1 a month until paid. I said to him, 'Jarby, use the simplified! Make the spelling of the new edition simple enough for man or beast.'"

"I wouldn't buy that book if you gave trading stamps with it," interrupted Mr. Gilthorp, decidedly, "so it's no use talking at me!"

"And I don't demand to sell you one," said Eliph' Hewlitt, gently. "I didn't expect to. That was what Jarby told me in his very office in New York. 'Hewlitt,' he says to me, 'if I print the Cyclopedia in simplified you can't sell Gilthorp, Gallup's Junction's leading butcher. I would do it for you if I would do it for any one, and for your sake I will include in the superb new edition a complete list of the three hundred words as bobtailed by the manicures of the English language, but that is all that I will do. What,' he says, 'is the knowledge of a bunch of professors and one President when compared with the combined intellects of the gentlemen in Congress assembled? How can you compare the wisdom of William James, a mere professor at Harvard, with the deep knowledge of the English language possessed by Timothy O'Toole, Congressman from the good old Bowery in New York? It is not Mr. Roosevelt that is the true friend of the English language,' he says, 'it is Orlando Hicks, of the Ninety-seventh Congress District of Iowa. So long as I run this Encyclopedia,' he says, 'it shall not look as if a spotted cow had walked across its pages and bit pieces out of the words. This is not going to be any moth-eaten book.'"

"That's right!" said Mr. Gilthorp, "I don't give no short weight when I sell meat, and I don't want no short weight when I buy words."

"Them was my very words to Jarby," said Eliph' Hewlitt, blandly. "'Jarby,' I says, 'I know folks don't want short weight when they buy words, but it don't hurt none to cut the suet off from a roast of beef, does it?' 'No,' he says, 'not when it's done by a butcher, but I don't call what these folks are doing to the English butchering it. I like a good, clean job of butchering, as well as the next man does,' he says, 'but look at that word thru. I don't call that a butchery,' he says; 'I call it a mangling. It looks worse than a chicken with its toes froze off. If I was over in France and one of them frogeaters handed me that word on a plate I wouldn't know whether it was a Chinese puzzle or an insult. That word would look all right in the Welsh language,' he says, 'where all the words look like a ragout of alphabet, but before I would let that word circulate among refined ladies in this country I would take it into the dressing room and pin a skirt around it. When a word has appendicitis,' he says, 'I am not the one to say the appendix should not be removed. My own has been. But to take a healthy American word, one that our ancestors fought and bled for in the Declaration of Independence, and chop off its hind legs and graft on a boiled cauliflower instead is against my principles.' 'All right, Jarby,' I says, 'but print it in simplified, just the same.'"

"You must have had some good reason to make you stick out so," said Gilthorp, with growing interest.

"'I did,' said Eliph' Hewlitt. "'What's three hundreds words?' I says to Jarby. 'Three hundred,' says he, 'three hundred! Who says they simplified three hundred? Nowhere near it,' he says. 'That's the deceitfulness of them; half the list is words everybody uses. Use jail instead of gaol, say they. And who in the last hundred years ever used gaol, anyhow? Use favor instead of favour, say they. And who that ever sang the "Star Spangled Banner" up to where his voice fizzled out on the high notes, which is all any American can do, ever used favour? No one. But into the list them words went,' says Jarby, 'so that folks would say, "What difference? Half the words is such as we use, anyhow; the list can't be so bad after all." It's as if,' says Jarby, 'a man should come to you with a plan for simplifying your face, and had a list of four things for you to accept. Item one, to wear one nose. Item two, to wear one mouth. "Well, why not?" you say, "I do that already, so where can be the harm of the rest of the list," and the rest of the list is: Item three, to wear but one ear. Item four, to wear but one eye. And,' says Jarby, 'the same way these fellers hand you favor and jail, and then when you are not looking they stick a thru into your back.' Says I, 'Jarby, there's sense in what you say, but you go ahead and print the new edition in the simplified.'"

"I guess,' said Mr. Gilthorp, "that you was thinking of selling the book to these here ignorant foreigners that's coming to America by shiploads, wasn't you? That was what made you stick out, wasn't it?"

"That's your benevolent spirit, Mr. Gilthorp," said Eliph' Hewlitt, "and it's kind in you to think of that, for all the men, women and children of Europe, Asia and Africa, full descriptions of all which continents, together with maps and tables of their flora and fauna are given in this useful, moral and entertaining volume, the price of which is but $5, neatly bound in cloth, $1 down and $1 a month until paid. The thought does you credit. You think of the poor Mr. Czygykowitz from Wzluckgzzbg, and of the little Wildsliffs from Bnnyrbryggin, and you consider how hard it is for them to learn a spelling like the English. You see how the difficulties of the English spelling book are keeping thousands of emigrants from our shores and depopulating Baxter street. You see how the cruelties of American spelling are keeping out the Chinese, who hate to leave their native land and their simple spelling, in which a map of the railways of Ohio, a wrecked chicken coop and a stroke of lightning, together with the other symbols met with on the tea chest, spell the word 'cat.' You see how the Japanese refuse to attend the schools of San Francisco, although the San Franciscoans beg them to, and just because the spelling lessons are so hard. Yes, I thought of that, but it was not my reason for saying to Jarby, 'Print it simplified, Jarby.'"

"If you had such a good reason," said Mr. Gilthorp, "why didn't he print out the whole book simplified instead of just the appendix of the Rooshun war?"

"Just what I said to him," said Eliph' Hewlitt. "'Why not?' I says, but says he to me, 'Hewlitt, go up and look at the simplifiers, and then say what you think of it. This book,' he says, 'is the foremost volume in the world, and in the new edition is brought up to the latest minute of time, with the dying thoughts of all the great men that is dead, and new dying thoughts added as fast as other great ones die, up to the time of going to press. They can't die too fast for us,' he says, 'to keep the volume complete and up to date. That's our aim, and if a new great one don't die in time to get in the new edition we change the thoughts of some that is already dead and in the book. Progress and we aim to please, is our motto,' he says, 'but the way them words is debilitated at the word works ain't my way.' So I went up to the word works and had a look around."

"The place where they eviscerate the words," explained Mr. Eliph' Hewlitt, "removing their tails and other vitals. I went up there and met the boss of the word contractors—so called because they contract the length of the words—and he was a nice man, with a poor little word in one hand and a conductor's punch in the other, punching holes in the word to see how it would look one way and another. He had believe by the hind leg and had got it punched down to belev, and was looking at it to see if he could punch out any more of it without killing it dead. 'This,' he says, 'is to be one of our next batch of three hundred. Ain't it sweet and nice and short? We have high authority for this spelling. Josh Billings spelt it so. Also it is one of Chaucer's fifty-six varieties of spelling it. We have a lot of high old authorities for it. Shakespeare spelt it this way when he was a boy. But we will have some that are even better than this in the next batch. There are some you wouldn't recognize unless we told you what they were. Sometimes I can't remember what they are myself. Nobody can. That's the beauty of the simplified spelling. When we get all the words simplified English will be every bit as good as Greek to most folks.'"

"I told the boss contractor," said Eliph' Hewlitt, "that the first time I saw that word thru I really did think it was Greek, and he shook his head and looked sad. 'That word,' says he, 'was not as good as it might be. It was one of the first that left the factory, when we had only raw hands to work with, and they hadn't got the hang of the machines yet and was nervous. It shouldn't have been sent out to the trade. We should have held it back and sold it to some dialect story writer. They like our mangled words first rate, and so far they have been our biggest buyers, and if the general sale don't pick up some I guess we'll go in for that trade exclusively and git out a brand of grammar to match.' And that," said Eliph' Hewlitt, "was what made me think maybe Jarby was not all wrong. This marvelous work of knowledge that I hold in my hands is not a dialect story book, and it don't aim to look like one and be sold under false pretenses. It is the crowning triumph of the world, containing information on every subject from the Garden of Eden to Amalgamated Copper, all carefully indexed, including 'How to Pare Potatoes Without Waste,' 'Hints for Sermons,' 'The Best Way to Clip Dogs,' 'Is Mars Inhabited?' and 'What to Feed the Baby,' as well as every subject known to man, woman and Mr. Roosevelt. The whole book, including the handsome allegorical frontispiece, only $5, the equivalent of which amount in all the moneys of the world is found on page 580, together with the metric system and how to tell a man's height by measuring his ear. If you like," he added, "I will write down your order now."

Mr. Gilthorp took the sample copy and turned the pages. "If that appendix only wasn't simple spelled," he said doubtfully.

"Every subect under the sun fully treated," said Eliph' Hewlitt, "and a complete list of the three hundred simplified words which no home should be without. A national work, and as such I begged Jarby of Jarby & Goss to put in the list of three hundred words and to spell out the appendix in the simplified way, although after seeing the word-works at work I no longer believed in the bargain-counter style of spelling. I told Jarby my reason for wanting them in and he agreed. The list of three hundred is in each book, with the appendix as a sample of how to do it, and if desired we throw in a knitting needle free with which them that wish can take the book and punch out all the letters to make the whole book match the three hundred. It affords a pleasant occupation for the winter fireside and is much enjoyed by young and old. A butcher can do it as well as a college professor and has as much right, none of the words of the English language being patented or able to hit back."

"I guess I don't need no games to keep me busy," said Mr. Gilthorp. "This butcher business keeps me busy enough."

"I should think it would," said Eliph' Hewlitt, with sympathy. "You do your own slaughtering, don't you?"

"Every bit of it," said Mr. Gilthorp. "I drive out and buy the cows, and I drive them to town, and I kill them. I have to do the whole thing."

"Troubled much by meat inspectors?" asked Eliph', smiling at the butcher.

"Never seen one yet," said Mr. Gilthorp, "and I don't want to."

"And yet," said Eliph' Hewlitt, quickly, "you wonder what my reason was for wanting to have the appendix of this priceless work simple spelled. Do you think that Eliph' Hewlitt and Jarby & Goss want Theodore Roosevelt to send a message to Congress explaining that 'Jarby's Encyclopedia of Knowledge and Compendium of Literature, Science and Art' is a monopoly because it contains in one volume all the knowledge 'n the world? It is too true. It does contain it. It is a monopoly. 'Jarby,' I says, 'we must beware of the big stick. We must make a friend of the President. We must spell the appendix simply or he will be sending Congress one hundred thousand words against us.' That was my reason. And I only hope, Mr. Gilthorp, that the President doesn't hear that Mr. Gilthorp of Gallup's Junction is set against the spelling he loves. I only hope than when I write in to Jarby why I can't sell Mr. Gilthorp a copy of this great work that the President don't hear of it and say: 'Here is this Mr. Gilthorp defying the spelling laws of the Simplified Board and killing cows that nobody knows is how old and decrepit. We ought to have an inspector out there.' That's what I hope. But I haven't much hope, either. Mr. Roosevelt seems to know everything."

Mr. Gilthorp sighed and put his hand into his money drawer. Eliph' Hewlitt took the greasy bill and put it into his pocket.

"Thanks," he said. "When I send in your order I'll tell Jarby there ain't no meat inspector needed here."

"Don't you do it!" said Mr. Gilthorp, eagerly. "Don't say anything at all. Don't mention meat. Just say I'm glad the appendix is simple spelled. I kill the best cattle I can afford to, but there ain't any use calling the President's attention this way. First thing I know there would be one of them Secretary of State's out here interfering with business."

Explorer Amundsen Says the Northwest Passage Is Only Good for Observation.

In an address in Paris Explorer Amundsen, the daring Norwegian explorer, says he saw the Northwest Passage open before his ship the first year of his voyage, but he did not take advantage of it because his programme was to make observations of the magnetic pole. In the end he did navigate the passage at a time when it was much more difficult than when he saw it the first year.

All Amundsen was able to say, in a general way, was that the ocean bottom traversed by him was flat and sandy and that the old dream so long entertained by explorers of a short northwest passage [illegible] trade purposes was [illegible] route north of the Americ[illegible] which he discovered, [illegible] practicable for scientific [illegible] He earnestly hopes, [illegible] example will be followed [illegible] least a station will be [illegible] the vicinity of the magnetic [illegible] maintained there long [illegible] mit of a complete and [illegible] of observations.

In the Living Room

THE living room should be and is, the one room in the home furnished to give the most comfort--to be the most inviting.

It is the real magnetic spot in the home--where all the family meet--where the day's topics are discussed--where the children tell of school and play--where father enjoys an evening's respite after his day's work, and yet, the pleasure you are to derive from your living room is measured largely by the nature of its environments.

The color scheme of the wall decorations, the harmony of the window and doorway hangings, the appropriateness of the floor coverings--the character of the furniture--these are the things that influence, and upon their selection depends the beauty--the cosiness of the room.

It is the work of the California to design and furnish just such a room. To achieve that real comfort and homelikeness that is sought after by all.

We invite you to come and visit our various departments --the carpets and rugs, the draperies, the wall papers and furniture. Consult with men who have made home furnishing a life study. You will receive many helpful suggestions.

FFRAGISTS NOW AWAIT THEIR FATE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

, March 4.—After one of sensational campaigns history of the movement, over a hundred women imprisoned for acting too Arthur Balfour's advice kicking up a fuss," the militant women suffragists with fevered expectancy bill which W. H. Dickin- champion of their cause, is in Parliament.

time these lines are measure will be undergoing reading in the House of when either a check or a be given to its further the eve of this crisis, have most sanguine that more than two-thirds of the House are un- pledged in one way or support of our measure of our optimism," said Mr. I talked with him to- the prospects of his election 420 members declared themselves in enfranchising women, and we now present certainly is no more or less than the simple declaration then made.

"As the bill is now on the verge of a second reading, it ought, if not checked, to stand a good chance of reaching the Lords in ample time for the Peers to act upon it at this session."

"And if it should pass the House of Commons, what may be expected of the Lords?" I asked.

"Doubtful things are very uncertain," Mr. Dickinson laughingly replied, "but we are very hopeful."

"And if defeated, what?"

"The agitation which already has been going on for forty years will then continue all the more strenuously, I am sure. On three previous occasions, bills to extend the franchise to women have passed the second reading in Commons. We feel sure that the present measure will go still further.

"The action which your State of Rhode Island has taken, is naturally encouraging. I have been in America several times as member of the Royal Commission on the feeble-minded. Although not in that connection, I always took great interest in the women's suffrage movement there. Colorado, Utah, Arizona and Wyoming have, I believe, extended the franchise to women, and I think, with satisfactory results. Finland, New Zealand and Australia have women's suffrage, and in the event of England adopting it, I am sure it would have effect on other countries. I should say Norway, Sweden and Denmark would immediately follow suit.

W. H. DICKINSON, M. P., champion of the Women's Suffrage Bill in the British Parliament.

"Our bill provides that the enfranchisement of women shall take effect January 1, 1909. By it the franchise would be extended to every woman ratepayer and to every married woman who is a joint occupier or ratepayer with her husband. It proposes, in fact, that neither sex nor mariage shall be a disqualification from the franchise if a woman possesses the same qualifications as would enfranchise a man."

Mr. Dickinson's championship of the militant women's suffrage party has earned for him the lobby nickname of "Dickie the Suffragist," but this does not affect his temperament of chronic good humor. He has always been a strong advocate of extending the franchise to women, for he believes it will conduce to many social reforms otherwise unattainable.

He was elected to the first London County Council in 1889 and ever since that time he has been hammering away in the cause of progress and has been responsible for much good work. He has been a member of the House of Commons for only two years, but has already made his influence felt as an exponent of Liberalism, and has a promising future as a Parliamentarian. He has a great power of grasping detail, has plenty of confidence, and is a fluent speaker.

In his political career he has been fortunate in receiving the substantial help and coöperation of Mrs. Dickinson, one of the most practical of women politicians, who has done excellent service in the Liberal revival by her work as secretary of the London branch of the Liberal Social Union.

"The bill is perfectly satisfactory," says Mrs. Pankhurst, who is at the head of the suffragette movement. "Anything stronger would have been in the nature of a 'fancy bill,' and would have lost us many friends in Parliament. We are not at the moment asking for Adult Suffrage. We only ask that women be placed on an equal footing with men with regard to the Parliamentary vote. This bill would achieve our object. It would enfranchise at least 2,000,000 women."

EGGS HELP A WEDDING.

The Groom Balked on the License Fee, and Swapped Eggs in Part Payment.

[Spokane Spokesman-Review:] "Cupid" Heywood, the marriage license clerk in the County Auditor's office, ran up against a poser yesterday, when F. P. Edgerton of Dartford applied for a license, and asked that the rate be reduced to one-half on account of his war record. After considerable talk, in which "Cupid" explained his inability to offer bargain-counter rates, Chief Deputy R. W. Butler stepped up and relieved the embarrassment by accepting two dozen fresh ranch eggs in part payment of the license fee, and sending Mr. Edgerton on his way with the license tucked carefully away in his inside pocket, but minus the basket of eggs he had brought as a present to his bride.

Mr. Edgerton owns a fruit ranch near Dartford, and in addition has a war record that he is proud of, besides several other claims to fame. His bride-to-be is Mrs. Bertha Sheffield of Spokane. Mr. Edgerton is a pioneer, 68 years old, and has been married twice previously, while Mrs. Sheffield is a scant two years his junior, and this is her second marriage. The bridegroom was born in Ohio in 1839, moved to Iowa when 24 years old and lived there until five years ago, when he came to Washington.

MAKES HIM FATHER OF TWENTY.

He has ten children by his first wife, and after her death, he married an Iowa widow with five children, who died a short time after her marriage. The bride-to-be has five children, which will make Mr. Edgerton the father of twenty children, all married and doing well, he says. He served three years in the late rebellion in the Thirty-fourth Iowa Cavalry, an honor of which he is exceedingly proud. When he appeared at the courthouse for his license he failed to bring a witness, but he called on Quartermaster E. R. Ennis of the Gen. King Spanish War Veterans, who signed the certificate.

Mr. Edgerton, who looks much younger than he is, was pleased by the gallant act of "Comrade" Ennis, and was in a jolly mood until "Cupid" Heywood asked him for his fee. "How much is it?" he asked. "Only $5," replied the clerk.

"What, do you mean to tell me that you charge an old soldier that much for a license? Why, back in Iowa you can get a license for half that."

"Well, the law fixes the fee at $5 in this State, and I will have to charge you the same as every one else, although I think an old soldier should be furnished a license free of charge, especially when he has been as good a citizen as you and raised such a fine family."

Clerk Butler was attracted by the controversy and spied the basket on the old man's arm

"What have you in the basket, Mr. Edgerton?" he asked.

"Well, sir, I have some nice fresh eggs that I gathered from the barn this morning and I brought them in for the new Mrs. Edgerton."

"I'll tell you, Mr. Edgerton, you let me have the eggs and we will give you the license for $4," Mr. Butler suggested.

"You bet I will, sir. Just give me the license, and you can have the eggs. I have plenty of them at home, and Mrs. Edgerton can have all she wants when we get home."

The transfer was quickly made and Mr. Edgerton left the courthouse pleased. After his departure Mr. Butler took a new silver dollar from his pocket and placed it in the drawer, equally satisfied.

The aged couple was married last night at the bride's residence. They will make their home on the bridegroom's fruit ranch.

Frugality of French Peasants.

It is estimated that the peasants of the south of France spend on food for a family of five an average of 2d. a day. For breakfast there is bread, with a preparation of salt fish to spread on it; for dinner, stock fish, or a vegetable soup or salad; and for supper, lentils, beans or other vegetables.

Water is the chief drink, with a very thin wine once in a while. Rabbit is occasionally used as a flavor in a vegetable stew, but that is a luxury. Beef or mutton is seldom tasted. Most of them dress poorly. But the economy is not for nothing. Most of them have bank accounts, and, in the matter of hard cash, are well enough off.—[Tit-Bits.

NOISOME PEN IS CITY JAIL.

Prisoners Herded Like Swine in Filthy Quarters.

City Council Making Plans for Larger Building.

Existing Conditions Inhuman and Unhealthy.

The present administration plans a new City Jail. The City Council is taking preliminary steps toward this. A building is in prospect which will include the Central Police Station, the jail, and the inferior courts. It will be constructed with a view of adaption to these different uses. Its location will be from a police point of view more central than is the present site.

Present conditions are recognized as bad—horrible. The jail is in an out-of-the-way place. It is too small by far to hold its prisoners. These suffer hardships among surroundings which are beyond written description. The "drunk cell" in particular, is disgusting beyond belief, and often men are piled several deep on its reeking stone floor.

City officials looked into the place and its condition and inadequacy surprised them. More rapid progress toward a new building is looked for as a result.

A City Council Committee was in conference with Chief of Police Kern during the latter days of the week, trying to arrange plans to get a larger city jail. Probable sites and the sale of the present Central Police Station have been discussed at length. Meantime conditions exist which are remarkably like those depicted by George Kennan in his articles about Siberian and Russian jails several years ago.

The short-term prisoners in the Los Angeles City Jail work eight hours a day, and then sleep on steel floors. Friday and yesterday—days which were not at all out of the ordinary—saw ninety of these men in quarters built to accommodate. when crowded, forty-eight.

Last night, like every Saturday night, a drunk cell was packed so full of men that its inmates had to fight for space enough to lie down on the bare floor. The air reeked with awful smells, and the jail resounded with the curses of the unfortunates who had been thrown into the place.

Only the long-term prisoners, the felons held for preliminary hearing, and the trusties assigned to outside duty get even a modicum of endurable conditions. The class of inmates for whom a city jail is especially built suffer things which are indescribable, because of the cramped quarters and lack of ventilation and light.

The situation of the City Jail, the nature of the buildings, and the lack of room, all combine to create abominable conditions. From the time a prisoner is placed under arrest he and the officers into whose charge he falls have to endure discomforts and difficulties.

LOCATION INCONVENIENT.

In the first place, owing to the building's location, the prisoner must be shoved up hill from the moment the officer lays his hand on his shoulder. From the signal box the man is taken into the patrol wagon. If the prisoner is drunk or refractory, his frame of mind is not at all improved by being shoved up the wagon steps. And this is just the beginning of an uphill journey. The patrol wagon climbs up the First-street slope to the Central Station. The building is away to one side of the section of the city in which most of the arrests are made, and the ride is invariably a long one. At its end the prisoner finds himself in an alleyway, with a flight of ten steps to climb. When he has stumbled up, or been carried up these, and has been searched at the desk sergeant's window, he is ready for a second climb, for the Central Station is so built that the jail door is on a higher level than the corridor into which the prisoners are brought.

By the time an unruly prisoner has been conducted up these two flights of stairs he is either ready and anxious to fight everything and everybody in reach, or he has been subdued by physical force. Then the jail door swings open; he is shoved inside, perspiring, cursing and generally unfit for contact with others of his species.

If the prisoner is drunk, as is the case with about seven out of every ten who are arrested, he is conducted down a narrow corridor to what is known as the drunk cell. Because of the small appropriation for the police department trusties do this work. In properly conducted jails it is done by officers. These trusties, themselves prisoners, are given a certain amount of quasi authority. They handle the prisoner, the jailer also being with them.

HORRORS OF DRUNK CELL.

The drunk cell is a dark room, with bare concrete walls, and a floor of the same material. On two sides are low benches. These are only a few inches from the floor, and extend the length of the room. They are its only furniture or fitting. The room is very high, and at its west end are two windows situated half way from the floor to the ceiling. These are closed. There is, when the steel door is closed, absolutely no ventilation. If it were properly ventilated the room could accommodate fifteen or twenty men without any great degree of hardship. On some Artist Coxen takes a look at the reeking interior of the crowded City Jail. His drawing shows the horrible "drunk cell" as it appeared last night, jammed with disgusting humanity, and a young blood of the town in dress suit among the occupants. Above is a view of the unloading of the chain gang at the jail entrance after work hours.

THE SUNDAY TIMES WILL BE 10 CENTS.

Beginning March 31, 1907, the price of single copies of The Sunday Times will be advanced to 10 cents each.

No increase will, however, be made in the price to regular monthly or yearly subscribers, who will continue to receive the paper at the rate of 75 cents a month, or $9 a year, being an average of less than 2½ cents a copy for each issue, daily and Sunday.

Subscribers by the week will pay 20 cents, as heretofore, or an average of less than 3 cents a copy.

Ten cents will be the price of the Sunday issue at The Times counter; and to newsboys it will be 7 cents a copy. News agents and news stands will be charged the same for all copies in excess of their "regular number."

The exceptional size and great weight of the Sunday issue makes it impossible for the average newsboy to carry more than a few copies at one time, necessitating too frequent trips to and from the publication office so that the increased selling margin to be given him henceforth by the office will be appreciated, because it will be only right to the boy.

The reasons for this advance in price are:

First: The Sunday Times is worth the increased price to be charged henceforth. For quantity, it consists of eight newspaper sheets and the Sunday Magazine of 32 half-size pages, making in all from 132 to 140 pages, large and small, equivalent to five fair-sized books of 400 pages each. It is without exception the largest Sunday newspaper in the United States. For quality, it contains the news of the world by telegraph and mail; the news of the city, the southern counties, the State, the Pacific Slope, and the country at large, besides a volume of other matter of human interest, fresh, timely and pertinent, and of surpassing importance to the business man, the average citizen, the home, and the family—all carefully gathered, skillfully edited and intelligently classified.

Second: Every Sunday issue of The Times has heretofore been produced at a large direct loss to the publishers, taking the expense of the "subscription end" into account, as is just and proper when fixing the selling price. The white paper alone has been costing more, about 7 cents for each copy produced, saying nothing about the cost of buying, gathering and preparing the news, the cost of composition, illustrating, stereotyping, ink and presswork, or other large expenses of publication.

Third: The publishers are confident that an intelligent public, such as that which constitutes the clientele of The Times, will acquiesce in the claim that it is better to raise the price than to lower the standard.

Fourth: The Sunday Magazine alone is confessedly worth 5 cents, or half the price to be charged for the entire Sunday paper.

Purchasers of single copies of the Sunday paper at 10 cents are reminded that they can secure The Times, daily and Sunday, during an entire week—7 issues—for 20 cents, paid in advance.

FURNITURE TROUBLES.

Woman Sees Articles Moved Out of the House and Calls Police to Help Hold Them.

The police were called in yesterday to adjust the family troubles of Mrs. Ida Leffler, who telephoned wildly that her furniture was being moved out by a wicked man.

The officer who rushed to the scene, No. 510 Temple street, found that a second-hand furniture dealer directed, by Dr. Knox, one of the firm of "New York doctors" of this city, was taking the articles from the house. Mrs. Leffler was trying to prevent him, but without success.

The policeman found that Mrs. Leffler had been ill and in a hospital, and that after her recovery, Dr. Knox had staked her to this lodging-house. On account of some private difficulty he had repented and was moving her out.

In the wildness of her grief, Mrs. Leffler told the officer that someone had mistreated her; that she went to a dentist to have her teeth capped and they put on brass instead of gold. Whether Dr. Knox was supposed responsible for this could not be learned. The officer did not interfere.

INGLEWOOD MAN DISAPPEARS.

GROCER MAKES PURCHASES, THEN CANNOT BE FOUND.

Relatives and Partner Believe Him Victim of Foul Play, and Detectives Will Make Search for Him—No Known Reason for His Absence. Mother Prostrated.

Another mysterious disappearance is to be marked up on the long list from Los Angeles and immediate vicinity.

EDWARD MEHEGAN.

Edward Mehegan, grocery merchant of Inglewood, has dropped completely from sight, and since his visit to a wholesale house in this city late Thursday afternoon not a single trace of him can be found.

Mehegan's widowed mother, whose support he has been, is prostrated and she feels certain that her son has been murdered. His brother and his partner in the grocery business, L. B. Hardin, have exhausted every resource at their command in efforts to locate the missing man, and today the police will undertake the quest.

Edward Mehegan is 26 years of age, and has spent most of his life at Inglewood, where he is a general favorite. Several years ago he came to Los Angeles and was employed some time in the store of Peter J. Wilson, now County Supervisor. He then returned to Inglewood, and some months ago formed a partnership with L. B. Hardin, who lived a short distance outside the town. They opened a store, and since the very beginning have had a prosperous business.

Mehegan has always done the buying for the firm, and last Thursday afternoon he came to Los Angeles to make some purchases. The last place it is known he visited was the Union Hardware and Metal Company, where he ordered goods in the usual manner, and he left that place about 4 o'clock.

His movements since that time have been completely lost. The young man had only a little change with him; his books and accounts are all in perfect shape, and there was no need for any worry about the business in any regard, says his partner. So far as is known, the young man had no enemies, nor any reason for leaving the community. The only reason his friends can assign for his mysterious disappearance is that his mind might have become suddenly affected, or else that he has been made away with in an attack by would-be robbers.

It is claimed Mehegan had no bad habits, that he never drank, and was careful of his associates.

He is described as five feet eight inches in height; weight, 130 pounds; has keen blue eyes, brown hair, smooth face. He wore when he left Inglewood a gray, flat-crowned soft hat, a dark brown suit with round sack coat, and a dark gray tie.

MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

J. F. Paulding, secretary of the Merchants' Exchange, received a message yesterday from Gov. Gillett, stating that he had signed the bill introduced by Senators Rolley and Anderson, which provides for the organization of mutual insurance companies upon the compliance with certain provisions and the depositing with the State Treasurer of $50,000 as a reserve fund. A call will be made at once for a meeting of various commercial organizations of Southern California in Los Angeles some time during the ensuing week for the purpose of taking steps toward a permanent organization of the kind mentioned. It is claimed that Southern California merchants are ready to withdraw millions of dollars' worth of insurance from the old line companies and insure in a mutual company.

FALSE PRIDE PUPILS' RUIN.

Swift Pace at High School Leads to Thievery.

Classmates Steal to Keep in the Social Swim.

No Longer Good Form to Eat Home-made Lunches.

Too much society—is it that which is driving high school pupils to steal?

"Snippy" ideas about the proper thing socially?

Half-baked desire to be good fellows?

Too much dress?

Foolish notions that it is "cheap" to carry the good old-fashioned dinner pail?

An unaccountable spasm of crime has seized the High School.

Desks have been entered, books stolen, money has been picked up, even the building burglarized. The recent case in which the city detectives have been called in is only one of a great many.

Principal Housh, who is in many ways a remarkable and farseeing man, said yesterday that he believes life at the High School is costing so much that many of the poorer pupils can't keep in the "social swim."

Superintendent of School Moore has about the same idea in regard to the epidemic of stealing.

The immediate result will probably be an attempt to curb the gay tendencies of High School pupils—an attempt which will require the finest of diplomacy.

All the officials of the schools admit that they have been deluged by complaints from parents: "Too much money to send our children to school."

"We find," said Prof. Housh yesterday, "that stealing is most prevalent at the High School about promotion time. Books are the main thing stolen then. They are very expensive.

"Other stealing goes on, more or less constantly, between times. I think it is due to the unwise daily life of some of the pupils.

"For instance, it has come to be the idea at the High School that it is not aristocratic to take your lunch from home. You must buy it here at noon, either at the lunch room or at one of the ice cream and sandwich stands.

"I have often noticed how the feeling changes in this regard. When they first come to the High School, they bring lunches from home. But they won't bring them in pails or baskets. The day of the tin dinner pail is faded and gone. They bring them in little papers. They don't look so tell-tale.

SOCIETY COMES HIGH.

"After they have been here for a year or so and have come to know one another and get in the social life, they no longer bring lunches. We tried to get out of one boy why he didn't bring his lunch from home; he couldn't afford to go to the lunch room. He made various excuses. He said he had to put his lunch basket down on the floor and it got dirty.

"Luncheon at from 15 to 20 cents a day costs from $3.50 to $4 a month.

"We have tried to cut down the social life of the school to the last limit on account of the expense. I only permit the upper classes to have one party a year and limit the expense of that to $1 per pupil. We have stopped all the other festivities.

"A few years ago there used to be more festivities than now; but in those days the classes were much smaller and they could meet at one another's houses.

"The fraternity 'society functions' are more expensive and we can't very well control these except to stop fraternities in the High School, which we are now doing. Some of the fraternity dances last late and carriages become a necessity.

"The only year where heavy expenses are more or less required by the school is the senior. Then the star and crescent pin is to be purchased. That is the emblem owned by every graduate of the High School. Also the class colors. The star and crescent usually costs $1.25, and the class colors about 75 cents.

"With the class play and the taking of the individual photographs for the class publication the expense of that years runs up to about $12. Counting the $1 class party, the expense comes to $13. That does not include books.

PARENTS COMPLAIN.

"Many parents have complained to me that their children are compelled to pay too much. That complaint is partly unjust. The expense comes about in other ways outside of the High School.

"Besides the luncheon which I have mentioned, the custom of 'treating' after school would account for a large part of the expense. I am told that the pupils gather at soda water stands. First one stands 'treat.' Not to be outdone, the others 'treat' on subsequent nights. Some who treat are unquestionably ill able to afford it.

"As an indication of the expense, a father came to me a day or so ago and asked me why it should cost so much to keep his boy in school. I explained it to him. He said he had been allowing his son $1.50 a week, and the boy said he could not possibly live in the High School on that. The gentleman finally told me that he had decided to increase the allowance to $2.50 a week, but that would be the limit.

"We must find some way to cut down these expenses. I recognize that it is costing too much to keep children in school here."

Prof. Housh will probably be able to do a great deal owing to his peculiar influence over the school children. He seems to have a tough job ahead, however.

CANNOT REACH THESE.

If the parents of children are willing that they should go to soda stands and lap up the genial moisture at 10 cents per cup, how is he to prevent it? In the case of those who can afford it, he certainly cannot interfere. Can he issue an order that those who can afford it and those who can't shall not mingle socially.

The splendid idea of democracy that

"DON LUIS" OF MULE PASS.

He Basks, Bisbee Smelter Does the Rest.

Unique Old Welshman Tells of Copper Queen.

Labor-Union Trust Had no Terrors for Him.

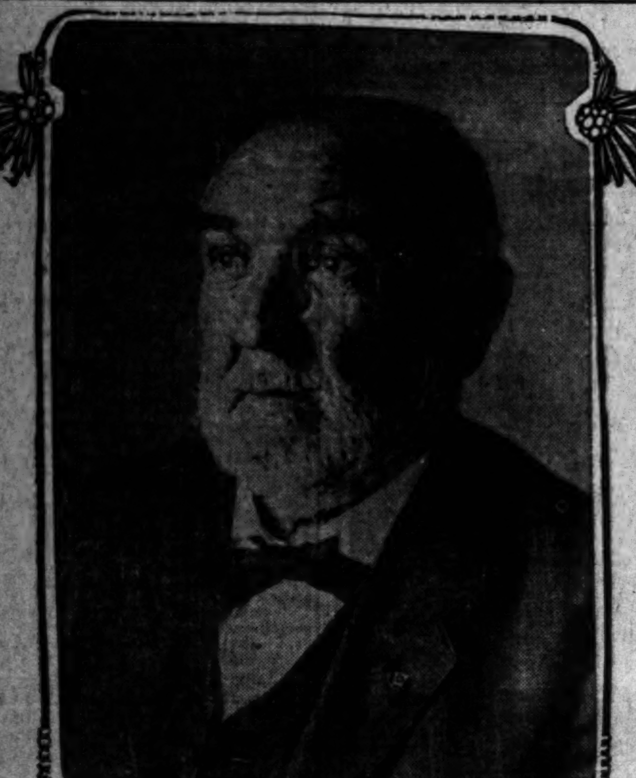
"Don Luis" has been supremely happy several times in his life.

Just now it is when he steps outside his beautiful Los Angeles home on Harvard boulevard and feasts his aged but sharp eyes on a wondrous growth of Cherokee roses surrounding his garden.

One of the other times was when for the first time he clapped his eyes on a piece of copper ore, the like of which he had never seen before, and from which he developed the greatest copper mine in the world.

Still another time was when his miners in the great Copper Queen told the Western Federation of Miners to "skidoo;" that they got the highest wages, enjoyed the shortest hours of labor and had the best "boss" in Arizona.

Lewis Williams, the "father of Bisbee," as he is known to thousands of people, or "Don Luis," as he was named by his Mexican employés, and by which title he is universally known and designated among them, after a long and strenuous career, is basking in the sunshine of Los Angeles, while the returns from the smelter do the rest.



Lewis Williams—"Don Louis," the father of Bisbee.

Mr. Williams is a short, stocky, self-poised Welshman; he is politeness personified, and his thoughtful, kindly face is an index to his character.

Study his countenance, and see if you can find anything there that will permit you to imagine this man cringing before the walking delegate of a miners' union.

"We always managed our own business," he said yesterday, "and always did everything we could for our men. We gave them short hours, paid the highest wages, and helped them in many ways.

"The greatest trust of the age is the labor trust. The Western Federation of Miners is again trying to get a foothold in Bisbee, but they are not wanted there, and I do not think they will do it, but myself and brother, Ben, have retired from the management of the mine now. The federation tried it some years ago, but our miners would have nothing to do with it. They declared they were getting the best wages and shortest hours and were satisfied with their employers, and they could see no need of going into the federation. They have an organization of their own, in which we encouraged them, but they never interfere in any way with the operation of the mine."

Mr. Williams was born in Wales seventy-two years ago, and has undergone all the possible hardships of prospector and miner. It is not strange that hard and unceasing toil has told on his constitution, for he is now enjoying a well-earned rest in a luxurious home.

He practically "struck the first pick" in Mule Pass, Ariz.; developed the Copper Queen prospect into the greatest copper mine in the world; named the town Bisbee after one of his partners, and saw it grow from two or three shacks in 1880 to a city of 18,000 people at the present time

"DONE" BY EAVESDROPPER.

There is an unwritten story in connection with the Copper Queen that would suggest bitter thoughts and elicit bitter comments from almost any man who felt he had been basely betrayed by a villain.

Not so "Don Luis." He told the story calmly, and with no show of animosity.

His father, brothers and all his ancestors have been copper men, and at one time were interested in the Lake Superior region, and before that in New Hampshire.

They started out, perhaps forty years ago, to find a copper mine for themselves, and prospected all through Montana, Wyoming and Nevada, and finally landed at San Francisco in 1870, where they opened a brokerage office. Ben Williams was still down in Arizona prospecting, and to his keenness is due the securing of the rich claim. Let Mr. Williams tell the story:

"One day Ben was riding along Mule Pass and he came upon a couple of prospectors. He stopped to chat with them and soon saw that they had something good in sight. He took a piece of the ore and sent it to me in San Francisco, saying that it was out of the Copper Queen claim.

"As soon as I opened it, I turned to a man in the office and said:

"'That's what I've been looking for all these years,' and at once wrote to Ben to secure the mine.

"In the same office with us was a young man by the name of Riley. The next morning he borrowed some money from me and disappeared, but I thought nothing of it.

"About the time we expected to hear from Ben, Riley reappeared in the office and coolly told us that he had secured the Copper Queen.

"'How did you know anything about it?' asked my father.

"'Well, I heard what you said about it and concluded it was a good thing, and I hold a ninety-day option on the claim for $1000.'

"The nerve of the fellow was amazing. My father was very angry, and took Riley by the nape of the neck and kicked him out of the office. You know we Welshmen, when we get our blood up, are a very passionate people, and while my father was not a quarrelsome man by any means, that was too much for him."

There was a reminiscent light in the eyes of Mr. Williams as he told this, and imagine him now saying of the scoundrel who had defeated his lifelong ambition:

"Riley was really a very nice sort of a fellow; he was a graduate of Yale, and a bright, pleasant chap, but he had no principle."

Riley hawked his claim about San Francisco for a long time, but the Williamses were recognized copper experts, and it seemed to strike people as strange that they should not have snapped at the rich-looking bait. Finally Judge DeWitt S. Bisbee bought the option from Riley for a little or nothing, and Bisbee at once went to the Williamses for aid to develop the property. He had also enlisted two other men by the name of Martin and Ballard. The Williamses were given a one-fifth interest; in 1880 were sent to Mule Pass to take charge, Lewis being the manager. After the mine was in operation one of the parties sold out to the Thurbers of New York, and later the others sold to Phelps, Dodge & Co. of the same city, but the Williamses held onto their stock and continued in charge of the operation until recently.

"We will never sell our stock," said Mr. Williams yesterday. "It is good enough for us. When we first opened the mine we smelted about fourteen or fifteen tons a day, now we smelt 168 tons a day."

Though the ore is still mined from the same opening that was made nearly thirty years ago, the site was found unsuited for so large a smelter as is now required, and it was erected at Douglass, eight miles distant. A railroad was built and all the ore is taken down direct from the mine to the smelter.

Mr. Williams has a little "den" all to himself, in his fine home. The walls are covered with Indian baskets and Arizona relics of many kinds, and crude pottery stands on desk and ledge. A large picture of "Ben" stands where Don Luis can look right at it, as he reclines on a couch covered with Indian blankets and pillows. Then he can cast his eyes upward and feast them on the pictures of the original Copper Queen smelter, side by side with the great modern establishment as it now is. He is very partial to these pictures and talks fondly of them, as if they were living things.

Mrs. Williams is as popular with the miners as her husband. She once asked Phelps, Dodge & Co. to build a library for the use of the miners and their families, and the answer she got was to go ahead and build it and spend all the money she wanted. The result was that at Bisbee she erected a splendid building, equipped a library, gymnasium and public hall, and it is the headquarters for all the miners' doings. As a token for her interest in the men, she has a highly-prized case of mineral specimens of great variety and beauty, to which every miner made personal contributions. These contributions were not in money, but in beautiful specimens found in the mine, and they have a double value in the eyes of their possessor.

POLICE DETECTIVES ARREST WRONG BELLBOYS.

One Supposed to Have Taken Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Diamonds at the Hershey Arms Is Out of Sight and Reach—Two Spoons Found.

Harry Brooks, now accused by the police of the $6000 diamond robbery in the Hershey Arms, is free. Furthermore the police do not even hope to capture the bellboy. The two whom they had arrested—Milton McLaren and Rex McMillan—had nothing to do with the theft. Young McMillan yesterday got a six-months probation sentence, because he had in his possession two silver spoons which he had taken—he says as souvenirs—from the Hotel Leighton.

The detective bureau of the police department at the Central Station made a big blunder in the Hershey Arms affair. Capt. Flammer had preserved an air of mystery about the affair, and when the information did leak out the claim was made at once that they had captured the culprits. As a matter of fact, to do them justice, the detectives who are handling the case did believe that they had the right boys. This turned out yesterday to be a mistake.

When they found that McLaren had nothing to do with the Hershey Arms affair the detectives who had found in his room two spoons which came from the Hotel Leighton, gave out the statement that the boy had been caught with "a lot of the stolen silverware" from the hotel in question. After Young McLaren had gotten his suspended sentence it leaked out that this stolen ware consisted of the two spoons mentioned.

Brooks is at large—and he will probably be at large for a long time to come. Where Mrs. Clifford A. Arnold's $6000 worth of diamonds is will probably remain one of the mysteries which have been accumulating during the present régime in the detective bureau at the Central Station.

Writing Grammar Into Him.

A certain little boy in a village school had fallen into the habit of saying "I have wrote" and "I have went."

The teacher tried in several ways to break him of the habit, but all in vain. So one day she had him remain after school and write the two phrases one hundred times each, thinking that in that way he would surely remember to say "I have written" and "I have gone."

A few minutes before he finished his task the teacher was called out of the room. She told him to remain until she returned. When she returned she found on the desk the phrases correctly written one hundred times and beside them a note saying:

"Dear teacher—I have wrote 'I have written' one hundred times and I have went home."—[Judge's Library.

GENUINE VS. FAKE.

There are advertisements and advertisements, but the "Want" or "For Sale" announcements inserted in a reputable newspaper by a business person for purely business reasons are worth vastly more to busy people who are in earnest than fake advertisements in struggling newspapers inserted by people caring nothing for real publicity or results, but lured into parting with their coin by the offer of tempting bribe in the form of cheap and gaudy chromos, or special matinée tickets.

Advertisements to prove valuable to advertisers and readers alike must be genuine. The columns and columns of "Liners" regularly printed in The Times are voluntarily placed by discriminating patrons for strictly business reasons only, and because profitable results are generally achieved for a reasonable expenditure.

The following is a sample of the voluntary testimonials which are received by The Times every week:

We will also say that we have received numerous calls over the phone inquiring about the safe after same had been sold.

Soda: A New Coast Industry

"THE half has not been told" of the richness and mineral wealth of the dreary desert districts and the great arid spots in this Golden West. For many years mineralogists have known of the importance of the soda beds of California. Large sums have been spent and infinite time put in on gaining expert knowledge of the extent and purity of these deposits. The Pacific Coast Soda Company, a strong commercial concern, backed by prominent men of Los Angeles—as the list herewith will indicate—has organized to develop this new product. Upon the authority and investigation of such experts and chemists of world-wide fame as Gilbert E. Bailey, E.M., Ph.D.; Laird J. Stabler, A.M.; Hon Lewis E. Aubury, State Mineralogist; J. Sylvester Brown; the late Stephen Bowers, of the United States Geological Survey, and others, this company has satisfied itself of the extreme commercial importance and profit of this enterprise.

Borax mining everyone is more or less familiar with, because of the sudden rise to place and wealth of the pioneer, "Borax" Smith. But in soda and its products there is absolutely no comparison in extent and profit. The Pacific Coast Soda Company has a site and is preparing plans for the erection of a modern factory and chemical laboratory at Inglewood, where 1000 feet of frontage and trackage on the Santa Fe will be utilized, to produce from the crude soda from these natural deposits, eight products, viz., soda ash, caustic soda, sal soda, bleaching powders, cooking soda, soda hyposulphite, washing compounds, Glauber salts and a by-product of twenty-nine varieties of chemically pure chemicals. It is in the large range and number of high-priced by-products that soda making will far outclass borax mining in profit.

From conservative estimates, the Pacific Coast States use in excess of fifty million pounds of these eight products alone. The generous treatment of nature in preparing the crude soda whereby the simplest process is all that is necessary to produce a pure, marketable product, enables the company to easily compete with competition now in the field. The closest alkali or soda concern is in Detroit, Mich., and the freight rates alone are an effective bar to give the monopoly of the Coast trade to this Coast concern. Besides, the Eastern manufacturer can only produce his soda products by artificial means from sodium chloride and sulphuric acid, while, as we have said, nature has done much of this and we have but the simplest sort of process of crystallization to produce our product.

The Pacific Coast Soda Company is capitalized for only $500,000 common and $500,000 preferred shares, while its nearest competitor in the East carries a capital of several millions, with a couple of millions and bonded indebtedness, and on this enlarged capital pay tremendous dividends.

You can buy shares in the Pacific Coast Soda Company today at 80 cents. For a short time only they will be sold at less than par, $1.00. Development and building will go steadily on. Heeding what has been wrought out of borax right on our own Coast—Borax Smith amassing a fortune of over $42,000,000 in a few short years—here is a proposition that is positively the most promising of any Pacific Coast industry. Mr. J. Austin Larson, the President of the Company, has opened his office at 512 South Broadway, second floor, Forve-Pettibone Building, where you can see him and go over this whole proposition. There will also be a demonstration of the process, in charge of an expert chemist who will explain how the varied products are produced, show you samples of the crude soda as it comes from the natural beds before it enters the demonstrating machine. Demonstrations will be given daily.

It will pay you to look into this new enterprise soon. The small allotment of shares to be sold at 80 cents will not be long in selling. Remember that industrial stocks are where the big fortunes are made. Here is the most promising Coast commercial enterprise ever placed upon the market for popular subscription. Backed by men of highest repute, with a thorough knowledge of their subject, this Company seeks your assistance and offers you a profit-bearing security that will prove your fortune making. Call at 512 South Broadway, second floor, and make sure that what we say is true.

There is to of angels, after the masterpieces of Murillo, stretching along the walls surrounding the main altar. The valuable old portrait of Our Lady of Angels has been retouched by the artist's brushes, and the whole makes a beautiful effect.

"THE LAST SUPPER."

On the tablet at the base of the main altar there is to be a copy of the painting by one of the masters of "The Last Supper," which lovers of art, who have been permitted to see the work, say is a remarkable production. On one side of the main altar will be a painting of "The Coronation of the Blessed Virgin," and at the opposite side will appear a painting of "The Assumption," which is to be a copy of the famous painting of this subject in the Cathedral of the City of Mexico.

At the altar of the Blessed Virgin there will be a large painting of "Our Lady of Guadaloupe," and at the opposite side altar will appear a reproduction of the painting, "The Holy Infant," famous as the masterpiece in the Church of Atocha. Other designs will be taken from the Cathedral at Madrid, where Señor Varela spent much time in his studies.

This is but a part of the plan of Padre Caballeria to beautify the old 'dobe pile opposite the Plaza. At a little later period these artists are to fresco the entire interior of the old church, and it is said there will be bits of artistic work in the reproduction of famous paintings which will add new luster to the fame of the Church of Our Lady of Angels.

But while the interior of the church presents to the good padre problems of perspective and light and general effect, the outside of the ancient building is presenting a problem of mechanics.

The Church of Our Lady of Angels lacks only fifteen years of celebrating its century mark. The building, like nearly all of that period in California, was made of adobe bricks, and the huge walls are six feet in thickness, while the points where the wall columns stand forth an extra four feet is added to this thickness.

But time makes puny even such efforts as this, and almost a century of weather-beating has had its effect. Through the actions of some long-ago earthquake the north wall of the old church has been cracked, the break extending down through the archway of the first window next the sanctuary. At various places in the north walls there have appeared breaks and patches in the surfacing, and on some of the interior columns holes have been found which demand immediate attention.

TO SAVE THE OLD WALLS.

It is the plan of Father Caballeria, if sufficient funds are forthcoming, to reinforce these 'dobe walls with a facing of brick, and then to have the entire structure replastered in the original style, so that its general appearance will remain the same, while its walls will be preserved from disintegration.

Just what changes will be made in the front of the building has not yet been determined. The priest will hold a conference with the Landmarks Club to discuss the advisability of having the artists now here retouch the old exterior painting now almost faded from sight.

Fortunately, when these paintings were made, years ago, the outlines of the principal figures were cut deeply into the plaster, and by this means they can be restored almost exactly as they were in the original.

Altogether $5000 will be expended in the protection and restoration of the old church to its original glory.

ONE WINS, THOUSANDS LOSE.

Young Hotel Clerk Said to Have Cleaned Up Lot of Money at Ascot Races.

C. E. McKelvey, the young pleasant-faced night clerk at the Alexandria, has been the center of interest in the betting ring at Ascot for the last month. Quietly and with little display the young fellow has been placing his money, until yesterday he closed up his bets and calmly announced that he is $20,000 winner on the season. He is the only one heard of who is ahead. Thousands have "gone broke."

McKelvey has been betting steadily, and at first moderate amounts. Later in the season when his winnings permitted him to do so he began to increase his bets until Thursday he cleaned up $6000 in the one day.

McKelvey came to Los Angeles about a year ago, shortly before the Alexandria opened. His home had been in New York and his worldly goods when he arrived in this city could be mentioned in two figures. McKelvey has not become excited over his good fortune, but has invested the greater portion of his winnings in two pieces of real estate in this city.

It is reported that McKelvey will forsake his position back of the register and go East with a rich bookmaker at the close of the present Ascot season. He does not advise others to bet because he knows that thousands lose while he won.

Want a Piano?

Offers of good instruments, the best in the world, are to be found among the large display as well as in the classified columns of The Times. But if you are looking for a special bargain of some particular make, and don't see it advertised, try inserting a "Want" ad. yourself. It will surprise you to learn that so many people have what you are seeking, besides saving yourself a lot of worry.

Astonishing.

It's astonishing what profitable results are achieved by a very small expenditure for a "want" advertisement in The Times. The desire for anything can be gratified by the aid of a Times' "Liner," and at so small an expense that it isn't worth talking about. Convince yourself by a trial.

THE CALL OF THE HEIGHTS.

Now in the days of sun and cloud, and the nights that are bright with wondrous moons and thick with cluttering stars, comes the call of the heights. It is the mountain and hill that call us to look up into the mystic dwelling place of God and down upon the beauty of his footstool green with grasses and enchanting with the pathways of the flowers.

The exaltation that takes possession of the soul from the heights is so certain that it seems strange so many of us do not more frequently seek it. To lift the eyes unto the hills is one thing, but to look down from the hills is another thing, and one that is infinitely more thrilling. It is not to be wondered at that mountaineers have ever been the strongest and best men and women. It is the heights that make them so.

Fair and lovely as are the valleys of our California of the South, especially in their emerald robes of spring, we still miss the best of their beauty unless we view them from the lofty summits of the hills and mountains. How wonderful are those vales of magic as they stretch away to the sea, shimmering in the sun, swept by the misty kisses of the soft, singing rains, splashed with the gold of poppies and orange groves and gleaming with red and yellow where cluster the gardens of wonder among the homes of peace!

And what a treat a man gives his heart and soul who lingers upon the heights after his day of cloud and sun has passed and night falls to wrap the world in her silvery robe of moonshine bejeweled with the stars. In the Land of Heart's Desire God brings earth and heaven very closely together, and from the heights it seems that one can almost reach the moon of daffodils as it rises in splendor up from the other side of the world. There is many a trail leading from the uplands out of the valleys of San Gabriel and San Fernando, that brings the feet that love to wander into the very realm of the stars. And once there, how the soul quickens, what lofty aspirations seize upon the heart.

Go thou to the heights, then, O brother! Leave behind the smoke of the busy town and drive away its ceaseless roar of restless wheels and grinding traffic. Get close to the God of things and give the soul free rein to soar above its fettering trails out upon the Infinite with its exaltation and its Hope.

RESCUE OR PUNISHMENT?

Since old Mother Eve yielded to that malign temptation, gave to the man and he did eat, and the angel with the flaming sword came down and drove the pair out of Paradise, crime and punishment have formed too much of the history of humanity. Readers of the history of Rome recall the old Mamertine prison, the first built in the city by the Tiber, and built very shortly after the founding of the colony. The history of every city, State and nation from that day to this has been very much a history of prisons.

The fundamental conception of penology in the minds of men has been the protection of society. It is much to be feared that the interests of the criminal have been forgotten. The history of jurisprudence is crowded with the names of men whose fame depends upon their prosecution of crime. The incorruptible Brutus condemning his own sons for their offences is far from an isolated case. But on the other side there is but one hero immortalized by his endeavors to ameliorate the condition of the criminal condemned to the prison cell. Howard's name stands alone in this respect.

All too late the problem of saving the criminal from himself has found a place in people's minds. There has been more progress in penology in this respect during a century past than in all the centuries before it. This observation is particularly true when applied to youthful criminals. It is only in our own day that the boy or the girl just entered into the "teens" has occupied the attention of penologists. Heretofore they have been packed into jails with hardened criminals, where they spend their lives in a school of crime, daily becoming more and more hardened. We may well take to ourselves, in this generation, a very large measure of self-satisfaction in the reflection that we are doing something in the way of reformatory influences to save criminals from their own proclivities, and especially to save youthful offenders not only from their disposition to go wrong, but from further contamination.

The World Today, in a recent issue, gives an analysis of these reformatory efforts in the State of Illinois. Of 2000 boys put in the reform schools of Illinois, it is said that 65 per cent., or 1300, were rescued from a criminal career. These 1300 young men now are engaged in gainful occupations, and are living a life useful to the general public instead of dangerous and detrimental, and happy to themselves. They are earning salaries of from $20 up to $100 a month, and the average annual earnings of these young men rescued from a criminal course are as much as $650,000.

There have been 6000 boys paroled from the institution from whose records these figures were taken, and if the same average of reformation would prevail, the annual earnings of the 65 per cent. of the 6000 boys would represent $2,000,000. The reform school at Elmira has had within its walls a total of 12,000 inmates, who have been discharged. If 65 per cent. of these are added, as well as those taken above, their annual gains for services rendered to the community would amount to $4,000,000.

This study into results in two reformatories in the United States shows that on this basis the graduates from all would be earning $6,000,000 a year. This is equal to the total cost of all the reformatories and industrial schools in the United States.

One of the best means of reforming youths of criminal disposition is the Juvenile Court. These institutions are of very recent establishment, and the results achieved have been exceedingly encouraging. There are so many things to consider about these youthful criminals! The home surroundings of many are not helpful. Where home influences are not absolutely corrupting, many boys and girls are without proper parental care. They are allowed to associate with companions whose minds and habits are thoroughly evil. They have no moral instruction tending to build up a character sufficiently strong to resist these temptations. They are left a prey to every evil influence in their neighborhood. Often an offense is passed over negligently. In many cases exuberance of spirits, a mischievous disposition, may be all that is at the bottom of youthful pranks. Many of these boys and girls, if put under wholesome influences, furnished with means of amusing themselves in a proper way, kept away from the corrupting influences of older boys and girls, taught the difference between right and wrong, encouraged to be good rather than harshly punished for being bad, would develop into good men and women.

The article in the The World Today regards the subject from a standpoint of dollars and cents; but there is a more important view to take of it. The unspeakable enjoyments of a life of usefulness and rectitude and the horrors of a life of crime furnish sufficient incentive to all good men and women to aid in this work of rescuing criminals from the results of their own life, and especially of saving young boys and girls from the danger of a life of crime.

NEWSPAPERS AND SENATORS.

Some of Senator Frank P. Flint's political friends are wondering whither the junior Senator from California has betaken himself and when he is coming home. The Senator is always in demand by a somewhat numerous class of politicians.

We are glad to be able to inform them, and the public generally, with some degree of exactness, as to the whereabouts of Mr. Flint. He is down among the sunny isles of the West Indies on a government yacht, yclept a gunboat. What is he doing? Taking a vacation, perhaps, after his arduous duties in the Senate, where he made one speech at least during the session.

This guess as to the vacation is based on the Senator's known favor to vacations. It is only the other day that Mr. Flint suggested that all the newspapers of the country should take a vacation.

In the minds of several classes of sinners a perpetual vacation for the public press is always desirable. The fellow who loots a bank is always ready to send the newspapers on an enforced vacation. The lecherous libertine who deserts his wife, the companion of his days of poverty, privation and toil, and runs away with his typewriter in the days of his wealth, generally consigns the press to a very hot place to seek a much-needed rest—rest for the rascal himself. The brute who abuses a horse on the street curses the press.

"What business is it of the reporters'?" The legislator whose lack of backbone is exposed in the public prints, with the instinct of a mule knocks down a little newspaper reporter, shouting, "Take that." He would be glad to have the newspapers take a vacation until Gabriel blows his horn.

Newspaper men would like a vacation as well as other toilers; but their devotion to the public keeps them at their desks in order to be able to tell a numerous following where Senator Flint and other shining lights of the political world may be at any given time.

The attention of our readers is called today to a new section of the Sunday Times, which will hereafter be a regular feature, Part III, the "Business Sheet," devoted to economic and commercial themes and men's topics. In this initial number are, briefly, the following strong features along the lines indicated: "What Shall We Do With ex-President Roosevelt?" a symposium of letters indicating the overwhelming preference of the people that the Chief Executive continue in his present office; an article on the government's forest reserve policy and the work of Gifford Pinchot; our weekly letter from Mexico City, containing the latest news of the industrial throbs of the sister republic of the South; "Mines and Mining;" the "Workers' Page," with an interesting story of perfume making and further exposition of the fallacies of unionism, and other special contributions of keen interest to the man of affairs. In addition, attention is called to the fact that this new part contains the regular financial market and shipping news of the day.

NOT AT HIS POST.

Five years in State's prison is the sentence a New York court has handed out to a switchman who was absent from his post and caused a wreck. That is "good business."

One of the evil tendencies of the day is the seeming inability of young men to obey orders or attend strictly to business.

Elevator boys are chasing fires. Office men have "just stepped out." Clerks are sliding out the back way for a beer. Telephone girls are "chatting with a friend."

All of these have a sentence hanging over them—if they could but see it. Not State's prison. Worse: Japs.

Japs are not as bright, as a matter of fact, as white men. They win because they are there waiting to be called.

The late Shah of Persia must have been a mild and self-restrained man. He had $50,000,000 worth of stones, and yet he never was known to throw any of them at anybody.

An Italian composer desires to use Niagara as a theme for an opera. He would better hurry.

THE SUNDAY TIMES, PRICE TEN CENTS.

For reasons which will appeal to the public, the single-copy price of the Sunday Times will be advanced to 10 cents, beginning next Sunday, March 31.

The Sunday Times of the present is as different from that of the day when the 5-cent price was fixed as the child is from the man. The costly improvements in the journal, tremendous expansion in size, the increased difficulties of handling and distributing the sheet (falling principally upon newsboys, route men and small agents,) and the swollen dimensions of the item of white paper cost demand the proposed advance in the single-copy price. The regular subscription price of The Times, daily and Sunday ($9 per year or 75 cents per month,) will not be altered. The subscription price per week including the Sunday Times, will remain 20 cents.

From the publisher's standpoint the white paper expense involved in so large a paper has become serious. The cost of the bare paper alone in a single copy of The Sunday Times, not taking into account the expense of securing the news, of editing, of composition, of stereotyping, of printing and circulating—the cost of the bare paper contained in a single copy is about 7 cents. And the paper has been sold at 5 cents.

When The Sunday Times was instituted and for years thereafter it made a comparatively small package and a boy could take out a hundred or more at a time. When a paper originally weighing less than half a pound grows to weigh two pounds or over, the carrier and newsboy find themselves confronted with a difficulty, not to say a burden. It is impossible for a boy to take out more than thirty copies or thereabouts at a load, and when these are disposed of he must post to headquarters for more. The increased labor and time employed make it needful that the boy or selling agent should have a larger margin of profit on each copy.

Leaving out of the question the value of the news, the carefully prepared and illustrated articles of contemporaneous interest, the popular magazine, the sporting section, the real estate parts, the Little Nemo and Buster Brown sheets and attractive pages for children, the fashion supplement, the market reports and the hundred and one features that go to make up a great Sunday newspaper, the cost of the bare paper alone amounts to about 7 cents for each copy issued.

As the paper has grown in size it has gained in value to the reader. Month by month, week by week, interesting features have been added to the sum total of contents; popular departments have been developed; whole sheets and sections devoted to matters intimately touching the daily lives of the people have been made parts of the publication, till the Sunday paper has quadrupled in size and value; it has become the largest Sunday newspaper in the world; and if it was worth 5 cents a copy ten years ago, it is worth 20 cents today.

The Sunday Times of the present, with its 130 to 140 pages, its large news sections, full to the brim of information from every quarter of the globe, its great magazine, in addition to eight distinct parts covering the whole field of current news and literature — politics, development, commerce, the churches, music, art, the drama, sports, fashions, labor, child life, books, markets, railroads, the public service in all its branches, horticulture, the poultry industry, and, in short, the whole field of human activity and interest—this great newspaper contains vastly more reading matter than a book which sells for $1.50; and 10 cents a copy is a cheap price for it.

This week The Times has added a new part to its constantly developing Sunday issue—an eight-page section devoted to business and commerce, to men and affairs, full of informing and entertaining features and breathing the spirit of the age, making the Sunday Times now consist of eight parts and a magazine. This policy of betterment, of giving more and more for the money, has long been pursued by the publishers of The Times, and will be steadily continued.

HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS.

Gov. Gillett has signed the Highway Bill, and the official machinery for the making of good roads may be put into operation when the people of the counties see fit to start it. On petition of 10 per cent. of the voters at the latest election, the Supervisors may appoint a highway commission and call an election on the question of issuing bonds for road purposes.

It is an excellent provision of the law that the selection of commissioners shall precede the voting of bonds, and if the bonds fail to carry, the commission ceases to exist. Unless the commissioners appointed by the Supervisors are satisfactory, the people can turn them out and demand a new deal.

Los Angeles county needs good roads, and the people undoubtedly will vote to issue bonds for constructing them if they are convinced that the money will be spent properly and not used to provide jobs for political hangers-on. They will demand of the Supervisors the appointment of practical road builders, and if the right men are not named, the issuance of bonds will be opposed. The personnel of the highway commission must be a guarantee of honest, businesslike administration, free from political jobbery and graft. The law provides that the commissioners shall be persons especially qualified to have charge of the improvement of highways, and the people expect the Supervisors to observe that provision of the law.

THE VILEST.

When the roll call of the vile, the base, the wretched, the dastardly is made, the very first on the list will be those yellow-dog Supervisors of San Francisco, who stole all they could and then betrayed their accomplices. The whole history of graft in this country presents no such aggregation of curs of dubious origin.

EQUINOCTIAL DAYS

Few of us take time from our ordinary petty cares and business absorptions to think about what a beautiful world we live in. We not only fail to reflect upon the stupendous magnitude of the universe of which each of us forms so infinitesimal a part, but this failure of reflection extends to the beauty of the system on which this universe is constructed.

The average reader may feel inclined to refuse attention to this consideration, under the impression that an essay on the abstruse problems of astronomy is intended. There is no more aimed at here than is set before a class in the common schools, studying the elementary problems of geography.

These are equinoctial days. During the past week the vernal equinox has taken place. We all understand what that is. The sun occupying a fixed position in the heavens, the earth rotating on its axis every twenty-four hours, and completing its course in a great orbit around the sun once a year, are the main objects in the picture before our mind. If the orbit of the earth were a plain circle, the sun would rise every day in the year upon the equator and follow that imaginary line around the globe once every twenty-four hours. But inasmuch as the earth in its annual course around the sun vibrates in a great spiral, for six months from north to south and for six months more from south to north, the sun does not rise in the true east except at the equinoxes, one the twenty-first of March, the other the twenty-first of September of each year. The other days of the year the sun either rises north of the equator or south of the equator, not at the true east on any day except these two; and only on these two days does it follow the line of the equator for the twenty-four hours of the earth's diurnal rotation.

The dweller upon the equator saw the sun last Thursday rise in the absolute east and pass directly along the line of the equator, from morning until night, setting in the absolute west. The rise of the sun covered perfectly the whole hemisphere of the earth from one pole to the other on that equinoctial day, and shed his light over one-half of the 360 degrees that make up the whole equator, from the east to the west every moment of that twenty-four hours.

But if we could have placed ourselves upon that day at either of the poles of the earth, what a wonderful spectacle the sun would have presented! Imagine yourself standing exactly at the north pole on the day of the equinox. For the first time in six long months you get the first glint of the sun above the horizon. Straight south of you the big orb rises over the equator, and as you stand for twenty-four hours while the earth turns upon its axis, that great red ball of fire lies there low on the horizon, a motionless mass of light during the whole twenty-four hours. The next day, the ball lifts itself an imperceptible distance above the horizon, but scarcely seems to move from one end of the twenty-four hours to the other. As the days progress, little by little the sun lifts itself clear of the horizon, describing a low arc along just north of the equator, increasing day by day until it reaches the furthest northern bounds at the [illegible] when the longest day of [illegible] us in the northern [illegible] on the twenty-first of June.

LOOKS LIKE RAIN

We love the rainy season in Cali-forny way,
'Cause the folks don't fuss [illegible]
an' you never hear [illegible]
Like they do down East [illegible]
there's a cloud along the [illegible]
"Oh, pshaw. I wish it [illegible]
—we'd oughter have it dry."
But out in Californy they're [illegible]
led to complain,
An' they greet a feller [illegible]
a: "Looks like rain."

Then the hills are mighty [illegible]
when it's rained a little [illegible]
All the "filaree" an' clover [illegible]
an' doin' well,
The perfumes o' the [illegible]
are driftin' all around,
An' there's somethin' kind [illegible]
in the moist an' mellow [illegible]
A mockin' bird is flutin' [illegible]
greenin' grain,
An' the rancher cocks his [illegible] eye, with, "Looks like rain."

A little wind comes [illegible]
cañon kind o' cool,
A-swinging o' the sycamore [illegible]
flin' o' the pool,
A-pushin' o' the flowers [illegible]
clumps o' sweet,
An' a-trailin' down the [illegible]
a troop o' fairy feet.
Then the fellers git [illegible]
all their might an' main,
An' breakin' off their [illegible]
"Looks like rain."

But when the twilight's [illegible]
the clouds a-movin' low,
I git to feelin' lonesome, [illegible] kind o' slow.
An' I long for cozy [illegible]
welcome o' the fire,
An' the home light, an' the [illegible] fills my heart with [illegible]
So I strike out quick for [illegible]
a happy sort o' pain,
Where some one's waitin' [illegible]
when it looks like rain.

[illegible] if the good roads bill, [illegible] has become a law by virtue [illegible] the Governor's approval, will [illegible] efficacious in the production [illegible] roads. We want good roads [illegible] Southern California, and the [illegible] are willing to pay for building [illegible] but this bill provides for the [illegible] of highway commissions [illegible] of Supervisors, and Boards [illegible] generally act on the [illegible] that the end and aim of [illegible] is to provide jobs for [illegible] politicians. Before calling an [illegible] on the matter of issuing bonds [illegible] purposes, the Supervisors [illegible] appoint the commissioners who [illegible] charge of the proposed road [illegible].

[illegible] Buckley was boss of the [illegible] grafters, he once "shook [illegible] Spring Valley Water Com- [illegible] and caused the Super- [illegible] rates satisfactory to the [illegible] Buckley distributed $45,- [illegible] among nine Supervisors, [illegible] $5,000 as his own "fee;" [illegible] is what he said he did [illegible]. Some time later a man to whom Buckley had told the story, repeated it in the presence of one of the Supervisors, a German corner-groceryman in the western addition. The statesman denied that the board had been bribed to fix water rates as desired by Spring Valley, and a heated argument followed. The other man finally attempted to clinch the matter by quoting his authority, and said: "Buckley himself told me he paid you fellows $5000 each."

The virtuous Supervisor hotly rejoined: "Dot's a lie! It was only twenty-five hundred!"

Appropriate Punishment.

Incited by neglected and indignant women, the Legislatures of some States have attempted to promote matrimony by imposing punitive taxes upon men who selfishly persist in bachelorhood. The city fathers of Fort Dodge have gone further and declared both old bachelors and old maids to be enemies to society. They have passed an ordinance making single blessedness a misdemeanor and imposing fines upon all persons between the ages of twenty-five and forty who refuse to marry. That may help some, but the law is not drastic enough, it seems to me. A fine is not a sufficiently severe penalty. If I were to draft an ordinance to deal with the malefactors, I would make the punishment fit the crime. I would impose a sentence of matrimony without alternative of fine or imprisonment. Being immune myself, I have no hesitation in recommending action along that line to Mayor Harper, whose matrimonial bureau needs booming.

Better Late Than Never.

If Gov. Sparks of Nevada talked to the Goldfield dynamiters and assassins as Congressman Bartlett says he did, he is entitled to whatever credit may be due for tardy performance of duty. My own guess is that Nevada's Executive was stirred to action by a plain intimation that a bigger man than he would take a hand in the game and compel respect for the rights of American citizens in the sagebrush State. I am inclined to think that the assistance of regular troops, of which the Governor spoke to the insolent organizers of disorder and crime, was offered to him in terms which convinced him of the expediency of prompt acceptance.

There has not been a day since the I.W.W. began its criminal career in Nevada when the tyranny of the thugs could not have been ended instantly by the State authorities had they been disposed to exert their power. The labor-union thugs terrorized the Nevada gold camps for two or three years, not because of the lack of State militia, but because they had votes.

Our hospital has never figured as a very high-class institution because of its attachés devoting more time to the art of politics than to the art of healing; but it has always figured high in the municipal budget. The other day a sailor was taken there suffering from a stab wound in the thigh, and when he was buried the doctor certified to his death from pneumonia.

Prophet Dowie is dead at last, leaving an estate of millions, and no one has been able to prove that he ever held public office in San Francisco, or even acted as eastern agent for our administration. The gang around Fillmore street is convinced that the newspapers are too modest in saying that the corporations spent only a million for the many special privileges enjoyed the past year. Whether the boodle was a million or not is of small concern to the creditors of the insolvent Hilbert Mercantile Company, the administration liquor agents, because the insiders are unwilling to disgorge and the best the creditors got was another five-cent payment.

The distressing and startling graft developments of the past week have distracted our attention from the three times three little maids at school of brown hue; but in good time we will show the wily Mikado that we can outwit him. A teacher in Berlin has given us the cue in firing the child of a Socialist who would not repeat "Hoch der Kaiser" with the other scholars, and we will do the same with Yum Yum, Pitti Sing and Nanki Poo unless they believe that St. Patrick fired the snakes from Ireland and that George Washington was "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Humphreys' Seventy-Seven Cures Colds and GRIP

A writer on Pneumonia, says: "A main difficulty is that no one can tell whether or not a given 'cold' will ultimately travel to the deeper parts of the lungs. Thus it happens that no cough, soreness of chest, chilliness or other evidence of even slight catarrhal troubles can be trusted these times.

There can hardly be a doubt, however, that the prompt use of proper remedies for the preliminary "cold" may often save the day.

If "Seventy-Seven" is taken in time, it prevents the development of a Cold or Grip, hence prevents pneumonia.

"Seventy-seven" also breaks up a neglected Cold, that hangs on—Grip.

BID FAREWELL TO HAWAII.

Angeleno Excursionists Are Homeward Bound.

Hearts of All Won by Royal Reception in Tropics.

New Line From San Pedro to Honolulu Assured.

> A cable message from Honolulu received at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday announced that the steamer Ohio with the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce excursion, sailed from that port for home at 2:31 o'clock Friday afternoon. The steamer will proceed direct to San Pedro.
> It is expected that the Los Angeles excursionists will arrive next Friday or Saturday.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

HILO (Hawaii,) March 14.—Gaily bedecked in flags from her stern to her bow, the S. S. Ohio, with the 246 Los Angeles excursionists, arrived in Hilo harbor at 6 a.m., on March 11. Her voyage, with the exception of the first two days, was very pleasant and the excursionists thoroughly enjoyed themselves, though many were seasick most of the trip and were pleased to get a chance to stretch themselves on shore. The voyage was a day longer than expected as head winds were encountered, delaying the vessel.

Almost the entire population of Hilo gathered on the water front to extend their "aloha" to the visitors, and the reception committee, consisting of the leading Hilo citizens, went off in a launch to turn over the the keys of the city. Owing to the fact that the Ohio is too large a steamship to dock in Hilo she was forced to anchor in the stream and land her passengers by gasoline launches, which remained in attendance during the entire stay in Hilo.

On the second day of the trip a fire was discovered in the hold of the vessel which was extinguished after five hours' work. The crew kept this to themselves and so the passengers were not needlessly alarmed, although at one time the captain came very near the point of turning back.

MRS. CLARK'S ILLNESS.

Mrs. Percy H. Clark became very ill on the trip and was attended by the ship's doctor. Her life was despaired of at one time, but she recovered sufficiently by the time Hilo was reached, to enjoy the sights on shore and to make the trip to the crater of Kilauea. Miss Lucile Dixon also suffered considerably and was in some danger at one time, but she fully recovered.

The party was too large for all of them to be accommodated at once at the Volcano House, so it was divided into three parties, and three days were spent on the big island in order that each party might have a night at the crater of Kilauea, as that is the best time to view the greatest natural wonder of the Hawaiian Islands.

On shore the party found much to interest them in the tropical foliage and the beautiful scenery. The interest displayed in every thing was refreshing. Though from a land of fruit and flowers themselves, the visitors found much that was novel in the flora of the islands. The big breadfruit trees and banyans came in for much of the snap shooting and admiration. Papia trees also secured a share of the interest.

The visitors practically found all Hilo awaiting their pleasure anu anxious to do all that could be done to assist the visitors in having a good time. Everything was placed at the disposal of the excursionists.

"KING OF HILO" ENTERTAINS.

C. C. Kennedy, who enjoys the title, "The King of Hilo," and who owns extensive business houses and sugar plantations in the islands, placed himself and his numerous houses at the service of the party. Large numbers were shown through immense sugar mills where the cane is being ground and the sugar made ready for shipment. Mr. Kennedy won the hearts of most of the Los Angeles people by his kindness. And he was only one of many.

An immense luau (native feast) was prepared by the Hilo people for the visitors. In the armory at Hilo big tables were placed about a large room, which was beautifully decorated with ferns and bunting. About 500 people enjoyed the banquet and the task was undertaken by the Hilo people of teaching the Los Angelenos to eat poi and raw fish, as well as other native dishes. Rev. Stephen L. Desha, the silver tongued orator of the Hawaiians, made the speech of welcome, which was responded to by Mr. Frank Wiggins and Judge Haines, and a very pleasant evening was passed.

HERRON ENTHUSIASTIC.

In speaking to the Times' correspondent of the trip, R. H. Herron said: "Tell those Los Angeles people that they do not know what they are missing. Tell them that I have found a paradise and that I wish I could stay here longer. Tell them that the people are treating us like long lost brothers. I would not have missed this trip for a pile of money.

"I am only sorry that there are not more representative business men of the Southland with us. If the Los Angeles people want trade relations with Hawaii they can have them by coming after them. This is a great country and you tell the people at home that they have no idea of what they missed."

The Ohio got away from Hilo at 11 o'clock on Thursday morning, March 14, and cruised along the Hamakua coast, noted for its great beauty. Toward evening the island of Maui was approached, where the extinct crater of Haleakala towers over 10,000 feet from the sea. The evening was a still one, and all of the passengers remained on deck until a late hour.

REACH HONOLULU.

At 8 o'clock the ship was off the harbor of Honolulu. The customs launch came off to meet the excursionists and brought with them a quintette club, which began playing and singing Hawaiian music as they approached the vessel.

Secretary Wood of the Promotion Committee met the party, and a renewal of acquaintances followed. Then, the pilot having been taken aboard, the Ohio entered the harbor and docked at the naval wharf, where a large crowd of townspeople had gathered to greet them. The Los Angeles people bombarded the wharf with streamers of flowers of Hawaii. The party then left the ship for the various hotels of the city, and to wander around town.

The subsequent days of the visitors' stay here will be passed in a continuous round of pleasure.

SAN PEDRO LINE ASSURED.

R. H. Herron states that the San Pedro-Honolulu line is assured, and that a guarantee fund of $200,000 has been raised in the East for establishing it and securing control of the necessary vessels, which, he expects, will be operating within six months. Before going into the venture, however, the eastern capitalists wanted the business men of Los Angeles to show their faith in the enterprise by putting up $100,000. This has practically been done, and though the money has not been actually paid over, it is subject to call, and has been assured by the Southern Californians.

The intention of the promoters of the line is either to buy or build two boats on the Atlantic Coast. For reasons of their own, the eastern capitalists wish that the promotion of the enterprise should appear to originate in Los Angeles. This would indicate that there may be some transcontinental railroad interested in the matter.

HUNGRY FOR AMERICA.

The Japanese claim to have discovered a new way of beating the recent immigration regulations, by shipping as sailors on vessels bound to coast ports from Hawaiian ports and being discharged at the coast cities. Inasmuch as the movement of vessels between Honolulu and the mainland is very limited, it would require many months before the 700 and more Japanese who are waiting an opportunity of going to the mainland could evade the law by this method. Shipping Commissioner Almy may refuse to sign Japanese who are not qualified sailors or have some knowledge of the sea.

EARLY MISSIONARY PASSES.

Mrs. Mary Castle, one of the few early missionaries to the "Sandwich Island Mission," whose lives have been prolonged into the twentieth century, passed away at 3:15 o'clock on the afternoon of March 13. Her death came from an attack of bronchial pneumonia, complicated with some other ailments incident to her advanced age. She was one of the eleven children of Levi Tenney, and was born in Otsego county, New York, October 26, 1819. She was descended from a long line of Puritan ancestors.

RED-LETTER DAY.

Young Men's Christian Association Aims to Get One Thousand Members on Tuesday.

If a red-hot lot of red-headed literature can make next Tuesday a red-letter day for the Y.M.C.A., such it will be, and no mistake.

Secretary Luther and his assistants in the management of the Association have been working toward the desired end for some time, and have finally announced next Tuesday as "The Red-Letter Day," in anticipation of taking into the association on that day not less than 1000 members. They have filled the city with cards, circulars and booklets, in all of which the striking lines are printed in red, the inducement held out to prospective members being a clear title for one and a half years for the spot payment of $10. This is good for only that one day, and as soon as the new building is opened the fee will be $12 per year, with an additional fee of $3 for initiation, or $21 for a year and a half.

The object in offering this inducement is that when the corner-stone of the new building is laid on April 14, the association shall have by far the largest membership in its history. The new building is progressing as rapidly as possible under weather conditions, and thirty-four carloads of steel are now ready for the superstructure.

Graves on Installment Plan.

The assistant Town Clerk of Battersea, Eng., has a scheme, which has been indorsed by the Battersea Borough Council, whereby a grave may be purchased on the installment system.

The terms are 5s. down and 3s. a week until the total price of the grave is paid.

"The cost of the grave varies, of course," said the Assistant Town Clerk to a London Evening News representative. "The cheapest grave costs about £3 inclusive, but this will only hold one person. Should a grave for two or more persons be required the grave has to be dug deeper, and for every extra foot that is dug we charge 2 shillings."

The Battersea Council's cemetery is the most expensive in London, and the loss on it represents nearly a penny rate in the pound.

How Much Has Your Diamond Increased in Value?

An absolutely Perfect Diamond of finest White or Blue White color has advanced in value about 15 per cent. annually for the last 6 or 7 years. Unimpaired by wear or age it will continue to become more valuable, and through the sentiment that attaches to the flawless Gem more highly prized as the years roll on.

But, if the Diamond has a flaw—the high degree of satisfaction will be wanting; you will not look upon it with loving pride; it cannot be given as a gift with a comfortable feeling of security; if offered for sale or as security (as really very frequently occurs) an imperfection or poor color will reduce its marketable value to a considerable extent.

Recognizing that our success and our customers' permanent satisfaction are coincident, we have limited our Diamond stock to absolutely perfect Gems of the finest quality. If you can say that your Diamond is a Brock & Feagans Diamond every one will know that it is flawless and in every way a superior Gem.

LIFE'S HOPES END IN SHAME.

WILSON SENTENCED TO FIVE YEARS IN PRISON.

Attorney Rogers Pleads Eloquently for Another Chance for Former Escrow Clerk, but Court Orders His Confinement at San Quentin—Petition for Parole Not Considered.

Fred P. Wilson, former escrow clerk for the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, received his sentence yesterday morning for the embezzlement of a $2100 draft, to which he had pleaded guilty last Tuesday a few minutes before his trial was to have begun. He was sentenced to serve five years in San Quentin prison.

Though a petition for probation, drawn up some weeks ago and signed by many prominent men, finally had been presented to the court, Attorney Earl Rogers did not ask parole for his client, for Judge Smith had declared that he would not consider it. A plea for leniency was made, however.

"Early success and too much flattery and the desire to keep up appearances to any degree which might seem to be expected of him, have had much to do with causing the downfall of this young man," began Earl Rogers. "He was a favorite with the patrons of the company, and many of them were in the habit of holding back their business while he was absent. Thousands of dollars have been brought to the concern by Wilson being there.

"I am not going to criticise the company," he continued, "but I think I have a right to call attention to the fact that another young man who offended in this way was permitted to make restitution and was not prosecuted. I feel that this young man, not yet 30, should have another chance at some time in this life to retrieve. Only by the use of those special talents which made him a favorite in his occupation, and whose misuse has led to his disgrace, can that be gained, and the chance, if it is to be realized at all, must be in the next six or seven years. I want him to have that chance to come again if it's in him."

Judge Smith commented reflectively on the case, and said: "I am going to pass a sentence which will be the very extreme of leniency, under the circumstances. It is the judgment of the court that you be confined in the State Prison at San Quentin for the term of five years."

ESTATE A DAMAGE CLAIM.

WIDOW ASKS FOR LETTERS.

A petition for letters of administration has been filed by the widow of J. C. Fuentes, preliminary to filing a suit for damages against the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Company.

Fuentes, who was killed in the gas explosion in the Rawson building on February 13, left no other estate than the claim against the gas company.

PECULIAR THEFT.

KNAPP MAY BE PAROLED.

Ethmer Knapp, a paper hanger, who is accused of stealing a mandolin from a house where he had been working, was brought before Judge Smith yesterday morning and a plea for probation was made. Knapp claims that he has no recollection of the theft, and is not a mandolin player. He made no effort to sell the instrument, but admitted having it when asked by an officer.

So far as is known, Knapp has no criminal record. The case was laid over for one week for investigation, and parole will be allowed if no damaging circumstances are brought to light.

DAMAGES FOR TEAMSTER.

INJURED BY TROLLEY CAR.

A jury in the Superior Court yesterday afternoon awarded $5000 damages to Carter Lightfoot, who had sued the Los Angeles Intur-Urban Railway Company. The case was given to the jury shortly before noon, and the verdict was not reached till nearly 5 o'clock.

Lightfoot was a teamster. His wagon with a load of lumber, was struck by a car at Third and Wall streets on July 26, 1906, and he was thrown to the ground and sustained fractures of the left leg and right arm. Suit was brought against the railway company for $30,800, the complaint alleging that the car was running at an unlawful rate of speed at the time of the accident.

The action first came to trial in December, and resulted in a disagreement of the jury. The second trial began last Tuesday.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

THE 5th STREET STORE

"Sell The Stuff Boys"

Wish every reader of this paper could have been at a recent meeting of our department managers. You'd have gotten a direct current connection with the forces that are moulding this business, and have felt something of the push and power, the limitless ambition, the busy, tireless brain work, the steadfast desire for betterment that is back of and shot through this business. You'd know also the wherefore of these bargains for tomorrow.

Among other things the head of the house said: "I'm going east for a couple of weeks and it's up to you fellows to sell the stuff while I am gone. I don't want to see a dollar less of volume than there would be if I were here. Get busy now and 'sell the stuff, boys.'" The best way to sell the stuff is to make it easy to buy, and certainly these are the lowest prices you've seen in many a long day. Note and compare every one of them. With Easter only a little way off and with prices like these, there should be but one store in your thoughts tomorrow, the 5th Street Store.

Water Has Wrought a Miracle of Transformation in Imperial Valley, and the Runaway Colorado Has Worked More Good Than Harm.

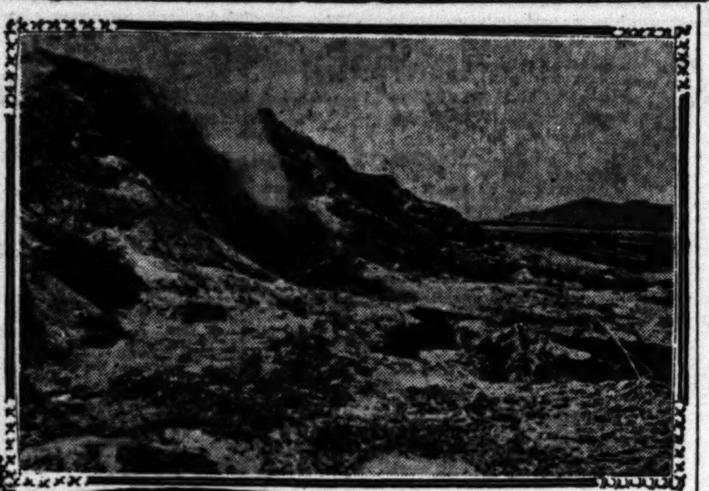
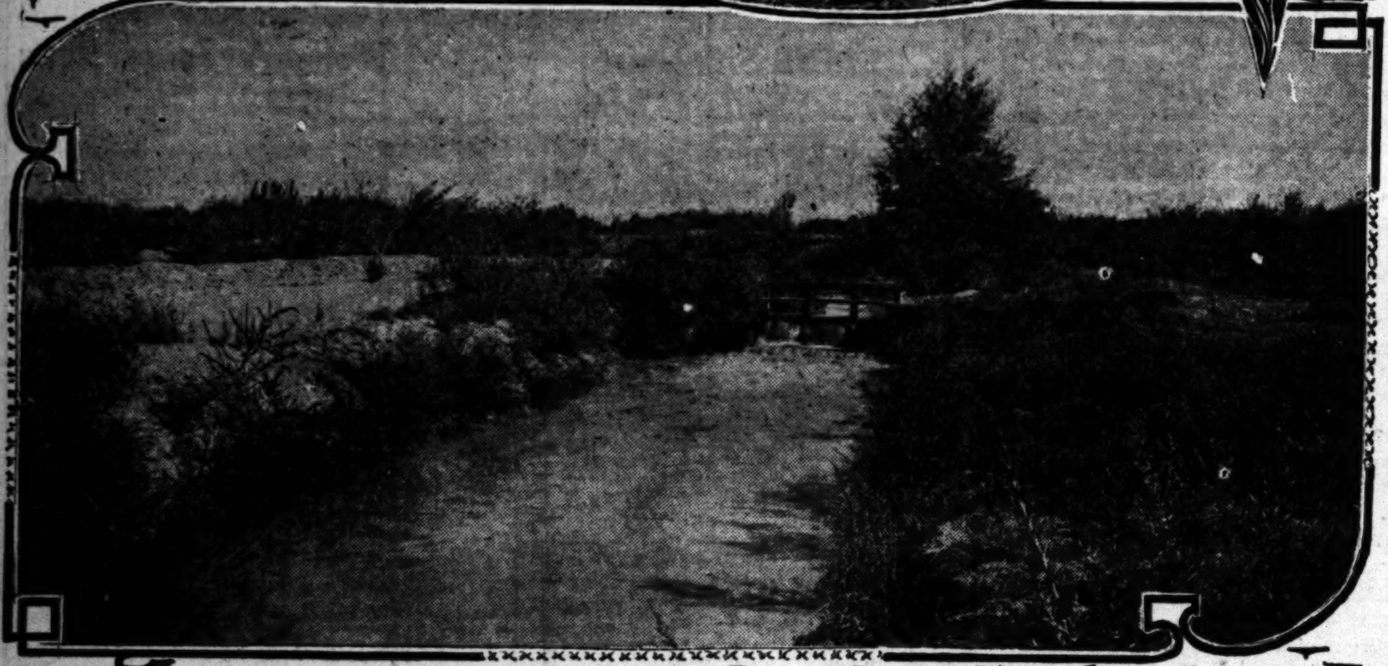
BY ALLEN KELLY.



Hot Springs Valley of the Colorado.

Harvesting Sorghum Imperial Valley



Boundary line Canal.

Hotel at Imperial.

IT IS more than thirty years since I first saw the region that is now called Imperial Valley. It was the grimmest, most forbiding land between the Mississippi River and the Pacific Ocean, barring Death Valley, and I regarded as a harmless lunatic a dreamer who talked of schemes for turning the Colorado River upon the desert and wanted to sell to me some land along the border line at 25 cents an acre. Dr. Wozencroft was talking in those days of his project of creating an inland sea by turning the Colorado into Salton Basin, but nobody listened to him with serious interest. He was looked upon as a visionary crank. The commission that surveyed and fixed the boundary line said the whole country from Yuma to San Diego wasn't worth 5 cents and it didn't make any difference where the line ran. So the surveyors took the easiest route westward from Yuma and left in Mexico a few hundred thousand acres of the most fertile soil on earth.

Now President Roosevelt says that desert is going to be worth anywhere from $500 to $1500 an acre, and nobody thinks he is crazy. Even now the land that I would not have taken as a gift thirty years ago is cheap at $75 an acre.

The Imperial Valley that I saw a few days ago does not look like the desert that I used to know. Where the mirage quivered over burning sands, forty fathoms below sea level, there is a great lake of real water shining in the sunlight and reflecting the most splendid of sunset skies at evening. The mirror surface of Salton Sea is broken into rippling circles by leaping fish, tall herons stalk meditatively along its shores, pelicans wheel in snowy squadrons in the air, and waterfowl swim and splash where the horned toad and the sidewinder were wont to crawl. One can but regret that the Salton Sea is only a passing incident, soon to be but a memory; that it is not to be a permanent occupant of the desert basin. It might be practicable to so control the Colorado that its surplus floods could be turned into the basin in sufficient volume to compensate for evaporation and maintain the level of the lake, and if that were done, resorts for health and recreation might be established on the western shore of Salton Sea, at the foot of the mountains, in the best winter climate to be found in the world.

DESERT TRANSFORMED.

Salton Sea is the most striking evidence of the transformation of the desert, yet it is the least important phase of that transformation. The great change is seen in the conversion of thousands of acres of desolation into green fields; in the homes of settlers; in the thriving towns that are building in Imperial Valley. The fear of ruin that hung over the valley has passed with the closing of the crevasse in the Colorado's bank, and the people are buoyantly confident of the future. They are no longer doubtful of the success of their efforts to make a garden in the desert. Land seekers find them unwilling to part with their holdings; there are more buyers than sellers in the valley now, and real estate agents are unable to keep their lists up to the demand for small farm tracts.

RAVAGES OF THE RIVER.

The Colorado River's rampage through Imperial Valley was spectacular and sensational, but the actual damage to farm property done by the runaway flood was very slight, when you get down to cold facts. The engineers estimate the area of land washed away in the cutting of the gorges of the Alamo and New River is 2500 acres, of which less than half was under cultivation. About 8000 acres were injured by gullies and washes, but there are hundreds of thousands of acres of equally good land remaining, and the only real damage to the valley was the loss of improvements on about 1000 acres, including three farm cottages.

Some indirect loss was caused by the menace of destruction to the irrigation system and consequent discouragement of settlers. Two irrigation districts, numbers 6 and 8, west of New River channel, were cut off from water supply by the break in the canal, and the farmers of 16,700 acres have been prevented from putting in grain crops. Water will be delivered to them within six weeks, however, and they are awaiting patiently the repair of damages and preparing to resume operations. The owners of land that was washed away still have their water stock, which is the indispensable factor and the principal asset of a valley farm, and they can transfer it to other land. It is possible that a way will be found to so adjust losses and benefits that the settlers whose improvements were destroyed will be compensated.

BENEFICIAL EFFECTS.

For, after all, the vagary of the Colorado resulted in a great benefit to the whole Imperial Valley. The two deep gorges cut by the Alamo and New River on their way to the Salton Sea provide drainage channels, which the valley required and could not have secured by any other means.

Drainage is vitally important to irrigated land. It prevents accumulation of alkali and keeps the land sweet. Imperial Valley now has a system of drainage immeasureably more efficient than anything that could be devised by engineers and constructed by human labor. The sewerage problem of the towns is solved. The immediate benefit of the drainage channels to Imperial Valley is great—probably $1,000,000 would be a reasonable valuation—and the prospective betterment is incalculable. The value of property destroyed by the cutting of the gorges is a small price to pay for such a drainage system.

Before the break in the river bank was closed, and while there was doubt of the possibility of controlling the flood, the cutting of gorges through the valley was a menace to the entire irrigation system. The danger was that the cutting back of the channels would extend to the old river at a depth which would make it impossible to get water upon the land through gravity canals. The situation was alarming in its possibilities, but with the closing of the break the danger disappeared, and with it the demand for government aid or interference.

LAND AND WATER.

According to the Agricultural Department's census of growing crops, taken on January 1, 1907, there are 127,400 acres under irrigation and cultivation in Imperial Valley. Water stock for 225,000 acres has been issued. Apparently water rights for nearly 100,000 acres are held by non-users, some of them owners of large tracts awaiting subdivision, and some of them homesteaders, who have not placed the whole of their claims under cultivation.

The water of the Colorado appropriated and controlled by the California Development Company is sufficient to irrigate 350,000 acres in California, and 350,000 acres below the Mexican line. During half of the year the available water is sufficient to irrigate a million acres.

Under the Desert Land Act, a settler can take up 320 acres of public land, paying 25 cents an acre at the time of filing his claim. He must expend in improvements $1 an acre each year for three years, and at the end of that period he can obtain title to the land upon payment of $1 an acre to the government. The purchase of water stock fulfills the requirement of expenditure for improvements. The price of water stock fixed by the California Development Company is $25 an acre, and the company proposes to maintain that price. Individual owners of water stock, of course, can hold it at any price they please.

Under the Homestead Act a settler may take up 160 acres on payment of nominal filing fees, and may obtain title by residing for five years on the land. Or, after fourteen months, he may purchase the land outright for $1.25 an acre.

There is little, if any, vacant public land in the irrigation districts already formed and provided with systems of water distribution. Land within the districts can be bought only from private owners at market prices, but at present there seems to be little disposition to sell. As the canal system is extended, new districts will be formed, and additional areas of public and railroad land will be made available to settlers.

The owner of water stock pays 50 cents an acre-foot for water, and about 50 cents an acre per year for maintenance of the district canals. For cultivation of grain and forage crops, two and a half acre-feet of water a year is sufficient, making the gross cost of irrigation $1.75 an acre.

AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT.

The principal products of Imperial Valley are beef and pork, grain, hay, dairy products, cantaloupes and melons. The annual output, which is increasing rapidly, amounts now to $1,200,000 in live stock, $450,000 in grain, $300,000 in butter and cream, $50,000 in hay marketed, $200,000 in cantaloupes. The greater part of the 350,000 tons of alfalfa and 150,000 tons of grain hay, grown on 125,000 acres, is pastured or fed to stock in the valley. If cut for hay, and sent to market, it would load 3300 cars.

That is a pretty good showing for a region that was absolutely uninhabited less than seven years ago, but it is only the beginning of the development of Imperial Valley. The next stage will be the cutting up of large areas into small holdings, and diversification of farming. It has been demonstrated that forty acres, well cultivated and intelligently managed, will produce an income of $125 a month. On one farm are grown sugar cane, sweet potatoes, almonds, apricots, grapes, orange trees, apples, beans (two crops a year,) barley and alfalfa, demonstrating the suitability of soil and climate to a great variety of crops.

There are 12,000 people in Imperial Valley now. When the land is farmed in small tracts, say from ten to forty acres, and the productive capacity of the soil is fully developed, the valley, including the irrigable area south of the Mexican line, will support at least 300,000 people. That estimate seems conservative enough in view of President Roosevelt's declaration that the California section alone is capable of providing support for a population of half a million. It is quite within the range of possibility that Imperial Valley will have in ten years ten times its present population.

THE DESERT DISAPPEARS.

On my trip through the valley and down into Lower California, I took note of what is being done and planned to prepare the country for the use of the people who are to make homes and farms in the ancient valley of the Colorado. And the first note in my book is that the valley has lost its desert character already. The desert is a condition, not a fixed topographical fact. Water and vegetation have wrought a marvelous change in climatic conditions, a greater change than any due to the creation of Salton Sea, which has only modified local temperature.

Before water was put upon the land and crops were sown, the winds took up the dry and pulverized surface soil and carried it in choking clouds across the land. The sun's rays were reflected from the barren land in blinding, scorching waves of heat. It was possible to drive herds of cattle up from Mexico to the railroad across the waterless waste only in winter, and even in cool weather the drive was a fearful journey for men and beasts. The Salton Basin, which includes the whole country from sea level at the Mexican line to the vicinity of Indio, was a desert swept by sandstorms and scorching winds, utterly uninhabitable and, in summer, impassable.

The sandstorms are no more; the winds are cooled as they blow across vast fields of irrigated grain and alfalfa. The desert has vanished, even as its illusive mirage disappears before the weary, thirst-maddened plodder of the sands, and in its place is a verdant, habitable, well-watered land.

CLIMATIC CONDITIONS.

During four months of the year, the Imperial Valley is undeniably torrid. The climate in summer is no more comfortable there than it is in the San Joaquin or the Sacramento Valley. One needs better protection from the heat than is afforded by a tent or a thin-roofed shack. Yet with shade and under roofs, built to fit the conditions, one can endure the summer heat and keep in health. For the rest of the year, the climate is incomparable. When the settlers get around to planting trees plentifully the climatic conditions will be modified to a greater degree. The valley towns need shade trees along their streets, but the people do not appear to recognize the necessity yet. Perhaps they are too busy to think of it now, but no investment of money and labor could be more profitable to them in the long run than that of tree planting. The town that first shows well-shaded streets will attract the most settlers.

REPAIRING DAMAGES.

The California Development Company, backed by the Southern Pacific, is repairing damages done to the irrigation system by the flood. Districts 6 and 8 are in urgent need of water, and the work now in hand is the construction of a great flume to carry water across the New River gorge and deliver it to the distributing canals. The flume will cross the gorge at Packard, about seven miles from Calexico and in Mexican territory. Its dimensions will be 5 feet in depth, 16 feet in width and 1250 feet in length,

GUGGENHEIMS BUSY AT ELY.

TEN MILLIONS TO BE INVESTED FOR IMPROVEMENTS.

Five Thousand-ton Smelter and Concentrator to Be Built—Salt Lake Capitalists Construct Telephone and Telegraph Line and Plan Direct Railroad.

H. K. Wheeler has sold his business at Ely, Nev., to Messrs. Haff & Coldwell of Salt Lake, and has returned to Los Angeles to remain. He reports that Ely is forging ahead with great rapidity. The Nevada Consolidated Mining Company, owned by the Guggenheims, is about to invest ten millions in improvements and will install a smelter and concentrator with an initial capacity of 5000 tons a day. Mr. Wheeler says that the company has, without any doubt, enough ore assured to run the plant at full capacity for ten years at the least.

Relations between Ely and Salt Lake are growing all the time. A direct telegraph and telephone line has been built and a company has been formed by Salt Lake capitalists to build a railroad. The distance between Ely and Salt Lake is only 150 miles on a direct line, but by rail, as one has to go now, it is about 300. It is expected that the Western Pacific, which will cross the line of the Nevada Northern about twenty miles south of the main line of the Espee, will very likely build a branch to Ely later.

The construction of 100 miles from Pioche by the Salt Lake would give Los Angeles direct communication with this, one of the best camps in this region. Mr. Wheeler urges that the business men, the Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber of Mines do all in their power to get the company to build. He says that it is possible to get goods cheaper here than in San Francisco, even with difference in freight in some cases. This city should have all the trade of Nevada south of the main line of the Espee.

Mr. Wheeler intends to reopen his office in this city in the Mason building.

New York Capitalist Buys.

The Sonora Consolidated Mining Company yesterday sold to A. W. Low, a New York capitalist, one of its claims in the Tabotacho district, twenty miles east of Nacozari, Sonora, where it has an extensive property. The district is practically a new one, but is said to show up very well, its products being silver and copper. C. Low, son of the purchaser and a mining engineer, reported favorably after a visit to the claim.

M. R. Morres, superintendent of the Sonora Consolidated's property, is here in connection with the deal and speaks well of the outlook for the district where a number of others, some from Los Angeles, have been locating claims.

The company was organized recently in this city and numbers among its stockholders a number of men of means residing here.

In San Bernardino.

The Gold Dollar Extension Mining Company is working an extension of the property of the California Hills Company in the Gold Bend district, Sunrise Mountains, in Eastern San Bernardino county, twenty miles south of Needles and west of the Colorado River. The company has 120 acres and claims 3000 feet of the vein running through the California Hills Gold Dollar claim. The two companies are controlled largely by the same people and Superintendent H. M. Phinney has charge of both. He is from Cripple Creek.

A shaft has been sunk about 100 feet and some ore has been sacked for shipment. The distance to the Needles smelter is such that there is little difficulty in hauling. A tunnel has also been driven and encouraging results are reported.

The company is a Los Angeles concern and is capitalized at one million dollars.

In Eastern Kern County.

The California Mohawk Mining Company has eight claims in the Valley View Mountain district in Eastern Kern county, on which some 500 feet of development has been done. There are 186 acres in the property. Development has been by both shafts and tunnels. One tunnel has been driven in 125 feet and another 350 at a depth of 1200 feet from the apex. An average assay of $26 per ton is claimed. It is the intention to install a mill at an early date.

The officers and directors are C. A. Stice, president; Myron J. Sophy, secretary and treasurer; George W. Williams, William H. Parmelee and A. L. Lawrence. The company is capitalized at $5000.

Mill for Moctezuma Distrit.

W. H. Alford, vice-president and manager of the Gold Crown Mining Company, leaves today for the property in the Montezuma district of Sonora for the purpose of installing a mill. The claims are fourteen miles southeast of Calabasas station on the Nacozari Railroad. There is a shaft sixty feet deep and a tunnel cutting the vein 400 feet below the apex. According to the engineer's report there are over 88,000 tons with average value of $13 in sight.

The officers and directors are J. R. Newberry, president; W. H. Alford, vice-president and manager; S. E. Love, secretary; John Leighton, treasurer; C. E. Bean and A. N. Harper.

HIGH SCOOLS TO DEBATE.

The Los Angeles High School will debate with Pasadena High School the question: "Resolved, that the immediate annexation of Cuba to the United States would be to the best interests of both countries." This, the third interscholastic debate, will be held in the Friday Morning Club House, Saturday evening, March 30. Gordon Boller and Cecil Philipps of Los Angeles will uphold the negative.

THIGH BROKEN IN RUNAWAY.

A. F. Hannon, a painter living at No. 1260 West First street, was thrown from his wagon during a runaway at Sixth and Figueroa streets yesterday morning. The man's thigh was fractured. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital. The horse was caught a short distance from where his driver had fallen.

WOMAN OF PETTY THEFTS.

Agnes Gordon, whose small thefts have got her jail sentences in the past, was yesterday bound over to the Superior Court to answer the technical charge of grand larceny. Detectives had arrested the woman for a petty offense, and she will be prosecuted with a view to giving her a prison sentence.

SILENT BAND PROGRESSES.

Deaf and Dumb of City to Have Clubhouse.

Building Fund Started by Stranger Touched.

Young Lady Preaches in Sign Language.

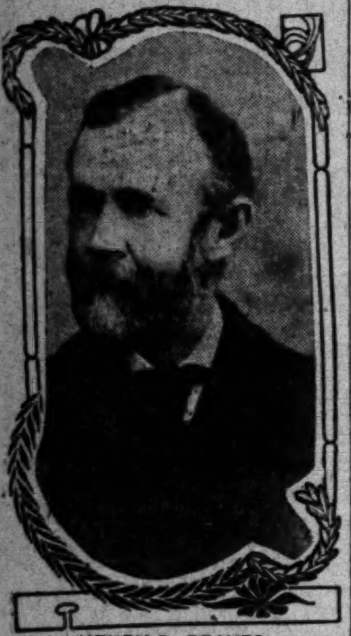
The deaf and dumb of Los Angeles are to have a hall and clubhouse combination, where they may gather for entertainment, for social intercourse and for worship. A lot has been bought at Thirty-seventh and Figueroa streets, for $1200, and a building fund has been started. The building will have an assembly room, kitchen and dining-room.



HENRY D. REAVES.

What these people have accomplished and how they work for mutual help and enjoyment is an interesting story that should put to shame many indigents whose sphere is far less circumscribed.

For six years the deaf mutes have been banded under the leadership of Henry D. Reaves, a man of superior intelligence and attainments, who attracted others to him upon his removal here from New York a number of years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Reaves, who have a comfortable home at No. 323 West Twenty-seventh street, were both stricken with the loss of speech and hearing early in life by disease, scarlet fever leaving a blight upon Mrs. Reaves when she was but 5 years old. They have two daughters, and these, though lacking none of their faculties, are adepts in the use of the sign language.

SILENCE BRINGS CHECK.

The story of how the building lot became a realization dates back to a dinner given by the band five years ago. It was novel in several respects. Some of their members were poor and some were timid. To accommodate them the dinner arranged by Reaves was given one evening in a restaurant, and each ordered as much or as little as he liked. Though all were in high spirits, not a word was spoken. Other diners on the same floor, passing the open door, saw queer gestures.

A gentleman across the hall, overcome by curiosity, quizzed the waiters regarding the strange company, but they could not explain it. On direct inquiry he was granted an explanation by Miss Bessie Reaves, the only guest blessed with the power of speech. He was touched by what he heard, and requested permission to give them a present. Miss Reaves said they had never received charity, and that she had no authority to accept or reject his offer. He persisted and told her if they would not accept it to use it in any other philanthropy she liked. The young lady was much surprised when the stranger made out and presented her with a check for $100. Rushing back into the room she interrupted the toast of her father, saying she had something more important. She showed the gift and their surprise and joy can only be imagined.

With this as a nucleus, the Southern California Association of the Deaf and Dumb was organized. Each contributed his savings, and whenever he had paid in $5 he was issued one share of the stock. The money was all placed in the bank at interest, and out of this the lot has been paid for. Ula Cool is president; William Beckman, vice-president; Mrs. Cool, secretary, and W. E. Dean, treasurer. Beckman is a tailor, and the day before the explosion which wrecked the Cressaty restaurant and Yerger's tailor shop he had applied at the latter for work. He was disappointed, but the next day he exclaimed, fervently: "Oh, God is good to me."

LIFE OF EXPERIENCES.

The life of Reaves, the leader, has been full of experiences. He and his wife are both members of families of wealth and distinction in New York. One of Mrs. Reaves's brothers is a naval officer. After selling a place he owned at Montecito, Reaves made fortunate investments in Los Angeles real estate. This has given him a competence, and he has given his services freely to others afflicted like himself. He preached to them regularly until a paralytic stroke, five years ago, stilled the hands and fingers by which he conveyed his message. He recovered somewhat, but another stroke fell upon him two years later. Two years ago, while walking in his sleep, he fell from the second story to the ground. This accident crippled his left shoulder, and he is practically helpless.

Reaves has always possessed remarkable powers of mimicry, and when a boy was a favorite of the great actor, Edwin Booth, who used to invite the lad to his home. For nineteen years Reaves taught in the State School for the Deaf in New York, and there used his ability as an actor in getting up plays among the students, which were all in pantomime, but perfectly well understood by those who attended. One such play was given following the Chicago fire and $300 raised for the benefit of the victims. One of the curtains was a graveyard scene. The skeletons were to arise at the beat of a drum. Though they could not have heard even the roar of a cannon, all responded instantly, taking their cue from the vibrations they felt in the air when the drum sounded.

The first school this man ever attended was known as the Fiftieth-street school, in New York, and stood where Columbia University is now located. He fished for frogs in what is now Central Park.

YOUNG LADY THEIR PREACHER.

Since her father is no longer able to carry on the work, his daughter, Miss Bessie F. Reaves, a teacher in the Jefferson-street school, devotes many unselfish hours to gladdening the hearts of those who live in a world of silence. Whenever they meet on Sunday she uses her skilful hands in repeating to them one of Baker P. Lee's sermons—she attends his church—and in their expressive sign language they sing such songs as "Nearer My God to Thee." The attendance at these meetings is from twenty to thirty-five persons. On Easter afternoon they will gather for a service at the First Congregational Church, Ninth and Hope streets, and for their especial benefit Rev. Mr. Lee has written his Easter sermon in advance. It will be communicated to them in their silent language.

One noticeable feature of the group is the broad charity of their membership, which includes any nationality which applies, whether Jew or Gentile, Protestant or Catholic. At a recent service the sermon paralleled Cosmopolitan Athens and Cosmopolitan Los Angeles. It was noticed by Miss Reaves that four of her "listeners" could understand the universal language, but did not comprehend the words spelled out in English. She found, at the close of service, that one was a man from Alsace, in France, another recently from Budapest, Austria; the third a Russian lately from Moscow, and the last a recent immigrant from Germany.

Another similar class of mutes is instructed through the efforts of workers in St. Paul's Episcopal Church on South Olive street, where they gather for worship.

COURTLY FIGURE GONE.

Jerit W. Hopkins, Former Prominent New York and Illinois Hotel Man, Passes Here.

Jerit Wickwire Hopkins, who was one of the prominent hotel men of both New York State and Illinois in comparatively early days, passed away Friday night at 11:30 o'clock at his residence, No. 2805 South Grand avenue. He completed an interesting and successful life at the age of 81 years, after a lingering illness.

Mr. Hopkins, who was one of the most gracious and lovable of old-school gentlemen, had lived in Los Angeles almost ten years, in quiet retirement, following some years of travel in various parts of the world. He was a well-known member of Immanuel Presbyterian Church of this city, but it was in Chicago and Rochester, N. Y., that he was best known in business and social circles. Prior to his retirement from active business in 1878 he was proprietor of the then-favorite Clifton House in Chicago, the National Hotel in Rochester, N. Y., and the Union Hotel in Galesburg, Ill. He was always interested in the broader phases of life, and after the termination of his successful business activities chose to spend his leisure in touring the world, passing much time in Europe.

JERIT WICKWIRE HOPKINS.

Mr. Hopkins was born in Clarendon, N. Y., May 2, 1826. In 1880 he married Miss Nellie Chesbrough of Chicago, who survives him. His many friends here and elsewhere who knew this splendid-appearing, courtly Christian gentleman and loving husband will feel the loss deeply.

The funeral services at the family residence Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock will be strictly private. Interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

NEW IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY.

Property owners of South Hollywood met on Friday evening at the office of the justice of the peace, Santa Monica and Western avenues, and organized an improvement association with the following officers: Charles O. Morgan, president; Mr. Ryan, vice-president; H. D. Canne, secretary; Dr. F. W. Escobar, assistant secretary; George H. Royce, treasurer.

Immense Deposits of High-Grade Bituminous Coal Discovered 38 Miles from Los Angeles

Southern California Will Reap Great Benefits—One Hundred Acres of Black Wealth—Strong Company Has Purchased Property—Offer Some Shares for Development

Coal Almost Under Our Very Noses

Think of the fuel famine and the suffering caused therefrom this last winter, right here in Los Angeles, and not know that tons and tons of coal lay almost under our very noses. And yet it's a fact.

Only a few hours' ride from the city, heretofore neglected, is a field of 100 acres carrying a large bed of splendid, clean coal—bituminous coal, just the thing we most need. Investigation of the whole property has shown the coal bed to EXTEND OVER THE ENTIRE AREA.

Quality and Quantity Satisfies Prominent Men

A company of Angelenos has been formed to mine this coal and place it on the market. The property has been purchased and negotiations are well under way for distributing the coal.

Here in Los Angeles the company has decided to retail the product itself, doing away with the middleman and thus making the profits accruing to the company much larger.

Several prominent local men of standing in the industrial and business world have visited the property since its purchase by the Southern California Coal Mining Company, and have expressed themselves as well satisfied with the quality and quantity of the coal, and will take an interest in the company.

Funds Are Needed For Proper Equipment

The company having expended a large sum in the purchase of the mines, is now in need of funds to properly equip the property and will therefore make and extraordinary offer to the public. The capital stock is $500,000 (quite a conservative estimate for value of the property, as well as other conditions,) par value $1.00. Of this amount

130,000 Shares Have Already Been Subscribed

For a time, at discretion of the directors of the company, a limited number of shares will be sold at 50 cents each. In doing this we believe we are making the fairest investment offer ever placed before the public. It means investment, not speculation. It means that every shareholder will gain honestly a substantial increase in income. Everything favors the proposition. At present we are but six miles from the main line of the Santa Fe Railroad, and in the near future the Cement Trust, which recently purchased a vast cement property eight miles the other side of our mine, will run an air line from the main railroad, passing our property, thus putting us in an exceptionally good position for shipping.

The Market For Coal at Hand

All this means that from our close proximity to a large and persistently growing market, we are able to sell the coal at much less than current rates and make a big profit besides. We have the market at hand. There's no trouble to sell coal. Ask coal dealers.

Eighty Foot Tunnel Driven Into Mountain

Work on the property has progressed so far that an 80-foot tunnel has been driven into the side of the mountain, and within 40 feet of the shaft the quantity gets larger and wider, and the deeper we go into it the better the quality.

Prospective Investors Invited to Examine Property

Any prospective investor who desires to see the mine will be taken out by the officers of the company and may examine it for themselves. Such is our confidence in the property, and everyone knows "seeing is believing."

Do not overlook this opportunity. Make a note to call and investigate. Absolute security is shown in all our undertaking. The anticipated earnings can be roughly estimated and it can easily be seen that profits will increase proportionately as the equipment is provided and contracts begin to be filled. We shall be pleased to hear from any investor, large or small, but of course cannot be expected to hold shares at present figure for any great length of time. Better inquire at once.

dence of her many charges to have much to say about her work.

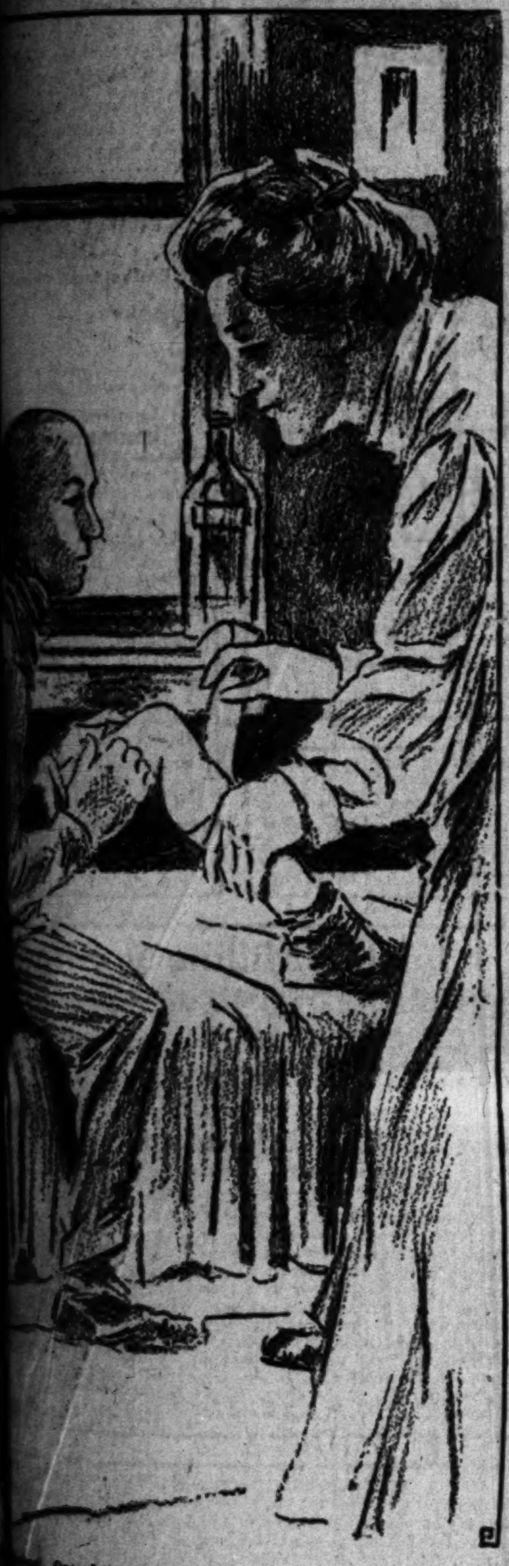
Even the most suspicious foreigner, who feels that every man's hand is against him, soon becomes convinced that this capable, determined, worker has the good of his children at heart and trusts her to the utmost.

"It is a pity you are not a politician, Miss Thornton," said one of her friends the other day. "You would carry 'de Ate' on any proposition." This confidence and friendship of the people for Miss Thorton have been won by three years of close and unremitting attention on her part. She has had the well-being and the protection of the children of Los Angeles on her heart in season and out of season.

CAPABLE SOLDIER.

The three district nurses from the College Settlement have charge of three schools where help is most imperative, but all the rest have been in the hands of this one capable soldier who has fought contagion, skin diseases, and afflictions of all sorts single handed until the two assistants were granted her.

Now her plan is to give most of the regular routine to the two new nurses and to take all emergency calls herself, for she has learned by experience how hard it is to leave important things undone to go to some distant part of the city for a special need.



One of the nurses dressing a bicycle accident victim's gashed leg.

Starting out with her horse and buggy (her own private property, by the way,) she may have every experience in a day from treating the itch to mending tempers. Maud, her horse, knows a schoolhouse, and stops whenever she comes to one, unless otherwise commanded.

"ANY RINGWORMS LATELY?"

"Any ringworms lately?" Miss Thornton asks, as she enters the kindergarten, and the tiny people flock to her, showing their hands, and lifting their faces like flowers to the sun. Oh, such clean hands and faces, without a speck of dirt on them, and hair well-kept! Up goes a red star on the board; they have remembered all the things that Miss Thornton had asked them to do.

One small boy lives in a hotel near by, where scarlet fever has just developed. He is called out, and told very gently and explicitly that he must go home, and stay there until the scarlet fever is over. He is puzzled. "Do you want me to go home and det it?" he asked; because there is no telling what this wonderful doctor lady wants. She is on intimate terms with things called germs. She knows just exactly what is the matter when your throat is sore and swollen, and sometimes she sends you home, and the schoolroom is fumigated.

SAD STORY OF DOLORES.

Little Dolores was sent home about ten days ago, with a throat which suggested diphtheria. Miss Thornton took the child's name and residence, and went the same afternoon to see how Dolores was faring, for a large part of the school nurse's work is in the homes, showing the parents how to do what is necessary, and giving valuable instruction. The hunt for Dolores was baffling. The child, like so many Mexican children, had given her mother's maiden name as a surname, and Miss Thornton could not locate her.

"There is going to be a funeral in that house," said a small girl a day or two after to the school nurse, and Miss Thornton was instantly on the alert. She went into the house and asked what the child had died of.

"Stomach trouble," the woman in charge of the funeral arrangements replied. "She sat up to take a drink of milk and fell over dead."

"Miss Thornton insisted upon seeing the dead child, and she found her suspicions confirmed. It was Dolores. She had died of the paralysis which accompanies diphtheria. The public funeral which would have spread the contagion far and wide was stopped by the order of the health officer.

NURSE EVER VIGILANT.

The school nurses of Los Angeles have checked so many contagions that the saving of the city in dollars and cents alone can hardly be calculated. It is difficult to imagine now a depopulating of the schools through some disease of children for weeks at a time, with the vigilant eyes of the school nurse here, there and everywhere, and yet such a thing was a common occurrence a few years ago.

Every little sore promptly attended to means that many children are saved from blood poisoning, and possibly loss of an arm or a hand. Two little Russian boys were visited by Miss Thornton for many evenings at their home. One had a felon on his finger, and the other had stuck a rusty nail in his foot. The school nurse had to attend to them in the evening because papa and mamma were away all day, and she could not show them what was necessary. The minister of the Russian Church in Los Angeles accompanied Miss Thornton as interpreter and Ivan and little Alexis were soon back at school.

WORKS DAY AND NIGHT.

Home work among the Russians must nearly always be done in the evening. They are a very industrious people, and every member of the family who is large enough and who does not have to go to school, must work. "Papa work, mamma work, brother work," the little tots at home will tell the nurse, and as nothing is done without the consent of the parents, and it is necessary to tell them what to do for a sick child, this means both day work and night work for the school nurse.

VACCINATION PROBLEM.

"I am immune, I do not need to be vaccinated," said a tall girl in a most impressive manner recently, when Miss Thornton was hunting for those who had evaded the vaccination requirements.

"You are immune, you say; why do you think so?" asked the school nurse.

"My mother and father both had yellow fever before I was born," was the astounding reply, given in all good faith.

Not only vaccination matters, but sore eyes, running ears and every childish ailment is watched, and Miss Thornton advises a remedy, or probes sore places herself, syringes out ears and washes out eyes. No internal remedy is ever given in the school, however.

In prescribing a homely remedy for a childish trouble, Miss Thornton frequently says to the children: "Tell mother to put together equal parts of vinegar and kerosene. She must heat the vinegar and then put it with the kerosene. Now, what must she heat?" "The vinegar," the children shout. "Now, again, what must she heat?" "The vinegar," they reply. "For you know," the nurse continued, "if the wrong thing were heated, the kerosene would explode and there would be no little boys and girls to come to school."

In a few of the schools in the city where these are imperative, there are shower baths and tub baths, and a proud school possession is a porcelain foot bath, for the school nurse will not dress sore feet unless they are well scrubbed, and the baths are under her general supervision.

The nurse's loan closet is one of the great needs in schools in the poorer districts. Emergencies arise where the nurse must have clean sheets at her disposal, night garments and the various necessities of the sick room, which are so often lacking in the poorer homes. A loan closet under the direct management of the school nurse is a practical charity, the supplying of which might well occupy the philanthropic women of the city.

LADD ARRESTED.

Accused by Former Client of Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses. Former Charge Recalled.

C. B. ("Habeas Corpus") Ladd was arrested yesterday on a complaint charging the obtaining of money under false pretenses. He was released on $1000 bond. The complaint was secured from the District Attorney by Mrs. Della Sherbourne, who employed Attorney Ladd to advise her in the administration of the estate of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Johnson. She charges Ladd with securing $2775 from her in June, 1905, by a false claim against the estate. One claim alleged was of a bill from the Public Administrator for $1130.

Attorney Ladd had been attorney for the mother, Mrs. Johnson, and was placed in an unenviable light by the disappearance of a will in which Mrs. Johnson disinherited her daughter. The absence of any will left Mrs. Sherbourne the heir.

Since Attorney Ladd's examination on a charge of subornation of perjury, resulting in his discharge, he has not been practicing, but has lived on a ranch outside the city limits.

The Italian government, it is said, intends reducing the army budget this year and applying the proceeds to the establishment of motor 'bus services.

FORMAL OPENING.

Central Department Store Will Receive the Public on Monday, Selling no Goods in the Evening.

The Central Department Store, located at No. 609 to 619 South Broadway, will have its official opening on Monday, and some idea of the magnitude of the establishment may be had from the two-page advertisement in this morning's Times.

The store will be regularly opened for the sale of goods on Monday at 10 o'clock, and its souvenirs will be in the shape of special bargains in everything offered. Fine concerts for the entertainment of visitors to the store will be given all day by Arend's Orchestra.

It is useless to say anything concerning the line of goods to be sold, as that information is fully set forth in the big "ad" in Part VI, including everything from the richest imported silks to a tin pan for the kitchen.

No goods will be sold after 6 o'clock on Monday, and from 7:30 to 10 o'clock the store will be thrown open to the public for inspection, music being furnished throughout the evening by Arend's Orchestra.

This store is the connecting link in a remarkable line of great stores on Broadway, and it gives evidence of vigorous and skillful management, the latter declaring it to be "the star trading point," whose motto is: "Your money's worth or your money back."

A RAILROAD CONFISCATED.

French Government Stops the Adoption of Espee Ways.

When Car Shortage Continued State Seized Road.

Directors May Have Obtained Pointers in California.

BY ARTHUR R. HINTON.

California oil men and other shippers will be interested to learn the fate which a few months since befell a French railroad which undertook to deal with the car question in a way similar to that in vogue in California, especially as to oil, for the past five years or more. This article is not written in advocacy of similar treatment for our own railroads, but there are, without doubt, many who could be highly pleased to see it adopted.

The railroad referred to runs from Paris to Dieppe and the west coast, and is known as the Western Railroad. It was built by private capital but with a proviso that the government should have the right to take it over by paying an apprized valuation on the real property. The line runs steamers from Dieppe to Newhaven, England, and thus forms one of the three important routes between London and Paris.

For several years, according to the Paris dispatches to the English papers, this company has been dealing with the shippers much as our own roads. Cars were furnished or not as the management found convenient and shortage was chronic. A Californian reading the accounts might have suspected that some of the directors had been out here getting pointers from the Espee. But if so, they overlooked one essential point which the Harriman road takes the best care of; and this is, that before these tactics can be safely followed out the railroad must have absolute control of the lawmakers. The neglect of this brought disaster to the French railroad.

Several times the government warned the company to give a better service and each time the officials were ready with excuses of all kinds. Meanwhile farmers were complaining that their crops were being lost and last fall the Clemenceau cabinet went into office pledged to exercise the government's privilege and take over the entire railroad. This was done and the line added to the State system, the owners being paid the value of their property.

To Americans the proceeding seems to be quite drastic and those who are not infected with the microbe of socialism would be inclined to think the cure would result in evils as bad as the disease, although few can doubt that the mere threat of such proceedings would be sufficient to make the Southern Pacific get more cars and endeavor to have them at the place desired just as it does in Texas. The action also appears to be very near being confiscation of property.

At this time, however, when the railroad question is so prominent all over the United States, this proceeding in France is of much interest to every shipper and, indeed, to every American.

WESTERN FRUIT MOST WANTED AT NEW YORK MARKETS.

Novelty in Metropolitan Market Is Bartlett Pear from South Africa. Some of This Fruit Sells for Nine Dollars a Dozen—Considerable Demand for Florida Oranges.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, March 18.—Difficulties which existed in the New York orange market for several weeks now appear to have passed, temporarily, at least, and at the later auctions the market has resumed its old form and business has been lively.

Spring is here. The past few days have been like April, and this sort of weather always encourages free buying. Moreover, the departure of snow and cold has enabled street vendors to handle a good deal more fruit than previously, and sales have been so much better that they have affected the auction market beneficially.

According to statements given out here by one of the important factors in the business, California shippers are reported to be at least 1500 cars behind the usual quantity at this season and more than that behind the record for some years. The last sale saw an advance of 20 cents a box and the tendency is still upward. The demand is indicated in the price of Valencias which has advanced to $6.25 per case, and the oranges are not especially good at that.

During the week the trade was treated to the view of the first consignment of pears from the Export Association of South Africa. Pears at this season are somewhat of a novelty in New York and the 250 boxes found ready purchasers. But the proposed low prices did not materialize so forcibly as the manager of the association, who was here earlier in the season, predicted.

The pears were Bartletts, large and fine and were packed with extreme care. The packing would have made even inferior fruit attractive, but inasmuch as all fruit shipped from South Africa is subject to rigid government inspection only the best ever gets out of the country. The fruit reached here in perfect condition. There was scarcely a speck upon any pear. The boxes each carried from eighteen to twenty-five and sold at $3 per box.

The consignees, Steinhardt and Kelley, say that the demand for this fancy fruit is far larger than the supply and that the only difficulty they have to contend with is the fact that retailers are charging extreme figures, thus curtailing consumption. When the first consignment of peaches arrived and the wholesale price was fixed at a figure which made each peach cost 25 cents, that was thought to be extremely high, but some dealers have sold the pears which have just arrived at $9 a dozen, or 75 cents apiece. Probably this is the highest figure at which Bartlett pears ever sold in this market.

The advent of this fruit at this season will have little influence upon any other sort now in market. The price is too high to permit general purchase and consumption. Only the fortunate can afford such expensive fruit. It tastes too much like money for the average consumer. When good California oranges are selling at two for a nickel the sale of pears at extreme prices will attract little attention. The pears are not for general distribution and the market will be confined to those consumers who care nothing for expense. New York has enough of this ultra-rich fruit buying class to easily dispose of everything that South Africa sends here during the winter. If this trade doesn't compete with domestic fruit, there is no harm done.

Californians are more interested in the sale of oranges and lemons than they are in any other fruit. It doesn't matter particularly to them what fruits are offered in the New York market provided that they do not compete with oranges and lemons. There is no competition with the peaches and similar fruits that come early. In the rush of the season there is difficulty sometimes with Florida and Georgia peaches, but in the main, California has the New York market to itself upon practically every variety of fruit it offers. The effect of this is to create some interest when an orange-producing section says that it is soon to ship to New York. When it was announced some time ago that Texas would shortly begin shipping oranges to New York it created some interest, but Texas hasn't enough oranges to cause serious competition for a good while yet.

The main thing that California has to consider now is the actual competition of Florida and the potential competition of Porto Rico. Florida's competition is practically over for this year, but Porto Rico is still sending fruit, some of it good and much of it competing harmfully with California. Yet the market for Californias has not suffered materially except on occasions when the weather has been unfavorable. The 1500 cars shortage has helped keep the market up and probably it has held prices high enough to compensate for the loss in quantity.

Recent auctions have shown that buyers prefer Californias, notwithstanding the offerings of other sorts of fruit. Unquestionably there has been a remarkable increase in demand, as compared with two or three years ago, and unquestionably, too, this demand can be increased indefinitely by shipping to the East only such fruit as is wanted. The short-sighted policy of shipping poor fruit with the expectation that this market will absorb it has resulted in serious losses in the past. If shippers have learned their lesson, the market will be better continuously and sales will be on a higher level.

GO TO TESTIFY; ARRESTED.

Motorcycle Club Secretary Fined for Speeding, and Companions Must Also Answer.

After Howard Shaeffer, secretary of the Los Angeles Motorcycle Club, had been fined $5 in Police Court for speeding, his two companions for whom the police had been looking were arrested. They had gone into court to testify for Shaeffer. The speeding had taken place March 11, when policemen in an auto made a mad race down South Main street to capture the offenders.

Edward Hoag and Leslie A. Hill, the two who had escaped capture, were taken into custody on warrants. Shaeffer's attorney, in an argument with the officers, grabbed the warrant from a patrolman's hand and shoved himself between the officer and prisoner. For a moment the lawyer and the patrolman were the center of a lively tussle which resulted in the prisoner going to the desk sergeant's counter, where he furnished bail.

JAPANESE BOYCOTTERS.

Subjects of Mikado Adopt Union Tactics Toward Those They Do Not Like.

The Japanese are evidently getting pointers from the labor unions as to the workings of the boycott. Now it seems that any business man who offends the little brown men will call down upon his head the favorite weapon of totemism.

This interesting fact has come to light through the recent experience of a local liquor dealer with his Japanese porter. He had a contract for furnishing liquors for a banquet and a well-known caterer had the furnishing of the viands. After the feast, in cleaning up the table, some of the glasses belonging to the liquor man became mixed with those of the caterer. The former ordered his Japanese porter to go and get them. When he asked next day if the matter had been attended to he found it had not. The Jap had a ready excuse, and was then instructed to attend to it as early as possible. For several days the matter remained in abeyance, the proprietor each day inquiring, and receiving excuses until it became monotonous and he had the Jap up "on the carpet" and insisted that his orders be obeyed without more foolishness.

"Well, I'll tell you, Mr. ——," said the Jap, with outside appearance of deference, but in a way that could not be mistaken, "that man some time ago refused to serve a Japanese boy with ice cream and we all make it a rule never to go into his place or have anything to do with him."

The proprietor promptly sent another man after his belongings, and Mr. Jap is seeking other employment.

BOY TALKS FICTION.

Youngster of Ten Years Tells Police Terrible Tale That Proves Untrue.

Larson Bridge, aged 10 years, gave the police a terrible story of distress and abandonment by his mother yesterday morning. When the officers at the Central Station had questioned the boy they found that his story was a fiction, and that his mother, who lives at No. 422 East Twelfth street, had reported his disappearance to the police.

A patrolman found the boy in Stansbury's grading camp near Bimini Baths. He had been hanging about the place sometime living off the bounty of the cook. He told the patrolman that his mother had run away with some man and had gone East leaving him alone. When the truth came out the boy was returned to his parents.

She danced with him. She liked his constant smooth talk, and she told him she would be in the "academy" the next Thursday and meet him there. She did, and other meetings followed. One night she came home very late. That night she had agreed with the man that she could have a better time if she left her husband and went to one of Tom Savage's establishments on Commercial street.

Yesterday, with tears in her eyes, the woman confessed these things to a plain-clothes officer. It was the lure of pretty clothes which had been mainly instrumental in pulling her away from her husband and her baby. She occupied a room in the Arlington during several weeks. She had a "good time," and her companions of leisure hours were two other women of the half-world and three thieves. The women and the thieves smoked opium.

Yesterday the husband paid the woman's fine. He thinks he can induce her to stay at home and to attend to her child. He himself has done everything a man could do to bring her back there. He had pawned his surveyor's instruments. He had spent many hours watching his wife. He had lost all chances of the position which he came here to take. And still he has hope—which may possibly be realized.

Of such "dancing academies" as this, in which Dollie Corwin met her "gentleman friend," there are anywhere from eight to a dozen in Los Angeles. Any married women whose longing for excitement has got the better of them form the main part of the attractions. As to the men—prominent among them are such smooth-tongued individuals as the thief who taught Dollie Corwin to smoke opium. The places are full of rascals and foolish women.

BOY IN A PINCH.

Harry Jacobs, a small boy who carries a route on an evening paper, was caught between a Pico Heights car and a wagon on Broadway near Fifth street yesterday morning. The boy was severely bruised and slightly cut about the face and head. He was picked up in a dazed condition and taken into a store near by. Here women who had witnessed the accident, surrounded him, bathing his face and trying to relieve his suffering. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital and later was able to walk away. His home is at No. 749 Kohler street.

BURGLARS GET WHISKY.

Burglars took a quantity of whisky and cigars from the saloon of C. D. Belmoth on North Main street early yesterday morning. They entered through a rear door and must have used gunny sacks or some sort of conveyance to carry away their plunder. The police believe the crime was committed at about the time of the change of watch, when the patrolman on the beat was reporting off duty, and the new man had not yet gone up the street as far as the saloon.

MATCH IN WASTE BASKET.

Mrs. J. A. Valentine threw a lighted match into a waste basket and then left the room in the home of her mother, Mrs. E. Murray, No. 321 South Grand avenue yesterday morning. When Mrs. Valentine reëntered the apartment a brisk fire was in progress. The department extinguished the blaze, which had done merely nominal damage.

Exclusive Pre-Organization Announcement to Readers of The Times

Precious Possessions of Water and Gold

Calaveras Water Power and Mines Co.

This company is being organized by San Francisco and Los Angeles capital, to own and operate one of the greatest placer mines in California, and, incidentally, to utilize and sell 5000 horse-power which can be developed from its water rights. The CALAVERAS WATER POWER & MINES COMPANY is being incorporated with a capital of $2,500,000 in 2,500,000 shares of a par value of $1 each. The officers will be Thomas Thorkildsen, a Chicago and San Francisco manufacturer, president; Lester F. Scott, mining engineer, of Los Angeles, secretary and treasurer; Theodore Martin, mining corporation attorney, of Los Angeles, vice-president. Offices of the company are at Suite 601, Grosse Building, Sec'y Lester F. Scott in charge.

Contract has been made with the General Securities Company of Los Angeles to act as fiscal agents in promoting the sale of 150,000 shares of treasury stock, of which only 50,000 shares may be subscribed at the pre-organization price of 25 cents a share. As the certificates are not yet printed, contracts for the delivery of stock at that price will be made.

The CALAVERAS WATER POWER & MINES COMPANY takes over the ownership of 1,582 acres of placer ground, an existing hydraulic plant, an operating placer mine, and the control of a flow of water amounting to 5,500 miner's inches.

The greater portion of the 1,582 acres of mining ground is well covered with timber; 612 acres are patented gravel, 80 acres unpatented gravel, 320 acres patented dumping ground, and 320 acres unpatented. The foregoing composes the main property. In addition, there are another 90 acres of gravel and 160 acres of dumping ground, giving altogether over two miles in length on the channel, one mile of which has been prospected and the values thoroughly ascertained.

MAKING OF A MAMMOTH PLACER MINE

The depth of the channel is from 40 to 110 feet, which may be conservatively averaged as over 50 feet deep and over 500 feet wide. In the opinion of Mr. Lester F. Scott, one of the most reliable mining engineers in California, this gravel will yield over 50 cents per cubic yard. Besides the ancient river channel, there are over 100 acres of overflow gravel from 2 to 40 feet deep, which will yield at least 10 cents per cubic yard.

The La Grange placer mine, which is the largest hydraulic property in the United States, or in the world, has produced millions of income for its owners upon a yield of 6 cents a cubic yard after carrying water 32 miles. The Calaveras mine has to carry its water only 4 miles.

The Calaveras placer mine is being worked every day, and during the month of February last the force of seven men employed made a gross clean-up of $3,100, which, after deducting the expenditures of $700, left a net yield of $2,400, as the Mint Certificate on file will show.

It is the purpose of the new owners of the company to operate this placer mine upon a much larger and more lucrative scale than ever before, with confidence that it can be made a greater producer than even the La Grange. The miners are now using only 500 inches of water from O'Neil Creek, and are not working the richest part of the gravel. In San Antone Creek the company owns a 5,000-inch water right, and the flume and ditch which were constructed to bring 3,000 miner's inches to O'Neil Creek are now completed and ready to operate. The ditch which takes the water out of O'Neil Creek has been enlarged part of the distance from a carrying capacity of 500 to 2,000 miner's inches. The balance of the ditch is only capable of conv 500 inches to the point of diversion for hydraulicking under a head of 250 feet.

THESE MEN MEAN BUSINESS.

It will be necessary, therefore, first to widen the narrow section of the ditch, and when this is done the hydraulic mining of the rich channel c proceed with quadruple the present capacity. The United States Geological Report estimates that one miner's inch is capable of washing two c yards of gravel a day. It will be entirely safe to compute that, with 2,000 inches, at least 2,000 cubic yards can be washed per diem, which 50 cents a cubic yard, will yield $1,000 gross a day. The incidental expenses will not exceed $1,000 a month. The net profit should be $29,000 a If the mine is operated only six months in a year, it should produce over $150,000 annual income, and there is gravel enough to last for 50 years.

WATER RIGHTS QUITE AS VALUABLE

The company's water rights control all the waters of two very large water sheds, one of them being the famous Calaveras Groves of the Big T of California, now part of the National Park, which assures protection of the trees and preservation of the water shed. At the point where the of San Antone Creek is turned into O'Neil Creek, there is a 700-foot fall, which engineers estimate should develop 5,000 horse-power. The future opment and sale of this power should give another important item of income, and prove a second valuable asset to the company. In short, it be estimated that our possessions of water are fully as precious as our possessions of gold.

There is also upon this property a quartz vein, located by the same prospector who located the famous Sheep Ranch mine one mile to the which has produced over $10,000,000 in dividends. This appears to be a continuation of the Sheep Ranch vein, being in the same formation same kind of quartz, and able mining men have held that it would make as good a mine as the Sheep Ranch if thoroughly opened up. There is a foot shaft with a drift of 120 feet, all in ore. Sorted ore has yielded $12 a ton, and ore on the dump averages over $5 a ton, which would indicate all the ore would average about $7. As there is free water for power, plenty of timber, and a 5-stamp mill ou the property at present, this mine be made to yield a handsome profit and prove a third strong asset to the CALAVERAS WATER POWER & MINES COMPANY.

prevails at the High School is really one of the causes of the trouble.

The lunchroom, except for this difficulty, has been a stunning success. Many parents are unwilling that their children shall eat cold lunches. The lunchroom supplies the hot lunch without pupils being obliged to go down town. Before the lunchroom was in existence, complaints used to come that High School boys were patronizing free lunches in the saloons.

The lunchroom is managed and financed entirely by a committee of the pupils, who take in about $50 a day. The boys and girls who manage it show more business sagacity than most trained restaurant men. As an institution, it has entirely killed snobbery. Sons and daughters of the best families are to be seen waiting on the table, serving the others.

"Cook's son, duke's son, son of a hundred earls," figuratively speaking, jostle elbows delivering pie.

STEAL IN EAST, TOO.

Supt. Moore said yesterday: "I don't know what is the matter. On my recent trip East I made inquiries on this special point. I find that stealing goes in much this same way at all the high schools. It is a most curious thing. There comes no complaint at the grammar and primary schools. Seems to be no stealing there.

"Perhaps it comes from this desire to ape college life—fraternities, class publications, exercises, class photographs and all that."

Indignant mother—whew! Thus she fumed:

"Good gracious, man, it's clothes. My daughter keeps me on the verge of bankruptcy. She has to have what she calls "a swell lid," and other clothes to match.

"She has to have basketball costumes, gym suits and goodness knows what.

"I couldn't stand new books this term, and even her second-hand ones cost $7.

"Another source of expense has been innumerable benefits that have to be gone to on account of keeping of 'school interest' in basketball teams and a lot of such stuff. I believe in the lunchroom, because I want to give her hot meals at noon.

"My daughter says that she is willing to wear any old thing if I send her to some of the colleges about the city, because they don't dress there. She says you have to dress well at the High School to 'be in the swim.'"

The conditions are said to be the same at the Polytechnic High School.

Cradle Was 200 Years Old.

The slumber place of seven generations is being rocked daily in a Minneapolis home. Mrs. Charles Sowle of No. 3205 Park avenue is the possessor of a valuable family heirloom in the shape of a cradle which is more than 200 years old. The cradle originally came from Holland, but has been in this country since 1668. Solidly built of mahogany, it has defied the ravages of time, and has successfully withstood the treatment of seven generations of children who have slept in it, played with it, and buffeted it after the manner of children of every century. Now it stands in a corner of the nursery at the Sowle home, and little John Sowle rocks his dolls in it.—[Minneapolis Journal.

SURPASSING ALL PRECEDENT

The Greatest Money Saving Sale Ever Held in Los Angeles

You can thank the railroads for this sale, the most remarkable in the furniture history of the entire West. While such prices mean a great financial sacrifice to us, they also mean a welcome saving to our friends, the public. On account of washouts and other troubles incident to long-continued bad weather, railroad traffic has been seriously crippled for months. Goods due here two months ago have been sidetracked and delayed. Tracer after tracer failed to locate our cars. Now, when later shipments are coming through without difficulty, we receive the whole bunch in a trainload. Our seven floors are overstocked, our extra warehouses are overflowing, and outside storage which we are temporarily forced to use is limited and costs enormously. With more goods still on the way, we are forced to sell, and sell immediately. We must have the room at once, and in the circumstances we must have the money, too.

We are going to turn this immense overstock of delayed shipments into cash in one week, and for just this once do a cash business for the sake of the money and the room. Every piece carries a red tag showing the reductions, ranging from 25 to 50 per cent. Now for a big week in this one great sale of all sales.

GOOD ROADS GET A BOOST.

County Association Enlists Many New Members.

Governor's Signature Boom for Better Highways.

Circulation of Petitions Next Important Move.

A pull altogether is all that is needed now to assure good roads in Los Angeles county. Gov. Gillett's signature to the Highway Commission Bill was the last act in the preliminary campaign. From this time forth the responsibility lies with the people of the county who prefer smooth and passable highways to meandering and mud-bound paths for the use of automobiles, carriages and traffic wagons.

Active steps were taken yesterday by the Executive Committee of the Good Roads Association of Los Angeles county, through which the organization will be perfected and the actual work of securing good roads will begin. Scores of names were added to the roster, giving representation to every part of the county. Two additional vice-presidents were named. A resolution was adopted, inviting all improvement associations and other interested organizations to join in the movement.

Secretary Fleming was instructed to communicate with James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture at Washington, requesting him to send to Los Angeles an engineer of the department, who has made a study of good roads. This engineer, it is expected, will be able to make many valuable suggestions in connection with the work that is contemplated. He will have at his command all the information that the Federal government has gathered on the question of good roads.

"GOOD ROADS" BUTTON.

It was decided by the Executive Committee to adopt a "Good Roads" button as an emblem of the association. These buttons will be given to all members and to all other persons signifying a willingness to take up the work of boosting the movement.

Circulars will be sent immediately to all those who have been selected as representatives of the various sections. They will be asked to serve in the cause. Should any decline, others will be selected to succeed them. As soon as the responses shall have been received, a general meeting of the association will be called, when instructions will be issued as to future methods of procedure.

The first act, after the general organization is perfected, will be to circulate petitions throughout the county, calling upon the Board of Supervisors to name the three highway commissioners, who are provided for in the bill that was drawn by the association, these commissioners to make a careful study and to report on the most feasible plan for improving the highways of the county. Later will come the issuance of bonds to carry on the work.

Ross Oscillating Pump Stock Jumps to $2.00 Saturday

NAPOLEON OF PUMPDOM HAS CONQUERED THE WORLD

There is nothing which succeeds like success. The world's demand is for the highest and the best. Man's greatness is determined by his merits and his achievements. The value of an invention is determined by two things: First, by the merits of the article to be manufactured; second, by the demand for the same.

The Ross Oscillating Pump is the simplest in structure, the highest in efficiency and capacity, has been tested and tried and is operated with minimum power.

Its demand is universal. For irrigating, mining, packing-house and ice plants, for condensers upon the marine service, will modernize the fire-engine sytem and is the only pump that can successfully handle liquid asphalt. At present one of these pumps is forcing fifty barrels per hour of 11 gravity oil to an elevation of 66 feet.

The Ross Oscillating Pump Co. was established in business strictly upon the merits of the pump. In six weeks' time the price of our stock has doubled three times. At present it is selling strong at $1.00 per share. Only a few days more remain in which to obtain stock at this price. The price will be $2.00 per share after midnight, March the 30th. We appeal to the judgment of the investor. All we ask is your closest investigation.

Factory No. 1 Is Completed

MACHINERY IS NOW BEING INSTALLED. THIS IS WHERE THE INVESTOR'S MONEY IS BEING SPENT. THIS ADVERTISEMENT SHOWS PICTURES OF THE FACTORY AND A FEW OF THE MACHINES WHICH ARE BEING INSTALLED.

Glimpse of Past History and Future Prospects

Ross Oscillating Pump Company, incorporated January 16, 1907. Capital stock $1,000,000. Treasury stock $400,000. Stock fully paid and non-assessable. Par value $1.

The company was organized and established upon a strong financial basis absolutely upon the merits of the Ross Oscillating Pump without the investment of any capital upon the parts of the incorporators. Within six weeks' time the price of stock has doubled three times. Within forty-four days from the time of corporation stock was selling strong at $1.00 per share, the capital stock of the company being worth $1,000,000. A factory site has been purchased which is worth $20,000. A factory in two sections which is worth $10,000 is being built. Factory No. 1 is now completed. Machinery which will cost $30,000 when both sections are completed is being installed. Orders for pumps have been received from all sections of the country sufficient to run the factory full blast for several months. Our factory will be running about April 15th. The second factory will be rushed to completion as fast as skilled meechanics and ready material can possibly do so. Plans are already being laid for the erection of factories in Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York. The company now has two different opportunities to sell their patent right to the Dominion of Canada. Each advancement in the past has been made with firm and careful step. Those who have invested in the company's stock have been made many times glad.

ROSS OSCILLATING PUMP STOCK AS AN INVESTMENT

There are thousands who have money lying idle in the banks who would be glad and thankful for such an opportunity of making an investment in Ross Oscillating Pump stock if they were only convinced of the absolute merits of the proposition.

We do not wonder at their fear of being robbed of their money by the dealings of unprincipled men.

We blush with shame every day as we read and come in contact with schemes void of principle and merit.

But let us reason together. It is no sign because one friend has been false that another cannot be true or that because you have once made a failure in business that you cannot succeed again. When the child begins to walk you often see him stumble and fall, but if your baby lay on his face on the floor and never tried to rise again you would think something was wrong, but after a few attempts he finally succeeds in walking and never falling.

Now what we want is your confidence, but not without first proving to your own satisfaction the merits of the proposition which we wish to introduce to you. We solicit your most careful investigation. The deeper you go into the responsibility of our company and the merits of this mechanical proposition the better you will please us.

We believe there is no better investment on the Pacific Coast than Ross Oscillating Pump stock. We believe it is better than real estate. The very fact that many are sacrificing real estate that they may buy Ross Pump Stock proves this. A few cases: One man in Long Beach sacrificed real estate upon Signal Hill, came to our office to make an investment. Upon hearing the statement of facts concerning our offer, he doubled his order before leaving the office. Since that time we have received four consecutive orders from himself and family. Another man in Long Beach purchased $1000 worth of Ross Oscillating Pump Stock at 50c per share and later purchased $2000 worth at $1.00 per share. Another man in Pasadena invested $500 with us at 25c per share; later $500 worth at 50c per share, and since stock has raised to $1 he has invested $1000 with us. We are continually offered real estate in exchange for our stock. An investment of $1000 in real estate might possibly bring an increase of 20 to 50 per cent. It might double in value. An investment of $1000 in Ross Oscilating Pump Stock will support a family for a lifetime, beside multiplying itself many times. Conservatively calculating the income to be received from the Pacific Coast factory, and factories to be built in Chicago, Pittsburg and New York, and from the revenue to be derived from the sale of patent rights to foreign countries, we will doubtless be able to declare large dividends u pon a valuation of $25 per share.

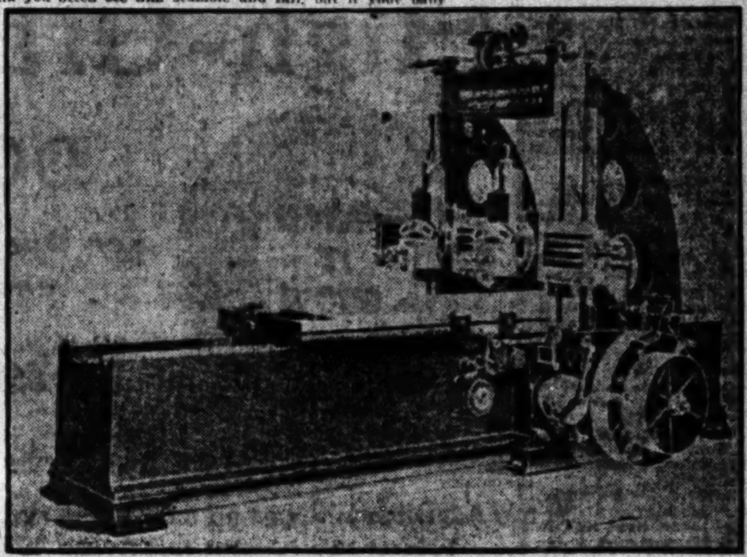
This Is Where the Investors' Money Is Being Spent



30x30 Cincinnati Planer.

We are not advertising a factory which has sprung into existence in one day's time, existing only in the treacherous mind of a deceitful promoter, the location of which is claimed to be in Honolulu, Shanghai, or Hong Kong, where the investor can never visit, and too distant to be investigated. Our factory is located in the fair city of Los Angeles, upon the beautiful Pacific coast. It is built of the best material, put up in the most workmanlike manner. Our machinery is now being installed, the best, most modern and up-to-date which money can buy. Only a few more days and it will be running full blast, manufacturing the Ross Oscillating Pump.

The factory will not be able to supply the demand. If it is run full blast under good management it should net the company 1000 per cent per annum upon the amount invested.

Now, Mr. Investor, shake off your robe of pessimism. Grant us one favor. Allow us the privilege of proving to you the merits of our offer. Opportunity knocks today; it seldom knocks but once. If you are not convinced upon thorough investigation that this is the chance of a lifetime, do not invest. It is no sign—because you have tasted a bitter orange that you should never eat another sweet Washington navel. Try it. It will take the bitter taste out of your mouth. If you have been deceived once you will appreciate a good investment all the more. This proposition has stood the test of hundreds of mechanical and financial giants. It will stand yours.

This will positively be the last week in which you will be able to buy Ross Oscillating Pump stock at $1.00 per share. You will pay $2.00 after midnight March 30th. We believe the people of Los Angeles will believe what we say. In the past we have kept our promises. We have been careful to make wise statements and we have been more careful in keeping them. An investment with us in the beginning might have been made in a spirit of speculation, but at the present and in the future we assure you there is no reason for doubting the safety of an investment with us. The duty of every financier is to invest his money in the first place, where it will be safe; in the second place, where it will bring the largest returns and cause him the least trouble. You need not be extremely wealthy in order to establish a fortune if you will simply investigate the Ross Oscillating Pump stock. The foundations of the greatest fortunes of the world have been laid by the fearless, conservative investment of a small amount of capital in strong, mechanical, industrial stocks. We solicit the most careful and expert investigation of the responsibility of the Ross Oscillating Pump Company, and the merit of the Ross Oscillating Pump. We invite you to call at our beautiful and homelike offices in the Merchants' Trust Building, and we will give you any information you desire with the utmost courtesy. Remember the time is short. Call, write, telephone or wire your reservations at once. If your check, money order or draft is sent before the raise in price your order will be filled at $1.00 per share. Delay will be your loss. Seize the opportunity. Send draft today.

NOISOME DEN.

Saturday nights there are forty men in the place.

The air soon grows foul with liquor-laden breaths. Steam rises from reeking bodies of cholos and sodden tramps. This heavy vapor hangs in a cloud a few feet above the floor. And filth accumulates under foot. The room becomes a pen.

In this pen are men of all sorts and conditions—the brown-skinned peon, the noisy hoodlum from Coyote town, the gray-haired, white-bearded old sot, the hard-handed mechanic who has loitered about saloons when he should have gone home and now sits on the low bench holding his whirling head, and the rich man's son who tried to "run" all of South Spring street while he was entertaining a party of painted women in his auto. All these are mingled in one babbling, cursing crowd.

LOATHSOME LOWER TANK.

As fast as the drunken men become sober the jailors take them to what is called the lower tank. This is a cell enclosed in steel gratings. Down its center extend two long benches. Here the petty prisoners await trial. If they are arrested on Saturday night and not bailed out, they must stay in the tank over Sunday. Gradually on Saturday night the tank fills with prisoners accused of small offenses and on Sunday morning it sometimes holds eighty men. The same conditions of lack of ventilation and horrible effluvia which exist in the drunk cell exist here also, and the lower tank becomes a loathsome place.

When a prisoner has endured the ordeal of such quarters for twelve, twenty-four, or thirty-six hours, as the case may be, he is taken into court. He usually has become a collarless, pale, shambling creature, very weak and very sick.

The petty offenders—the drunk, the small thief, the vagrant and the fighter—get short sentences. They are placed in the chain gang and are housed in the upper tank. Yesterday the upper tank held ninety prisoners. Forty-eight is the biggest number which the men who designed that tank intended it to hold, and results of their prison architecture have not showed these men to be humanitarians.

STEEL FLOOR FOR MANY.

In appearance this upper tank is just like the lower tank except that it has no bench in the middle. Its cells hold forty-eight cots. When the cots are occupied the other prisoners spread their blankets on the steel floor.

Ordinarily these men work from six to eight hours a day at hard labor. Most of them are not hardened to toil and it makes them very lame—which is probably very good for most of them. They come in each afternoon in the rattling chain-gang wagons and unload themselves on First street. There a crowd always collects to watch these shackled men. In the crowd are women and small children. They stare and make comments on the appearance of the human beings who are leaping out of the wagons, first casting ahead of them the heavy iron balls which are chained to their limbs. The prisoners are prone to keep their eyes on the ground and, as a rule, they look sullen.

Most of the men who are undergoing this process of degradation have fought or been drunk. Of course there are in the wagons many who are really hardened offenders. There are, too, often workingmen who have lapsed from straight paths, and hair-brained youths whose greatest offense was rank foolishness. But somehow, with clanking chain and heavy ball and curious eyes upon them, they all come to assume the same sodden, sullen look.

LIVE LIKE SWINE.

After they have gone through the ordeal of scrutiny the prisoners file into the jail. Shortly they are fed and then they go to bed. A steel floor after a day's work is not a pleasant couch. Nor is a room so full of steaming odorous bodies that they touch each other a sweet-scented bed chamber. The unfortunate creatures who work on the chain gang have to live like swine. In fact if a stock owner subjected swine to the same conditions these men endure he would be arrested and in all probability convicted of cruelty to animals.

The conditions described breed a multitude of evils and dangers. It is nearly impossible for the jailors to keep discipline in these crowded tanks. Fights sometimes occur. The ugly things which always happen when a crowd of evildoers are penned together in one enclosure occur here. The jailors have to keep constant watch for fear of "breaks" and attacks on the part of prisoners. The amount of vigilance required of these officers is too great to expect from any one set of men.

And conditions are daily growing worse. For as the city grows larger the population of the jail of necessity increases.

IT IMPRESSES.

With the hardened jailbird these conditions are almost unendurable. Others, who are not hardened, suffer keenly in the Los Angeles City Jail. There are in this city frequent arrests of men who have never before come in contact with the law's strong arm. Such a man, when in custody, very properly gets the same treatment which is given other offenders. Under present conditions this means that a business or professional man, unless he should be so fortunate as to be incorcerated on a felony charge, is cast into a dungeon, ill lighted, foul smelling, laden with disease, and bringing to the mind of the unfortunate prisoner an everlasting impression.

Of course, the hitherto decent citizen is looked upon by the law and its servants in just the same light as are malefactors of a rougher stamp. He gets what they get. But what they get is what no man, be his condition what it may, should meet.

On Saturday night a pair of young men became embroiled in a downtown café. They were arrested. Prior to that time they had been decent enough young fellows and they had seen but little of the world. These callow youths were drunk and hence they must be held until they became sober. One of them was the son of a general manager of a big eastern railroad. The other's father is a prominent banker. The pair stood together in the middle of the drunk cell until morning. About them lay men stupefied with drink. Fighting drunks made the foul air about them fouler with their language, and fought at intervals. Back to back the once hilarious young men stood, trembling. The expression on their faces as they watched the things going on about them was one of extreme fright. At times their eyes widened with horror. They were getting all the police could give them—just treatment. But the place into which their erring footsteps had brought them was one in which no man nor animal should be compelled to stay. The effect of such surroundings as this is sure to be evil and lasting, be the subject who or what he may.

The Climb of # Mohawk-Johnnie

In our Market Letter of a week ago, we said:
buy 'Mohawk-Johnnie,' and buy it at once. Don't wait the latter part of the week, but send in your orders Monday. Before the week is old the stock will have above the present asking price, and those who buy will have netted a handsome profit. We know whereof speak."

The course of the stock in the week ending with has realized our prophecy and vindicated our judgment ing that we did know whereof we spoke. Opening with buyers bidding 15 cents per share and holders asking cents, it advanced steadily and the closing exchange on Saturday was 18 cents bid and 19 cents asked. This advance, an advance of 20 per cent. in six days, was had in face of heavy selling, 40,000 shares being traded in on the stock exchange during the week. One might well with such liberal selling that the price of the stock would some, but such was not the case, for each day of the week it stronger than the day before, the buyers being more ous and eager than the sellers; no stronger tribute to the fide worth of a stock could be paid than this steady bidding for it by experienced operators, this eager of it at advancing prices. The stock is being taken strong people, with a view to holding it for permanent ment, people who realize that as the rich values of the hawk-Johnnie" property are uncovered and the piles of grow in proportions, the stock will bound upward.

We would not be surprised if during this week other ers decided to sell, being unable, possibly, to with temptation to take the bounteous profits afforded by quotations. Our advice is the same as it was last week immediate advantage of any and all offers to sell; the quotations, as advanced as they are beyond the original of this stock, are not near the price limit of the stock urge its purchase at around prices during this week
up. The stock is now listed on both the San Franci Los Angeles stock exchanges, and before long it will on other exchanges, bringing it before a great range of tors and placing it among the stocks of widespread is still among the most sought after of the Southern mining stocks listed on the San Francisco Stock and Board. There has been little trading in it during because holders would not come within the buyers' fact, practically, the stock is not being offered, held fast for the far higher price that everybody the company and its properties knows will be time, and not a very long time, either. We most endorse this close holding. Much as we like to win quick profits, we know that the wait will liberally compensated for. "Things are doing" not at liberty to divulge at this writing, but we they are things that will drive the price of "Crac upward, until the point of par, or $1.00 per share Mind you, this is no mere opinion, but an assertion on record with the prediction that "Crackerjack Gold" to $1.00 per share on the open market, and we that no present holder of "Crackerjack Gold" hastily sell. In order to make quick money, don't money.

The development of the "Crackerjack Gold" property is proceeding utmost satisfaction. The tunnel is now in over 200 feet, for driving it 50 feet more has been let. In the shaft being the great iron-capped dyke which characterizes the property, stringers of copper ore are being encountered. Some of this high as 25 per cent. in the red metal, or a value, at the copper, of $165.00 per ton.

The Rising Tide

The intense activity on the San Francisco Stock and which signalized the closing days of the week, is indicative of revival in the mining stock market; all mining stocks of an upward trend and the sagacious holder and buyer may profits. Most assuredly now is the time to hold fast to have and to secure as much more as you can. Hold your

AND FACTS.

been friction between the
the Reclamation Service who dammed the Colorado start, and there is no their relations now. The

ming the runaway river, but declared that the work would not stand. They said the job could not be done in any such irregular way, and they have not recovered yet from the shock of seeing it accomplished successfully. They looked with scorn upon the levees built by Engineers Cory and Hind, and said they would not hold water because they were designed in violation of all precedent and were wrong side to the river.

Cory said he had good reasons for putting his borrow pits and muck trenches inside, instead of outside, one of them being that a rise of the river would not stop work by filling the borrow pits. A rise came along to test the system, and the railroad men's levees stood without a leak. Just across the river the Reclamation Service engineers are having enough troubles of their own to keep them busy. The water went under their levee in four places, and made a break sixty feet wide in another place. The river bank was cut back 250 feet during the rise, and is now 100 feet inside of the levee location.

If one desires to start a heated argument in any engineers' camp on the Colorado just now, he has only to mention borrow pits and muck ditches. The subject of rock-fill dams is tabooed in the Reclamation Service.

But the disagreements of engineers over details of construction are of minor importance. The important fact is that protective works on the Colorado have stood the test of one flood and kept the errant river in its bed. Imperial Valley is safe now, and the settlers feel confident that the Southern Pacific is able to handle the river and is ready to close another break if one should be made by the coming spring flood. They would not feel so sure of protection if the government should assume the responsibility of meeting an emergency like that of last December.

VERMONT AVE. SQUARE

Increasing Demand Proves Genuine Merit

Vermont Ave. Square is without question the most generous real estate value on the market today. The constant and increasing activity in selling and building of first-class homes is an argument that convinces. During 30 days 85 lots were sold.

And these features are the strong combination which makes the Square the most powerful selling success, even under generally unfavorable weather conditions:—

No mud, no floods, location in the heart of the progressive, growing Southwest, the van guard of the city's march to the sea; excellent street car service; highest class improvements; low prices.

Own Your Home--Don't Pay Rent

Buy a choice homesite at the Square by paying $150 down and the balance in easy installments. Forsake the over-crowding downtown district and locate here, where all city advantages are within 23 minutes' ride on dependable car lines. City transfers on Grand avenue cars. 5-cent fare. 8-minute service.

Big Lots $600 Up

One-Fourth Cash, Balance in Easy Payments

A beautiful public park, covering two city blocks, gives an idea of the generous sums spent for improvements. Wide streets, graded and paved by the Petrolithic process, with broad parking; a city school on the property; cement walks and curbs; independent water supply, with fire hydrants in every block.

There is pure air, sunshine, health at the Square; fine mountain view; ocean breezes; no city noise, dust, odors and smoke.

Vermont avenue, which the Square faces, is to be the boulevard from mountain to sea.

Diseases of Men Our Specialty

We fulfill every promise.
We hold out no false hopes.

Every Man Needs Our Help

No matter what may be your ailment or trouble, we can cure you, if you come to us before the disease has progressed too far. Come and let us examine you, anyway. If we do accept your case you may depend upon it that we will effect a speedy and permanent cure, which will be proof against recurrence or transmission. We cure

BLOOD POISON in all of its stages; new or old;
PILES, FISTULA, and Rectal Diseases;
KIDNEY and BLADDER troubles, Cystitis and Prostatitis;
HERNIA or RUPTURE, Varicocele and Hydrocele;
NERVOUS DEBILITY or Neurasthenia;
SKIN DISEASES, SCROFULA, etc.;
TUMORS, ULCERS and the like;
CHRONIC DISEASES, no matter of how long standing or how contracted.

CHRONIC DISEASES.

We solicit the most stubborn, persistent and long standing cases because we have had success in curing diseases in most aggravated form and never known a failure. We bend every effort to effect a cure, which shall be immediately beneficial, and lasting for the remainder of your life. Our advice how to avoid recurrence of a malady is often worth more than our simple fee for cure. Yet we make no charge for instruction and warning. Many men incur diseases peculiar to their own sex through lack of education upon the subject. We are able to help you regain your powers and retain them. Let us minister to you if you are in trouble or distress.

VARICOCELE.

We cure Varicocele positively without pain, suffering or inconvenience. We guarantee to relieve the most aggravated cases of this disease. We use both an internal, constitutional remedy and a local tratment, which restores the circulation of stagnant blood, and renews your strength and vitality. If neglected, Varicocele often undermines the physical robustness, deranges important functions, and eventually racks the nervous system until irreparable damage is done. Don't experiment. Don't neglect this condition, either. Thousands have done so to their keen regret. This is a delicate matter and we will give you good counsel which will prevent recurrence of the trouble, once we have freed you from it.

RUPTURE.

Sufferers from Hernia will be glad to know that this annoying and dangerous affliction can be cured without resorting to the surgeon's deadly knife. Our treatment is painless, and warranted to fix the breach firmly and heal the wound without recourse to a truss. We never operate unless the patient insists upon it.

RECTAL DISEASES.

We cure Piles and Fistulae scientifically and without pain or discomfort. Once discharged as cured, you never need fear a recurrence of the trouble. If others have failed to cure you, come to us. Our methods avail where others fail.

CONTRACTED AILMENTS.

We cure contracted ailments by medication instead of surgery. We cure painlessly, and speedily. Don't neglect the first symptoms of disease. The sooner we begin to treat, the quicker we can cure. Don't expect the trouble to wear away, and the infection to cure itself. Come to us without delay.

Anti-Toxin Serum

Our method of curing Blood Poison is by injecting Anti-Toxin Serum into the blood, where by its antagonism to the virus of Blood Poison the taint is ejected from the body and mercury and potash poisoning are driven from the blood as well. WE DO NOT DRIVE IN ONE POISON TO DRIVE OUT ANOTHER. We expel all poison from the system by our Serum treatment, which reorganizes the corpuscles of the blood, and empowers them to carry off all effete matter in the natural ducts. The circulatory system is replenished with new fresh blood, which supplies the tissues and rebuilds the entire human organism, so that the bodily functions are restored to normal health and activity.

We offer no other evidance of the reliability of Anti-Toxin Serum than the many hundreds of cases we have cured, many of them advanced into the stages where the patient is disfigured by sores, afflicted with loss of hair and eyebrows, with failing vision and fading vitality, tending towards locomotor ataxia and insanity, and apparently doomed. Within 30 days after beginning our course of treatment, they have been entirely cured, made robust and healthy, without a symptom recurring at any time. The positive effects of Anti-Toxin Serum treatment are noticeable immediately, as the hair resumes its gloss and growth, the skin clears up and sores heal, while the patient begins to increase in weight by the addition of sound, healthy tissue, his cheeks to grow rosy from the pulsing currents of poisonless blood, and in general he feels in one month after commencing treatment that his burden of disease is lifted.

We invite all sufferers from Blood Poison to call and have the treatment explained and become satisfied of the infallibility of the results attained therefrom.

"Come, Brace Up! It Cured Me and It Will Cure YOU"

Why do you sit there depressed by gloomy thoughts; with that sad, discouraged, haggard face, when there is within your grasp the means by which you can regain your strength, energy, ambition and happiness? It is time for you to brace up; be a man; take an interest in the good things of life. Look at me! Wasn't I in the same condition as you? Now, I am happy, full of strength and ready to tackle any obstacle. Yes, I too tried drugs, but they failed. Electricity will not fail. Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt cured me, and it will cure you. No weak man will ever regret a fair trial of this grand Belt—it has brought health and strength to thousands in the past year. Here is one of the many men cured: J. H. Sykes, 437 Centennial st., Los Angeles, says: "I certainly recommend your Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt to all men suffering as I did with nervous debility and general weakness. It cured me." Isn't this alone evidence enough to convince any man that we tell the truth? Here is another. Noble W. Straw, Sta Bar Country Club, Santa Barbara, Cal., writes: "After using one of your Belts for nervousness and weakness I can honestly say that it has completely cured me. I recommend your Belt to all men desiring a permanent cure for these troubles." Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt will make you strong. It will send the warm life blood circulating through your veins. You will feel the cheerful spark warm your frame, a bright flash will come to your eye, and a firm grip to your hand, and you will be able to grasp your friends and neighbors and feel that what others are capable of doing is not impossible to you.

We want to talk with those who have tried every other known remedy; those who have about given up trying and think that there is no cure for them. Do you think you do justice to yourself to fill your poor stomach with drugs day after day, when you can't see anything but temporary stimulation in them? (If you want stimulation, take whisky; it is alcohol, like the drugs, and does less harm taken in the same way.) We want to explain how vital power is restored by electricity, and we can prove to you that vital power is nothing but electricity. Then you can see that your trouble can be cured by electricity and can understand why drugs don't cure you. Come and let us show you the only road to health, strength and happiness. No healthy person was ever unhappy, because a heart full of vitality is light and joyous, and quickly shakes off the gloom and depression which is called grief. Some people are unhappy without cause. That is depression due to weakness.

We have a Special Electric Attachment which we give free to those who wear our Belt. This Attachment carries the current direct to the weak parts, and fills them with its warm, vitalizing power, bringing about a sure and lasting cure. Weakness, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Weak Back, Lumbago, Kidney, Liver or Stomach Trouble, Indigestion and Constipation are all quickly cured by this New Method of ours for applying "Electricity." Don't put it off any longer. Act today. Tomorrow may be too late.

Here is more proof. H. L. Smith, Box 1135, Roosevelt, A. T., writes: "It will be impossible for me to use language strong enough to express the value and great curative power that is in your Belt. Before I began wearing it I had taken lots of medicine of all kinds, all to no purpose. At last I got in such shape that I could hardly get around and I lost all hope of ever getting better, but from the time I began wearing your Belt I improved. I am now entirely cured of rheumatism and general weakness."

It's easy to be cured our way. You put our Belt on when you go to bed; you feel a glowing warmth passing through your body and the electric power gives you new life. When you wake up in the morning you feel bright, lively and vigorous, and you wonder where your pains and aches have gone. Our Belt has removed them and they will never return. That's a better way than making a drug store of your stomach. And who ever saw anybody actually cured by drugs? We tell you drugs don't cure, and if you have tried them you know it. Nearly all our patients tried drugs first.

We have a book which every man should read. It tells facts that are of interest to every man who wants to remain young in vitality at any age. Call if you can; if you can't, send coupon for our beautifully illustrated 84 page Free Book.

I've Cured Hundreds of Men I Can Cure You

I give you what you seldom secure—and what is absolutely necessary to effect a satisfactory course of treatment and make a complete cure—which is personal service. From the time you call upon me, I give you the benefit of my own personal attention.

There's no guesswork about my methods. Many years of experience and making a special study of men's diseases have made it possible for me to diagnose your complaint to an absolute certainty. My examinations are careful and painstaking in the extreme. I make a right start, and that is the reason for my unusual success in this line of practice.

I treat every case privately. All consultations are strictly confidential. I make no charge for medicines. My fees are most moderate and are always understood in advance. I have every appliance necessary to aid in rapid and permanent cures.

If you suffer from Nervous Debility, Blood Poisoning, Kidney Trouble, Varicose Veins, Bladder Trouble, Contracted Diseases, Gravel (stone,) Local Deformities, Stricture and Loss of Nerve Power, I can cure you.

The "Good Goods" Store

Is Full to Overflowing With Choicest Spring and Summer Things

Hardly a day passes that we do not receive big consignments from different manufacturers. If you were to examine these different shipments, as they came in, you would notice the absence of the cheaply made and inferior grades of goods. Many stores, perhaps, have more beautiful fixtures--but when it comes to a question of ACTUAL MERIT and TRUE WORTH OF MERCHANDISE, Hale's, the store of "good goods,"--the store that buys QUALITY instead of FIXTURES RANKS FIRST.

upspringing notes of a "Te Deum," and when the footsteps have gone astray the penitent cannot silence the cry which arises to heaven in the diapason of a "De Profundis" or of a "Miserere."

Poetry is to the intellectual life of man what the golden cup of the poppy is to the California landscape these spring days. It is to the soul what the full-throated song of the thrush is to the morning. Poetry is in literature what the flying buttress, the Gothic spire, "the long-drawn aisle and fretted vault" are to the temple. Poetry is to our whole existence what the flower bed is around our homes, the decorations to our houses, the draperies in our rooms. It is like courtesy at our meals, like the sauce on our meats, the dressing on our salads, the dessert at the end. It is like the bridal veil and the wreath of orange blossoms on the bride and the tints of the rosy blush that mantles in her cheek.

An age that reads no poetry! An age then bereft of imagination, fancy and inspiration. If poetry is to be taken out of our lives, then silence the song of the stream as it bounds down its rocky chasm, singing on its way home to its native sea. Yes, and hush the murmur of the waves as they roll along the sands and the deep diapason of the breakers as they thunder on the rocky headland. Make dumb the lullaby of the evening breeze, and the whisperings of heaven in the morning wind. If in joy and sorrow, in victory and failure, in moments of godlike elevation and those of penitential depression no jubilation or dirge, no paean or moan, no thanksgiving hymn nor penitential litany shall be permitted to escape from the depths of the human heart, through human lips, then let the sun cease to paint the earth in beauty, let his beams cease to chase the shadows from the mountain tops, and to light up the deep recesses of their storm-riven chasms. Take the tints from the rose, the lay from the throat of the songbird, the still, small voice from the breezes in the pine tops. Strip the bride of her wedding garments and her garland of flowers. Take the pictures from the parlor walls, and in their place hang a hammer and a saw, a butcher's knife and a beefsteak. If we are to have no poetry in our intellectual life, let the bride become a mere "rag and a bone and a hank of hair." Take all the bravery from the bridegroom's shoulders, and let him stand forth as the mere forked compass that he is, dressed in a breech clout and an Indian blanket around his shoulders.

An existence without poetry as intellectual food is as barren and circumscribed as four square, bare walls for a home, as a four-square bare room for a sleeping chamber, as a dinner table made of unpainted boards, stools instead of chairs, bare floors and walls, and a meal without knife and fork or spoon, and made up of a boiled potato and a slice of boiled beef. Take poetry out of the intellectual life of the world and the whole thing is grossly materialized where all our philosophy is reduced to the question of butter and eggs and a pound of cheese. Let the man all compounded of dull matter live by his cooks, but there are still some who if they have to stifle the spontaneous song that comes up from the deep well-springs of the spirit will feel that life without poetry and dependent on cooks is hardly worth the living.

XXI—THOMAS A'KEMPIS: DE IMITATIONE CHRISTI.

Turn with me, from the city's clamorous street,
Where throng and push, passions and lusts and hate,
And enter, through this age-browned, ivied gate,
For many summer's birds a sure retreat,
The place of perfect peace. And here, most meet
For meditation, where no idle prate
Of the world's ways may come, rest thee and wait.
'Tis very quiet. This doth still Heaven entreat.

With rev'rent feet, his face so worn, so fair,
Walks one who bears the cross, who waits the crown.
Tumult is past. In those calm eyes I see
The image of the Master, Christ, alone,
And from those patient lips I hear one prayer:
"Dear Lord, dear Lord, that I may be like Thee!"

PRACTICAL ETHICS.

WHY NOT?

FIRST we raise a certain standard as indicative of power and prestige; one held altogether worthy of individual and social esteem, and later, having reared our self-constructed ensign aloft and detecting its flaws, we do not proceed to improve it, but simply to attack it.

Life is, and in the very nature of things must be, a struggle. Moreover, "the struggle for existence" today, becomes the race for wealth tomorrow. Nor should we marvel at this when we glance at our ensign, which reads: "Power Through Material Possession". Theoretically, our glory is "to be"; but practically the measure of man is "to have". To be is much, the worldly wise will tell you, and to be much is certainly most commendable; but to have, is more, say they, and to have much, is a state for all practical purposes the most desirable.

Hence a man's material acquisition determines his rank in every sphere of life—in business, in politics, in society, aye, in the church—then pray, why not, why should men not bend every effort upon securing that which has power to distinguish them as the most fit for the high places of the world? People spend toilsome days and weary nights, for what? Is it for the mere delight of gathering in the coin itself, or, is it not for the much coveted equivalents which it lies in the power of money to give? What men seek is personal dominence, or self-indulgence; and since money is commonly held to be the chief, if not absolutely the sole means for gratifying their desires, they will continue with, or without conscience, to battle for it.

In remarking upon the tendency of American scholars to drift more and more into commercial fields, an eminent teacher in one of the great eastern universities took occasion to comment with a touch of sad regret upon the difference between European and American aristocracy. That there should be an aristocracy at all in a land which guarantees equal rights and opportunities to every one seems inconsistent; but the man of broad and widely diversified knowledge, and of expert psychological insight stated that the reason why the men of the most brilliant intellect and of most pronounced executive ability were engaging in commercial pursuits, was to be found in the fact that in the United States there was but one aristocracy—money. In Europe, on the other hand, there were still three aristocracies, the aristocracies of birth, of culture and of wealth.

However, this is not to be construed as an unpatriotic position of the learned gentleman to whom we refer, but rather was the expressed regret born of a deep love of his own country, and of a just pride in the capability of her sons and daughters. His grievance was that a pure money standard should be set over and above intellectual opulence, and genuine ethical and spiritual culture. For, where there is but one aristocracy, and that an aristocracy of wealth, why should not men and women aspire to be accounted eligible to admission in a class of popularly acknowledged, though artificially created superiors.

So long as the goal of the best human endeavor is riches, and so long as the necessary advantages to the completion of a life of educative interest, and of productive intelligence in our day, absolutely require a financial basis, it is useless to decry the general trend toward those occupations and employments that hold out the much-prized inducement of earning an equitable share of the world's money. For in a civilization of constantly increasing complexity, not only are the positively poor at an enormous disadvantage in any attempt to compete against the rich, but even those of moderate means, although otherwise strong and brave, are often forced to recede owing to the more powerful equipment of the better financed opponent.

Hence it is equally useless to argue that the world's loftiest souls, those who have in the past contributed most to what in the present is of highest moral and spiritual value, were of the poorest in an economic sense. It is all in vain under existing conditions, to relate, for instance, the noble sacrifices of Saint Francis and to detail the devout asceticism of the members of his consecrated order. At a time of the world's moral and religious history, when every virtuous deed on earth was actuated and executed in the fervent expectation of recompense in heaven, the renunciation of all worldly possession was not a difficult task to deeply earnest and faithful individuals.

We have said that it is of no avail to set forth such extreme instances of self-abnegation with our twentieth-century standards of material prosperity and success. Nor would we exhort to imitation or emulation of Middle-Age asceticism; an ideal of life unadapted to the needs and development of an age dominated by a more rational conception of the purpose of religion, and by an increasingly progressive view of morality. Again, far be it from us to assert that mankind in general is no longer sensible to the heroic efforts of saints and martyrs, however mistaken they may be from our point of view. Granting all the goodness and all the glory that properly attach to high purpose and to sincere, self-sacrificing practice, men and women of today, nevertheless urged on by the material demands of our time, are prone to regard the practical aspects of every proposition even to the exclusion of its ethical or spiritual import. The considerations for which they enlist in the battle of life, are primarily material; and so long as the happiness and advancement of the individual can only proceed on a substantial economic basis, what cause for criticism have we, when people act in accordance with the prevailing social ideals? If money is the measure of all things, then why should men above all things seek money?

IN ATLAS MOUNTAINS.

OLDEST WHITE RACE OF THE WORLD AND ITS HOMES.

From Our Own Correspondent.

MAILLOT (Algeria.)—Have you ever heard of the white race of the Atlas Mountains? Its people have features like ours, and some of them have blue eyes and red hair. Many have rosy skins and complexions so fair that if dressed in European clothes they would not be out of place in London, Paris or New York. Others are darker, from their admixture with the Arabs and Moors, but they are still a people of their own kind, and strong enough to impress their brand on their offspring

This race is scattered through the mighty mountains of northwestern Africa. It is composed of the Berbers or Kabyles, who are numbered by millions and are found everywhere in these hills.

The Atlas Mountains begin opposite the Canary Islands, well down the Atlantic Coast, and run from southwest to northeast for a distance of more than 1500 miles, ending near Cape Bon, below the Island of Sicily. They are longer than from Philadelphia to Omaha, and wider than the distance between Washington and New York. The region altogether is more than one-seventh the size of the United States proper, and including the valleys it has has a population of 15,000,000 or more.

Fully one-half of these people are made up of the descendants of this white race, and if we take the tribes which have left the mountains and gone down into the lowlands and desert, they will number still more. The Tuaregs, the fierce brigands of the Sahara, who wear black veils night and day and scour the desert on camels, robbing the caravans, are of Berber origin, and so are the Biskris and others who come from far down in the Sahara to do the heavy work about the wharves of the Algerian ports. There are several million Berbers in Morocco, where they have divided up into hundreds of tribes. They live in the mountains and are lawless and wild. The band of Raisuli, which kidnaped Ion Perdicaris, is one of them, and they are the main cause of the danger to foreigners in that country today.

The Oldest White Race on Record.

The Berbers are the oldest white race upon record, and if we could trace our own forefathers back into the dark ages we should probably find that they are our cousins. They are supposed to have come here from southern Europe, but, if so, it was when Europe was savage and when our ancestors were still eating with their fingers and sleeping on skins in the wilds of the forests.

Indeed, the Berbers were here when Athens was in its infancy and when Rome was yet to be born. There are records in the Egyptian temples dating as far back as 1300 years before Christ, which speak of them as having rosy cheeks, blue eyes and red hair, and we find them fighting with the Phoenicians, the Carthaginians, the Romans, the Goths and the Vandals. They were conquered again and again, but they fled to their fastnesses in the Atlas and have kept their individuality to this day.

When the Arabs came, the Berbers were again overcome, and they adopted the Mohammedan religion, but they have modified it to suit themselves, and they have still their own ways and customs, as they had in the past. The Kabyle women do not veil their faces, and the men are satisfied to have but one wife. A large number, however, have intermarried with the alien races, and there are now among them as many brown skins as fair skins. The fierce African sun darkens the lighter-hued Kabyles in the summer, and they take on the brown, roseate complexions of Italy, Spain [illegible] south France.

Among the Kabyles of the Grand Atlas.

I have seen many of these fair-skinned Berbers [illegible] Kabyles since I came to the black continent [illegible] months ago. I met them first in Morocco and [illegible] Spanish Africa, and I have found them everywhere [illegible] ing my travels in Algeria. I have spent the past [illegible] in Grand Kabylia, where they are almost the [illegible] itants, and have gone from village to village [illegible] gating their customs and photographing them [illegible] and in their homes. Within the past three days I [illegible] ridden for more than a hundred miles through the [illegible] est of these African mountains, crossing the Grand [illegible] chain from Tizi-Ouzou, the capital of Kabylia, [illegible] of Fort National and Michelet, over a pass [illegible] high as Mount Washington, and then coming [illegible] this little town of Maillot, in the rich valley [illegible] Tell, where I now am.

The road we took over the mountains [illegible] tance of about 170 kilometers. It was [illegible] French as a military highway to hold the [illegible] order, and it is so smooth that one could [illegible] an automobile. Indeed, I was offered an [illegible] the trip at a cost of $25 per day, but I [illegible] should have to pay one day's return [illegible] day I used the machine, making the cost [illegible] diem; there was also danger of a [illegible] mountains, and I concluded to hire a [illegible] This I got for $15 per day. The mountains took on all tints and shades, and their sides became a patchwork of many colors, which we saw through a thin veil of gold. On other hills the veil was a delicate lavender, and on others snow-white tinged with rose-pink. As the sun disappeared a band of royal purple ran around these mountain peaks, resting below them, while there were bands of burning copper above and below.

In the Kabyle Villages.

The most striking feature of the whole of these Atlas scenes is the human interest which shines out of their every picture. The Kabyle villages are everywhere. There are thousands of them in the Algerian mountains. Every great hilltop is spotted with them, and they cap all the lower peaks. The people build right on the tops of the hills. Their little huts are of stone and plaster, with roofs of red tile. The walls are whitewashed, and every town makes a great patch of white and red on the landscape.

The villages are usually far off the road and are reached only by mule paths. I climbed up and visited some of them. One was entered by a gate forming a sort of loafing place for the gowned, bronzed-faced, turbaned citizens. Passing through this, I was right in the settlement. The houses stand close together, built along narrow streets with no pavements of any kind. They are all of one story, and look more like stables than homes. The doors are rude, although some have carving upon them. They enter into a court upon which are sometimes two houses, the walls of both facing the street. The average house is about fifteen feet square; it has a ridge roof, which is seldom more than twelve feet in height at the comb. Here in the Atlas these roofs are of red tile, and in other places they are of thatch.

The houses are entered from the court by doors as rough as those which face the street. They are absolutely without ornamentation. They have no windows, and, with the exception of a little hole about a foot square under the roof at one end, no light but that which comes in at the door.

In a Berber Home.

Let me give you a picture of one of these Berber homes which I visited yesterday. My dragoman, Emmanuel Zammit, who speaks the Kabyle language, acted as my interpreter, and through him the owner gave us permission to enter. We had tried at several other houses, but the women ran from us as though we had the plague, and the boys slammed the court doors in our faces.

Like all Mohammedans, the Kabyles are jealous, and their women will have nothing to do with strange men. In this case both husband and wife were at home, and the man was more liberal than most of his kind. He did not introduce us to his wife, but she was with him in the hut, and, as usual, unveiled. She had a baby at her breast, and there were a half dozen small children sprawling over the floor. Indeed, we had to step carefully at first for fear of tramping a baby, but as our eyes became accustomed to the darkness we got along very well.

In this house there was no sign of what we call furniture. There were neither chairs nor tables. The members of the family were sitting around a pile of figs which they were sorting as we entered. They sit on the floor and eat squatting about the single bowl which usually contains the main dish of each meal. They eat with wooden spoons, using a common knife. They eat most things with their fingers, and often break up bread and soak it in the soup or stew. They have meat about once a week, but their chief diet consists of fruit and of bread made of wheat or other grain. They grind their meal themselves, sometimes in the family mill and sometimes in one belonging to the village in common.

In a little home like this the winter supplies of the family are stored. One of the receptacles I noticed was a stone jar for figs, with a hole in the bottom to allow the juice to run out; another was a larger vessel of the same material for wheat of corn. The latter would hold perhaps twenty bushels. There was also a large clay jar for the olive oil, which is made on the little home farm and pressed out by the family.

I asked where the cooking was done, and in reply the woman pointed to a hole in the floor in one corner of the hut. The floor is the bare rock, so that there is no danger of fire.

Sheep and Donkeys Sleep With the People.

As I looked about me, I heard a sheep bleating. It was apparently right under my feet, and turning around I saw a long-eared ram and a nanny goat looking at me from under a shelf at the back of the hut. This shelf was the chief sleeping-place of the family, and the space below it served as a stable. There were some chickens in the same place, and at night the donkeys and other animals belonging to the family are brought in and all sleep together. These Kabyle sheep are tame, and they follow their masters from place to place like dogs. The people have many sheep, which they pasture on the mountains in one common flock watched by a shepherd. The sheep and goats are brought into town every night. As soon as they enter the village each runs for its own home and remains there until morning.

Some of these Kabyle women are fine-looking. The wife of my host was about 20, and she would have been considered pretty in any crowd of American maidens. Her cheeks were rosy and her features as regular as those of the Venus de Medici. She wore a dress of bright red calico which came almost to her feet, but still showed the heavy silver rings about her bare ankles. She had heavy earrings and bracelets. Around her neck was a chain to which many ornaments were hung, and her breast was covered with great pins of white metal set with bright-colored stones. I venture that she had at least two pounds of jewelry upon her. Her eyelids were blackened to add to her beauty, and she was also tattoed on the cheeks and on the forehead and chin.

Nearly all the Kabyle women I have seen are tattooed, and even the poorest wear more or less jewelry. Outside this, many are ragged, and those who go through the streets have their skirts so pulled up that they show a large expanse of bare calf. I see them doing all sorts of hard labor. They carry water from the village well in clay jars; they gather the wood needed for cooking, and not a few labor out in the fields. Indeed their situation makes one think of the vaudeville song:

> "Oh, the women do the work, do the work,
> While the men lie around the house"

Or of that other sweet and well-known ditty—

> "Everybody works but father."

Thrifty, but Lazy.

The Kabyle men are a strange combination of thriftiness and laziness. I saw many of them loafing about the streets, while the women passed by loaded with all sorts of burdens. While at home they let their wives do as much as they will, but at the same time they will hire out to the French farmers of the Tell to aid in planting and harvesting the crop. At such times they make from 40 to 60 cents a day, and save almost the whole of it. They are accumulative, and many of them amass small fortunes of a few hundred dollars or so.

Indeed, these people have many qualities which distinguish them from the Arabs and Moors, by whom they are surrounded. Their white blood crops out in their desire for independence and self-government. They are ruled by the French, but as to local matters they govern themselves. Each town is a little republic, with its own council and a public meeting-house where town affairs are discussed. It has its own municipal laws and elects its own officials. Each village has a mosque and a school. The school is supplied with teachers by the French, and the children are taught to speak and write French as well as Arabic. The mosques are rude affairs, but the Kabyles go to them regularly and face Mecca as they pray. They are naturally religious, but they have changed the Mohammedan faith to suit themselves, and they have their own ideas of morals, right and justice. Many of them are intelligent, and altogether they have most of the qualities which have made the white race the ruling one in other parts of the world.

A DOUBTFUL LOVER.

Fair Mildred has a rounded form
  Of shapeliness divine,
Displaying most bewitching curves
  Of grace in every line,
But even while I contemplate
  Her figure with delight,
I wonder if she takes it off
  When she retires at night.

She has a wealth of golden hair.
  This paragon of girls,
It frames her brow in silken waves
  And shining braids and curls.
It's never straight or stringy when
  By damp east breezes blown,
I wonder if those sunny locks
  Are Mildred's very own.

The color of a damask rose
  Is on her oval cheek,
The perfect tint of youth and health
  That many vainly seek,
But still a cruel, carping doubt
  My admiration mocks,
I wonder if perchance she keeps
  Her blushes in a box.

THE FOLLY OF AN AGE LIMIT.

President McCrea, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has acted wisely and commendably in raising the age limit at which men may enter the employ of his company from thirty-five to forty years. There was never a more senseless notion than that which would limit the age of efficient service to sixty or even sixty-five. Many of the strongest men in public and business life are over sixty, and some of them are beyond seventy. Farragut was sixty at the beginning of the Civil War, and Oyama was over sixty-three at the outbreak of the war between Japan and Russia. Haydn wrote his oratorio of "The Creation" after he was sixty-seven, Goethe finished his "Faust" at eighty-two, and Humboldt his "Cosmos" at seventy-six. Among grand old men in the annals of American statesmanship it is sufficient to mention the names of George F. Hoar, John Quincy Adams and Thaddeus Stevens. Henry Ward Beecher never preached better than in the last year of his life. J. Pierpont Morgan and H. H. Rogers, both over sixty, do not yet begin to show signs of senility, and Mark Twain is still "cutting up," though past seventy.—[Leslie's Weekly.

That to be poor without losing self-respect or a sense of enjoyment is a fine art.

THE YOUTH WHO HAS COME INTO POSSESSION OF HAWARDEN.

By a Special Contributor.

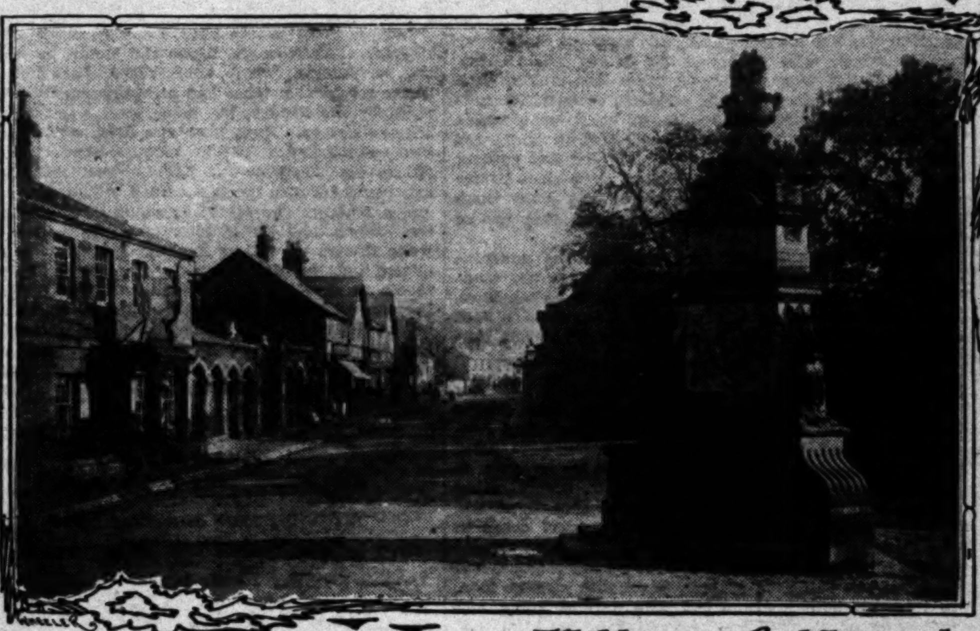
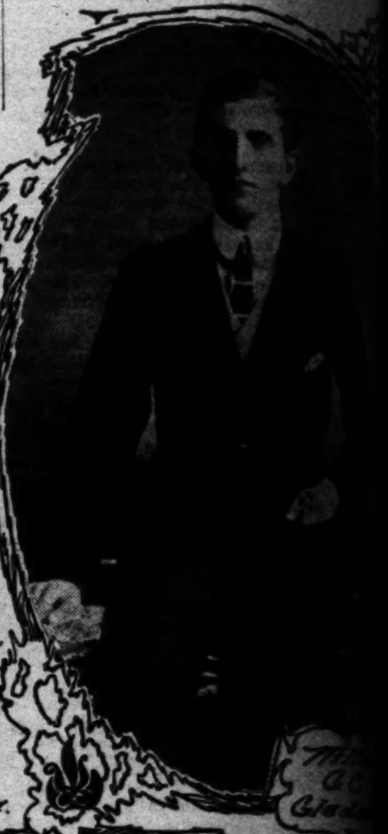
ON THE 14th of July, 1906, William Glynne Charles Gladstone, son of the late W. H. Gladstone, and grandson of the greatest statesman of the Victorian era, attained his majority and came into possession of Hawarden, one of the most notable estates in the British Isles. He was born in London in the year 1885, made memorable as that in which Mr. Gladstone declared himself for home rule.

The estate in Wales is situated seven miles from quaint Old Chester, in England, which counts its pilgrims each year by the thousand, and a large number, perhaps a vast majority of them, pay their respects to Hawarden.

Passing over the border from England into Wales one is at once conscious of a change in the whole face of the country—the villages, people, landscape and even the very road one follows effect the change.



Village of Hawarden.



Wil G C Glad

And for a young London-bred lad who has been reared and tutored, and in the course of ordinary events sent to college, just as many another young man has been, to be borne over the line by kind nature to his twenty-first birthday, making him heir to vast landed estates, lord of a great castle and one of the most conspicuous squires in the country, is a change indeed, and but proves that the stars must have been in favorable conjunction when he was born.

Young Gladstone celebrated the actual anniversary of his birth at his home in Berkeley Square, London, where he and his mother received the family only. But the grand celebration in which the tenantry, neighbors and villagers were to take part was set for three days of the same month at Hawarden, beginning with the 25th. However, the morning of the 14th found the populace of Hawarden up early. Remembering the many past favors they had received at the hand of their former and illustrious lord, they were anxious to do honor to his grandson, the new. By daybreak flags were flying from newly erected flagstaffs, streamers were given the freedom of the breezes along the road, and a large ensign bearing the cross of St. George floated from the church tower. As soon as the telegraph offices were open messages of congratulation were wired to London by tenants, friends and fraternities. The bells rang out at intervals all day, and within the beautiful little church, which is some mile and a quarter from Hawarden Castle, and where Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gladstone walked to church each morning, workmen were hurrying to complete the placing of a monument of the grand old man and his honorable wife in the chapel built to receive it. During Mr. Gladstone's life he read the service in this church every morning throughout the period of the year that he spent at Hawarden. At the door as one enters is a large book on a table, and over it a printed card reading: "Visitors are requested to write their names here."

Young Gladstone arrived at Hawarden the day before the fete, July 24, and so great was the enthusiasm of the people that when he appeared on the platform they took the horses from his carriage, came to meet him, and drew him all the way to his castle. That night such a celebration took place as we in America reserve for the Fourth of July. Huge bonfires were lighted, all about on the adjacent hills, that could be seen even as far as Liverpool. Cannons were fired that shook the many-hundred-year-old foundations in Chester, and starry rockets went up into the sky in such profusion that the hamlet of Hawarden was illuminated as it had never been before. The streets were crowded with men, women and children, and the merry making continued until long past midnight.

The fete of the following day began with a luncheon served under the trees to the large land holders. This was followed by entertainment of various sorts in the afternoon, and in the evening a grand torchlight procession, which marched to the music of many bands, ended the day.

The second day's festivities continued with a garden party for friends and neighbors. On the beautiful acres of green turf that stretch in every direction from the castle were chairs by the hundred, innumerable tables for the serving of the feast, and from one patriarchal tree to another hammocks were swung in numbers, while tennis, cricket and croquet grounds were at the disposal of the guests, who came in response to exquisite cards of invitation on which were engraved young Gladstone and his castle. The picture presented by the fete was like that of a highly colored and rare old print, with castellated castle and giant trees in the background, and in the fore wonderfully gowned women and stately squires, walking on a gorgeous green lawn. Addresses of welcome were made by friends and happily responded to by the young lord, thus terminating another pleasant day.

The last and third day of the celebration was given over entirely to the children. All of the children over 5 years of age belonging to the tenants and those of the parish schools, their arms full of flowers, headed by a regimental band, wearing the most important airs over the honor that was theirs, dressed all of them in their

Sunday best, their excitement evident over the thought that they might forget their verses, marched along the shady avenues to the castle, where their new lord was waiting to greet them with a declaration of welcome from the parapet where his grandfather stood when he made speeches to his friends, political and otherwise. Perhaps there is no greater indication of the character of a man than his attitude toward children, and young Gladstone showed evidence of much kindliness in his attitude toward these enthusiastic youngsters, who gave him their flowers, spoke for him their pieces and sang him their quaint little songs, some of which had been composed especially for the occasion. So the three days' fete ended with good hopes and fond wishes. Such days as the young lord's grandfather had in mind when he wrote:

"I regard it as a very high duty to labor for the conservation of estates and the permanence of the families in possession of them, as a principal source of our social strength, and as a large part of true conservatism."

The estate comprises between 750 and 800 acres, about 250 or more of which are in park, and the remainder in farm and grazing land. The property, which had descended in line to Sir Stephen Glynne, brother of Catherine Glynne, who married W. E. Gladstone, became seriously involved many years

Bride of Westinghouse

LADY BROCKLEBANK TELLS STORY OF ENGAGEMENT.

From a Special Correspondent.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—As will be seen from the accompanying photograph, Miss Evelyn Violet Brocklebank, daughter of Sir Thomas and Lady Brocklebank, whose engagement to George Westinghouse, Jr., of Pittsburgh, has just been announced, is a remarkably pretty girl. She is shown in the dress she wore when presented to the King at one of his recent courts. Being a beauty and well dowered, it was generally expected that she would make a brilliant match, but few anticipated that she would win such a rich matrimonial prize as the Pittsburgh multi-millionaire's son and heir. Not a little envy is mingled with the congratulations which her unmarried feminine friends are showering upon her, for Americans, especially the rich ones, have the reputation here of making the best and most indulgent husbands in the world.

A romantic story was cabled over here, and doubtless widely circulated in America, that Miss Brocklebank and young Westinghouse first met only a short time ago at his father's mammoth Pittsburgh establishment, and although greatly impressed by the intelligence and gentlemanly demeanor of the workman in the overalls who showed her over the works, she had no idea that he was the world-famed inventor's son. And when she found out who he was, Cupid's work had been already done, and young Westinghouse had no trouble in completing the conquest.

"The 'workman' story," Lady Brocklebank writes me, "is pretty, but incorrect. Mr. and Mrs. Westinghouse and Sir Thomas Brocklebank and I are old friends, and, on his first visit to England, Mr. George Westinghouse met Miss Violet Brocklebank when he came with his parents to Irton Hall."

Irton Hall.

Miss Evelyn Violet Brocklebank.

George Westinghouse was a mere boy then, and Miss Violet had not long been emancipated from the nursery. But the multi-millionaire's son was a frequent guest at Irton Hall, and as the years sped on, he and Miss Violet became great friends. From that to love the step was easy. As may be gathered from the photograph of Irton Hall, it is a charming old place, and lends itself much better to the activities of the little blind god than a factory filled with whirling machinery.

The greater part of the house belongs to the Elizabethan period, but various additions have been made to it from time to time. The tower which appears on one side of the mansion is much older than the main building. It is of Saxon origin, and at least 900 years old. The old oak in the foreground, it is believed, may claim equal antiquity.

Sir Thomas Brocklebank is 56 years old and a great Liverpool shipowner. He has a fine town house in Liverpool itself, and besides Irton Hall, in Cumberland, has two other country seats.

FAKED CURIOS.

FRAUDULENT MUMMIES, MARBLE, OLD CHINA AND OLD MASTERS.

[Pearson's Weekly:] We have heard of the wooden nutmeg, and of the smart Yankee who sharpened wooden shoe pegs at both ends and sold them for oats. But the gentry who did business in these frauds were mere raw amateurs compared to the modern faker. It is a solemn fact that there is literally nothing of any value of which you cannot purchase a fraudulent but usually excellent copy.

Antiques of all kinds most of us shy at nowadays. We know well enough that dinginess, a signature, and an ancient frame are no guarantees of the genuineness of an old master. But it is doubtful whether it is generally realized how immense is the extent of the modern trade in shams, and the amazing numbers of factories which are turning out nothing else.

Some of these fakes are quite out of the common run. For instance, you can now always get a fair price for the shed antlers of red deer, although formerly these were not of much value. The horns go to a certain Scottish town where the purchaser fastens them on the heads of hinds, and sells them as trophies to Cockney sportsmen who know no better.

Another new industry, of which the headquarters are in a back street in South London, is the manufacture of artificial butterflies. A number of girls are employed spreading a very thin gum over the wings of ordinary butterflies, and then tinting them with delicate metallic powders of many different beautiful hues.

Paris is one of the great centers of fake factories, especially for old china and stained glass. There is one "faker," whose name is familiar in English salerooms, who has made more than half a million out of his "genuine" shams.

But the odd thing is that the best imitations of modern Sèvres china come from Leipzig. The marks on this stuff are boldly forged, and the amount of this special brand of fraudulent china already in existence must have cost at least three-quarters of a million to manufacture, and no doubt at least two and a half millions of collectors' money has been spent upon it.

The prime cost of a Sèvres plate from the Leipzig factory, forged trade-mark included, is two and six. By the time that plate has reached London, it is priced at £5. Efforts have been made to suppress this Leipzig Sèvres factory, but it is very difficult to get at the forgers. The trade-mark of the real Sèvres factory has been changed three times in the past century, and the two former trade-marks are imitated with impunity.

At Florence is a famous establishment for the forgery of antique marbles. The marble is of the best, and the work, too, is first-class. It is in the aging of the status that the art of the faker comes into play. Various acids are used, which give the marble the very tint of extreme antiquity. And mark the cunning of the fakers! The marble is not merely stained on the outside. You may chip it half an inch deep. The color has penetrated. Such a test would deceive any one short of an expert.

In a back street in a Sicilian town is the great center whence the halls of nearly all the modern millionaires are supplied with the armour of their ancestors. Here, also, the work is excellently done. The swords and helmets are perfect copies of genuine antiques.

The wonderful part of the place is the laboratory. The owner possesses secrets by the score for treating metals of all kinds, so as to give them the true appearance of extreme age. It is not easy work either, for though iron and steel may be treated with acids, brass and gold and silver need extremely careful and cunning handling.

London is the home of old furniture. Never mind what period you require, Elizabethan, Charles I, Queen Anne, Chippendale, you can buy it all at a price not far from Tottenham Court Road.

It should be mentioned that all the best of this sham antique furniture is made from really old wood. The best of modern "old masters" are likewise painted upon the old canvas of inferior pictures, from which the paint has been removed with certain chemicals.

Luxor may boast of the doubtful honor of being the headquarters of the Egyptian spurious antiquity manufacture. Scarabs, beads taken from tombs, besides whole mummies and coffins, are turned out here wholesale, and the trustful tourist leaves thousands behind him yearly in payment for flagrant shams.

Palm Sunday.

HOW IT IS CELEBRATED IN DIFFERENT COUNTRIES.

By a Special Contributor.

AWAY across the seas, where the sun blazes with far greater warmth at this season of the year than it does in our land, the people of Servia have a tradition that the Palm Sunday bells and chimes say to the spring flowers "Awake, awake, and make ready to greet the risen Lord."

The Palm Sunday service in that land is one of the most beautiful held on any part of the globe. Early in the morning, the people of the Greek church arise and watch for the first peep of the sun. As soon as the dawn breaks they leave their homes and make their way in the hush of the early morning to the courtyard of the great church where they are given an unlighted candle in exchange for a silver piece.

When the head priest appears in the doorway with a lighted taper in his hand, all bow, and the one nearest reaches out his candle which the priest touches with the flames and from one to another the light is passed along.

The great throng then pours into the church, where huge bundles of palms lie piled up at the altar. After a very short mass the priest blesses the palms and hands them about among the kneeling congregation. As a palm branch is received the candle is extinguished, and when the church is in utter darkness the congregation again kneels for a blessing and then pours out into the now glorious sunshine, if the day be favorable, and breaking forth into song, part religious and part descriptive, song for which the Servian people are famous the world over, they march to the edge of the woods near which their church stands, waving their palm branches and reveling in the glory of the springtime.

The woods reached, silence falls again, and the crowd stands listening. In a few minutes the sweet notes of the church chimes break the stillness and once more the people push forward, bending low this time, seeking the first buds of spring. These are tenderly gathered and carried home, where they are wrapped in tissue paper and soaked in soda and water and put away in the dark to await the dawn of Easter Day.

On Easter morning these buds, gathered on Palm Sunday and, awakened by the breeze of the swaying palm branches waved above them and the call of the bells, are brought forth, put in water where they quickly open, and carried to the church for the second mass.

Over in Roumania another peculiar palm service is held. Great armfuls of palms are carried to a hill called Palmeato on the afternoon preceding Palm Sunday, and here at dusk the priests march chanting and swinging the censers. They hold a short service among themselves during which the Holy Ghost is supposed to hover over the palms in blessing. Holy water is sprinkled over the greens, and the priests march away. The entire village stand in their doorways watching for the return of the priests, who say as they pass their people: "It has been accomplished; go thou to the hill for thy blessing."

As soon as the priests reach the church the cathedral bell is tolled as a signal to the people that the hour for the march to Palmeato has come. They go in an orderly procession and the blessed palms are gathered by five of the oldest men of the village, selected for that purpose, and distributed among the waiting multitude.

Slowly wending their way to the top of Palmeato the crowd marches on singing ballads of the resurrection of Lazarus. The song grows to great volume as the hilltop is reached and dies away as the palm-bearing procession wends its way down the opposite side.

Before sunrise on Sunday morning the young people, carrying their palms with great care, go to the wells and fountains from which they usually get water, and dance in a ring, waving their green branches and singing in chorus songs of the stag, of his horns disturbing the water, while his eyes make it pure and clear. This blessing of the water is an important Palm Sunday ceremony and a very pretty one.

Perhaps in no other country is the medieval picturesqueness of Palm Sunday more faithfully preserved than in Spain. The people buy great quantities of palms and strew them along the highways in commemoration of Christ's entrance into Jerusalem, and in many of the small towns a large collection is taken up during the year, in the churches, for this purpose. The choir boys, robed in white, are given armfuls of the lovely palms and, forming long lines, march from their respective churches down the streets selected, scattering the greens and singing hymns of gladsome welcome.

In Madrid and other large Spanish cities the people go to the church on the eve of Palm Sunday to secure their palm and olive branches, and on Sunday morning they march to the church for a final blessing of the palms. Here a little ceremony intended to represent the entrance of Christ into Jerusalem is performed. The entire congregation leaves the church by the side door, makes a tour around the building to the main door, called the door of the Apostles, which is found closed, with a golden cross nailed over the center.

The leading priest knocks three times just below the cross, while the people bow their heads and stand in hushed expectancy. The door is flung open, after the first rap, by an unseen person on the inside and the people shout: "He has entered, He will bless us as we enter after." Preceded by the priest, they pour into the main body of the church, where the regular Palm Sunday mass is conducted.

At St. Peter's, in Rome, the Palm Sunday service is one of great pomp and display. The Pope, splendidly arrayed in robes glistening with gold and precious gems, is carried from the Vatican down long avenues of men, women and children with their foreheads touching the ground. He is carried aloft on the shoulders of eight dignitaries chosen for that office and carried straight to the famous St. Peter's.

His entire court is in attendance, and the high priests bring him palm branches which he blesses and on which he sprinkles holy water. This ceremony is performed behind closed doors with only the court and officiating priests in attendance. When the great doors of the church are flung open, there pours from the [illegible] surging mass which armed officers have [illegible] in keeping in order. Despite the [illegible] there is always a pushing and a crowding [illegible] the crowd appear very much like [illegible] than awed worshipers.

When the church is filled to suffocation [illegible] pay homage to His Holiness on his throne, [illegible] cording to precedence and bowing three times [illegible] Pope—a bow for each member of the Trinity [illegible] kissing the border of the cope which [illegible] hand. The choir commences with the [illegible] children, after which come appropriate [illegible] chants. The gospel finished, the second [illegible] monies gives artificial palm branches to the [illegible] deacon and subdeacon, who, kneeling before the [illegible] hold them up for his blessing. While the [illegible] cross is made over them, a prayer is offered [illegible] will bless all those who will carry them with [illegible] timents.

The cardinals again pay homage, as each [illegible] palm from the Pope, kissing the hand that [illegible] palm itself, and the right knee of the holy father. [illegible] them in the order of the procession follow the [illegible] hierarchal ranks down to the mitred abbots, [illegible] all that succeed them, kiss simply the [illegible] Last of all come the military and the foreigners [illegible] tinction at Rome who are admitted to this [illegible] bearing away a palm. This, with the [illegible] service, takes up a great deal of time, and is a [illegible] some affair. The music of the Pope's choir is [illegible] that Italy can provide, and the procession, [illegible] first time in St. Peter's in all its elaborate [illegible] is worth perhaps all the squeezing and [illegible] room which it occasions.

In some of the old English villages, so [illegible] as to have their sunshine blurred by the [illegible] city occasionally, the people hold to the old [illegible] Sunday custom of partaking of the pax or [illegible] they exchange bits of greens with each other. [illegible] parish in Herefordshire this ceremony has [illegible] formed without break for centuries.

A number of the women of the parish [illegible] bake the pax cakes, and on Saturday they [illegible] to the parsonage, where they remain over [illegible] Sunday morning they are taken into church [illegible] been cut into convenient size the night before [illegible] minister, and after a short service are distributed [illegible] the congregation. All among the gathering [illegible] quarreled during the year are supposed [illegible] each other and, each breaking a bit from [illegible] slice of cake, say solemnly: "May peace [illegible] abide between us henceforth." This over, [illegible] great waving of the greens by the entire [illegible] and each member exchanges his bit of willow [illegible] ever he may have, with another, as a sign [illegible]

In London, a great many who are not "[illegible] go off into the country for the day, bringing [illegible] branches of willow or sallow with their [illegible] buds, and these they wear during Holy Week [illegible] there is no bettter way to clear the mind [illegible] and trivial things in preparation for the [illegible] festival than to go off into the country on [illegible] spring day, so this means of spending [illegible] seems quite appropriate.

In the Philippines the natives mark the [illegible] grand march through the streets. They carry [illegible] branches, but white flags with palm trees [illegible] thereon, and they hold their services out [illegible] trees from which they have derived much [illegible] cause of the Palm Sunday service in other [illegible]

Our celebration of the day consists in [illegible] services and in wearing bits of palm or [illegible] the palm branches which are given out [illegible] Sunday-school.

A portion of the palm branches consecrated [illegible] Sunday have always been, and still are [illegible] burned for holy ashes to lay on the heads of [illegible] on Ash Wednesday of the following year.

The palms used in the east on this [illegible] Easter come from many places. Those [illegible] are secured chiefly from the Pontificate of [illegible] gets the cherished branches from the little [illegible] Remo, near Genoa. San Remo is proud of [illegible] conferred upon it, and the palm gatherers [illegible] work as sacred, although they are not above [illegible] fair profit on their labor.

Other palms come from Calcutta, from the [illegible] dies, from Mexico and from the Philippines. [illegible] are sent from Florida and New Orleans. The "Terror" swung himself over the Plummer's brick wall into the very presence of Becky, the Middle-Aged-Child, Dottie Dimple—and the enemy.

"Well, an' why don't you begin?" sneered the 'Terror.'"

Reginald regarded him with the large tolerance of the man of the world.

"We can't fight here," he said, indicating Becky and the Middle-aged Child.

One of the bigger boys suddenly became conscious of a tremendous gift for organization. If there was going to be any fighting, he fairly ached to be master of ceremonies and referee.

"We might try Hyatt's stable," Reginald suggested. "Go round and see if Jim's there." The big boy was back in a trice, with the required permission. Reggie was now for politely excusing himself to the ladies, but the fair, with their usual stubbornness, insisted on going, to the obvious disgust of all parties concerned. And presently the entire company found themselves transplanted thither. The stable boy winked convincingly at Reggie, but gave no outward sign of acquaintance.

"Shake hands!" roared the referee, and the belligerents stepped forward. From the ladies' gallery—the hay loft had been hastily put in commission for the accommodation of the feminine and neuter genders—came sounds of suppressed excitement.

Already the "Terror" was playing to the gallery—his attitude was distinctly "stagey," his feet were too far apart, his expression one of unwonted fierceness. Reginald came to guard with a more assured feeling than he had yet had. He knew that any chance of success with his present antagonist, as with the "Knight," was merely a question of cat-like agility, of being able to tire out his antagonist by evading blows rather than of the ability to plant them. The "Terror" led off with his left hand, as the "curl boy" had anticipated; to the right swung the curly yellow mop while the "Terror's" blow passed harmlessly over Reggie's shoulder.

"Good work!" yelled the gang. "Where did the 'curl boy' learn to scrap?"

Round and round the limited space afforded by the stable the youngsters fought—every inch of ground being familiar to Reginald, he had just so much of an advantage, but of this little matter he held his peace. When the "Terror" discovered that the encounter meant more than a big boy thrashing a little one merely by way of exhibiting his pugilistic prowess, the discovery soured his temper not a little, and incidentally took the edge off his skill.

The "Terror" could hear the crowd call out to Reggie words of facetious encouragement "Go it, mamma's boy! Gee, ain't he a swift one! Say, that feller in the bib's got science!"

This latter comment, spoken in the "Terror's" native tongue, was in the nature of a last straw. It proved that one of his erstwhile faithful retainers had gone over to the enemy.

The "Terror" made a mighty reach and caught a handful of curls in his grip; he wound them round his chubby fingers and pulled with all his might. Reggie saw a whole galaxy of shooting stars leap from his eyes to the ladies' gallery—then the pain made him quite blind for a moment, as he called thickly "Leggo my hair, 'tain't fair; leggo my hair!" The "Terror" never relinquished his hold, but continued to turn the hair about at shorter length from the scalp. Reggie opened his eyes—he was sufficiently accustomed to the pain to get his bearings once more. He was locked in a deadly grip with the "Terror," but his head was just below the chin of his conscienceless antagonist. If one could play at being "no fair" it was a game open to all, and Reggie, who knew advantages connected with his present position, suddenly stood on his toes, unmindful of the extra pull on his hair, and began to ram the "Terror's" chin with his bent head. Once, twice, he hammered, and the third time the grip on his curls loosened. His head had sent the "Terror" sprawling on the stable floor.

The voice of the referee sung out stern and official above the general hubbub. "Ladies and gentlemen, this here fight has been won by Mr. Reginald Chambers. Any one in favor of doubting it say 'No'—and fight me. All agreein' to my decision say 'Ay.'"

"Ay," was howled, shrieked, and sung in every note of the gamut. Altogether it was a magnificent occasion for Reginald.

On the wall of the stable hung a pair of shears which seemed to exercise a growing fascination for the hero. Reaching up, on his tip-toes, he secured them with something of a wrench. Becky, who asserted her claims to reflected honor by ordering about the hero with more than her customary asperity, inquired what he was going to do with the shears. For answer he put them into her hands and demanded with almost marital brevity: "Cut my hair."

"I dass'n't," she said, putting her tongue into the space left by an absentee first tooth. When Becky did that it always meant that she would have to be coaxed.

"Go on, Becky, cut it off," urged the hero, pressing the shears upon his unwilling lady. And the shearing of Sampson began. Curl after curl fell to the stable floor under the swift manipulation of Becky's fingers. The Middle-aged Child gathered them up in a way that would seem to cast aspersions on the wholly intellectual trend of her life. The company drew in its breath, held it a moment, then emitted it in something like a gasp. And "mother's baby," shorn, bedraggled, in rags, and full of pride, bade adieu to his friends and went in to his fate.

POCKET WIRELESS.

An English electrical engineer, Ernest Oldenbourg, has recently invented a new telegraphic receiver which, it is declared, is sensitive enough to detect the most delicate impulses which even a pocket battery could send out.

This instrument, which is at present known as the capilliform receiver, is more sensitive than the brain; it is said to transcend all previous inventions in delicacy. It depends on the fact that mercury in a vertical capillary tube—like that of a thermometer—rises and falls when an electric current is passed through it.

This fact has long been known. Mr. Oldenbourg's invention consists in magnifying and in utilizing it in a shape which enables it to be used practically as the receiving instrument of a telegraphic installation. Its peculiar value is, it is claimed, that it will respond to far smaller currents than those at present used; a mere fraction of a volt is sufficient to work it.

Mr. Oldenbourg asserts, says the Boston Transcript, that it will be quite possible with the aid of his new instrument to make a telegraphic apparatus by which any one walking about the floor could send intelligible messages for instance to a confederate on the platform, where a mind-reading act is being performed, without any one else knowing about them.

LO, THE POOR INDIAN.

We don't suppose there's a place on earth where a man's patience is so often put to the test as in a printing shop. We got another dose last night. Just as a printer was going to put a galley of type in the form for the "Dinky Daily Kansan," the whole thing fell to the floor in one conglomerate heap of pi. The scintillating thoughts that we had twisted out of the editorial think tank were in the same inseparable mass as the statement that "Tim Tumbleson has bought a new top buggy look out girls." It made us a little shy last evening, but the people of this town have overlooked our shortcomings so often in the past that we feel confident they will be kind in their judgment again this time. But, say, it does rile a printing office outfit to have a galley of type pied.—[Concordia Kansan.

LACE MADE OF LEAVES.

"I'll trim your Easter street gown, madam," said the dressmaker, "with a lace made of leaves—Fayal lace, from the Azores."

He exhibited the lace. It was no less beautiful than costly.

"The women of Fayal make it," he went on, "out of the fibers of the leaves of the century plant. If you stop off at Fayal on your next South Atlantic passage, don't fail to see these women at work, for they are the only makers of the lace left in the world today. The peasants of Abissola once possessed the same art. They made of the century plant's leaves a black lace—very beautiful, but it would not wash."

COUNTESS BECOMES CAB DRIVER.

Four more cabwomen were granted certificates of ability today, among them being the Countess du Pin de la Guerinière, who is divorced from the Count.

Mme. Duffaut and Mlle. Charnier, who were licensed some time ago, did their first day's work yesterday, and were overwhelmed with "fares." A large crowd cheered them as they left the mews in the Avenue de la République, and there was a tremendous rush of people anxious to get the first ride.

Many witticisms were shouted at the women as they drove through the main thoroughfares, but they stuck to their work and were highly satisfied with the day's result.—[Paris Correspondence London Express.

NOTHING LEFT.

With a low cry of anguish, the joke writer buried his face in his thin hands.

"What's the matter now?" his wife asked anxiously.

"Look at this," the poor fellow answered, as he extended her a printed slip. "As if joke writing wasn't hard enough already. And here the syndicate prohibits from this time forth all jokes on Irishmen, March winds, Easter bonnets, mothers-in-law, automobile accidents, watered milk, umbrella stealing, talkative barbers, and the wifely pilfering of the husband's pockets in the dead of night."

"We are indeed undone," the woman moaned.

THREE TROLLEYS IN JAPAN.

It is stated in a report presented by the American Consul at Nagasaki that the early construction of three electric tramways in the northern portion of the Japanese island of Kyushu is under contemplation. The first to be built, from Moji to Kokura, a distance of eight miles, is estimated to cost £70,000; the second from Moji to Yawata, twelve miles in length, £100,000, and the third, one of twenty-three miles, between the important towns of Fukuoka and Kokura, at an estimated cost of £250,000.—[Engineer.

ANGELS WOULD FORBID SPANKING.

John's mother used to tell him that there were little guardian angels watching over him, keeping him from harm, etc. One day, when he had been naughty, his mother said: "Now, dear, what do you suppose your guardian angels thought when they saw you so naughty?" "Haven't got any guardian angels," he replied. "If I had they wouldn't let me get spanked."—[Chicago Tribune.

DISCRETION.

"Marquis, is it possible to confide a secret to you?"

"Certainly! I will be silent as the grave."

"Well, then, I have absolute need of 2000 francs."

"Do not fear, it is as if I had heard nothing."—[Translated for "Transatlantic Tales," from Il Motto per Ridere.

The Floral "Aloha."

Hawaii's Poetic Expression of Friendship.

By a Special Contributor.

THE lei or floral necklace is one of the most typical as well as one of the most poetic and beautiful characteristics of the Hawaiian Islands. It is the formal and tangible expression of joyful welcome or regretful parting. It is "Aloha" expressed in terms of flowers and colors. The Hawaiians wore leis before they wore clothes. The primitive, instinctive love of the primal savage for bright colors and gaudy decoration found its expression in these circlets of flowers. The custom has come down through the years till people of every nationality in Hawaii have adopted it, none more surely than the Americans.

The original lei was made of the royal ilima blossoms, whose orange-colored petals so closely resemble the tissue paper imitation that the difference cannot be detected save by the sense of touch. These ilima leis were the royal leis, and when the young and beautiful Princess Kaiulani lay robed for her burial in the mausoleum of the Kamehamehas, her bier was laden with hundreds of these golden leis. The natives still carry them to her tomb and, when I visited it on her birthday, I found many of these beautiful leis brought by loving friends, their Aloha nui in memoriam for their young and beloved princess.

The most effective and now the most common leis are made of carnations, scarlet and pink and white, and the natives make them very fast. The carnations in Hawaii are much smaller than those grown in California, but they are very vividly colored and are intensely sweet. The women break off the stem at the end of the calyx, then bite off the calyx, thus stripping the petals of their sheath, and they fall loose from the bit of stem. They are next strung on a strand of dried grass and are then ready to be tied about the wearer's neck. Some of them are made quite long, so that they hang quite to the ground, and many are intertwined with glossy-leafed maille, the smilax of Hawaii which somewhat resembles the laurel and is very beautiful. This maille is very fragrant, and a sweet toilet water is made from its pungent leaves. Occasionally a lei is made of two colors, but usually but one is used. The plumeria, a cream-and-yellow blossom, looking like a mammoth fresia, but growing on a tree, is also much used, but its intense dead sweet odor, much like that of a tuberose, sickens many, so that it is not so popular as the carnations or ilima leis. Violets are rare, and very tiny, in Hawaii, and a lei of violets and maiden-hair ferns is the most costly flower gift one can give a departing friend.

The scene presented at the dock when a boat leaves is a gay and unique one, full of life and color. Even though you know a person but slightly, you give him a lei at parting if you wish to do the correct thing. You may give him a half dozen if you wish to spend the quarters. On a steamer day men and women alike go on board literally covered with these floral ropes. One Pasadena woman returning from the islands counted 120 of these gorgeous necklaces when she had waved her last Aloha and sought her stateroom.

Native women in flowing holukus, with native hats upon their coarse black hair, stand at every street corner and cluster thick about the dock inducing you to buy of their wares. Others with leis of seeds and shells and bright beads are calling their stock, and every one buys something. Oftentimes your friends ask you whether you wish a floral or a shell lei, and if you wish a lasting souvenir of your trip, you choose a shell one. Even if you could keep fresh the flower ones you would not be allowed to bring them into the States, as there is a law against bringing in any form of plant life that has not been examined, for fear of introducing some insect germ or plant disease. There is another good reason for disposing of the leis as soon as the boat is out of sight of the docks, and this is that the fragrance of so many strongly-scented flowers will produce seasickness more quickly than anything else, and one wants to ward off the evil hour as long as possible.

So again necessity has been the mother of invention, and a charming custom has grown out of this giving of leis. After the voyagers have said their final good-bys and kissed their last kisses and stand above upon the deck looking down at their friends clustered below on the dock, they toss down one by one their leis from off their necks, being careful of course to give at least one to each friend who has remembered them. The friends on the dock catch the bright leis and put them on, and as the order to pull away is given and the distance between ship and dock begins to widen, the bright leis are tossed back upon the blue water, and there they float till captured by the little brown-skinned native boys who follow the boats to dive for coins. Lei after lei is thrown over naked brown shoulders, and when there are a very great number a boy with a boat collects them, possibly to sell over again at a reduced price!

The flower market is in the center of the town in Honolulu, at the corner of Fort and Hotel streets, and here all day long dirty and unkempt native women and men sit upon the pavement and string leis, and smoke. The sidewalk is gay with tin lard buckets filled with bright blossoms and masses of finished leis hang upon the brick wall at their backs. The ordinary leis sell two for 25 cents, though long and much fuller ones are sometimes ordered at the American florists', and they cost much more.

Every Hawaiian, be he big or little, wears a lei. The children all wear them to school, even the little Chinese and Japanese children being decorated in the fantastic fashion of the land. The little boy's hat may be so ragged and torn that the shaggy hair sticks through, but the fresh lei is wound around its crown. The little blouse or apron may be so faded and dirty that it is scarcely recognizable, but a bright lei hangs about the little girl's neck just the same. It is a common sight to see a native man unkempt and dirty going to or returning from work with a lei around his hat. The native women all wear holukus, or mother hubbards, with trails sweeping through the dust, a broad-brimmed native hat of la hala or fern fiber, and, if they are at all aspiring, lace hose and French-heeled shoes. They have a penchant for peek-a-boo stockings and shoes on stilts, but when the shoes commence to pinch, it is a common sight to see the woman returning home barefooted with her shoes in her hands!

Every native woman wears some kind of a lei around her hat. Some of these are of cheap and tawdry worsted in simulation of flowers, some are of shells and some of feathers. The peacock-breast leis are very handsome, but good ones cost $6 or $7. Still some of the poor-looking women wear these costly leis. Sunday afternoon the cars are filled with women in freshly-starched holukus with gorgeous leis hanging about their necks. It seems sometimes as if the leis must be the fetich, so religiously does it always figure. In the cemeteries instead of wreathes and crosses and conventional floral forms it is always the graceful lei which is hung over the gravestone and left to blow and flutter in the breezes.

An amusing story is told in Honolulu of two San Francisco society girls who went to Honolulu for a winter sojourn. They persisted in wearing leis on all occasions. They wore them to dinner, they wore them to church, they wore them when they went shopping. One day a friend whom they had known in the States and a woman who is one of the social arbiters of the

! How far away it seemed! The old man speak a word of comfort to the mule, but his own voice sounded so changed and hollow it frightened him.

When he came to the little mongrel shop again, he went in. All his way up the road he had been screwing up his courage to go in.

"Reck'n you can let me have an armful o' hay," he asked bravely. "I'll pay you when I git paid myself—tomorrow, likely." He would not have asked credit for his own needs; but Jackson could not altogether fast.

"To be sure, Mr. Armstrong. I'll jest fill a sack fur you. Anything else you want?"

"No, not today. I can't git anything else today."

Mrs. Mitchell looked after the old man's retreating figure. The broken-down quality in his voice had struck her.

"The day I left home," she observed, "a letter came for him from the Klondike; but I'm afraid what he wanted wasn't in it."

"I wonder what's happened to my boys, I wonder what's happened to my boys," Caleb kept repeating weakly to himself on his homeward journey. "I wonder if they're sick way out thar?" And then he began to think how he might hide his starvation from others. He felt he could starve, but he could not endure for any one to think he was starving. In all classes of people there exist such isolated cases of pride.

It did not take long to unharness Jackson and lead him to his stable or to push the cart into the outer office, or to open his own door and kindle a blaze on the hearth.

When he had done this, he drew water for the mule and and placed before him some of the hay out of Mrs. Mitchell's sack.

"Come, Jackson, fill yourself," he said gaily. "We're home safe an' sound now, with a plenty for you to eat over tomorrow—meadow hay as sweet as ever I smelled."

There wasn't a bite in the house for Caleb to eat himself—not a bite. So, drawing his chair up before the hearth, he sat stupidly blinking at the bright blaze.

"I can do well enough," murmured the poor old fellow, "and thanks be to God, there is hay for Jackson."

. . . . . . . . . .

Mrs. Mitchell felt that after four weeks' absence her place naturally needed a good "ridding up." So the day after her return she set about it. She was a thorough worker, and leaving the girl with the frizzly hair in charge of the baby and the store, she proceeded to turn things topsy-turvy.

Among other things that she carried to the pig sty was the straw out of the baby's cradle. As she flung the straw among the porkers she caught sight of something white. It was an envelope.

"How did this come to be in the baby's cradle?" she demanded angrily, bustling into the store. The girl was selling some pink and green lozenges at that moment, and threw back her head pertly.

"How do I know?" she retorted.

But the look of confusion on her face showed plainly enough that she did know. Mrs. Mitchell administered a stinging box on the ear, determining to waste no further words in argument.

About an hour later the proprietors of the little shop might have been seen hurrying along the road that led to the building once occupied by the Copper Company's thrifty manager. In one hand she held a basket containing some coffee, sugar, meal and eggs; in the other hand she held a letter.

When she reached the deserted-looking building she knocked. But receiving no answer, she lifted the latch and without further ceremony walked in.

The russet curtain was still drawn across the six-paned window, and at first the objects in the room appeared very indistinct. Then she began to discern things more clearly. She saw that the old man was still lying in the big four-post bedstead and that the fire from the night before had burned itself to white ashes on the hearth.

Caleb looked so colorless and silent and thin that for a second his caller stood where she was, fearing he was dead. But he opened his patient, kindly eyes and tried to smile a little, raising himself feebly on one elbow.

"I wasn't feelin' very well this mornin' an' I thought I'd keep a-bed," he began.

"Oh, it does us all good to sleep late sometimes," assured Mrs. Mitchell cheerfully, advancing toward him. "You'll do better tomorrow fur the rest. An' here's a letter I've brought you."

Sitting down, she told him the whole truth about it; how it had come the day she had left home, four weeks ago; how, evidently, it had been given to the baby to play with, and how, finally, she had boxed the little huzzy's ears.

By this time Caleb had finished reading his letter and had fondly placed both it and the money order back in the dear envelope, Mrs. Mitchell had a fire blazing merrily on his hearth, and every nook and corner of the room was filled with the aroma of boiling coffee.

As he sipped it, with a grateful heart full to overflowing, the old man pointed to the little sampler pinned to the back of the bedstead:

"It's true," he cried, "it's true. 'Mine is the right fortune.'"

NO HAT RAISING.

The town council of Chrudim, in Bohemia, is so solicitous for the welfare of the citizens that it has asked them not to take off their hats to ladies during the continuance of the cold weather.

The town is covered with notices pointing out the danger of this courteous but dangerous practice, and requesting all adult males to confine themselves to a drawing-room bow or a military salute until the spring has come. Schoolboys are exempt, and must "cap" their masters still.

All who avail themselves of the council's hint and benefit thereby are asked in the notice to subscribe a shilling a year to the new foundling home.—[London Express

His First Experience With a Motor Car.

By a Special Contributor.

THERE was no doubt about it, they were stuck. He varied the mixture, adjusted the spark, shifted and rearranged everything in sight, and cranked with an energy born of despair. No use. He thought of everything he had been told by the man who gave him lessons. He seemed to remember dimly something about a part under the seat which might need adjustment. He took out both seats and adjusted every knob and screw which was movable. Still no results. He wished now he had not felt so confident about being able to run the auto without the assistance of the man, and he also devoutly wished he had not brought Her with him on this first trial trip.

He crawled cautiously under the machine and looked around. He had forgotten what a good many of the things there were for. However, nothing was out of place that he could see. He hesitated between lying and making a clean breast of it. Finally he decided on the latter.

He emerged from beneath the car and stood up.

"I'm awfully sorry," he explained, regretfully, "but something seems to have gone wrong."

"So it appears," she remarked. Her tone lacked enthusiasm. The day was somewhat cold, and they had been there about an hour. Besides, he had a black smear across his nose, and he was moist and unpleasant. A man does not appear at his best when he crawls out from beneath a balky car.

"It's evident," he went on, "that they hadn't put the machine in proper shape when I took it out. That's the way with these fellows, you know. They let you take a car when it's all out of whack, and then the first thing you know, it breaks down with you."

He was warming to the subject. No doubt this talk was shifting the blame most successfully.

"You bet I'll give it to those fellows when I see them," he continued. "There ought to be some law to prevent their sending out machines when they're not in order. This sort of thing is a disgrace to a decent garage. The Automobile Club ought to take it up."

She murmured assent, but it was evident she was occupied, not so much with the theory, as with the condition which confronted them.

He looked over all the available parts again, and then cranked till he was black in the face. Nothing doing.

"I suppose there's nothing else for it," he observed, finally, "I shall have to go and 'phone somewhere. You bet I'll make it hot for them, too. Those fellows ought to be arrested. I guess I'd better walk back to that house we passed, and 'phone the garage to send a man to fix the thing. Will you come, or do you prefer to stay in the car?"

She preferred the car, and he started off alone.

He was back in an hour and twenty minutes, and with him an expert from the garage, who had come out with his repair kit in a runabout.

"There, there's your machine," he observed, in virtuous indignation. "Stuck, you see. Just pulled up to get my hat, and the blame thing absolutely refuses to start. I don't know what's the trouble. If the machine had been sent out in proper order it should never have happened."

The expert made a hasty examination. Then he grinned broadly.

"I guess there ain't much the matter," he observed.

"There isn't! Well, I'd like to know what you call it. I've worked on her for about two hours, and she don't budge an inch. "What's wrong?"

The expert grinned still more broadly.

"She'll run all right if you treat her right," he explained. "Why don't you take off the brakes?"

JAPANESE WOMEN WRESTLERS.

A correspondent in Japan writes: "One of the most remarkable sights I have ever seen was that of some women wrestlers in Yokohama. We entered a large barn-like building, in the center of the floor of which was a ring of hard, damp earth, marked out by a plaited straw band, in which two women wrestled furiously. Almost immediately one was thrown, and she fell on the ground with a 'flap' resembling the sound made by a fish when landed in the bottom of a punt. Before she had scrambled, laughingly, to her feet another combatant rushed into the ring and gripped the victor, and the prize went to the woman who held her own the longest. The auditorium was crammed to suffocation by a motley crowd of Japanese, who yelled and whistled and shrieked at each successful throw. The combatants were of splendid physique, and fit 'mothers of soldiers.'"

DIAMONDS ON YOUR SHOES.

The young girl extended her black satin shoe, and the buckle of brilliants flashed and glittered.

"We all wear diamonds on our shoes," said her companion, a chemist. "My shoes are covered with diamonds, but I am not proud of it—I don't put my foot out."

Drawing in her foot, the young girl said:

"What do you mean, silly?"

"I mean what I say," he replied. "Diamonds are crystallized carbon, aren't they? And what is blacking? Blacking is carbon, too—carbon in the shape of lampblack—and when we smear it on a shoe and rub, the friction gives us crystallized carbon, and we have a brilliant coating of black diamonds. Look at my boot now. Don't the little black diamonds glisten on it?"

A Day Afield.

A SPRING RAMBLE THROUGH SUBURBAN FIELDS.

By a Special Contributor.

"GIVE me health and a day, and I will make the pomp of emperors ridiculous."

Doubtless Emerson said that from the fullness of some royal experience, and many lesser men have proved the reasonableness of the words to their own personal satisfaction, but I doubt very much whether it would be a demonstrable proposition to one who was not well up in the higher mathematics of cloud-flecked sky and rambling, grass-clad hills. As a matter of fact, that is the only class of mathematics which enables the student to rightly distinguish between the square root of a wild violet and a minus sign under a cactus radical. Any one wishing to take up this, the only agreeable branch of the science, must first learn to walk and climb without getting particularly tired, cultivate an eye for color and a sympathy with little, natural things—that kind of sympathy which "wins the secret of the weed's plain heart"—and then go out of doors often enough to put it all to practical use. He will then find himself able to enter into the imperial joys of a day as we post-graduates did on a certain recent date in spring.

We left the Edendale car at its northern terminus and followed the Glendale track as it continued northward. The hillslopes on either side of the way were dark with young groves of eucalyptus trees, beautiful in their lithe slenderness. Some eucalyptus tree are skinny and picked looking, like the blue-fleshed turkey that hangs in the market with only a ruffle of feathers left around its neck, but these were not so. The hill to the right sloped away suddenly, as we began to round the curve, and there was a sheer drop from the roadbed to the valley below. Down there the trees were growing closely also, and so far down were their feet that we gazed straight out across their waving heads, as over a tossing, deep-green ocean, to take our first broad look at the lovely Glendale Valley and the distant, snowy mountain range to the far east. As we went on around the long curve our view widened, and presently the whole expanse of beautiful country, as far as the northern mountains, lay spread before us, unbroken but by a few great trees in the foreground. One cannot appreciate this scene as he rushes into it on the speeding car. It needs to be approached slowly, in order that no detail of its beauty take fright and run away e'er one can get near enough to enjoy it.

The roadbed was cut into the side of the hills here—the hills of the Santa Monica Range, which has given Elysian Park to an admiring public—and the yellow clay walls rose at the left, colored here and there with young greenness. Down below, on the other side, was the old wagon road, upon which fronted occasional ranch houses, surrounded by the fruit orchards for which this valley is famous.

We stopped when we came to the trestle, and sat down to wait for the next car to pass. Here we studied the valley scene in detail. Just below and in front of us was a fine walnut orchard, each tree of which was dressed in shimmering white, like a bride adorned for her husband. This was edged with rows of blackberry bushes, and along the outside boundary ran the old zanja, but scantily supplied with water. On the far side of the orchard ran the river, parallel with the road, and only slightly shaded by silvery willows. On beyond lay peach orchards, rosy red with swelling young buds, and flat patches of various things, some still earthy brown, others quite green, but all looking very neat and orderly. The whole spread of country gave the effect of a well-planned and trimmed garden. Then two cars went thundering past, one in either direction, and we made haste to tiptoe across on the regularly spaced ties to our road on the opposite side. So high was this trestle that the branches of a large cottonwood tree growing below we found to be still not quite on a level with the rails. Our road was now fringed with alfilerilla and wild lettuce, each head of which looked like a tiny bunch of flowers set in a flaring green bowl. Mustard stalks of a season past stood stiff and bare at intervals among the young growth climbing up around them, as if they illustrated Ezekiel's vision of the dry bones stirring into new life.

A little beyond here we left the track as it swerved northward again from Ivanhoe Station, and continued to go west upon the wagon road. Splendid old live oaks thickly covered the hillsides, here, along the south side of the road, and a stretch of barley field lay just below the hills. This was a long walk, which led straight into Griffith Park, throughout its length skirting the hills on one side and following the general lines of the river on the other. Soon the zanja at our side began to show a considerable wetness, and looked decidedly picturesque under its willow canopy.

The gateway into Griffith Park was marked by a magnificent sycamore, which appeared ancient and honorable enough to embody the spirit of some monarch of antiquity. In its leafless state the grotesquely crooked twigs and branches wrote strange hieroglyphics against the blue parchment of the sky. Then the space between the road and the hill slope began to show a thick growth of coarse mustard, which we knew would in two months' time be from eight to ten feet in height and so dense as to be alomst impenetrable. We had now reached a point where the hills curved out to meet the road, and a distinct trail up the outer ridge was the middle course offered between a narrow cañon and the open wagonway. We turned abruptly to the left and ascended a knoll crowned by two especially fine oaks, and then looked back for the sake of the view, which was wonderfully lovely from beneath the dark, low-hanging boughs. We descended the knoll on the far side, and found ourselves in a damp, wild, sweet hollow, grown with delicate green, wild blackberry vines and rose bushes. It was far too early for these to be in blossom as yet. An ascending path brought us to the steep incline leading to the main trail, which was our objective point. The character of the vegetation changed radically with the first five feet of altitude, and we found ourselves grasping at sage, southernwood and chaparral, as we pulled laboriously up the rugged incline. The trail proper once reached, our well-defined way was like the inspiring motto, "Onward and upward." It was narrow and rough, with abruptly sloping sides—a veritable hogback, and of the razor variety, moreover.

We made frequent and more or less lengthy pauses during this rather arduous ascent, stopping finally for lunch beneath a good-sized holly bush. This formed a pleasant shade and an admirable windbreak, as we sat with our backs to it, looking out over the misty blue valley below. Around us grew southernwood, hoarhound, sage and an occasional yucca palm, which had not yet sent forth its one tall bayonet of bloom. The air was deliciously warm and fragrant. Later, when we attained the summit, we found ourselves standing upon the most northern point of the Santa Monica Mountains, looking upon the Glendale Valley, bounded on the east by the hills of Highland Park, with the sign, "Mt. Washington," quite clearly distinguishable on the highest one, and the distant white San Bernardino Range further back. Across the north stretched the beautiful indigo Sierra Madre, and to the west lay the San Fernando Valley, fresh with spring. The mountains just north of the San Fernando Valley are singularly regular in their formation, and slope downward with the long, flowing lines of a very gentle waterfall. The long course of the river, as it lay just beneath us, was interesting in its whimsical windings, and the willows on its brink were not so full leafed yet as to obscure the trunks and branches, which stood forth in clear relief. While the stream was not large, it was undeniably picturesque, and we were so far above it that it held the tone of deeper waters. Apropos of it we quoted:

"So blue your winding river flows
It seems an outlet from the sky,
Where, waiting till the the west wind blows,
The freighted clouds at anchor lie."

There were a few freighted clouds trailing their purple shadows over the mountains now, though the sky had been spotlessly blue when we started out; but above us tiny scudding clouds had spread themselves, edge to edge, until they fitted, like fish scales, over a large part of the sky. A day of broken shine and shade is the most beautiful kind for an outing.

All about us was the green mountain growth. Holly and the darker chaparral, with its tiny waxen blossoms, predominated, but there were no wild flowers. We finally followed the trail, as it turned southwestward, and here we found a gentler growth of fine, young, beautiful grass, and the softly shaded grays and greens of the aromatic shrubs. On this cross ridge we paused to look down more closely upon the San Fernando Valley, with the town of Burbank marking its western limit. The hills curved in at this point, from south to west, as if they had placed an affectionate arm around the lovely little nook just below, which was the Fern Cañon of Griffith Park. Along the opening of this unusually picturesque cañon some thoughtful individual has caused to grow a long, long line of tame young pepper trees, which look about as much in keeping as a constellation of kerosene lamps around a cathedral altar. The afternoon light, striking against them, projected shadows as long and slender as of poplar or cypress trees, which lay on the white roadway like the regular quarter and eighth-inch markings on a ruler.

Then our pathway began to rise again, and we found ourselves facing the loveliest of tender green hillsides, which, like "fresh lawns appeared, under the opening eyelids of the dawn," only it happened to be the closing eyelids of afternoon. The western light came over the hilltops, with just enough of a slant to give the effect of fairly filtering through the delicate grass and dripping from the oak trees. There was no tall growth here but the oaks, and they were the youngest looking, most beautifully green oaks I have ever seen. The leaves were not dark, as with old trees, but as freshly bright as young walnut foliage, and tiny soft tassels, like bunches of green and gold chenille, hung everywhere over them. The poison oak, too, lifted its ruddy countenance and smiled deceitfully on these slopes, but we passed it hastily by with averted glance. On our left there now stretched away a ridge leading east and down to the hollow from which we had started to climb. We knew that a few weeks later this would be a rich field for mariposa lilies, but there was nothing to tempt us to it just then, so we continued to the summit on ahead. Here we found the crowning experience of the day. This mount proved to be considerably higher than the one which had furnished our first broad view, besides giving us full sweep of the little Ivanhoe Valley to the southeast, in which direction appeared a broad, smooth sheet of water—only a reservoir, but as lovely as a lake. On the hither side of it was a tiny frog pond, to which distance lent no inconsiderable enchantment, and we began to feel that the book which companioned us on our tramp, "Fisherman's Luck," was not so inappropriate as to title, after all. And then there wound the river, intermittently revealed under its willows, and the zanja even at this distance offered a distinctively artistic touch to the scenery. All these bits of water caught and held the sky color, and in their frames of emerald grass and trees gave an unusual tone to this Southern California picture.

In our immediate vicinity the trees and scrubby growth had disappeared. We wandered through thick grass, and presently came upon patches of dear yellow violets. A further treat was in store, and we cried aloud when we stumbled into a fragrant field of the beautiful, fairy shooting stars—those first elusive beauties of the spring, which have usually come and gone before one really thinks about them at all. Many of these were already going to seed, and their manner of going about it was very quaint. The flowers grow in clusters, and appear like nothing quite so much as the a skyrocket and drop downward, leaving of light behind them. The blossoms der stems with the same graceful central point of the flower and with points extending backward. When their little dark faces straight upward, drop out from the fairy basket of ground below. We gathered quantities of and strangely odorous, and found white forget-me-nots. And we went the ridge, finding more plentiful and soon coming to more of the oak trend of the hills now was duly westward, following of the main ridge would have eventually to Mount Hollywood, or tallest member of the group.

The day was waning fast, however, southward trail, and bade farewell to the Sage, chaparral and cactus began once our path, and one or two scarlet "paint brightly amid the prevalent greens. With of a few dignified and lonely brodiaeas men of a deep purplish-red, almost black, blossom, these were the only flowers to add to our wild nosegay. We found gray sage than of the delicate white blue blossoms so highly valued by the and there we met a sinister brown stalk with its waxen, fragrant bells of last formed into hard, dark balls full of hidden talent robbed of its fivefold lower down we left the ridge trail and haunted hillside, thick with high grass, culent miner's lettuce, which we would at lunch time, and new-leafing walnut trees.

All this time sunset was approaching nearly, and all the clouds were congregating western sky, like the chorus of an sembling with the principals for the white-faced moon had been languidly ern sky since early in the day, so pale as distinguishable from a fragment of cloud, had begun to brighten. The grasses about taking on the night coldness which and we found that all the clover leaves tiny hands for evening prayer. Then the suddenly. For a little mournful space the duller, and then they saluted the dominant a host of rose-colored banners of such mortal loom ever wrought. "The king is live the queen!" they said, and the distant mountain nobles gave sign of fealty by triumphant color also. I am sure the pomp emperors would have looked ridiculous

Gradually the twilight deepened into night, early mustard candles shone softly through ness. We were down at the level of eucalyptus again, and under the gentle the newly enthroned moon the night was a "Germany of mystic philosophy and all sides stole forth the dew-distilled blooms, of rose and narcissus, so we passed homes tucked in warmly among the hills, garments still clung the aroma of the had communed with on the mountain. ## LLING OF THE BAFFLING CASE OF KATE McBRIDE.

By a Special Contributor.

five years Kate McBride had been a slave to her father's every whim and caprice, and his whims and caprices were those of long-standing invalidism. They had come to California as they had gone to many other places, hoping that a change of climate would benefit the invalid. With almost the last of their funds they had bought a five-acre ranch among the hills and mountains. They had often read of the "lean-to" house, with its shake roof, thin board walls and muslin plastering, and had marveled that people could so exist and call it living; but when the very small price of the place was told to Kate she begged her father to allow her to buy it, that they might rest. They could not travel much longer; hotels, and travel, would soon eat up their small means, and she dreaded to think what might befall them at the last, their money gone and she tied to a chair-bound, fretful invalid. It was this specter that haunted her waking and sleeping, and made her long for some sort of roof of her own to cover them. Theirs was a dry ranch, which meant that to grow anything but grain successfully it must be irrigated—and they had no money for development. A cow, a few chickens and a winter garden were all that they could expect to help them eke out their slender living. A time of extreme need was coming, she knew, and she worked and planned, adding to their income by needle work which she bent over every night after the fretful invalid was safely asleep.

It was seldom that she found time to mourn because of her hard circumstances and because she had no time to enjoy the beauties about her, although sometimes the valley lying in the purple shadow of some drifting cloud, the mountains mysterious in the shadows, or the change wrought by the coming of the winter rains, the springing flowers, the mating birds, singing with such glad abandon in the treetops, filled her with an almost irresistible desire to fling away all her worries and give herself up to all the allurements of Mother Nature in her spring creative mood. She saw her hands coarsen with outdoor work, her fingers become needle-pricked; her mind growing sluggish—and it occurred to her one day to throw back the curtain and study the face that looked back at her so anxiously from the glass. For the rest of the day she went about her work pondering, and paying for it in the querulousness of the invalid. After all, she could not help it—necessity held the reins—had placed the bit in her mouth.

They lived for a year in the little valley, and she came to know the townpeople and the peculiarities of both, and to love them both. It was then that the end came. Sitting in his chair one evening, he died, and Kate, coming out to wheel him in from the gathering dampness, found him so. Heart failure, the doctors said. It was then that the little surplus was used, and she was left, the last of her immediate family, to face the world alone.

When once the stress was over, she took up her old work and the care of her own health. Her shoulders straightened, her eyes lost their tired droop and dark circles, her cheeks rounded and her hair, under her attentive brush, glistened and curled like a thing alive. But although life was less complicated now, and she did not hear the gaunt wolf that had once menaced her, and although each and every well-meaning neighbor pointed out to her how well it was that as her father was incurable he should go to his rest and she should be left free—it did not appease her. They did not know the loneliness of the rooms, the awful evening silences, the emptiness of the place opposite her at the table—the call of the blood that is thicker than water. She had not decided what to do; she desired only to rest and to build up her faculties for the coming fight. A few years ago she might have hoped to learn some trade or art; but she was older now, and need was upon her. She must take what offered. There was nothing she so much dreaded as being again tied down, not mistress of her time and talents, cut off by doors and desks and counters from the great free world. But could she hope to supply her small needs and assure herself a competence for her old age on this little strip of earth which was her all? And could she live alone facing the horrors of the nights and the emptiness of the days? She turned the matter over and over in her mind, and finally coming upon a young girl—a burden upon a stepmother already contemplating a third matrimonial venture—she asked her to share her home. And Kate, her heart always yearning over all things young and beautiful, took the girl also into her love, and in the twinkling of an eye changed her, by magic of that love, from a groveling little grub into a free, beautiful, soaring butterfly. In the child she renewed her youth; in the child's love and appreciation she renewed her belief in mankind.

One morning early she was attracted by the intermittent chug-chug of an automobile, whose driver was evidently having trouble with his machine. Presently he came to her, asking to be allowed to fill his tank at her well, and his frank, brown eyes, smiling into hers, won her. She seemed to know by them that he took his little troubles humorously, and, too, that he desired some one to join with him in their setting forth. When it was found that the thing needed more than a drink, and that an expert would be needed, he sat down under the trees and called upon heaven for manna. Kate smilingly offered to answer the prayer, which he agreed to accept for a price. So it was that she served him with coffee and bread, eggs and milk, adding some young lettuce of the softest, most beautiful green, and laying them across the long scarlet radishes which she best loved. The little feast, in the shade of one of the great trees, was one of artistic possibilities, and the young people themselves were not the least of the attractions.

The young man, while not handsome, was good to look upon, although Kate felt instinctively that he had sought out the Southland, as had so many others, in hopes of benefiting his health. There was a slight pallor to his skin, his face was thin, and his hands trembled somewhat after his ineffectual attempt to repair the machine.

"Do you own this place?" he inquired.

"Yes," she replied.

"Do you care to sell it?"

Her lips blanched. She did not know. Here was the question which she had tried to meet in the last months, to be faced now abruptly, and she was still uncertain as to what to say. Should she sell when she had the chance, and invest the little proceeds, only perhaps to lose them, or have them dwindle some time under stress of illness? Or should she hold to this little strip of earth, that she might, if necessary, sometime in sickness or discouragement crawl back to it to die? Frankly she told him the situation, relating to him the reason of their coming here, the fact that it was her all, and her indecision as to a wise course.

His face sobered as she narrated. "I'll tell you what I really think," he said, when they had talked the matter over. "I have been down here several times in the last year, the Ramseys, off west, are old family friends, and through them I expect to become formally known to you soon"—he handed her his card. "I like the country, and the doctors have told me to let business alone for a few years if I wish for robustness again. I got this car in order to get out into the fresh air and to have something to keep me busy. But I'm not made of money, and want to get a place and try working the soil. That beats automobiling all hollow as a cure, and I want this place of yours or the one next. In some ways I like the one next best" (he did not venture to say that it was because he wished to retain her as a neighbor, for the girl was seriously thoughtful, and he would have waited until the opportunity was far past before he would have lightly offered her a compliment which she would undoubtedly resent,) "and so," he continued, "if the place is on the market, I believe I will just stay over in the town and look into the matter. I have always wanted to try to raise strawberries on a large scale. This is an ideal country; the market is close, and not many are raised here; I believe it would pay."

"I have thought that, too," she said, "but there is the matter of irrigation to meet."

"Yes," he said. "That is true. I think a gasoline pumping plant would be the safest. Water isn't far down, and I believe it would pay. I would put it just inside my line, and could furnish you water cheap, and we could form a strawberry combine." She laughingly shook her head. However, when he next day brought Mrs. Ramsey and Ruth, and was introduced to her with all the due proprieties as "Robert Blaine, whose people we have known always," Kate felt that their friendship begun so happily must surely end well.

Thus began a new and happier life for Kate, one free from care and worry, and filled with pleasurable work and much recreation. Mr. Blaine bought the ranch adjoining, a well was put down, and they both planted acres of strawberries. Naturally, it took much study of evenings to decide the best culture, water rates and the disposition of their crops. There were weeks when the two pored over plans and economies; there were months when it seemed that frosts or overhot weather, or even the common little, overbusy red ants would knock the profits off their crops; there were always fears and anxieties; but there were compensations the long rides, the long walks, the pleasant evenings when they read together from their favorite authors—all the wonderful stimulus of their social intercourse. And Kate had blossomed, under the witchery of peace and plenty, as a flower in the sun, until suddenly, in the spring of the second year, Rob noticed that she drooped, that she started when he spoke to her, that her face flushed and paled, and that when he anxiously took her hand and held it that he might consult her tell-tale pulse, it leaped and fluttered like a thing alive with what he felt must be some dangerous fever.

It was in May that Kate took to her bed, and the doctor was called. He hinted at complications. To the neighbors he said that it was overwork and nerves—the kindly old doctor who had been by her so many times in her days of deepest trial—the keen old doctor who knew more about human nature than about medicine, even, and could read symptoms to which young men and women were blind. To the young man's anxious query he gave a short gruff answer, and turned away in a huff. Rob was sure that he caught the implication that somebody was a "damned fool"—and he wondered dully in his anxiety whom the doctor could possibly have meant.

He had known from the first what he thought of Kate; but he had never been sure of her. He could not even guess as to her state of mind, it seemed indeed as though she had never thought of him in any way but as a friend and business partner, so rigidly had she held herself, even when once or twice he had tried to show her how he felt, waiting hopelessly for some indication that she understood his attitude. She gave no sort of response. He would quickly have settled the matter after the way of a man in love, had he not been afraid that in putting the matter to an issue he might lose even that which he had. She might consider it wise at once to dissolve their partnership, she might do one of a dozen things—and the thing that he desired her to do was the one least likely that she would do. He felt his faults and failings keenly; exaggerated them tenfold. She didn't approve of smoking—he smoked—he considered it might be an unsurmountable difficulty. A thousand foolish, immaterial things he magnified from molehills into mountains—and what was it the doctor had meant to convey? He passed a month of wretchedness, and still Kate continued ill. Mrs. Ramsey herself had come to greatly care for her, and intended taking her home when she was able. It was this probable prospect which at last aroused him to the necessity of action.

It was a day when all things animate raise up their heads and rejoice, so warm, so soft, so seductive was the sunshine on the hills—so deep the stirring of spring throughout all the earth. It was a time of miracle, when the brown hills and the brown dried hill brush were taking on the softest of green tints, and the air was sweet with a hundred fragrances.

The window in Kate's sitting-room was open, and the soft wind blew in and over her, bringing her strange fancies; all the lures of spring, and in her weakness she laid her head on her thin palm and cried softly to herself without knowing why.

It was at this inopportune moment that Mrs. Ramsey opened the door for Robert and the old doctor and sent them to the invalid's sitting-room with the assurance that they would be welcomed.

When the door opened and Kate raised her heavy eyes, the lids and lashes all tear-wet, the doctor recovered his bald head and started from the door muttering. Rob followed him, asking the cause. "Damme, you young chump, get out of that girl's sunlight and let some MAN have a chance to step in!" His face was red with anger, which, however as he looked into the depths of the fellow's eyes, changed to a whiteness. "The devil!" he muttered. "Well, if he ain't more of a chump than even I thought him! Get along in there! I prescribe it—no, on second thought, I turn the case over to you. Remember, it is er—somewhat complicated, as I remarked when I first took it."

The door knob came off in Rob's hand, as he wrenched it in his hurry to reach the chair by the window, where a bowed head again rested on a thin palm.

"Dearly beloved," he said, his voice shaking, "it is spring; we have youth; give me your happiness—let me keep it forever in the hollow of my hand."

. . . . . . . . . .

The doctor reported the patient convalescent, and Mrs. Ramsey reported the approaching nuptials, that day week at a called meeting of the local "Club for the Distribution of News.'

ORIGIN OF DES MOINES.

After three years of discussion and research, the city of Des Moines, capital of Iowa, has formally decided that its name is not of French extraction.

The discussion was brought to a crisis three years ago when an erudite Down East writer in a magazine demanded that "the early French explorers, such as La Salle, Hennepin, Dubuque and Des Moines should be adequately represented at the St. Louis Exposition.

The debate seems to have settled that Des Moines was not named after any early French explorer, that there never was such a proper name, and that there was no good philological explanation of the name.

The name comes from the Indians, declares a writer in Queries.

It was originally Moingona, and was first given to the Des Moines River by some of the French. On various French maps which have been looked up it was put down as Moing8na. The character "8" was used by them at that time to signify the sound of "ou."

As a result, the early Americans who followed the Frenchmen into the valley, not having time to write and explain this odd French character, cut the word to Moin.

Then, when the next stage of development came, the river, known as "the Moin," was assumed to have been named by the French, and the "De" was substituted for the English article. Finally, the substitution of a uniformly French spelling made it Des Moines, without changing the pronunciation.

It was originally a pure Indian name, but a series of accidental corruptions have made it apparently a French word. Its meaning in the Indian tongue has been utterly lost.

It was supposed for many years, under the theory that the name was French, that it meant "the monks," but investigation utterly disproved this. The French who came after the name was adapted to French forms were the most mystified as to its meaning in French.—[New York Sun.

LION AT A DISADVANTAGE.

It is seldom that the king of beasts is discovered at such a disadvantage as happened the other day near the Theta mine.

A gentleman from the mine was taking a stroll round with his rifle when he saw some kind of animal lying stretched out in the open. On approaching within twenty paces he was greatly astonished to see that it was a full-grown male lion lying on its side.

Thinking that there was little doubt that the animal was dead, he went within ten yards, but becoming impressed with the danger of his position should the animal be alive, he gave a shout, when he was astonished to see the animal raise its head, look round at him, and give vent to an angry roar of defiance. Quickly raising his rifle, he had just time to take a steady aim, and by a lucky shot killed the animal as it was in the act of rising. The beast proved to be a magnificent African male lion.

The moral is that lions should not take a siesta in the open and that it might be as well for the hunter to shoot on the next occasion before shouting.—[Gwelo Times.

Looizy looked at her tenderly. "It'll be nice to have you for a sister, Linda," she answered. "But I 'spect I shall be scared o' Kemp, he's such a great man now. I—I wish, though," hesitating as though the wish might be blasphemy, "that Kemp hadn't asked for the mule money."

"Oh, daddy ain't mindin' the wuth a bit," quickly, "it's only the partin' with mules he's raised. An'—an' it'll be a little hard with the farm work for a while. If it wa'n't for Calvin I don't see what daddy could do—not for a short time, I mean, till Kemp sends money for new mules an' horses an' carriages an' farm tools, like he wrote."

"Calvin's a good boy," said Looizy, "I heard dad tellin' the other day that he was the most promisin' young man in the neighborhood, reliable, steady, ambitious an' hard-workin'. You ought to be proud to have two such brothers as Kemp an' Calvin."

"I am," answered Linda, "but of course Calvin ain't to be compared with Kemp. He's a good boy, though, an' does most all the work on the farm, an' he's learned how to read an' write an' a lot more things from books in the evenin's. He had to work by day, an' of course we could never spare him to 'tend school. Yes, Calvin's a good boy, far's not havin' genius goes."

"H'sh! here he comes now," warned Looizy.

A compactly-built young man with strong face and bright, cheery eyes had vaulted the boundary fence by placing a hand lightly upon the top rail, and was now coming toward them with quick, eager strides. But though he nodded and smiled at his sister, his words and eyes were for their neighbor.

"Your dad at home, Miss Looizy?" he asked.

"Yes, paintin' the barn."

"Then I reckon I'd better hurry over. He told me yesterday that he wanted me to come an' help lift some heavy ladders he couldn't manage by himself—to paint up under the eaves an' on the ends. Kemp'll be here tomorrow, an' I 'low he'll be callin' for most o' my time, one way an' another."

"Yes, Linda just told me you was expectin' him. You all must be glad—though," roguishly, "I don't s'pose you remember him much, being eight years?"

Calvin grimaced a little.

"I remember him all right," he answered. "He made me do most of his work, an' beat me for exercise an' to keep me in mind that he could make me do it all, I suppose. He was two years older than me."

"Calvin," remonstrated Linda hotly. "You were nothin' but boys then. All boys fight, an' I don't doubt you provoked him."

"P'rhaps," grinned Calvin. "I know I wanted to, an' I was fourteen then—old enough to know my own mind. But you needn't feel anxious, Linda. I don't hold any spite against Kemp, an' shall help to give him the very best time I can. Besides," with another grin, "Kemp writes he weighs 120; I weigh 150; so there won't be any of the old misunderstandin'."

"I've been tellin' Looizy some o' the things Kemp wrote," said Linda mischievously. "See how she colors up. Oh, Kemp'll have a good time all right. But you must drive him round all you can, Calvin, to every place he used to go. Kemp never was much with animals, an' didn't like to go by himself."

A shadow had come to Calvin's face, but he nodded with a forced smile and a side glance at Looizy. She was not looking at either of them, but off across the field. He forced the smile into a laugh, in which, however, there was no cheeriness.

"I'll tend to him all right," he said. "But I must be going now, or them ladders'll be sendin' roots into the ground."

The next day brought Kemp, a tall, well-dressed, fine-looking young man with easy tongue and frank, confidential manner that won them all from the start. Even Looizy's shyness and apprehension melted rapidly away. Linda was openly jubilant, and her father happy. Calvin met his brother with warm, memory-effacing cordiality, to which was soon added a respect and admiration which he would not have believed possible. Kemp was well-informed, with clear head and remarkably practical views of life. He had come home to conquer, and all his forces of agreeableness were kept forward to that end. He went into the fields and worked with them as he had never done in the old days, he walked with Linda, deferred to his father, and talked with Calvin about crops and their studies and the future. When the mules were sold it was done more as an act of pleasure than sacrifice, and without even the expected regret being felt. Kemp was going to return everything so abundantly, and it would not be many months before the mules would be repurchased. Inside of a week Calvin made it a point to seek Looizy and apologize for what he had said about Kemp's overbearing disposition as a boy. "He's all right," he said, "an' smart's a steel trap. Folks used to 'low he was good stock, but sp'iled in the raisin'; an' that was my idea. But we was all mistaken. You—you'll have a fine man, Looizy."

But though the words were bravely spoken, and the look which accompanied them open and sincere, when he turned away the shadow came back to his face, stronger than ever, so strong that all the resoluteness of his nature could not efface it when alone by himself.

Looizy's practical father had been the most suspicious and uncompromising, but even he began to waver and show signs of capitulation. Kemp was interested in every detail of the farm, and accompanied him from point to point, asking numberless questions of valuation and possibility, and making shrewd suggestions that surprised and delighted the money-making farmer; and though the old man was a close-mouthed person generally, it was not many days before Kemp knew almost to a dollar the valuation of his possessions.

But Looizy, as the days went by, missed something which she could not have defined herself. Beneath her practical common sense was an undercurrent of romance. Kemp seemed to meet every desirable quality that she could have expressed in words, and yet a shadow was beginnning to sober her eyes, which, oddly enough, the presence of Calvin sometimes lifted. But Looizy did not know. If she had been asked whom she loved, she would have said Kemp, unhesitatingly. And Calvin would have said the same; so he went off more and more to himself.

One day he and Kemp met on the bank of a small stream which formed a boundary line of the two places. Calvin had a pick which he intended to use against some obstructing roots, Kemp was returning from a visit to Looizy's father. Between them and the cultivated fields was a fringe of young live oaks, made dense by an undergrowth of shrubs. The river path was a favorite walk of the neighborhood.

"Linda brought a letter from the postoffice for you just now," Calvin began affably; "from Macon, the postmark said."

Kemp looked grave.

"Yes, from the young lady I spoke to you about, very likely," he answered. "I've been half-expecting one, for I haven't written in over two weeks. Well"—regretfully—"I suppose I shall have to write and tell her it's off."

"What's off?"

"Why, whatever's between us, of course. Meta's the prettiest girl I ever met, and the nicest. I stopped there coming down, and a few things were said without much thinking. I knew as soon as I left that it would have to be broken off, for her people haven't a bit of money."

"You mean that you like this Meta better'n you do Looizy?" incredulously.

"I must not say that"—carelessly. "As I'm to marry Looizy, of course, I'm to like her better than any girl in the world. And I'm willing to admit she is very pretty and very nice. But you can see yourself there would be a difference. Meta is well-dressed and educated, and knows how to talk and entertain; and Looizy is just an ignorant——"

"Stop!" cried Calvin hotly.

"Just an ignorant, barefooted and cheap——"

He paused suddenly, for the good and sufficient reason that Calvin had caught him in a powerful grasp and now, with white and wrathful face, was holding him at arms' length, high in the air.

"Take that back, Kemp," he cried hoarsely. "No man can call Looizy cheap in my hearin'."

"Oh, well"—coolly—"if you feel that way about it, I'll take it back, of course. I don't quite understand. I was only going to say cheaply-dressed, anyway. Looizy's a fine girl."

Calvin returned him to the ground, the anger leaving his face as suddenly as it had come.

"I'm sorry I had to do that, Kemp," he apologized, "but nothing must be said against Looizy. If you hadn't taken it back, I would have thrown you into the river."

Kemp was readjusting his clothing calmly. Whatever else he might be, he was not a coward. And he was exhibiting remarkable self-control. He looked at Calvin curiously.

"So you are in love with Looizy yourself," he said.

Again the red flamed to Calvin's face, then receded, leaving him white and trembling.

"Perhaps I am," he answered slowly, "but it won't hurt you, not if you do the right thing. Looizy loves you, and I—well, I don't know's I need mind sayin' it—I'd give my life to please Looizy. You mean to marry her?"

"Of course; her father's worth $10,000."

"Then I'll do everything in the world I can for you," ignoring the last part of the sentence. "You try to make Looizy happy, an'——"

There was a rustling of the foliage, and Looizy stood before them, her face pale, her eyes bright. She went straight to Calvin and placed a hand upon his arm.

"I didn't 'low to listen," she said. "I was lookin' at a bird's nest, an' waited for you to go by. Then something was said that made me want to hear the rest. I think Kemp'd better write to Meta what she'd like most to know. He understands. An'—an' you, Calvin——" She paused and looked into his face, a soft color coming to her own.

Calvin tried to say something, but could not. And after all, there was no need for either to speak. It was all in their eyes. FRANK H. SWEET.

HOW ENGLAND REWARDS HER SOLDIERS.

Britain has generally been generous in rewarding her soldiers. Perhaps the Duke of Wellington came off best in this respect. In his earlier Peninsular campaign he was granted a pension of £2000 a year for two generations, and on the conclusion of the Peninsular War in 1812, he was voted £100,000 for the purchase of an estate. After Waterloo the government bought for him the estate of Strathfieldsaye at a cost of £263,000.

Lord Wolseley received a grant of £25,000 on completing his Ashanti campaign; Sir Hugh Gough for the Sikh War, an annuity of £2000, Sir Colin Campbell, £2000 for wiping out the Indian mutiny, and Sir Henry Havelock, for the relief of Lucknow, £1000.

Coming to more recent times, Lord Roberts received £100,000 for his services in the South Africa campaign, and Lord Kitchener received £30,000 after Omdurman.—[Tit-Bits.

FARM LIFE AT RHODESIA.

Mr. Trollip's farm, near Fort Gibbs, has been visited by two rhinoceroses lately. They are very truculent in their behavior and are doing heavy damage to his crops, besides being a source of danger to all on the farm.

Mrs. Trollip was also surprised by a crocodile when fishing on the farm. The reptile plunged into the water from the opposite bank, and made straight toward her.—[Rhodesia Herald.

Farewell to Kickapoos.

CURIOUS EXODUS FROM OKLAHOMA NOW GOING ON.

By a Special Contributor.

A VERY extraordinary movement is at present agitating a number of our Indian tribes, which, constantly suffering from interference and annoyance by the whites, are anxious to dispose of their lands and depart for Mexico, taking with them their cattle, horses and other portable property. If the thing can be managed, they would like the government to pay over to them the many millions of dollars now to their credit in the Treasury, in order that they may use the money to purchase thacts suitable for their occupancy in the republic to the south of us.

This movement in question is being led by the Kickapoos, who are even now engaged in a straggling sort of migration out of the United States and into Mexico; and a number of other tribes, including the Cherokees, Choctaws, Kiowas, Wichitas, Caddos, and Pottawattomies, are eager to follow in their footsteps. They are convinced that they would be much happier in the land of "mañana," where they would be free from molestation, and would find satisfactory hunting grounds.

The fact is undeniable that our government has not given to these Indians adequate protection against encroachment and annoyance by the whites. So far as the Kickapoos are concerned, fully half of the tribe drifted to Mexico a good many years ago, and, being established on a reservation provided for them in that country, has been prospering ever since, owning much cattle and other property, and increasing in numbers considerably. On the other hand, the Kickapoos remaining in the United States have dwindled in numbers.

Meanwhile a number of white men with plenty of money to spend have been urging the Kickapoos to leave Oklahoma, in order that the lands they now hold there may be gobbled. With a view to this end, they are trying to persuade Congress to consent to the relinquishment of the lands in question, and incidentally to pay over to the Indians the money now to their credit in the Treasury—this money to be used, at least in part, for the purchase of lands in Mexico. These lands have already been acquired by the white men aforesaid, who have established a bank at Eagle Pass, on the Rio Grande, from which point, they propose to finance the migration, incidentally assuming management of what remains of the funds thereafter.

It is a highly benevolent scheme, especially from the white men's point of view. They acquire the lands they want in Oklahoma; they secure possession of the funds belonging to the Indians, and for part of the cash they sell to the Kickapoos other lands which they have secured for a small price in Mexico. As for the Indians, they are between the devil and the deep sea. If they remain in Oklahoma, they continue to be subject to the distresses to which they have been exposed. On the other hand, if they go to Mexico, they lose all the rights and privileges which they now hold from our government; and it is altogether likely that within a few years they will find themselves exposed to the same sort of crowding on the other side of the border—the country to which they are going being very desirable for cattle raising.

Now, in order that the situation may be fully understood, it is necessary to go back a few steps. History in its relation to the Kickapoos begins about the year 1700, when they were first visited by missionaries. In those days they dwelt in western Indiana and eastern Illinois—a small tribe, numbering not more than 2500, and able to put only about 650 warriors in the field. They were hunters, and at the same time agricultural to some extent. When there was any fighting to be done, they were ready enough, and in 1812 they took the side of the British against ourselves.

The defeat sustained by them in that war was disastrous in its consequences. They became demoralized, and within the next twenty years lost about half their number, owing mainly to drink and to the starvation caused by it. Later on, about half the tribe drifted into Mexico, where they were provided with a reservation, and were used by the Mexican government to fight the wild tribes along the border. But, incidentally, they indulged in the habit of making raids or armed forays across the border line into Texas, thus causing a great deal of annoyance. Accordingly, in 1873, our government, having settled nearly all of the remaining Kickapoos in Oklahoma, sent commissioners to Mexico to try to persuade these Mexican Kickapoos, as they had come to be called, to return into this country. Many of them did come back, and afterward regretted it.

At that period, rather more than thirty years ago, there were about 500 Kickapoos in Mexico, and perhaps an equal number in Oklahoma. Since then, as already stated, the portion of the tribe in Oklahoma has much diminished in numbers, owing chiefly to drink and other dissipations encouraged by the whites. In 1892 the so-called Cherokee Commission entered into treaties with various tribes in the Indian Territory with a view to the purchase of their lands—the idea being that they should accept allotments in severalty. Of course, they did not receive the cash, which was deposited in the Treasury in Washington, interest at 5 per cent. being paid to them annually.

In most instances the allotments made were 160 acres for each man, woman, or child. As for the balance of the lands surrendered, nothing adequate was paid. The Cherokees got the highest price for the Outlet—$1.25 an acre. The Kiowas received 65 cents, the Cheyennes 49 cents, and the Kickapoos 28 cents. It was hardly better than a swindle, much of the land thus disposed of being now worth from $12 to $30 an acre.

If the Indians could be let alone, they might be happy; but they suffer all sorts of annoyances at the hands of the whites, and at present their one desire is to get away. Unfortunately, the Mexican government, which protects the so-called Mexican Kickapoos in their reservation rights already granted, refuses to extend those rights to our Kickapoos, or to any of the other tribes which want to move to Mexico. Hence it is that, to provide for our Kickapoos in Mexico, the white speculators aforesaid have been obliged to acquire a large tract of land near the reservation of the Mexican Kickapoos. Many of our Kickapoos have already settled in this tract, paying rent, and, if they can get possession of the money belonging to them which our government holds, they want to buy the land.

The bank at Eagle Pass, on the Rio Grande, appears to have been established chiefly for the purpose of financing the migration. It would never do to let the Indians have their money in cash, for they would certainly squander it or allow themselves to be cheated out of it. But the speculators would greatly like to take charge of the funds, in trust for poor Lo, and if the plan could be extended so as to include the Cherokees, Choctaws, and other tribes, moving them out of the United States, and incidentally acquiring the valuable holdings which they leave behind them, much would be gained.

In the meantime the migration is progressing. The Kickapoos are leading the way, and the other tribes are looking hopefully on.

HOW THE FEAST OF THE PASSOV

day after the first full moon. Thus there is genera difference of several days between the Jewish and C happen on one and the same date. This year the Christian Easter falls on the following Sunday, M

HOW THE FEAST OF THE PASSOVER IS CELEBRATED.

By a Special Contributor.

As the Jew has his joyous Feast of Lights, occurring near, and corresponding to, the Christian's Christmas, so he has also his even more joyous Passover, or Jewish Easter, which is now being celebrated throughout the Jewish world, by both orthodox and reformed, in home and synagogue.

The Passover always occurs on the fifteenth day of the Jewish month of Nisan, which includes the latter half of our secular month of March and the first half of April. It is wholly dependent upon the moon's phases, just like the Christian Easter, and is always celebrated on the day of the first full moon of the spring equinox, while the Christian Easter is observed on the first Sunday after the first full moon. Thus there is generally a difference of several days between the Jewish and Christian reckonings, although the two feasts do occasionally happen on one and the same date. This year the Jewish Passover occurs on Friday next, March 29, while the Christian Easter falls on the following Sunday, March 31. The Passover feast is so very prominent, and so dependent upon the moon's phases, that it controls every other great feast of the Jewish colendar, making them all fall earlier or later, as the case may be.

The Passover is not, however, a mere one-day feast, but rather the beginning of a religious season—the feast of unleavened bread—since every pious Jew eats nothing in the nature of bread that contains any leaven. In fact, the prohibition of the Jewish law against eating leaven extends naturally to other foods than bread, and includes also the tabooing of fermented wine, when strictly observed.

The grocery stores of Los Angeles and other Jewish centers are now selling the Jewish Matzoth, or unleavened bread, in large quantities, to both Jew and Christian, it being on sale for a month or so before the arrival of the feast. Matzoth is made, usually, of pure wheat flour and water, though barley and rye are permissible also, in the form of large round or square cakes. It is made only by Jewish bakers, and, so extensive is the wholesale trade, that nearly a million pounds of Matzoth are baked and sold in the United States at every Passover season, to supply not only the demands of over a million Jews, but also a rapidly-augmenting Gentile patronage.

The Passover and the whole feast of unleavened bread commemorates the most momentous event in the long history of the Jewish people, recalling as it does the deliverance of the Hebrews from Egyptian bondage, when the angel of death "passed over" the homes of the Hebrews, but destroyed all the first-born of the persecuting Egyptians, following which the Hebrews "passed over" the Red Sea, dry-shod, into the Promised Land.

This deliverance of the Hebrews from Egyptian bondage was the real beginning of their national history, and from that time to the present they have never ceased to celebrate it with the deepest love and reverence, as the Jewish feast par excellence.

So much did the Hebrew exodus from Egypt mean, that the Passover feast early became the beginning of the Jewish ecclesiastical year, the month Nisan, in which it occurs, soon being given the greatest prominence as the first month of the twelve in the Jewish calendar. The month of Tishri (October) is the first of the civil year.

The Passover means as much to the Jews as the Fourth of July does to Americans. It is the feast of their political emancipation, and wherever the Sons of Israel are now settled, in America, Europe, Asia and Africa, they are found sitting down to eat the Passover supper, as their forefathers 3000 years ago.

The Passover is quite as much a home festival as an ecclesiastical one, if not more so. On this day the father of the family becomes the high priest of the household, to an eminent degree, gathering wife and children about him at the family board, to hear the story of the first Passover, descending from the day of the Exodus. Long before the feast begins, the pious Jew has been making elaborate preparations for its advent. For thirty days he longs for its coming, and so arranges his worldly affairs that they may not conflict with the joyous abandon of the holy Passover. The wife and mother, on her part, begins her annual housecleaning as the Passover season draws nigh, paying special attention to the pots and kettles, and other cooking utensils, which must be cleansed not by means of soap and water, but by fire, in order to insure their complete purification and freedom from the smallest speck of anything unclean. This pious act is not only a long-standing custom among the orthodox, but is duly prescribed in the old standard Jewish law books. It is a question, however, as to how many really obey the letter of this law. Then, on the night before Passover, the father lights a candle, and, followed by all the family, he searches through every room of the house to see if any unclean leaven, or anything else impure, chance to be there, and, in order to give more zest and interest to this solemn household search, the father generally sees to it that some particles of leaven are hidden here and there beforehand, that the quest may not be in vain!

When any leaven is found, it is at once destroyed by fire, that nothing impure may be in the house at the beginning of Passover.

The glorious feast begins, really, on the eve of the 15th of Nisan (i. e., the evening of the 14th,) being ushered in by the appearance of the first three stars in the heavens, or at about sunset. The Jewish day, like the old Bible day, lasts from sunset to sunset, and the Passover supper is eaten in the Jewish home on the evening of the 14th of Nisan, after sunset, at which hour the 15th begins, lasting till the sunset of the 16th.

In other words, Passover this present year begins on the evening of March 29, at sunset, lasting till the evening of March 30.

As the holy feast approaches, all the members of the family put on their nicest and cleanest clothing, while the mother prepares the Passover table, which is really to serve as the family altar. Rich and poor alike are full of expectant joy, for if the poor man claim his legal rights, given him by the Jewish legal code, he will no doubt appear at the rich Jew's table in the evening, and sit down to eat the Passover, along with those whom, perhaps, he has never seen before—a total stranger! Even the beggar is accorded special privileges at Passover, since, if he have no such right as a place at the rich man's table, he at least may demand and receive alms without being expected to say "thank you."

The old prophet Elijah is a welcome guest at the Passover meal, the pious orthodox believing him to be present as truly as if he were in the flesh. For Elijah a special cup of wine is reserved and set aside in case he should appear to claim his place at the festive family board, along with the children, the servants and the poor. At the Passover meal there are placed upon the table the Matzoth, or unleavened bread, in memory of the unleavened bread of the days of the exodus from Egypt, a roasted leg of lamb in memory of the sacrificial lamb of old, some bitter herbs, symbolizing the bitterness of that Egyptian slavery from which the Jewish forefathers were delivered, some roasted eggs, typifying a special offering of the ancient Jewish sacrifice, and finally a mixture of apples, nuts and almonds, representing Egyptian mortar. Each person present at table is provided with a wine glass, for young and old must drink the four cups of blessing.

ORTHODOX JEW AT HIS PASSOVER DEVOTIONS—SHOWING THE PRAYER SHAWL AND SKULL CAP.

These various memorials of the exodus are sometimes arranged in proper order on a small tray and then brought in and set on the large family table. After the Passover meal is over, the symbolic food is removed, after which all present partake of the regular family supper. All of the above articles offered must be partaken of by everybody at table, and the orthodox feel it to be their solemn duty to chew the bitter herbs thoroughly, in order to fully realize the bitterness of Egyptian slavery!

At the beginning of the ritual meal all stand around the table, hats on, the father at the head. As the first part, the head of the family says the kiddush, or blessing over the first cup of wine, all present responding "Amen." Then pater familias touches the bread and says: "Behold, friends, this unleavened bread is the bread of affliction, which our forefathers ate in Egypt." Then the youngest child puts the question to his father: "Why do we observe this festive night," etc. Answer: "Because our fathers were bondmen in Egypt." Then follows the thrilling story of the Jews in Egypt, and of the exodus, and the chanting of Psalm 113, followed by the passing of the second cup of wine.

So the symbolic meal proceeds, the real eating occurring after the second cup, when the father hands to each one a morsel of unleavened bread, with bitter herbs, dipped in the mixture, symbolizing the mortar mentioned above. It is here that Elijah is expected to enter, when the door is opened for him to come in and occupy his special armchair!

When the symbolic meal is over, and the fourth cup has been filled, the happy company resort to the singing of popular songs, some modern, like "America" and the "Star-spangled Banner," others very ancient and redolent with meaning. Among the latter kind is one sung by the orthodox that embodies the whole national history of the Jews from the time of their residence in Egypt, and which, perhaps, was the original form of the "House That Jack Built."

We give it here in full, with its historic significance:

"A lamb! a lamb! that my Father bought for two shillings.
There came a cat and bit the lamb.
There came a dog and bit the cat.
There came a stick and struck the dog.
There came a fire and burned the stick.
There came the water and quenched the fire.
There came the ox and drank the water.
There came the butcher and slew the ox.
There came the angel of death and killed the butcher.
There came the good Lord God and destroyed the angel of death."

In this curious Passover song, coming down to us from the remotest ages, we learn that Lamb means Israel in Egypt, Father meaning God, and two farthings representing Moses and Aaron. The cat refers to the Assyrians, dog to the Babylonians, stick to the Persians, fire to Alexander the Great, water to the Romans, ox to the Saracens, butcher to the Christians, and the Angel of Death to the Turks, each of which powers in turn made war on the Jews, and each of whom was in turn destroyed, leaving Israel still triumphant! The joyous Passover feast terminates with the final blessing and drinking of the fourth cup of wine, and the hopeful cry of the orthodox,

"Next year in Jerusalem."

ONLY INACCESSIBLE CITY ON EARTH.

A brief cablegram from India recently announced that a certain native chartographer had been murdered by tribesmen while attempting to penetrate in disguise to Miri Padam.

The news probably attracted the attention of not one in 10,000 English readers. And yet it should be by rights of more than passing interest to all of them.

For Miri Padam may, now that the rather tawdry secrets of Lhasa have been laid bare, take first place as the only inaccessible spot on the face of the globe. Indeed, even Lhasa itself had been frequently visited in years long gone by; while up to now no civilized traveler, either European or Asiatic, has ever succeeded in setting foot inside this mysterious mountain city.

And yet Miri Padam is barely two days' march from the frontier of Assam, whither its people come periodically in order to trade. But they, on their part, will allow no corresponding privileges. Of mixed Abor and the Mishmi descent, fierce and untameable as tigers, owning no allegiance to any government on earth, their one fixed idea is to kill offhand any stranger presuming to approach anywhere near their stronghold.

Tawang, in the same dangerous district, has been visited and described by native explorers in the pay of the Indian government; and Rima, another jealously-guarded mountain stronghold of the tribes, was reached by Needham at the risk of his life.

Some day, doubtless, Miri Padam, too, will be entered, and its proud isolation destroyed. For it lies close to, if not actually on, the Brahmaputra, and it is this great river which forms the only natural highway from further India to Tibet and China.—[Pearson's Weekly.

IMPURE FOODS OF 1783.

"The pure-food question is as old," said an antiquary, "as the hills."

He took down a volumne bound in gray calf.

"This is the diary," he said, "of Heinrich Cruger, born in Amsterdam in 1724, died in New York in 1807. Listen to the pure-food kick that Henry put up in 1783."

The antiquary read:

"Monday, 18th October—If I would drink water I must quaff the mawkish contents of a cursed open aqueduct, exposed to all manner of defilement, and impregnated with all the filth of the town.

"As for the intoxicating notion sold as wine, it is a vile, unpalatable, and pernicious sophistication, balderdashed with cider, corn-spirit, and the juice of sloes.

"The bread is a deleterious paste, mixed up with chalk, alum, and gone ashes, insipid to the taste, and destructive to the constitution.

"The table beer, guiltless of hops or malt, is vapid and nauseous. The tallowy, rancid mass called butter is manufactured of candle grease and kitchen stuff. The fresh eggs were fresh once.

"The greens are boiled with brass half pence in order to improve their color; while the pickles, though very inviting to the eye, are often insupportably rank to the taste, the reason being that in their case also the housewife has boiled a shilling's worth or two of half pence or a pound brass weight in the vinegar."

A BATTLE OF BUTTERFLIES.

"A battle of butterflies," said the Japanese viscount firmly.

"Impossible!" cried the lady on his right.

"Oh," the viscount insisted, "the thing is authenticated. It happened on August 20, 1889. Tales and poems without number have been written on it.

"On the afternoon of that day two opposing armies of the butterflies fought an aërial battle between Nojima and Kavasaki-Mura. The fight continued till sunset, when the smaller army turned and retreated, the victors pursuing it till all were lost in the rosy sunset haze. The ground beneath the combat was thickly strewn with wounded and dead warriors.

"The battle drew a thousand people. It occurred about thirty feet in the air. The spectators were amazed and horror-stricken to see these gentle blue butterflies grappling and struggling furiously and silently in a blue blizzard above their heads."

THE STORY OF THE SELF-SACRIFICING LOVE OF AN INDIAN CHIEF.

By a Special Contributor.

"CAN the lance become a plowshare and the tomahawk a harrow? Can the war pony take the yoke and till the battlefields where he fought? Can the Indian forget that his furrows sear the hunting ground of his fathers and make a corn patch of the buffalo run?

The Ogallala lifted his head proudly and defiantly.

"The bison and the antelope are gone," he continued. "The wheat and barley are come. The ages of our fathers and the ages before them taught us to shoot and to flay. Can we reap and winnow at the command?"

Young Barstow and Randolph, from the other side of the table, stared wonderingly across at their companion.

"White Cloud?" Barstow, the Westerner, asked.

"I have taught my people to build granaries where the war lodges stood," the Indian went on, ignoring the question except as he answered the rebuke it contained. "I have brought to them the dwellings, the clothes, the food, the manners and the laws of the white. Can I bring to my tribe, from the graves of England and Europe, the blood and lineage of the white?"

He stopped abruptly, and though at mid-evening the surrounding tables in "the biggest restaurant on the Pike" were quite deserted, he drew a little closer to his two young comrades and spoke in a softer tone than before.

"Have you heard," he said, "the voices of the red men—the red men who are gone—whisper upon the prairies and over the waters? You have not. For White Cloud, who teaches, White Cloud, the learned—neither can he hear those voices. But they sing to the Ogallala when he lays aside the books and the rules which the whites have given him; they sing to him and they mock and taunt him. For the red man who is dead knows that he has made the red man red forever, and that no learning, no training, no law and no command can bleach the blood in his veins."

Young Barstow, knowing the man before him as the proud, taciturn leader who, for twenty years, had represented all that gave progress and all that meant hope for his race, gazed incredulously; but the young New Yorker smiled contentedly.

"And you answer the taunts of their voices?" he asked. "How do you answer them?"

"How?"

It seemed almost to startle but not at all to displease the Indian that the young stranger from the East fell in at once with his mood.

"Today," the Ogallala began again. "Tonight I am reminded how their taunts have been answered."

He hesitated a moment and scrutinized uncertainly the two young men before him.

"I promised you a story," he said slowly, as though his words hung upon the decision under formation, "and I shall tell you that which can answer your question. To you, Roger Barstow, son of my friend, and to you, his friend, I may tell the story of the broken knife—the story which no one has heard.

"I am an Ogallala Sioux. With the Black Eagle, whose blood stirred in the cup with mine made us brothers, I rode with Sitting Bull and fought under Rain-in-the-Face against Custer. You know of the battle, but not of what it meant to us. And how can you understand it? To you it bears the glory of brave men who fought to the last. To us——

"You, in your first war, were wronged concerning a little thing of taxes and money. The English surrendered, and you shook hands with them and gave them back their swords. In your great war, no man of you personally was attacked. If there had been no war, no man could have told his direct, personal loss. But because a principle of rule was in danger you went to war; and when the end came, Lee's men lived to feed from your cribs. Such were your wrongs and such your victories. And what were the wrongs which drove us to war?

"We were crowded off, driven back and robbed of the forests, the mountains and the plains. From the lands where our fathers had hunted and their fathers had slain the buffalo, we were driven. But at first we were your friends. You had strange, new things which we did not understand; but at first we were stronger and you sought treaties and purchase. Then treaties meant our restraint and your protection; and then they were written upon the hearts of the red men, upon the paper which could not be torn. But when you became stronger and instead of giving, we in turn asked for rights and protection, the treaties you made were scraps of paper and brands to light the prairie fire.

"You took our lands, our hunting grounds, our ponies and our cattle, and paid for them in words which were lost when they were spoken. You made us fair promises, but no one has ever heard from them since. The trappers, the hunters, the scouts, the brave, strong men who kept their oaths and who, when they fought, needed not numbers—they were gone. In their place you sent us soldiers, men hired to drive us back, to rob and kill us—men less brave, less daring than we, and yet who, each day, pressed us back and beat out the fire of our life. And when one of us fell, his squaw must rear another to take his place; but when the soldier fell, another stepped up from the rear. And some of us saw the end; some of us knew the hopelessness of our fight; but what is the legend? The devil made wolves from men. You made us wolves from men, and blamed us for snarling and biting. You set your regiments like a pack of hounds upon our trail. And what was the Little Big Horn? We saw one hound, stronger, swifter, more cunning and daring than the rest, who ran ahead, trusting to the others to come up; but we turned upon him, caught him alone and destroyed him. That was the Little Big Horn.

"When it was all over, we poured back into the camp still ours, and we cried out to our squaws. 'Pitch your tepees where they lie. We have killed them all.' All! It was complete. There was no one to take back a sword and no one to feed from our cribs. Others before had been wiped out. Fetterman with his men, Kidder with his, and others had been swept away; but there had never been anything like this. We pitched our tepees where they lay and we did not run to the bad lands for refuge. We had killed them all and they lay dead upon the field. What was like that?"

So far the Indian had spoken rapidly and half defiantly in a tone of strange, almost primitive, rhythm and modulation, though he chose his words, carefully; but when he went on, it was more slowly and reflectively.

"That," he said, "was what the Little Big Horn meant to the tribe; but to some of us who saw the white men die, it meant something else also. You know, every one knows, how the great white chief died. He might have escaped with Curly, the Upsaroka, but he stayed to die with his men. He was hit and his pistol was empty, and then he fought on with the saber till he went down. Then, though it was dead, no one dared touch his body, and we left it alone in the grass. But looking toward the hilltop where he fell, have you overlooked his men? Did you look down by the ford?

"It was by the ford that I found Black Eagle, my brother, when the fight was done and the sun was set. He bent over one who led the men that died at the ford, and he looked into the face of a boy—a boy who went down with the rest, but whose fight was not like theirs. The others, when they died, could choose only the manner of their death; and they chose well. But the boy and his men chose death. When their company was thrown across their retreat and stopped us, it was not yet hopeless for the rest. A little delay and Reno might yet have supported the attack; a little time and Benteen might yet have come up. But to gain that time, some one had to hold us back.

"So one company stood its ground. The rest fell back to take what chance time might give them; but the sixty men, and the man and boy in command, looked for no chance—they had given theirs to the others. And the men went down in line, the officers in place in the rear. They went down without faltering, without looking around, without stumbling back. They had determined to hold the ground—not as long as they could, but to hold the ground. The officers who took their orders and obeyed them, knowing what they meant, walked up and down supporting their little line until, when the line was gone, they, too, went down—in position. One of them, I said, was but a boy.

"There was something in that," the Indian went on presently, "which was not like the rest. And when I came to the place where that stand was made, Black Eagle was bending over the boy. My brother held something in his hand, but he dropped the scalp beside the body on the ground, and looked up and down the line which the boy had held to die in position.

"'You?' I asked.

"'I!' he said; but as he turned away, he gazed again at the face of the boy still smiling bravely and defiantly from the red grass. It was not a thing to forget."

The Ogallala hesitated and sank back, as if his words recalled the scene very vividly to his mind; and his hearers, relaxing a little, patiently and silently waited for him to proceed. Though he had excluded, for the most part, a personal expression of the passions of his people, yet now and then, when civilized indifference and racial stoicism both were swept aside, the warrior of thirty years before lay bared. But when he went on, it was as though the recollection of the dead upon the field of the Little Big Horn was scarcely the first movement, the mere pronouncement, in major chords, of his theme.

"We were in the band of Bloody Knife upon the north. A score, Black Eagle and I with those younger and more bold, rode off one night to watch for the wagons upon the great trail to the Manitoba missions. A party with women came; and because most of the hostiles were far to the south, most of their guard had turned back. The soldiers were few, and they were ambushed and surprised. They lay where they fell and gave us no trouble; but for the women we chose chances. With the woman he won placed on the pony before him, Black Eagle rode back to camp.

"Next to mine in the village was the lodge of Black Eagle, my brother. He had taken no squaw, and his lodge was empty. It was cold that night ,and a great fire burned in welcome.

"The woman that Black Eagle bore had fainted in his arms. He laid her, therefore, beside the fire to revive her; and as we looked down, we saw a young girl, graceful and strong, with her eyes closed and her thick black hair falling about her face. I saw she was helpless and nothing to alarm. But when the Black Eagle looked, he started back. I stood between her and the fire, so that shadow as well as light fell over her. Black Eagle grasped my shoulder.

"'Look!' he said, pointing down. 'Look! Do you see it?'

"'What?' I asked.

"The shadow fell deeper and moved across her face as Black Eagle's fingers bore into my arm.

"'Look!' he said again. 'Does the face have the spirit of the young white chief?'

"I turned to my brother, for I did not understand. He was staring down with eyes wide open as a man looks the harder at that which is near, to see that far away.

"'The face of the young white chief,' he said; 'of the boy who did not run. Look! His face is before mine and his spirit rises to me from the ground. Is not that his face and spirit? What does it mean?'

"The fire burned lower and the shadows fell deeper still. Then, as I gazed down, I saw again the face of the boy who lay where the grass was red beside the Little Big Horn. The hair, black and wet, clung to the head like his, and the white face in all its features was his. It was the face of the boy until, as the [illegible] the face softened like wax before the [illegible] lay before us.

"Melting snow in his hands, Black Eagle [illegible] her face. She lay quiet no longer; but, as the [illegible] looks at the adder, she opened her eyes and [illegible] him. She understood; yet, as her hand went under her cloak, she smiled bravely and defied him with her eyes. She threw aside her cloak and the point of the knife, which she held in her hand, was turned against her heart. Black Eagle, too, understood, for he drew back; but one standing near her head stunned her with his foot. The knife fell from her hand, and Black Eagle, taking her in his arms, carried her into his lodge.

"He laid her down within, and half drew the hides at the door; but again the shadows fell upon her face and he stopped and stared down. Then, though the [illegible] wondered and laughed, he laid her knife in her hand and walked out. From his saddle he tore his lariat, and lacing together the hides at the door of his tepee he knotted the end of the rope and threw it within. It was cold that night. In their lodges the others shivered, but the Black Eagle slept in the snow before the tethered tepee.

The old Indian paused to light his pipe, and for a moment smoked in silence.

"He was the son of a chief, and his ponies and [illegible] were many. The Indian girls of the village called him handsome and brave and strong; yet he heard them not nor entered their tepees. Each night he bound his [illegible] with the lariat and threw that knot inside. Each night he slept in the snow. The others jeered him. 'He has married a squaw with a tethered tepee,' they said. Yet as the wife and not the wife of the Black Eagle, they respected her. The months went past, and she learned from the others as the others learned from her. But the words she spoke were only to the women and children. Still, when the Black Eagle drew near, the point of the knife moved toward her heart. Still she slept with the cord of the tethered tepee in her hand.

"Then suddenly, swooping down from the north, a band of white men raided our camp. They were fifty and we not a score, for many of our hunters were out. But at the end, where Black Eagle defended his tepee, he stood and would have held them back had we fought them alone. But, as they pressed us hand to hand and Black Eagle struck them down, the woman he guarded within his tepee slashed the lariat and cut him [illegible] with her knife. The white men swept over him, and she threw herself into their arms. They were not soldiers, hunters or even leaders, but the worst of the [illegible]ers and the scum of the border; but they were white, and she rode away with them.

"Then with his head bleeding and stunned from the knife, through the dark the Black Eagle rode after them. Alone he caught up with them as they [illegible] carelessly and off their watch—and he stole her [illegible] in time. They had bound her hands and gagged her, but, as they gambled for her, Black Eagle stole in and took her away in time. And though wet with his blood which flowed over her, that night she did not [illegible] his arms as they rode. He laid her down in his lodge, he cut the ropes from her hands and tore the gag from her mouth; he stepped back, but she rose and clung to him. He tried to put her away, and weak with his wounds, he staggered from his lodge; but before the whole band she ran to him. And she spoke softly and gently in the Sioux words she had learned from the women and children.

"'Look,' she said. 'Look. Am I white now? [illegible] longer white? Does not your blood make me red?'

"The ends of the lariat, which had bound the tethered rope, whipped in the wind at her feet. 'And look,' she said again, 'the lariat which has kept us apart is cut and the knife'—driving the blade into the ground she stepped upon the handle—'Come! The knife is broken!' And she held out her arms to him."

The Indian ceased speaking, and relighting his pipe he puffed silently. He fell into a meditation so melancholy and reserved, so that young Randolph, when he spoke, seemed to be addressing himself rather to the other.

"The red may not become white," he said, "but the white red. Is that the answer?"

Before the Ogallala could reply, young Barstow leaned forward quickly.

"'The lariat is cut and the knife is broken?'" he demanded incredulously. "'The lariat is cut and the knife is broken?'" he challenged. "You have seen it? Is that what it means? Is that the story? Then why——"

He broke off and gazed at the other with puzzled inquiry. The lines upon the Indian's face deepened and a darker shadow seemed to fall over his features.

"Have you seen it, too?" he asked. He seemed perplexed and a little taken aback as Barstow, for answer, leaned over and, picking up a newspaper from the table, turned rapidly to the "personal" columns in the rear.

"Here it is," he said. "'The lariat is cut and the knife is broken,'" he read.

Young Randolph snatched up the paper and, seating himself, also gazed wonderingly across at the Indian.

"Well?" he demanded.

"No. Not well. Could I not tell the story as a white man would tell it? Must it end—as the tale of a red man should, perhaps—but unsatisfactorily? I would have drawn the hides at the door of the tepee and left them together, but I could—I cannot. Perhaps the Black Eagle was mad that morning, or perhaps he knew how soon his blood, which made her red, would be washed away and leave her white again; for he did not go to her, but stumbled away, till he rode upon a pony which never came back."

"You mean?"

"They say that he found his way to a post and then on to the mission schools of the north. At one of them they tell of a red man who asked to be made white, who asked to be prepared to meet his wife.

long time he hoped and worked; he worked so ha in all but color he became white. But, at last, gained knowledge, he came to understand—a died."

Blacklisted Animals.

SOME FOREIGN BEASTS AND BIRDS THAT THE LAW EXCLUDES.

By a Special Contributor.

THE Department of Agriculture has prepared a unique blacklist of foreign animals and birds that are not wanted in this country, and has arranged to enforce it by preventing their importation from abroad, particularly from our new Territorial possessions—Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines. This is in consequence of the law that prohibits the introduction of such birds and animals as the Secretary of Agriculture may declare to be injurious, and invests the Secretary of the Treasury with power to make and enforce regulations for their destruction or return to the places from which they were shipped, upon their arrival at any of the ports of the United States. The special experts have been styled "inspectors of wild animals and birds," and the ports to which they have so far been assigned are those of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, New Orleans and San Francisco.

At the head of the blacklist stand the names of the dreaded mongoose of India, the destructive Malay fruit bat or flying fox, the doughty little English sparrow, the mina bird of China, and the European starling. The English sparrow is already with us, and the starling to a slight extent, and the purpose now in view is to diminish their numbers and prevent any more from coming in. The mongoose, fruit bat, and mina bird are as yet unknown in the United States, except in captivity; but they are considered as great pests in the countries they now inhabit, and it is important to the American farmer that they be not allowed to get a foothold here.

The mongoose is now overrunning the West Indies, notably Cuba and Porto Rico, and fears are entertained lest it find its way to our Atlantic Coast and Southern Gulf States from that quarter. It is also overrunning Hawaii, and there is grave fear that it may be brought thence into California and other Pacific Coast States. The Malay fruit bat is now very numerous in the Philippines, and on account of the object lesson given of its ravages in Australia and elsewhere it is not wanted here. Its introduction into Hawaii from the Philippines and from Hawaii into our Pacific Coast States would be very easy, and the strictest precautions against it are necessary. The mina bird is at present a scourge in Hawaii, and apprehension is felt that it should be brought, either intentionally or by accident, to our Pacific Coast.

The mongoose is a crafty little animal, a species of ichneumon, closely allied to the rat tribe, and often designated as Pharoah's rat. Though of a ratty nature itself, it is a great destroyer of rats, as well as of snakes. Its head and body measures about eighteen inches long, and its tail about fifteen inches. It is of a grayish-brown color, the head and feet being darkest, while the hair covering the rest of the body is tipped with white. It is especialy famous for its prowess in destroying the deadly cobra, a feat which it is able to accomplish chiefly by reason of its superior boldness and activity of movement.

Thirty-five years ago (in 1872) it was introduced from India to the Island of Jamaica for the purpose of ridding the Jamaica sugar cane fields of rats. The loss previously sustained by the island from the ravages of rats, including the expense of fighting them, amounted to $500,000 a year. Various remedies had been tried without success. Soon after its introduction, however, having such a rare pasture of rats to feed on, it increased in numbers so rapidly that it overspread the entire island, even to the tops of the highest mountains. Simultaneously there was a marked diminution of rats, and in ten years the saving of the sugar planters was rated at $225,000 a year.

Still the mongoose increased, but its omnivorous habits became apparent as soon as the rats diminished. It destroyed young pigs, kids, lambs, kittens, puppies, poultry, game, birds that nested on or near the ground, eggs, snakes, ground lizards, frogs, turtle eggs, and land crabs. It even took to vegetable food and devoured ripe bananas, pineapples, young corn, avocado pears, sweet potatoes, cocoanuts, and other fruits. Toward the close of the second decade it was regarded as the most destructive pest that could have been introduced on the island. Its destruction of insectivorous birds, snakes and lizards was followed by a great increase of injurious insects, which became alarmingly plentiful. Ten years ago the mongoose became so insupportable to the farming interests that a government commission investigated its doings and ascertained that the evil results of its introduction far outweighed the benefits it rendered to the sugar and coffee plantations by its destruction to rats.

The mongoose was introduced also in large numbers nineteen years ago in Cuba, Porto Rico, Grenada, Barbadoes and Santa Cruz. It is now established firmly in Hayti and St. Thomas. In Porto Rico particularly, it has grown to be an intolerable nuisance.

The Malay fruit-eating bat, or flying fox, is regarded as the most pernicious enemy in the world to the fruit grower. It is a native to most of the South Pacific island groups. The genus includes some fifty species. What is known as the Philippines variety—of special interest to us—is the largest of all. It measures, when full grown, no less than five feet across the tip of its wings.

In Australia these fruit bats live in immense communities or camps in the most inaccessible parts of gullies and swamps. There they may be seen by the thousand, frequently crowded so thickly on the trees that large branches are broken off by their weight. They fly at night considerable distances in search of fruit, sallying forth in great flocks at sunset and returning to their camps before dawn. They threaten the extinction of the fruit industry of a large part of Australia. In the orchards of the coast district of New South Wales alone, the damage they inflict annually is measured by many thousand pounds sterling.

One of these fruit-eating bats was brought into the port of San Francisco some years ago aboard the steamer Momowai, in which it had taken refuge when the ship touched the coast of Australia. The quarantine officer at San Francisco promptly ordered it killed. The same fate was meted out to four other specimens of fruit bats that arrived at San Francisco two months later from China on the steamer Rio de Janeiro. Attention was thus called to the danger of the pest, and a regulation was adopted by the California State Board of Horticulture absolutely prohibiting the importation of these creatures into the State.

The mina bird, another vexatious pest to agriculture, is common throughout India and China, and was introduced into the Hawaiian Islands from China nearly thirty years ago. In six years it had bred and multiplied to an astonishing extent, and now it has become a scourge, destroying the nests and eggs of all domestic birds and fowls. It looks somewhat like our crow blackbird, but resembles the English sparrow in its marvelous multiplying capacity and aggressive enterprise.

The starling, a native of Europe and Asia, is also much disliked on account of its propensity to eat fruit and destroy the eggs of other birds. In Fifeshire, Scotland, thousands of starlings now flourish where fifty years ago they were a rarity, and serious damage to shrubbery and young plantations has resulted from their increase. It was introduced in this country as a song bird in Central Park, New York, in 1887, and again in 1890, and in Portland, Or., in 1892, by ornithological societies. It has already gained a firm foothold in the neighborhood of Portland, and is slowly spreading up the lower Hudson Valley, in New York State, and over Long Island.

The English sparrow seems to be regarded as one of the worst of feathered pests in this country. It was first introduced by a gentleman of Brooklyn, in 1851. Later it was imported and distributed in large numbers. So rapidly has it multiplied and spread that it is now firmly established in most parts of the country. The marvelous rapidity of its distribution is doubtless due to the ill-directed care and energy expended in its introduction. Now that it is too late, efforts at extermination have begun, and four States, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Utah—vainly offer bounties for its destruction.

Later on other winged and four-footed creatures whose presence is not desired here will be added to the blacklist as the experience of the American farmer may demand their exclusion.

PRONUNCIATION IN ENGLAND.

There is a village in North Devon which the sign posts call Wolfardisworthy, but which we have heard pronounced "Woolserthy." Very likely, however, if you went there and pronounced it so you would be reproved for the contraction.

This was what happened to us at Cirencester. Passing through that town we were solemnly corrected for calling it "Cicester." On the other hand, when wandering in Norfolk and drawing nigh to a place which was marked on the map "Happisburgh," we found ourselves quite unintellible because we did not pronounce it "Hazebro."

Even in English the difference between sight and sound is confined to a small minority of words, though some people seem to be of the same opinion as a young Hanoverian lady of our acquaintance, who naively remarked: "You English do pronounce so strangely. There is your great author; you spell him Dickens, and you pronounce him "Boz."—[London Spectator.

PUZZLE FOR POSTOFFICE CLERKS.

Cleverness is one of the attributes necessary for every man who is employed in the postoffice sorting mail, for he meets with all kinds of freaks in the shape of letters peculiarly addressed. Some jokers appear to think that all the postal clerk has to do is to solve puzzles.

Recently at the Boston office a letter was received addressed "Wood, Mass.," with a line drawn under the "Wood" and over the "Mass." The letter went out the same day it was received and reached Mark Underwood, Andover, Mass., for whom it was intended, and the postal clerk who solved the riddle did not think he had done anything brilliant. It was all in his day's work.—[Boston Journal.

EL AMOR, LA AUSENCIA, Y MUCHAS VECES LA CONSECUENCIA.

Colaboracion Especial.

UNA amiga ida....y un mundo de recuerdos queda atrás....Un mundo de recuerdos dulces cual besos maternales, suaves, fragantes cual brisas, profundos cual el Universo....!

En ese mundo, más querido para mi que cuanto existe, más bello que cuanto la idea pudiera crear, ella y yo habitamos solamente, porque los dos lo formamos en un sueñon idilico brotado de una mirada ardiente, infinitamente ardiente....escribiendo la historia de su vida con frases de sacrosanto fuego.

Nadie conoce nuestra obra, porqe la llave del cofre en que se encierra la arrojamos al mar para evitar que alguien la hallara. Lo llevamos bien oculto y, si por desgracia, su existencia fuese descubierta, su vida misma se marchitaria cual delicada sensitiva al contacto de rudas manos.

Me refiero al mundo que forjamos una tarde al pasearnos por el bosque. Te acuerdas, Marta? Te acuerdas?

Una y mil veces bendita tu memoria, mujer ideal; una y mil veces bendita tu existencia, ser idolatrado; amiga insuperable, capaz de todas las ternuras y de todo lo bueno; diosa de la tierra en cuyo corazón se retrata la bondad sublime del Creador.

Aquella misma tarde, tomé tu mano blanquisima y al pasarla por mi frente, alcázar que fué de bellas ilusiones, su calor deificante, á las sombras que alli habia, hizo huir pálidas y dieron paso á risueñas alegrias primaverales. Luego, dejaste que mi labio trémulo, devorado por sed amorosa, tocara el tuyo, y en el alma indiferente revivieron las pasiones, se levantaron tumultuosas, locas, implacables....!

Tu caricia mágica convirtió las infecundas arenas del desierto en fértiles pensiles impregnados de luz y flores.

Bien lo comprendiste; solo quedaban dentro el pecho las cenizas heladas del pasdo, cubriendo con su blanquecina capa el alma donde ayer florecieron tantas ilusiones.

Bien lo adivinaste; en las borrascas de la vida habia perdido pedazo á pedazo el corazón y sin atormentarme los recuerdos del pasado ó preocuparme la felicidad futura, iba hacia el ocaso lentamente donde se extinguian ya los diáfanos fulgores de mis esperanzas.

Bien lo entendiste; en el lugar donde las pasiones ardieron deslumbrantes, se alzaba negro, austero, frio, el desencanto. Y por eso veniste con bondadosa mano á enjugar mis lágrimas, á consolar mis tristezas mortales, á romper con los fulgores puros de tu alma las negruras pavorosas de la noche de mis dudas....!

Por eso, en prueba de mi gratitud te he levantado un templo en lo más intimo de mi alma, donde mis creencias te rinden constante adoración.

Un año hace que estás ausente, Marta, y á medida que mi deseo crece por verte la esperanza de que vuelvas á mi se desvanece. Dos meses, nada más, de ausencia—me dijiste, la vispera de tu partida, y han pasado ya doce y aún no gusto las dulzuras de tu presencia? Cuanto se prolongarán esos fatidicos dos meses? Dificil es adivinarlo!

Los años trascurrirán y sus diciembres crudos cubrirán de nieve la cabeza como la cubren hoy esperanzas imposibles, como la, cubrieron ayer ensueños locos, y su acción irreverente, á cuyo peso se gasta todo, traerá, sin duda, á mi espiritu, cansancio, desesperación y tedio; matará completamente, ya lo presiento, todas las esperanzas, todas las alegrias y todos los afectos de mi alma; mas tú, inolvidable amigañ tú (me parece mirarte con los ojos de mi fantasia, vestida de púrpura cual reina, con los mechones rubios cayendote á la espalda, con los cuales jugaba al trazar los planos de nuestro mundo idilico) serás alli la soberana absoluta....!

Nos veremos otra vez? Es necesario; y entonces será para continuar inseparables el estrecho camino de la vida que conduce á la nada. No te separarás de mi, verdad Marta? porque sabes que sin tu calor amoroso el corazón se hiela, y no tiene sensaciones, ni latidos, ni emociones; eterna indiferencia, indiferencia eterna solamente....!

Doce meses de ausencia, parece imposible que haya podido vivir tanto tiempo sin verte! y desde entonces busco la soledad bienhechora dia por dia; no quiero la presencia de nadie, me disgusta todo; me disgusta el mundo. Desde entonces, tarde á tarde, cruzo con vacilante paso las bonitas callejuelas que para llegar al bosque camin̂ábamos, mano á mano, bordando nuestro horizonte con ilusiones de oro y con alhagadoras esperanzas; silencioso voy entregado al placer de los recuerdos, y cada eco que viene á perturbar la mente fatigada donde se agitan mil ideas que me atormentan, es un sonido argentino qe brota de tu boca.

En el ambiente oloroso del bosque no flotan más las alegrias, ahora la imagen del dolor se esconde entre el follaje. Las amapolas ostentándose gallardas al derredor del tronco musgoso del viejo pino, á semejanza de niños abrazados á las piernas temblonas del abuelo, están raquiticas, están descoloridas, se han marchitado; y en su cáliz no queda ya ni almibar ni fragancia; su gentil tallo se encorva como el cuerpo al peso de las aflicciones.

Las veo entristecido, y en mi delirio insano, creo mirarte agachada manoseándolas con cuidado sumo (como lo hacias siempre); llevando hasta sus pétalos mecientes el nácar fresco de tu boca, confundiendo tu aliento con el suyo....!

——Y Marta? Donde está la tierna amiga? parece que preguntan con ansiedad desesperada, que le hicimos para que no venga á visitarnos más?

Contémplolas con ojos fijos, y el pensamiento salvando con violencia inconcebible la distancia que hay entre los dos, te lleva sus sencillas frases.

——Llévanos! Llévanos! Queremos ir á besar la delicada albura de su pecho. Queremos, en sus labios de seda, beber la savia de la vida, y que la clara lumbre de sus ojos nos vuelva el color y la frescura, pues desde que no viene hemos enfermado. Duerme, por desgracia, ese sueño imperturbable que marca el fin de cada vida? Entonces llévanos á su morada, y en la quietud solemne de la media noche, sin que nadie nos oiga, decirla cuanto la amamos y cuanto nos hace falta....Llévanos, por piedad, si esa es su triste suerte; deseamos sobre su obscuro lecho ir a dormir también nosostras....!

Asi, en mi desvario, parece que me hablan con infinita súplica las amapolas, hoy que me ven pasar sin ti; y creelo, hasta de su cariño tengo celos.

El bosque esta desierto. De cuando en cuando pasan dos enamorados en cuyos rostros radia la esperanza, la eterna esperanza de los primeros sueños de amor. Me miran sólo en el asiento que á diario ocupábamos tú y yo, y al comprender la inmensa soledad de mi alma callan; la expresión nostálgica de mi rostro va á herir sus envidiables alegrias. Se dicen entre dientes algo que yo interpreto como piedad sincera, porque me examinan con mirada compasiva, y volviendo á sus ideales gratos, van en apretado abrazo á perderse entre los árboles.

Comprenden lo que es amor, me digo.

Luego, se deja ver otra pareja; la doncella escucha timida, con pudorosa sonrisa, él con la voz entrecortada, trémula de felicidad, va describiéndole la gloria interminable del amor. Mi abandono nada les importa ni mi dolor les interesa. Su derredor les tiene sin cuidado; el mundo para ellos está totalmente desierto.

Pobres chicos, me digo, sueñen, sueñen, aprovechen el tiempo....no saben que mañana la sonrisa amorosa se convertirá en lágrima, pues las dos estan separadas por una linea infinitamente angosta; rian, antes que el llanto venga á empañar la claridez de la pupila....pobre chicos, no saben todavia que tras la dulzura divina del beso está la gota de hiel horriblemente amarga; no saben que el corazón que hoy palpita derramando fuego más tarde en sus latidos derramara la vida....y soñando con plácido futuro se olvidan del mundo como yo también me olvidé de él tan pronto como hube estampado en tu labio el primer beso.

Pero las pocas parejas que pasan, sea cual fuere su edad ó circunstancias, con experiencia ó sin élla, todas se ocupan del mismo tema; dulcisimo tema en el cual se encierran todos los encantos y todas las amarguras de la vida.

Vienen las primeras luces del crepúsculo de la tarde á dorar los viejos pinos que los vientos frios de las sierras doblan, y con ellos vienen también las brisas y los ecos sonoros del mar.

La puesta de Febo se dá prisa, está proxima, y los rayos movedizos rasgan oblicuamente las sombras que proyecta el bosque, y con caricia débil van á cerrar los broches de las amapolas que á semejanza de niños rodean el tronco de los viejos pinos.

Vistese de violeta el Universo, y todo se entristece, como se entristeció mi alma desde que partiste, prenda idolatrada! A los fulgores candentes del dia suceden las tinieblas pavorosas de la noche. El mismo cambio tuvo lugar en mi alma.

Doy descanso al cuerpo alli en aquel asiento despintado, y entregado al sufrimiento paso largas horas, interminables como la soledad que me rodea. Querido asiento! el oyó insensible nuestras pláticas de amor, todo aquello que te prometi semi-embriagado con tus caricias adoradas! El escuchó el lenguaje que brotó del corazón apasionado en momentos de suprema felicidad.

El testifica que fui felicisimo; el testifica que soy muy desgraciado. El sabe que aún te amo hasta la idolatria, porque alli voy á buscarte tarde á tarde con ansia indefinible. El sabe que la mente vive contigo, porque observa que cual infortunado demente, sentado alli te estoy hablando de mis amores, como lo hacia invariablemente; y que en el vehemente deseo de verte, te creo á mi lado, linda virginal, triste....y coloco mi brazo, como acostumbraba hacerlo, para que tu cabecita reste sobre él; y asi, con todo el fuego de mi alma, continuo narrándote la historia de mis dichas; la historia de ese mundo de recuerdos, dulces cual los besos maternales, suaves y fragantes cuál las brisas, é infinitamente profundo cual el Universo....!

Cuando la mente vuelve de su dulce desvario, horrible desengaño viene á asesinar las imágenes de amor. La visión celeste se espuma, se pierde en el espacio cual un suspiro.

En mi alma se hace la obscuridad. Estoy solo, muy solo....no estás junto á mi y siento en el alma mucho frio....mucha angustia.

Todo duerme....Todo descansa, Dios mio! Todo está tranquilo....y solo en mi corazón se agitan punzantes inquietudes; sólo á mi me niega el cielo la bendita calma; sólo yo peno, sólo yo muero bajo la augusta quietud de las estrellas....!

Y al fin, ido mi delirio, y engañado por mis sentidos, con esa gran nostalgia en el alma, regreso taciturno, con la cabeza sobre el pecho y resonando en las tortuosidades de mi cerebro el sonido argentino de tus palabras, oidas tántas veces alli en aquel banquillo en horas plácidas, que se desbarataron como el humo.

Las calles están obscuras, solitarias, sin carcajadas, sin rumores, desiertas como mi alma. Ecos de cánticos de amores llegan vibrando, alegres, á mi oido, me hacen un cariño y luego fugaces se pierden en la calma.

De súbito, desvanecidas notas que se escapan de algún piano vienen hasta mi, fatidicas, bruscas, aguijoneantes, á hacerme recordar que bajo tus manos ágiles muchas veces gimió el instrumento. Vienen, impias, á refrescar la memoria de aquellas noches incomparablemente bellas que pasábamos á solas; tú, sentada al piano ejecutando con exquisita tristura la Marcha Fúnebre del gran maestro que supo idealizar la tisteza, Chopin; ó el valsecito "Suspiros" cuyas notas son quejas, sentidas lágrimas que arrancara un dia el más grande desconsuelo, ayes de amorosa melancolia; yo, contemplándote con arrobamiento, deleitado con la música que hacia crujir mis nervios, mirando crecer en tu semblante, á medida que tocabas, esa virginal melancolia que aún te presentaba más encantadora; espiando con interés la diversa expresión de tu rostro, ora triste, ora apasionada, ora dulce, cada vez que tus albas manos [illegible] dentes fúnebres.

Muchas veces, interpretando tus [illegible] melódicas, vi que tus delgados párpados [illegible] que sobre tu pestaña voluptuosamente [illegible] cian unas perlas; simbolo purisimo de [illegible] que al desprenderse de su concha nácar [illegible] sobre el teclado marfilino, exhalando [illegible] quejido que se mezclaba con las armonías [illegible] Chopin....!

Y, aunque hacias esfuerzo sobrehumano [illegible] nerlas, éllas, sin embargo, rodaban una á [illegible] azuladas ojeras sin que pudieras evitarlo. [illegible] tarlo, pero yo que tenia los ojos fijos en ti, lo [illegible] todo.

Te reclinabas sobre el piano como al [illegible] infortunio; inmóvil, callada, y respirando [illegible] permanecias en tal actitud largo rato, [illegible] niéndote á tu amargura incomprensible [illegible] tocando al parecer sin temores, pretextando [illegible] luz de la lámpara hacia á tus ojos mucho daño.

Nunca te pregunté cual era la causa de tu [illegible] cioso, que de seguro venia de penas intimas, [illegible] podias contenerlo aún con esfuerzo sobrehumano.

De tus amarguras nunca me hablaste ni [illegible] cion alguna, al contrario, siempre me [illegible] eras feliz y que jamás habias sentido las [illegible] del desencanto.

Procedian tus lágrimas conmovedoras de la [illegible] la felicidad ó del mar tormentoso de la desgracia?

Jamás lo pregunté, aunque presumo [illegible] dichosa, porque solo llorabas al oir esa música [illegible] nada de dolorosa ternura; la música sublime de [illegible] Juzgo que llevabas espinas en el alma, porque [illegible] tia la influencia del dolor, y si estabas alegre [illegible] grias; si estabas triste me entristecia; y si [illegible] tro mi pecho se desboradaba secreto llanto.

Moria alguna esperanza en tu alma? [illegible] música memorias adoradas? Te resentaba [illegible] prisma de colores ensueños no realizados?

Solamente tu lo sabias, Marta!

Yo en vano quise explicarme el misterioso [illegible] tus lágrimas. En vano intenté descorrer el [illegible] que aún las cubre.

Sólo tu corazón henchido de ternura [illegible] decir si la felicidad ó la angustia habia [illegible] fibras....!

Pero yo estaba contigo, yo te acompañaba, [illegible] ahora, estoy aqui solito, y en mi sufrimiento [illegible] nádie me acompaña, amiga sin igual! En mi [illegible] sufrimiento nádie me ofrece una palabra de [illegible] Mi dolor no arranca del mundo una frase piadosa [illegible] ven con burlona risa mis horas supremas de [illegible]

Todo duerme, Dios mio! todo descansa; [illegible] bajo la soberana quietud de las estrellas.

. . . . . . .

Hace dos ó tres semanas que, el que escribe [illegible] del ruido ensordecedor de la ciudad y huyendo [illegible] nubes de polvo, que, cargadas de venenosos [illegible] doquiera se levantan, salió al obscurecer, en [illegible] sosiego y aire puro á uno de los parques que [illegible] los suburbios, y al pasar, tras una banca observó [illegible] de triple foco que, un jóven como de veintiun [illegible] demacrado, bien vestido, y al parecer nacido [illegible] cuna, hablaba gesticulando exageradamente, [illegible] curiosidad, se detuvo á escuchar lo que aquel [illegible] decia, y oyó lo que arriba fielmente reproduce.

El jóven, en cuya faz patética se pintaban [illegible] sufrimientos, después de pronunciar con [illegible] anudaba en su garganta las últimas palabras, [illegible] y echó á correr perdiéndose en un instante [illegible] leda.

Dos dias más tarde la prensa se ocupó de un [illegible] loco, y dada la descripción que se se hizo [illegible] indudable, que era el mismo que en el parque [illegible] su soledad y la ausencia de su amada.

The Invisible Group.

"I CALLED on George Grey Barnard in Paris last month," said a Philadelphian. "Mr. Barnard is the sculptor of our new Capitol at Harrisburg, a decidedly successful man. While we were looking over some sketches in his studio, a young French painter dropped in.

"'Have you heard the story about Garpeau?' the newcomer cried.

"We hadn't heard it. Therefore the young man told it to us.

"Garpeau, it seems, was a sculptor of great talent and great eccentricity. A rich patron of the arts commissioned him to do a life-size group representing Polyphemus the Cyclops crushing the youth Acis under a rock.

"This powerful patron was not to be offended. Therefore Garpeau accepted the commission. But he could make neither head nor tail of it. It did not appeal to him. It was a subject in which he could not take the slightest interest. And every week or so the rich patron asked him reproachfully how his group was getting on, and Garpeau could only shake his head. It was embarrassing.

"Well, one day Garpeau sent for the patron.

"'There is your group,' he said, and he pointed to a great, rough lump of clay in the corner of the studio—a mere formless mass of clay, no more.

"'My group?' cried the patron. 'Where?'

"'There,' said Garpeau, impatiently. 'There, to be sure. Don't you see the rock?'

"'But where is the youth, Acis?'

"'Under the rock, of course,' said Garpeau. 'Crushed, invisible.'

"'But the Cyclop, Polyphemus? Where is he?'

"'Gone off about his business,' said Garpeau. 'You don't suppose he'd be hanging around, do you, after committing a crime like that?'"

A Real Bargain.

SENATOR CLARK, at a studio tea in New York, declared that his recent purchase for $40,000 of Jules Breton's "Harvesting of the Poppies" was a bargain.

"As a work of art," said the Senator, "as an object of consummate beauty, the painting is easily worth $40,000. Besides, it is sure to go up in value. Oh, yes, any way you look at it, I have got a bargain."

Turning idly the Algerian sketches in a huge portfolio, while the author of the sketches looked on with hopeful, anxious eyes, he resumed:

"I have got such a bargain as a small tobacco dealer tried to get last Easter. An advertising agent told me about it.

"The tobacco dealer called at a newspaper office, and pointed out the half-page tobacco advertisement of a powerful firm.

"'Is this advertisement to appear again?' he asked.

"'Oh, yes,' replied the clerk. 'It is to appear all Easter week.'

"'Well,' said the dealer, 'just insert this small card of mine immediately below it.'

"And he handed the clerk a card that said:

JOHN SMITH,
Cigars and Tobacco,
Supplies All the Goods Described in the Above Advertisement, SAME QUALITY AND 20 PER CENT. CHEAPER."

She Attended to the Gas.

AN ANCIENT couple from one of the back counties of New Jersey pulled up at a New York hotel for the night. They had not shaken out all the hayseed, and the clerk gave the old gent a few precautionary tips as to the gas. He did this on the side, so as not to jar the wife's feelings, seeing that she was a woman of spirit. She preceded her husband to the room, and when he got in she had retired.

"What did that clerk want with you, Hiram?" she inquired naturally.

"He told me I mustn't blow out the gas, 'Mandy," he replied with considerable importance.

"Did he, indeed?" she exclaimed. "He didn't say I mustn't blow it out, did he?"

"N—o, he didn't" Hiram hesitated.

"Then you git into bed!" she commanded, as she sat down on the side to wait for him, "and I'll attend to that myself. I don't propose to sleep in no room where it's light as day."

When the watchman came around later he discovered something and got the door open in time.—[Judge.

Story for Palm Sunday.

IT WAS Palm Sunday, and the palm that the young girl was carrying home from church was singularly beautiful. Pausing on a sunny corner, she said:

"You admire my palm? Well, no wonder. It is from Bordighera, on the Italian Riviera; it is from that Bordighera plantation which has had the exclusive right in Italy of growing palms for Palm Sunday for hundreds of years.

"It is a pretty story. When Michael Angelo was at work on the embellishment of St. Peter's in Rome, as a certain priceless column was being put up, a rope broke, and but for the pluck and strength and readiness of a laborer from Bordighera, who seized the broken rope and held it—the strain was terrible—till help arrived, but for this chap's readiness the priceless column would have crashed into a thousand pieces.

"It was saved, thanks to the Bordigheran, and the matter made some talk in Rome. A reward was suggested, and the church granted the man this guerdon—namely, to have in perpetuity the exclusive right, the monopoly, to supply the Italian church with their Palm Sunday palms.

"Many rights granted in perpetuity by the church have become void with time's passage, but this right still holds, and if you visit the white town of Bordighera, glittering and somnolent in the southern sunlight, you may seek out the great palm plantations of that ready laborer's descendants, and you will notice how the palm leaves are all tied up instead of being allowed to spread—drawn straight up together and gartered round at the top—so that they will bleach."

The Hungry Glitter.

SEIZED with a violent palpitation of the heart, the pretty girl halted.

"Dear me," she said, laying her hand upon her breast, "how my heart is jumping. There must be an Easter millinery exhibition somewhere near."

So saying, she hurried on again, a hungry glitter in her eye.

A Cruel Religion.

"IT IS all very well," said the Lenten lecturer, "to say that other religions are as good as ours. Take Mohammedanism, for instance, that cruel creed. Take the 'Lord's prayer' of Mohammedanism, the prayer that is repeated daily in every Mohammedan household and mosque. This is it:

"'I seek refuge with Allah from Satan, the accursed. In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful. Oh, Lord of all Creatures, Oh, Allah, destroy the infidels and polytheists, thine enemies, the enemies of the religion! Oh, Allah, make their children orphans and defile their abodes, households, and their women, and their children, and their possessions, and their race, and their wealth, and their lands, as booty to the Moslems. Oh, Lord of all Creatures!'"

Dope.

"EASTER is approaching. Here is $100. Get a new Easter rig."

"No, I don't want it, love. Buy yourself those law books you have done without so long."

"Take twenty-five, then, and get a bonnet."

"No, dear. Keep the twenty-five toward your insurance premium."

"Take ten, at least for—"

"No, the rent is behind, and—"

Then he awoke, and lo, 'twas but a dream.

Hair Straighteners.

"A CURIO," said the collector. "A curio from Japan. A hair straightener."

"You mean a hair curler, perhaps?"

"No, I mean a hair straightener. For straight hair is de rigueur in Japan, and if a lady's hair is curly, she straightens it every morning when she makes her toilet, and this is the instrument that performs the operation.

"All over our own land, as Easter approaches, the ladies are busy heating irons and curling their straight hair, while on similar holidays in Japan, amid a smoking and sizzling of black locks, the irons are heated and the curly hair of the Japanese ladies is laboriously straightened."

Vanity of the Great.

"VANITY," said the husband, as his wife tried on her new Easter outfit before the cheval glass. "Vanity, the curse of little minds."

But the lady, who was literary, ran for her note book.

"Vanity is the sign of a little mind, is it?" she cried. "Well, listen to this. This is from Gibbon's diary."

And she read:

"'I am the greatest historian that ever lived. No one can equal me in this direction.'

"Or this," she went on, "from a letter that John Ruskin wrote to Alexander Mitchell:

"'What, in the devil's name, have you to do with either Mr. Gladstone or Mr. Disraeli? You are students at the university, and have no more business with politics than you have with rat catching. Had you ever read ten words of mine (with understanding) you would have known that I care no more for Mr. Disraeli or Mr. Gladstone than for two old bagpipes with the drones going by steam, but that, with Carlyle, I stand, we two alone in England, for God and the Queen.'

"Or this, from Victor Hugo's famous letter to Bismarck:

"'The giant greets the giant; the foe, the foe; the friend, the friend. I hate thee furiously because thou hast humbled France. I love thee because I am greater than thou art. Thou wert silent when the bell in the tower of my fame struck my eightieth year. I speak when the stolen clock on thy writing table unwillingly annonces to thee that tho hast entered the seventies. I am eighty. Nay, I am eight and thou art seven, and mankind is the cipher behind each of us. Were we allied as one man, history would cease. Thou art the body, I am the soul; thou art the cloud, I am the lightning; thou art the might, I am the fame. Who is greater, victor or vanquished? Neither. The poet is greater than either, for he celebrates both.'"

Closing her note book, the lady returned to the mirror.

"Don't talk to me about vanity after that," she said.

The House Beautiful—Its Flower Garden and Grounds.

TREES FOR SHADE.

CARE SHOULD BE TAKEN TO HAVE THEM PROPERLY PLACED.

By Ernest Braunton.

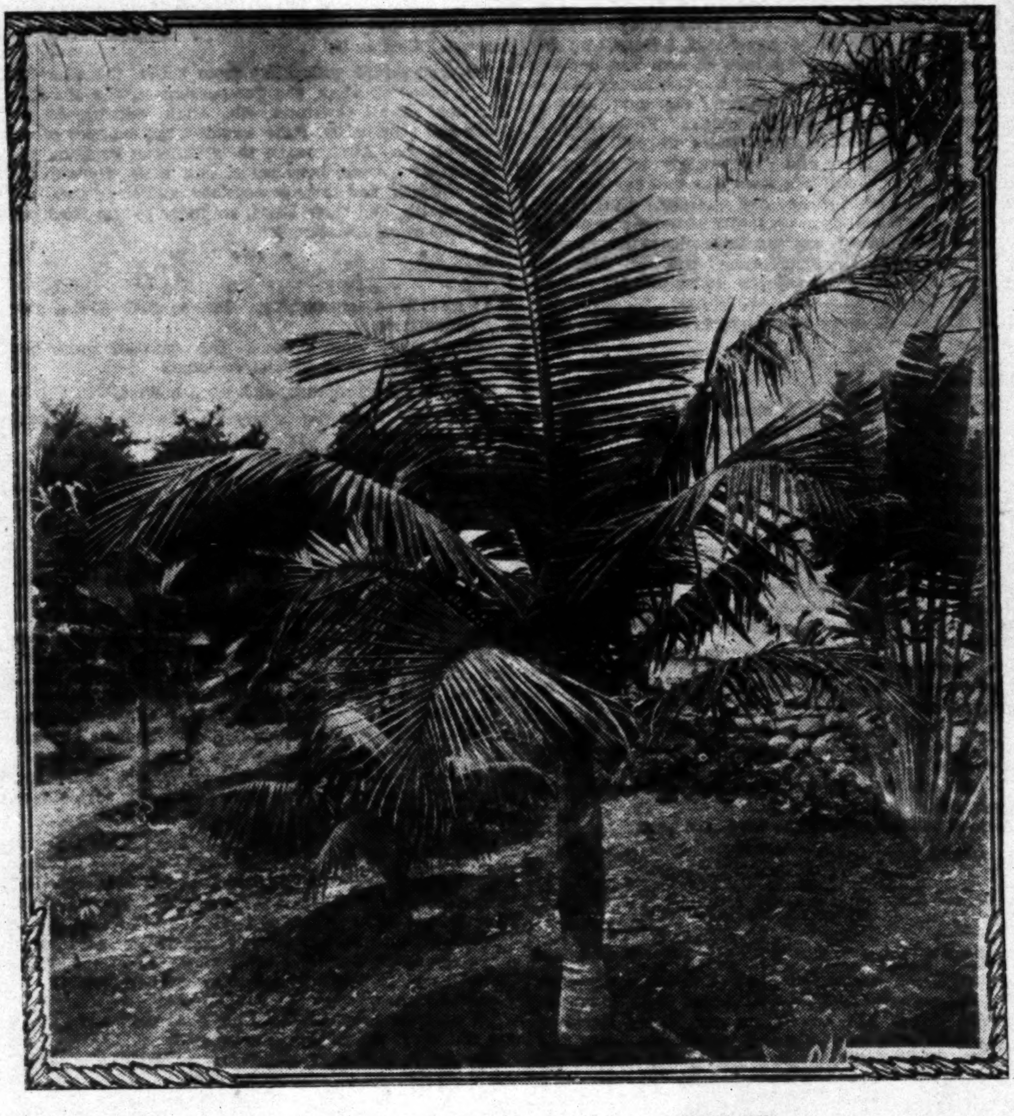
WHILE trees are usually needed to provide shade about the house and in the grounds, care should be taken that they are properly placed. It is not desirable nor is it necessary to have shade everywhere. Shade has no value unless in contrast with sunshine, therefore the best effects are obtained and the most natural expressions of art gained by leaving the center of the yards open, except for an occasional tree about the house, and the planting of shade trees confined largely to the borders and outlines of the property.

No State or country may rightfully boast of a greater array of suitable shade trees than Southern California, for here are assembled the horticultural glories of all climates and all lands. It is not necessary that we should plant "any old thing so it is a tree," for in the long list available may be found trees for every use and condition. Soil and climate often enter into the consideration of suitable shade trees, but as a rule we first choose those whose beauty or peculiar appearance appeals most strongly to us. These points of excellence (to us) may be resident in color, form, character of foliage, color or amount of blossom, and many other points not mentioned, yet it will be found best, in the end, if we have chosen trees suitable for soil, climate and available water supply. Without considering this trinity no planting will be especialy successful or satisfactory.



A BEAUTIFUL PALM—KNOWN LOCALLY AS SEAFORTHIA.

Our Mesquite in Hawaii.

There are two thoroughly distinct kinds of forest in the Hawaiian Islands. One kind occurs near sea level, in the drier portions of the islands, and is valuable on account of the timber and other products which it yields, and consists of a single species, quite common in California, where it is native, but only naturalized in the islands. It is the mesquite of the southwestern United States and Mexico, and is there called algaroba. The first algaroba tree in Hawaii grew from a seed planted in 1837 by Father Bachelot, founder of the Roman Catholic Mission. This tree, which is about two feet in diameter and fifty feet tall, yet stands in thrifty condition at the corner of Fort and Beretania streets, Honolulu. It is the progenitor of at least 50,000 acres of forest, which is fairly well distributed over the different islands.

On the Island of Oahu the algaroba forest, covering densely about 20,000 acres, extends in a narrow, almost continuous belt along the south and west coasts. In this situation it is fully protected from the northeast trade winds, which blow with great regularity from March to November—exposure to which it cannot endure. The young trees are now growing in great numbers as high as 1500 feet above the sea. It is supposed by some people that algaroba is able to grow at this elevation only by gradual adaptation. Starting at sea level, the trees were at first acclimated only to an elevation of a few hundred feet, but successive generations growing higher and higher up the slopes, have at last produced trees which are able to grow at the altitude named. Indeed, since the trees now found at 1500 feet are all young and thrifty, it seems probable that they will extend farther up the mountain slopes than they have yet done.

On the other islands the algaroba occupies the same relative position, reaching up the dry slopes to an elevation of several hundred feet. The land which it has taken possession of is usually so stony, arid and precipitous as to be utterly worthless for other purposes. Therefore, the advent of this tree is generally welcomed by the land owner. In Hawaii the species grows much denser, as well as both taller and straighter, than in the United States. Where fully established it shades the ground so perfectly as to keep out all competitors, and attains a height of from fifty to sixty feet. While there are no records to support the opinion, it is believed by some that the districts covered by algaroba receive more local showers than formerly. There is also no question but this tree is splendidly adapted to many parts of California where there is a marked dearth of tree life, and where the mesquite has never been given a trial.

A Beautiful Palm.

Two species of Archontophoenix, known to the trade as Seaforthia robusta (or S. elegans,) and Ptychosperma Alexandreae (properly A. Alexandreae,) are much in demand for our warmest sections. The former (A. Cunninghamii) is the more popular by reason of its greater hardiness and its longer and more drooping leaves. These palms have not been planted as extensively as they should be, on account of their cost when of a considerable size. However, their graceful habit and long, finely divided fronds attract the attention of all. They have, in general, the most tropical look of any palm we grow.

If the same question arises within the limits of a large city, in an outlying district, there is no question but the park would prove the better investment. Land values increase so rapidly that a city or community may find ample justification for acquiring park lands, even at considerable sacrifice of other interests. If we have parks the people will sooner or later see that suitable streets are built in that vicinity. As a rule, when the good streets have been built, the park area is so accessible that the price is prohibitory. These facts are in themselves powerful arguments for ample parks and splendid highways, a combination of civic beauty that leads only to prosperity.

PRIZE GARDENS IN THE UTAH STREET SCHOOL DISTRICT.

Planting Roads and Avenues.

In the planting of straight roads and avenues it is essential to preserve regularity of line, as also uniformity in the color and shape of the trees. The nearest approach to the sublime in landscape gardening is in effects produced by extended uniform lines of trees. Continuity of line and uniformity of object, when combined with great extension, produce sublimity. Objects are sublime which possess quantity and simplicity in conjunction.

It is not on a small rivulet, however transparent or beautifully winding it may be; it is not on a narrow valley, though variegated with flowers of a thousand hues; it is not on small elevations, though they are clothed with the most delightful verdure, that we bestow the epithet sublime. But it is upon Niagara, the Mississippi, the Andes, the ocean, the wide expanse of the firmament, or the immensity of space uniformly extended, without limit and without apparent termination.

To produce this effect it is, therefore, imperative that only one variety of trees should be used. Anything that tends to break up the uniform continuity will at once destroy it. A straight avenue planted with a variety of trees of varied forms, some broad and spreading, others tall, pointed and spiry, is as much at variance with good taste as would be a Grecian facade furnished with columns embracing all the different orders of architecture.

White Elm.

The white elm (Ulmus Americana,) much used as a street tree, is a forest tree which frequently attains a height of from 100 to 120 feet and a diameter of from six to eight feet. Its average size is somewhat smaller, although it is among the largest of our hardwood trees. When grown in the open the trunk almost invariably divides a short distance above the base, forming a wide-spreading, graceful crown. Forest-grown trees exhibit a wide divergence in form. The trunk is often clear of branches for over two-thirds of its length, straight and gradually tapering, surmounted by a compact crown. At the base the larger trees are often buttressed. The slender, interlaced twigs and the rough, flaky bark, divided into narrow ridges, are typical of the tree in all situations.

Narrow Parkways.

One of the most common evils in California towns and cities (and probably elsewhere,) constituting one of the most serious mances to civic beauty, lies in the extremely narrow parkways usually left between street curb and sidewalk. Often but eighteen inches is allowed for this space, and this is not enough for light and air, water, etc., for street tree requirements. There remains no question as to the desirability of having broad, generous parkways. Such insures a healthy luxuriance of street trees, impossible to obtain with the stingy space usually left, and also allows sufficient room above for the young trees, so that they are protected from damage if situated (as they should be) in the center of the parkway.

Desert Street Trees.

For desert regions having cold winters as compared with Los Angeles and vicinity, the list of street trees is not large. Two at least have given good results on our California "deserts." The cottonwood is sure to thrive in these hot regions, if supplied with plenty of water. It may be propagated from either seed or cuttings. If the former are used, half of the resulting trees will ordinarily be females, and will produce the cotton that is so annoying during spring. By taking cuttings from male trees, this objectionable feature may be avoided. The size of the cuttings is not important.

For a deciduous shade tree in very hot regions, none is better than the Texas umbrella. If supplied with sufficient water, it will not only endure but flourish during the hottest weather in summer. The early growth is injured by late spring frosts and the leaves fall soon after the first frosts of autumn, but during the warm part of the year the foliage is abundant. It is a dark rich green, very pleasing to the eye in an arid region where so much of the mature foliage has a grayish hue. The trunk of the tree is short and the branches small, the wood produced being thus scanty—and furthermore it is of a poor quality; but for shade and ornament the tree is a very useful one in hot regions.

Nature Study.

Nature study is a very different thing from the natural sciences, as they have usually been taught and considered. The student should be taught to view a plant, for instance, not with the eye of a botanist, but rather as another manifestation of life that is an object of sympathetic interest. It is not an object to be dissected or analyzed, but one that lives and influences and is influenced by other objects or forces with which it comes in contact.

Flowering Shrubs.

When landscape gardening first began to rank as a profession in America only native shrubs were available for this work. But of more recent years a great variety of flowering shrubs have been introduced from all over the world, especially the "Flowery Kingdom" of Japan. Experimenters are also producing improved sorts, so that we now have over a hundred excellent varieties which have proved hardy in the vicinity of Chicago. In the selection of varieties lies the true art of landscape gardening. Landscape architects do not differ very much as to where trees and shrubs should be planted on a given place. But no two landscape men will agree as to the selection of varieties to be planted. Experience leads to different conclusions. Landscape architects differ also in the number of varieties to be used. Some will use only a dozen varieties on a given place, where others will use fifty. Some will also still use only the native shrubs, supported by the claim that "we do not wish Japan scenery in America." Personally, the writer believes in using a comparatively large variety of the flowering shrubs. Experience has taught that people take more delight and interest in their home grounds where they have a variety of flowers. It must be understood, however, that no shrubs should be planted which are not hardy in the locality, and above all we should avoid making a place simply a botanic garden.

Practical Poultry Culture in the Southwest.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF STANDARD-BRED POULTRY AND THE PEOPLE WHO GROW IT.

THE SITTING HEN.

SOME THINGS THAT THE OBSERVER MAY LEARN OF HER WAYS.

By Henry W. Kruckeberg.

NOTE.—Short articles of a practical nature are cordially solicited from breeders and fanciers, relating their experience with poultry, giving their successes as well as failures. The writer will be glad, in so far as lies in his power, to answer inquiries of public interest bearing on any phase of an enlightened poultry culture, such as feeding and management, disease and its prevention, market conditions, fancy points, etc. The co-operation of utility breeders and fanciers is cordially solicited, to the end that the best thought and practice in an enlightened poultry culture may find a healthy expression in these columns.

THE amateur who has watched the old hen hatch out several broods of chicks, watched her ways, heeded her needs and supplied them, is in a fair way to succeed with poultry farming. He has learned that blood heat of a hen upon hens' eggs for twenty-one days almost constantly will hatch fertile eggs. He has seen the hen mother anxious to cover the thirteen eggs, seen her sit constantly for four days, being off only a few minutes at a time to get a bit to eat, and sometimes not coming off at all for three days. The third day he has seen her turn the eggs with her bill, and thereafter to turn them all every night and morning up to the eighteenth day. She will rush out after the morning sun has gotten things warm, and eat a splendid long breakfast on the morning of the fifth day. The amateur seeing this for the first time will get anxious, fearing the eggs will cool off. Of course they will cool off.

The hen this beautiful March weather will stay off ten minutes, and be exceedingly busy—eat, drink and take a sun bath, and a dust bath. She will cool the eggs and then turn them every morning until the eighteenth day, and on the morning of the eighteenth day she will not seem to need anything to eat, but will hurry off after it is very warm, eat a bit, drink hurriedly, rush back to the nest and get upon the eggs carefully as if they might be so many soap bubbles. On the eighteenth day the embryo chick prepares to pip the eggshell, and rights himself so he can pip upward. If his head be down, he turns in the shell. If the hen should chance to turn an egg in getting on the nest, on the eighteenth morning, she will carefully turn the egg back as quickly as possible.

People who are interested in studies of instinct and intuition have missed much, if they have not studied the hen mother upon eggs about to hatch. Probably gravity suggests the situation, and mind with gravity prompts the young chick to push head upward. Humanity pushes its head as high from earth as possible, generally unconscious of gravity. The hen mother keeps her head high, but instinct must teach her when her chicks are old enough to feel high-headed, so she can favor the shell-covered innocence yet to individualize.

If instinct leads the hen, instinct may lead the chicks to respect the inevitable law of gravity. In all life instinct comes with the individual to defend it while innocent—until it has become world-wise. It is a splendid problem to figure on: Why is all innocent life consequential and whence comes instinct, the defender?

If the chick in the shell be turned down after getting ready to pip, he may not make the extra exertion to right himself, though a strong chick will do so. If he pips the underside of the shell, the moisture of the shell will run to it, and in the law of gravitation run out through the hole and stop the hole. After the chick has once breathed the raw air, he will stifle or be drowned in his own moisture if the hole be stopped. He will drown in his own moisture if he does not pip the shell at all. The mother hen keeps the shells all right side up, and can tell by the rappings in the shells after the chicks begin to rap. The mind of the hen is mightily apparent or else it is all instinct. Both mind and instinct are apparent to the average student.

The mother hen avoids both turning and airing the eggs after the seventeenth day. Raw air should not come to the chicks, when it first pips or is first out of the shell. Raw air coming to the egg will chill it and the chilled egg moisture will make the chick stick in the shell as he breaks for liberty. Parts of the broken shell will stick to him, and impede him. The old hen will help her chicks out, if need be, knowing just how, but she has a curious sense of economy to the amateur, which will justify itself, upon examination. The strong chicks pip first and spring out of the egg by the twenty-first day. The strong chicks generally come out on time. The hen will linger on the nest not more than a day, during which time the dried-off chicks need no food nor drink. She will encourage their coming out from under her, and if any bits of fine gravel are near will call them to the bits and, holding one in her bill, will drop it and chick will take it up and swallow it. She will pick up and drop, pick up and drop, and call as she sits upon the nest. Any late-out chick may hatch, and perhaps a strong chick will come out late from some accident to the shell. The twenty-second day she goes off the breeding nest, and coaxes all to come. She will go back to a weak one, who cannot follow fast, and urge. Perhaps all the eggs were fertile, but three chicks are weak. As she goes off with ten healthy chicks, the three cry in despair. She goes back to them, responding to their cries many times. When she is sure they are weaklings, she lets them cry and chill to death. Our human sense of justice rebels, and the amateur will take the bereft things in a basket and keep them warm and fed and hope for them a future while deserted by a natural mother. The amateur has to learn, that weak chicks make weak fowls, and suffer subject to the rigid laws of nature. If fondled, they suffer more in one year of life than in the few hours of life they could survive in the breeding nest deserted, and never amount to anything economic. The mother hen's sense of justice for a chick is positive, far better than man's. It is kind when one sees a mother hen go forth and leave a chick in the nest, to twist its little head from its body, save a bit of world agony, and not breed other agonies with humanly appointed kindness.

With the mother hen running in the orchard with nine strong chicks from thirteen eggs, the amateur may safely reflect: Model mother hen and ideal eggs. Big proposition this of getting chicks, subject how little to man's inventive! With profound respect man studies the nature way, and picks up problems he will never solve.

The Youngsters; Keep 'Em Growing.

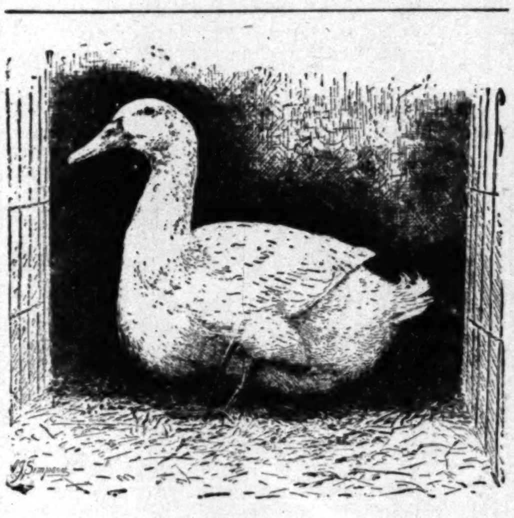
The price of success in poultry culture just at this season is to keep the youngsters growing right along to maturity. You cnnot afford to miss a point in the game, nor slip a single cog—the slightest setback will mean heavy losses before another season rolls round. This is only another way of maintaining health in your flock and bringing them along finely by intelligent management. Some of the obstacles to look out for are cramps, roup, bowel trouble, drooping wings, etc.—all terms which mean different things in a modified sense when experienced by different people. Cramps are often the death struggle in chicks ailing from other causes; when not so, they may be caused by excessive drinking of cold water, by choking, by extremes of heat when not hardened to it. Roup, colds, etc., are due to draughty quarters, exposure, a filthy atmosphere, overcrowding. These are all conditions inimical to success and suggest a remedy in their removal. Bowel trouble is due to sloppy foods, chills, colds, overheating, etc. Check by keeping the birds warm in dry quarters with uniform temperature, feed rather dry food and give boiled milk to drink; avoid "gumming up behind" before treatment is begun, and be careful to avoid an opposite difficulty, viz., constipation. Drooping wings denote constitutional weakness. Chicks can, however, be relieved by good feeding and management. If of long standing, affected ones are hardly worth saving.



AN AYLESBURY DRAKE.

And finally, look out for lice and mites. You cannot grow a crop of chickens and a crop of vermin in the same quarters. One or the other must go—and you know which one to "23 and skidoo."

The Aylesbury Duck.

Due possibly to our arid conditions over the major portion of the year, duck culture has never attained to the importance which it has reached in more humid regions. Essentially a water fowl, it is nevertheless grown for profit quite as much away from water as with it; constant exercise in water has been found inimical to the rapid production of a plump carcass. Of varieties, the white Pekin easily occupies first place in this country, being a good layer and quick grower. The Rouen, Muscovy and Indian Runners (especially the latter) also possess quite a following. In England, however, the Aleysburys are quite as popular as the Pekins and Indian Runners, due possibly to the fact that in that country it finds conditions more to its liking. If we are to believe the testimony of breeders and the market, it has not "panned" so well in this country. And yet it possesses characteristics which should make of it a prime favorite, especially where the climate more closely resembles that of England in its humidity rather than the dryness of the Southwest. At times there have been a few specimens in evidence at the shows, but not nearly so much as Pekins and Indian Runners.

The economic values of the Aleysbury consists in its rapid growth and early maturity, ducklings being produced ready for the block weighing four pounds and over in from seven to nine weeks. They are light of bone, carry a considerable amount of breast meat of creamy white color, and are rated as good layers, flocks having been known to average 150 eggs per duck in England, and are rated as non-sitters. One drake with three ducks, or two with five ducks are quite apt to fertilize every egg. This variety being a sport from wild blood, they are quite partial to water, which should be provided for breeding stock. If kept under tions they are rated as quite hardy.

In appearance the Aylesburys resemble the being made as early as 1815 and again in Cyclopedia, since which time the name has

In reading the history of this breed, and noting the experiences of the more advanced the opinion is forced upon us that the Aylesbury find congenial conditions in the more northern and along the seashore, rather than in the interior leys and southern sections of California. The San cisco Bay region should afford ideal conditions, Oregon and western Washington certainly furnish weather for ducks at all seasons of the year.

augurated ten years ago and have been held tipodes, and competitions have been held in recent y in Australia and New Zealand, as well as in S Africa.

The first competition, held in 1897-8 at Northaller in Yorkshire, was a very unpretentious affair, seven pens competing, but the interest of poultry k ers was awakened, and accommodation was provi for twelve pens in the second contest; in 1902-3 number was doubled, while in 1904-5 it was necess to provide thirty-six pens. For the contest just en the club provided forty pens, but this was quite ina quate. The event has proved so popular that no fe than 102 entries were made, consequently sixty-two tries had to be declined.

The competition is open to the United Kingdom, members being on an equality with members of club in the ballot. England contributes by far greatest proportion of the contestants, but birds fr Ireland have competed and won high positions in prize lists, Irish birds gaining sixth place in 1905 second in 1906.

The club recognizes that good laying is a quest of strain, not breed, but competitors generally pin th faith to certain varieties as likely to provide the w ners; hence for the present contest thirty-nine perso entered white Wyandottes, twenty white Leghorns, teen buff Orpingtons, while many varieties of bi had not a single entry. The entrance fee is a sovere

The contest has always extended over sixteen wee and finished on February 10. Previous contests ha been held in different parts of the country, Westm

HOW AN EGG-LAYING COMPETITION IS CONDUCTED.

By a Special Contributor.

THE Utility Poultry Club may claim to be the pioneers of egg-laying competitions. These were inaugurated ten years ago and have been held annually since, while the idea has caught on in the Antipodes, and competitions have been held in recent years in Australia and New Zealand, as well as in South Africa.

The first competition, held in 1897-8 at Northallerton, Yorkshire, was a very unpretentious affair, only [illegible] pens competing, but the interest of poultry keepers was awakened, and accommodation was provided for twelve pens in the second contest; in 1902-3 this number was doubled, while in 1904-5 it was necessary to provide thirty-six pens. For the contest just ended the club provided forty pens, but this was quite inadequate. The event has proved so popular that no fewer than 102 entries were made, consequently sixty-two entries had to be declined.

The competition is open to the United Kingdom, nonmembers being on an equality with members of the club in the ballot. England contributes by far the [illegible] proportion of the contestants, but birds from Ireland have competed and won high positions in the prize lists, Irish birds gaining sixth place in 1905 and second in 1906.

The club recognizes that good laying is a question of strain, not breed, but competitors generally pin their faith to certain varieties as likely to provide the winners; hence for the present contest thirty-nine persons entered white Wyandottes, twenty white Leghorns, and [illegible] buff Orpingtons, while many varieties of birds had but a single entry. The entrance fee is a sovereign per pen, and the birds entered must be pullets—that is, born in the year of the competition. A pen consists of four birds.

The contest has always extended over sixteen weeks—the sixteen worst weeks so far as egg production is concerned, viz., from the middle of October to February. The present competition was started on October [illegible] and finished on February 10. Previous contests have been held in different parts of the country, Westmorland, Lancashire, Yorkshire, Bucks, Hertford and Warwickshire being among the number, but the present contest has been conducted by the club on the farm of the honorary secretary in Essex.

For the first time in recent competitions a house has been provided for each pen, and the entries have been divided into two sections, twenty pens being housed in a scratching shed and twenty in small portable houses provided with grass runs. This has been the means of testing the relative value of these methods of housing.

Each pen is known to the manager by a number only, and no competitor is permitted to make any communication to him. All the birds are sent to the venue of the competition a week or ten days before it commences in order to get used to their new quarters; this arrangement also gives the club the opportunity of weeding out any birds that may be deemed unsuitable. Each bird is weighed on arrival and its weight accurately recorded, a band affixed to its leg with a number upon it and henceforth during the competition, like prisoners kept at His Majesty's expense, the bird is known only by its number. The task of weighing 160 laying birds, recording their weights, and allotting them to their respective dwellings is not a light one, but fortunately the business is spread over three days and the number of baskets arriving by any one train is not great.

Each house is provided with three trap nests, ingenious devices for detaining the hen when she goes in to lay; access is easy, but exit is impossible, and the bird remains imprisoned until the attendant makes his periodic visit and releases it. The band is examined for the number, which is then penciled upon the egg and subsequently credited to the hen on the recording sheet. Each egg must be weighed, for as the public esteem large eggs more highly than small ones, the club penalizes the layer of small eggs by only allowing her five points, very small ones only gaining four points, though the full two-ounce egg gains the maximum of six points. The attendant upon trap-nested fowls needs a considerable fund of patience. A tour of the nests must be made very frequently, and in inclement weather his journeys are not inspiriting; it is bad enough to make the round of the nests and only get one or two eggs, but it is worse when, hearing the flap of a nest banging owing to the efforts of the imprisoned bird to escape, he rushes to this particular nest and, taking off the [illegible] hen, finds—nothing. She has only gone onto the nest with the intention of taking it easy, much in the same way that a man, having dined well, naturally finds his way to the armchair for the after-dinner snooze.

In the present competition No. 61 has regularly gone to the nest several times daily for the last fortnight, and many times has been lifted off, but has not laid a single egg. That is the humorous side of trap-nesting. The birds are fed upon such foods as can be purchased from any ordinary vender of poultry foods; no spices or condiments are given. The competition finished on the 10th inst., and on Monday the manager was busily engaged in catching his guests, ascertaining their respective weights, and putting them in the baskets which had been stored ready for dispatch to their several homes; daily, almost hourly, contact with them during the hours of daylight had rendered him familiar with the slight differences which mark one bird from another.

[illegible] perhaps, with a sigh of relief as he fixes on the [illegible] that he ascertains that the pen which has done so well belongs to the noted Miss A—, while its companion, low down in the table of results, is the property of the obscure Mr. B—.

The present competition has established a record not only in the aggregate number of eggs produced, but also in the individual performances of two pullets. Hitherto the record had stood at 150 eggs per pen, but section B in the present competition produced 156 eggs per pen; a buff Orpington pullet laid 83 and a partridge Wyandotte 81 eggs, the previous best having been 78.

In section B—small portable houses with grass runs—the first prize winner is a pen of buff Orpingtons hailing from Norfolk, with 237 eggs to their credit. They win the Tamlin silver cup and the silver medal of the club—three more eggs would have gained them the gold. The second prize winners—partridge Wyandottes—came from North Wales and have laid 218 eggs. Five pens altogether laid 200 or more eggs and gained silver medals. The total number of eggs laid was 3134.

In section A—scratching pens—the birds being confined the whole of the time, only 2147 eggs were produced, the first prize winners being golden Wyandottes, with 174 eggs, buff Rocks being second, with 150 eggs. In this section six birds failed to lay an egg, though a white Wyandotte made a score of 74, a very high record under the circumstances.

The competition has proved conclusively that unnatural, though presumably pleasant, conditions are unsuitable for egg production; that activity is one of the means of obtaining eggs, and that the active, restless fowls, like Leghorns and Anconas, must have a certain amount of freedom in order to prove successful, as they only averaged 67 eggs per pen, against 118 produced by the incubating varieties, Orpingtons and Wyandottes.

Birds Fed by Farmers.

PHEASANTS FROM CHINA THRIVING IN WESTERN NEW YORK.

From the New York Sun.

IF you happen to be acquainted with a Genesee Valley farmer and drop around to his place about daybreak or perhaps late in the afternoon he may show you a mighty pretty sight. Don't take your gun along, though, for then you wouldn't have a ghost of a show. He's got to be satisfied not only that you have no intention of shooting pheasants, but also that you wouldn't harm one if it flew up and hit you in the face.

If you pass muster Mr. Farmer will pilot you back to the barnyard. He may caution you to creep along behind the rail fence for the last twenty-five yards. That depends on how tame the birds are.

If they have been visiting the barnyard daily for months there is no need for caution. You may be sure then that they won't leave until they get a big cropful of Mr. Farmer's proffered grain.

But if the birds are just beginning to get acquainted with the cows and sheep and other things in the yard you've got to work up carefully. Anyway, the farmer will tell you about that.

Once at the barnyard fence, the sight is great. The commonplace surroundings, the straw stack, the dirt and maybe the pigs are lost sight of. There may be five or six or as many dozen of the birds in the barnyard, all of them of the Mongolian or ring-necked variety.

The cocks strut about, obviously conscious of their good looks, and now and then letting out a crow to warn the rest of the barnyard to knock off work and take notice. The hens, smaller in size and less gorgeous in attire, scratch industriously in the loose straw for a breakfast, and Mr. Pheasant once in a while condescends to show his appreciation of his wife's work by butting in and picking up the kernels that have been uncovered.

Once in a while also a cock pheasant bristles up to a rooster that gets too flip and lands a blow either with his bill or one of his spurs that brings a squawk out of the big fellow and sends him scurrying to cover.

If the pheasants have been regular visitors at the barnyard they will allow the farmer to enter the enclosure and sprinkle grain for them, and some have been known to follow along with a flock of hens at the heels of the farmer. In bad weather also the birds have been known to make their home in the barnyard and to roost at night with the chickens.

It is now more than ten years since Maj. W. A. Wadsworth, formerly head of the New York State Fish and Game Commission, began to plant the birds in the Genesee Valley. They were the first turned out in the State, and ever since there has been a law protecting them. The present law says that there shall be no open season on the birds, except in Suffolk county, before 1910.

It was a doubtful undertaking to attempt the establishment of the birds in this State. They had been brought over from China and planted with success along the Pacific Coast, but had never been subjected to winters such as New York State has.

There was no question about the hardihood of the bird. There was doubt, though, whether the birds would be able to get sufficient food in the winter months, for they are not bud and berry feeders like the partridge, but grain eaters.

The experiment which Maj. Wadsworth made has succeeded. The birds are scattered now pretty generally over the State, but are thicker in the Genesee Valley than anywhere else.

Those who have watched the efforts to plant the birds say that success is due chiefly to the interest which farmers have taken in them. This is particularly true in this region.

They have made it a practice to throw grain out for the birds in the winter months and to protect them against pot hunters. Some of the farmers have taken so much interest in the birds that they have forbidden all hunters on their premises, going on the theory that an entire absence of temptation is the surest way of preventing violations of the law.

Some of the farmers in this part of the State have gone farther. They have obtained settings of pheasant eggs from the State authorities and monopolized the services of the best setting hen on the farm for four weeks to hatch them out.

It is the farmer's wife, though, who has taken care of that end of the game, and it is a toss-up whether she or the setting hen has the busier time after the chicks are hatched. The little ones run like young ostriches soon after they are out of the shell, and go skipping about among the weeds like streaks of lightning until the old mother hen worries herself thin.

The little pheasants are mighty particular about their diet, and this is where the farmer's wife comes in. Sometimes she has to feed them flies and bugs until they get old enough to digest grain or learn to do a little hunting on their own account.

The State authorities in raising the chicks for distribution found that they thrived best on maggots. It isn't for very long, though, that they are fed on these things.

Now and then a farmer turns up who thinks that he is getting more than he bargained for in the presence of the birds in large numbers, but there aren't many who feel that way. These farmers grumble that the birds are gluttons and that they don't confine themselves to legitimate methods.

They say it is a favorite trick of the mother bird to take her brood out into a ripe wheat field and skim over the stalks, beating out the kernels with her powerful wings. They say, too, that one fair, square slap with a pheasant's wing strips the head of wheat just about as clean as a threshing machine could do it.

Most of the farmers hold, though, that the birds make up many times over for the grain that they steal by destroying bugs and insects. The Chinese farmers think so well of them that they won't allow any of the birds to be killed, and invite their presence in the rice fields.

It has been found hereabout that one of the most serious things that the pheasant has to contend with in pulling through the winter is its own tail. In the case of the male bird the tail is just about the length of its body, brown and marked by black transverse bands.

When a thaw comes and then a cold snap, snow gathers on the long tail feathers and Mr. Pheasant often finds himself the victim of his own beauty, for he is weighted down so heavily that he can't fly. It is then that the fox gets him, and he also falls an easy prey to the hawk.

Sometimes he is so weighted down that he can't even get away from the skunk and weasel. A bunch of feathers, brown, blue, green and golden, with a few scattered bones, mark the spot of many a tragedy after every big snowstorm.

But what is more pitiful, the entire carcass of the bird is sometimes found with only a few blood stains on the neck. That is the work of the weasel or the mink, which sucks out the life blood and leaves the rest to rot.

Unlike the quail, though, the pheasant is in no danger of being smothered to death. It is powerful enough to break the crust that may form on the snow over night. It was the slaughter of quail in this way which led the New York authorities to give up their attempt to plant them in many parts of the State.

A bevy would seek shelter at night under some friendly log. The wind would pile the snow over it; a little thaw would come before morning, a crust would form and the weak little fellows would be held prisoners either until they died from lack of air or of food.

If the pheasants increase as fast in the next three years as they have in the last three, they will be as numerous as any other game bird in this region. They are prolific. The female raises three broods in a year, about a dozen chicks at a setting.

Many nests are found in the summer time in the dry bushy cover, and farmers have been known to guard them as closely as they have the birds in their own barnyards. The chances are that the person who finds one nest in a cover may find several others if he looks closely enough, for the birds usually lay their eggs near one another in a bevy.

There is also usually a division of labor among the cocks, one standing guard at a time over the bevy. The cock pheasant on guard never goes to sleep, and long before the intruder has approached the nesting ground he has sounded the alarm.

The nests are usually built on the bare ground under some bushes. It takes the pheasant hens four weeks to hatch the eggs. As soon as the chicks are out of the shell Mr. Pheasant takes them in tow, and his wife, if she is dutiful, starts right in on another four weeks' setting.

A person may imagine that it is going to be a cinch to bag the birds when the open season begins. It may be at first, but it will take only a few shots to put a bevy on its guard, and when the birds are once frightened they are just as hard to get as the partridge.

The birds that inhabit woods which are not posted against hunting of every kind are a good deal more scary than the ones that have never been flushed by the banging of guns. For the most part the pheasant keeps under cover, but it may come into the open and mount fences and stumps when feeding.

In the bush they will stand for a dog, but it takes an active animal to put one of the birds on wing. They trust mostly to their legs, and it is almost impossible to get one that has fallen with a broken wing unless the cover is fairly open.

Quick shooting is necessary to bring the bird down. It rises with almost as much of a whir as the partridge and flies strong and straight away. It doesn't go as far as the partridge, though, but is harder to mark down because it alights with its legs in motion and is likely to make a sprint of a good many yards before it comes to rest again.

Stable Refuse.

FLIES breed almost wholly from stable waste. Not only do these insects annoy in many ways, but they carry infection if any abounds, and become a menace to the health of the people. Many of our best cared-for stables allow the accumulation of manure in some corner, where flies of several species breed in myriads. This may be prevented entirely by throwing the waste into a tight box and sprinkling with chloride of lime during the fly season. If our health authorities had the means of preventing fly-breeding, how many hundreds of cases of typhoid would be prevented, for it is a fact that flies alighting on germ-infected material may carry the germs to the human food upon which they alight. Pure water and the suppression of the fly pest would perhaps remove typhoid infection and perhaps other diseases that often reach an epidemic stage probably from a common source.

Bush Blackberry.

A CORRESPONDENT living southeast of the city who is engaged in growing small fruits asks for the botanic name of the low-bush blackberry. It is but a dwarfish type of the common wild berry of the northeastern States, and would be a form of the Rubus villosus of the older authors, and Rubus nigrobaccus of the later. This berry differs from the larger in its fruit more than in its general appearance. It grows in the higher elevations of every State where the common blackberry flourishes. Our cultivated kinds are of two types—the "short cluster," such as the Snyder, and the "loose cluster" of which the Wilson is an example. There are all manner of intermediate forms of wild blackberries, one bearing white or amber fruits.

Mottled-leaved Orange Trees.

A FRUIT grower who has in cultivation nearly 200 acres of citrus and deciduous fruits in Los Angeles county, asks me for a remedy for mottled-leaf which is so prevalent in his orange grove. There is a great deal of information upon this important topic that has never been brought to light. This grower says he is feeding, watering and cultivating his grove with the greatest care. In that case, the affected trees may have found a layer of white, or infertile sand that not only dries out quickly, but fails to give the trees sufficient sustenance in spite of the application of surface fertilizers. In the development of this chlorosis the absence of available iron may be the cause, and a hundred pounds of iron sulphate to the acre would improve the color and hence the activities of the foliage.

It has been demonstrated that soils entirely destitute of soluble iron elements will produce foliage abnormally green, or entirely destitute of the chlorophyl. Leaves in this condition are destitute of visible organization under the microscope, and their power of decomposing and assimilating carbon compounds is absent. There can be no proper growth under these conditions, and the partial chlorosis known as mottled leaf would affect the functions of an orange tree unfavorably also. There may be plenty of iron in a soil, as with potash, and yet none of it in available form. Solutions of iron applied to the surface of leaves improve their color. One of the things that should be worked out by the Riverside Citrus Station is the restoration of orange foliage to its normal color and functions.

Immune Apple Trees.

THE Horticultural Commission of Los Angeles has just received two dozen apple trees upon Northern Spy roots from Auckland, New Zealand. They were sent by R. W. Boucher, who was here nearly a year ago investigating our method of insect control and horticultural affairs generally. The trees arrived from the antipodes in fine condition, showing what good packing will do for plants during transportation from the other side of the world. When American apples were introduced into Australia a number of years ago, it was discovered that the Northern Spy upon its own roots was not materially damaged when attacked by the woolly aphis. The usual way of securing a self-rooted tree of this kind is to whip-graft a Northern Spy scion (for example) upon a common seedling root, then plant the grafted plant with the scion about six inches in the ground. When the tree begins to grow the scion will throw out roots. At the end of the season the tree is lifted and the seedling root removed. The tree is then reset in the nursery and cultivated till large enough for orchard planting, or its roots may be used for stock upon which to graft other varieties.

It seems strange to get back our old Northern Spy apple in these trees from the opposite side of the earth after its resistant qualities have been discovered and utilized there. The apple growers of New Zealand are so certain of these aphis-resisting qualities that no stock is used in that country for propagation except the Northern Spy root. One or two English varieties of the apple have been found equally immune, but our favorite Spy makes the best and thriftiest trees in propagation. Another method of starting trees upon their own roots is to grow a tree upon a common seedling for two years, then layer the branches and root a lot of trees in this way.

Working-over Orange Trees.

THE subject of the influence of the stock upon the scion or bud of a tree is of immense import, yet the information we have upon this topic would not fill a volume. The owner of an orange orchard recently pointed me to the uniformity of several hundred trees budded over on lemon stock about four years ago. The trees were physically all alike, and being lemon trees to the height of four or five feet, they should produce more uniform fruit, though not necessarily as good fruit as if budded upon orange stock. Herein lies the great reason for planting the variety you want from the nursery, and avoid having to bud over after the trees reach maturity. The farther the fruit is from the union of bud and stock the nearer will be the fruit to its parent tree in characteristics. Hence a navel tree budded at the ground should be more typically navel in appearance and quality of fruit than a navel tree budded five feet from the ground upon an old lemon or seedling orange. In passing through several feet of lemon cells, the food must in some measure be contaminated by the lemon influence. In other words, the nearer the orange bud, or union to the point of fruitage the greater the tendency of the varieties of stock and scion to blend in quality of fruit.

I am reminded here of another fact brought out in conversation with an eastern visitor this winter. He stated that the Washington navel was considered in his city the most delicate and delightful of all the oranges, Florida or Californian. The fact of which I am reminded is this: The highly organized scion known as the Washington navel, which produces the most delicate orange in the world, is most subject to the low-bred qualities of its stock. Our fruit growers are told to select their buds from typical navel trees, which is good advice. Yet there may be more in the selection of the stock than in the choosing of the scion. In all seeded oranges the inter-pollination of the trees has a tendency to make the fruit uniform, even when the seeded trees grow upon stocks of different qualities. There is no such intermedium at work with a crop of navels. Hence, the higher the fineness of the stock upon which the navels are budded the less deterioration of the fruit, and consequently the more even the quality of the crop throughout the orchard. Of course every orchard is profoundly influenced by its particular soil and many other conditions of climatic origin, shelter and exposure. But the difference between individual trees should be relatively the same, no matter what the circumstances outside the tree itself. If we could follow typical, even-fruiting grove back to the parent tree we should find every tree originating from a strong, healthy parent. If progeny of this kind is budded from typical navel trees the highest quality of fruit possible should inhere in an orchard.

A City Forester.

A FEW evenings since I listened to a very short though suggestive address by the Secretary of the Municipal Art Commission in which he outlined the work that his organization has in hand for the adornment of the streets and public lands of Los Angeles. This commission is composed of five of our most progressive and able people who are serving the public gratis for the sake of outdoor art of which the members are most efficient exponents. But the effectiveness of this commission depends upon its ability to formulate a comprehensive plan of beautifying the public places, and to secure the means of carrying out the system of improvements decided upon. The secretary stated that it was the purpose of the commission to secure the services of an eminent landscape artist, who should visit the city and determine the requirements of Los Angeles in the line of outdoor embellishments.

Without presuming to tell these city officials what form their activities should take, it is within the proprieties for any citizen to set forth his idea of the situation as it confronts any scheme of improvement under the present circumstances. I believe any plan would be immature that did not have as its basis sufficient authority, power and financial support. Consequently it would be useless, confusing and a waste of public money to bring a landscape artist here before a lot of fundamental work was done with our local statutes, our city financiers and a well-digested scheme determining what could and should be done with the means available. It is useless to try a broad scheme of improvement such as would be recommended by a great landscape expert without first providing a fixed annual appropriation for this purpose. It would not be wise to depend upon the caprice or the necessities of a city council to forward this work and supply the annual appropriations absolutely necessary to forward and conserve the planting and care of a hundred thousand trees and plants. It would probably be required that the city charter be amended to provide an annual fund sufficient to cover the expense of beautifying the streets and grounds upon a plan that would meet the approval of the Municipal Art Commission, the Park and Playground Commissions and the public which pay the bills. This amendment should specify the powers and duties of some authorized body, and fix the responsibilities for systematic, continuous and scientific work in the adornment of our public grounds and streets. It might be done by enlarging the jurisdiction of the Park Commission so as to embrace the care of all street trees, or by creating a board similar to that of Public Works, giving the authorized body the selection of a city forester whose sole duty should be the care of trees.

Here are some of the duties that should be required of the city forester: Recommending to the Board of Public Works a proper width for the parkways upon all new streets offered to the city; make regular and thorough inspection of all trees within the city; superintend the removal of unsightly or diseased trees; irrigate, cultivate, aërate, fertilize and disinfect all trees needing such attention; superintend the planting of all trees; establish uniformity in block, or street planting with the advice of the residents most directly interested; superintend the planting and care of all park trees; grow nursery stock for public planting and protect the trees in all public grounds from damage or destruction. [illegible] some comprehensive scheme is devised which will provide for the legal, financial and actual care of trees to be planted upon a plan which would be recommended by a landscape architect it is not worth while to undertake an enterprise such as seems to be in the [illegible] our most progressive and able people. I believe an advisory convention should be held under direction of the Municipal Art Commission, consisting of that body, delegates from the Park and Playground Commission, [illegible] delegate from each of the recognized improvement associations of the city.

Ancient Los Angeles.

THE city of Los Angeles was founded in 17[illegible], by [illegible] of Philipe de Neve, Spanish Governor of California. The settlers were chiefly soldiers from the San [illegible] Mission, who continued to draw pay and rations [illegible] the government. Lands were taken up close to Los Angeles River, and so situated as to be readily [illegible]. The settlers were given conditional possession of [illegible]cultural lands and building sites in the pueblo [illegible] but the title was subject to forfeiture if the fields [illegible] left uncultivated for two years, or the buildings [illegible] unoccupied or allowed to fall into decay. Each [illegible] a family was also furnished with work stock and cattle, and the common settler with a cartmaker's [illegible]. These articles were to be paid for in small [illegible] deducted from their pay by the government.

To increase the live stock the slaughter of [illegible]mals was forbidden, and with the abundance of [illegible]age and this restriction the number of animals [illegible] increased until 1825 (three years after the [illegible] of the territory passed from Spain to Mexico) [illegible] they became so numerous that the pastures [illegible] adequate. ### Growth of Agriculture.

ONE of the most significant signs of the times [illegible] rise of the agricultural industries into com[illegible] position and the awakening of a general [illegible] rural subjects. Every one seems to be aware that [illegible]culture is making great progress. Now, all progress [illegible] the arts and industries rests on knowledge and the [illegible]parting of knowledge; in this case, it rests very [illegible] on the activities of experiment stations and [illegible] The work of these institutions, accumulating [illegible] methodically, has leavened the lump. If there is [illegible]ricultural problem these institutions are to [illegible] heaviest contribution toward solving it.

With all the awakened interest and the [illegible] individual instances, the townsman is not yet [illegible] the tremendous rise in the tone and efficiency [illegible] entire agricultural industry, which may well be [illegible] to the gradual elevation of a geological stratum [illegible]tinental extent. At the same time, the agri[illegible] population is retaining its old-time vigor, indep[illegible] and native philosophy. The student who enters [illegible] field will most assuredly not succeed unless he [illegible] talents and efficient training and properly [illegible] problem, but it is nevertheless perfectly evident [illegible] that an educated man can succeed in agriculture [illegible] but that in time this type of man will be the [illegible] who can hope for the best results.—[Prof. L. # Gardening in California—Flower and Vegetable.

Requirements of Vegetable Gardening.

In looking over a soil map of Southern California, one will notice the infinite varieties of soil there depicted. It could not be otherwise where the source of the soils is a steep, mountain roof composed of many elements all tending to a common center in the valley. Soil, water, pure seed and clean cultivation are the main essentials of vegetable growing, the exposure of the land having also some influence as to both frost and heat. It is not worth while to caution against too deep working of the soil here, for the deposit may be six feet deep and the fertility, if not the availability inexhaustible. Vegetable mold manure and all decayed matter may be utilized, and seemingly unfavorable soils improved thus by making more friable the garden land. Most of our soils contain 60 per cent. of fine sand; and the average of silt is about 25 per cent., while clay is low, only occasionally running to 10 per cent. This makes ideal garden land. The sandy adobe has about per cent. clay and the black adobe as high as 50 per cent. clay. These are good kinds to avoid in selecting a garden plot. Usually in the valleys of the rivers and smaller streams are found ideal conditions for vegetable growing, and, with the exception of peat land are the best and easiest of cultivation. When we get an abundant supply of water the range of good garden sites will be vastly extended.

It comes from an Arabic word denoting aroma, and is a highly fragrant, concrete oil obtained from the petals of the flower. The industry of making attar is carried on in Turkey and Bulgaria, and to some extent in France and Germany. The word rose comes from a Greek word meaning red, or ruddy. There is not much information in this letter to indicate the cause of failure, and nothing to locate the character of the soil in which the asparagus was planted. Every foot of soil in Hollywood from Colegrove northward is [illegible] sandy loam. It ranges from light gray to brown sandy loam, running into adobe below the town. This soil, while extremely fertile, has very little organic matter, running but little more than one-half of one per cent. immediately east of the town, there being a greater proportion, however, in the lower levels. Ten per cent. coarse gravel, 80 of sand and 10 of clay is about the average proportions. This is not an asparagus mixture. Give the asparagus bed cultivation as soon as the ground is dry enough, in order to aërate the soil and start the shoots early. ### Sweet Lathyrus.

WHEN one visits the miles of sweet pea farms in the Santa Clara Valley and notes how rank and riotous the vines, how profuse and perfect the blossoms, the strength and purity of colors, he rapturously exclaims with the immortal Milton: "O flowers, that never will in other climate grow."

So cosmopilitan is this popular flower that its blooming season is eagerly awaited in all the less favored climes as the sweet harbinger of the perfect fullness of spring. The seed is sown in the cool uncertain days following the winter's close, and the first sweet pea to show its modest face is welcomed as an assurance that the days of chilling winds and biting frosts are past and the more tender, delicate plants may safely brave the elements.

In our land of sunshine the sweet pea may be our constant companion if judicious care be exercised to plant at proper periods throughout the year, for we have had them run rampant over fence and trellis while the gardens east of the Rockies were mantled with winter's snow and ice.

The unkindliest season of the year for this flower in California seems to be in midsummer when, beneath our scorching summer's sun, its petals shrivel and shrink until the blossoms are small, poor in color and texture, and sadly deficient in numbers. Happy the garden owner, at this time, who has a somewhat shady spot reserved for the sweet pea.

At all times of the year it is desirable to have the roots so far beneath the soil that they will not become heated during the hottest day, and for this reason many experienced growers plant the seeds in trenches the bottoms of which are three or more inches below the surface. After the plants are well up the soil is filled in, a little at a time, so that at the end of a week or two the surface is once more smooth. They are high livers if any choice is given them, and grow in greatest luxuriance when well supplied with food and drink.—[California Cultivator.

Spirit of Beauty.

TO those who are verily awakened to the great worlds of truth and beauty, the universe daily becomes a sublimer miracle. Not a summer cloud sleeps in the blue air, or unfolds its pure fulness, or melts in the distance, but they are dissolved in a luxury of contemplation and think of Him who spread above us the glory of cloudland wherever we are, and when all around us is tamely wearisome. Not a landscape lies dreaming in the sunshine, and slowly expands itself to the passing gaze, but they are intoxicated with a more fiery sense of beauty until their vision often swims with tears of gratitude for existence, and the heart is ready to break with weight of blessedness. Their souls overflow with the "glory of the sum of things." Every flower that looks up, and every star that looks down, smiles to them the smile of God; and every stream that dimples away, or thistle seed that floats in the noontide, bears them onward to limitless seas of thought and joy.—[Henry W. Parker.

The Home Garden.

EVEN where the ornamental surroundings of the home have been neglected, a fairly well-kept garden in which are grown a number of the staple kinds of vegetables is generally to be found. In many cases the principal interest in the garden is manifested by the women of the household and much of the necessary care is given by them.

A small portion of the garden inclosure is generally devoted to the cultivation of flowers and a number of medicinal plants are invariably present. Throughout the newer parts of the country one finds that the conditions governing the maintainance and use of the vegetable garden are somewhat different, and, while a number of vegetable crops may be grown somewhere on the farm, there is wanting that distinction so characteristic of the typical New England kitchen garden.

It would be impossible to make an accurate estimate of the value of crops grown in the kitchen gardens of the United States, but from careful observation, the statement can safely be made that a well-kept garden will yield a return ten to fifteen times greater than would the same area and location if devoted to general farm crops.

A half acre devoted to the various kinds of garden crops will easily supply a family with $100 worth of vegetables during the year, while the average return for farm crops is considerably less than one-tenth of this amount. A bountiful supply of vegetables close at hand where they can be secured at a few moments' notice is of even more importance than the mere money value.

Fresh vegetables from the home garden are not subjected to exposure on the markets or in transportation, and are not liable to become infected in any way. Many of the products of the garden lose their characteristic flavor when not used within a few hours after gathering. By means of the home garden the production of the vegetable supply for the family is directly under control and in many cases is the only way whereby clean, fresh produce may be secured. The home vegetable garden is worthy of increased attention, and a greater number and variety of crops should be included in the garden. —[W. R. Beattie.

Chile Growers to Organize.

THE chile pepper growers of Orange county met at Anaheim recently, and appointed a committee of five to draft a constitution and by-laws for a proposed association, which will be formed with at least twenty-five members. The object of the association will be to improve the quality of peppers grown, to possibly curtail the area devoted to the culture of this product, and to better present market conditions.

The World Does Not Move.

OUR fruit growers will be amused in reading the report of a commission appointed in Western Australia to determine whether parasitic insects were of value to the fruit interests in that country. Some of the Australian entomologists contended that it was a useless waste of money to introduce beneficial insects into the orchards of the country, and the commission in its report settled the matter in this summary way: "This is an old, abandoned scheme founded upon unnatural and impossible working principles, making a vain attempt to force nature to overreach immutable laws contrived and welded by an all-wise and beneficent Creator. Our present-day naturalists versed in this knowledge declare this precious scheme to be diametrically opposed to the workings of the sublime laws of nature."

Such dogmatic declaration as this is very strange, and further the report of that commission is opposed to the policies of the fruit growers of that country. Nature's laws decreed that the woolly aphis should be very destructive to the root of the ordinary apple tree, but scientific and practical horticulturists have found that the root of the Northern Spy apple is immune from damage by this aphis, and the people of Australia were the first to adopt the Northern Spy as a grafting stock and thus adopted a scheme "diametrically opposed to the workings of the sublime laws of nature." As to the failure of parasitic insects complained of by the Australian commission I will just quote from the first record I pick up from a mass of California reports, namely, an account of the work of beneficial insects in Alameda county. "Rhizobius ventralis are so plentiful that they keep the orange and olive tree clean of smut; the prune orchards are almost free from the brown apricot scale, which is kept in control by Comys fusca; Vedalia cardinalis has wiped out an outbreak of white scale, and the scutellista cyanea has increased beyond expectations. As these are all the insect pests we have to contend with, we hope in the future, as in the past, to be able to control them with their natural enemies." The gentleman who wrote this has merely touched upon the borders of what beneficial insects have done for the fruit interests of California, and it is passing strange in view of all this testimony that an intelligent body of men should call all this warfare of one class of insects upon another "an old, abandoned scheme." The fact is, if it were not for the presence of parasitic insects the horticultural industries of the world would have been long since wiped off the map, if indeed they could have reached any importance whatever.

KITCHENER'S NARROW ESCAPES.

It is significant of the keen interest taken in Lord Kitchener that his horse only has to stumble to set the cables working. The other day the general was rather sharply dismounted through his horse putting its hind leg in a hole, and straightway the evening papers broke out into scare headings.

As a matter of fact, few men are more inured to accidents, or make lighter of them, than K. of K. His career has been beset with mishaps and exciting incidents. Scars he has in plenty. A mine exploded at Chatham, and permanently injured his right eye, condemning him to the use of glasses whenever he studies a chart.

At the retaking of Tokar, in the Soudan, a bullet from a heavy Remington missed, as by a miracle, both windpipe and jugular and stuck embedded in the back muscles of his neck.

There the bullet stayed for six months, until an errant fishbone set the Sirdar coughing, and landed Osman Digna's souvenir in his table napkin. At Safad, in Galilee, he was attacked by fanatical Moslems while surveying, and a great negro gave him an ugly gash with a scimitar. Malarial fever followed, and it is said that one burning afternoon the suffering hero exclaimed: "For the Lord's sake give me some of that beer!" On the same expedition he had a narrow escape from drowning whilst engaged in saving the life of Maj. Conder, who had gone to bathe in the neighborhood of Ascalon and got carried away from the shore by a strong current.

He had another narrow escape from a serious accident when driving in a tonga at an early stage of his tour of the Northwest frontier. One of the ponies attached to the tonga became unmanageable, and the vehicle was hurled into a deep cavity at the side of the road. With characteristic presence of mind, Kitchener leaped into safety just as the tonga was tilting over the precipice.

Then there was his serious accident at Simla in 1902. He was riding through a small tunnel when his horse became frightened, and threw him against a wall, breaking his leg. There he lay for some time suffering intensely, the natives who passed being afraid to do anything.

Pleurisy supervened, but "K." was fortunate enough to have the attention of Sir Frederick Treves, who happened to be at hand.

It was months before he regained the use of the limb and the enforced inactivity troubled his active nature sorely. He was so impatient to get up again that he had a large calendar placed beside his bed, and it was the duty of one of his staff to ostentatiously cross off a date each morning, so that the "tethered lion" might know that he was one more day nearer his release from captivity.—[Manchester Chronicle.

Diabetes and Diet.

SOMETIME ago an Ontario correspondent, who suffered from diabetes, started to make a thorough study of the cause and effects as displayed in his case. He wrote a letter, of which the following is a digest:

"No one ever had diabetes whose teeth were always pure and healthy. Self-restraint is the foundation of all treatment. Sugar in all its forms must be avoided, also all meat, fish, eggs, milk, and concentrated syrups that taste sweet without the addition of sugar. [This would make a very limited dietary. Ed.] Laborious exercise before breakfast is good, in the first part, and bad in the last part of the disease, after the symptoms disappear, especially if there is a nervous collapse. Avoiding milk gives the quickest recovery. Water must not be drunk during meals. Great care must be taken to avoid a chill. The craving for food when the meal is nearly over must not be taken for a healthy appetite."

The correspondent strongly recommends boiled or stewed onions, eaten three times a day, in considerable quantity. He attributes his cure largely to the use of onions. Any one of several other vegetables or fruits would have helped him just as much. His system was probably lacking in certain organic salts. The onion ranks low in the total amount of salts it contains, as may be seen from the table of Otto Carque, published in this department a few months ago. At the same time, we should remember that there are certain ethereal qualities about nature's foods that we cannot analyze in the laboratory any more than we can analyze the perfume of the rose. For instance, the pungent aroma of the onion, that makes it so objectionable to some, the biting quality of the radish, and the peculiar odor of the urine produced by eating asparagus. It may be that all these qualities have some medicinal value, of which we know not. At any rate, we are well aware that the onion has a powerful effect on the liver, and that a good dish of onions will often settle a case of constipation. To obtain the greatest benefit, the onions should be eaten raw, which would be difficult for some people. In such case, steam the onions. Or substitute lettuce, or spinach, or strawberries—all of which are exceptionally rich in organic salts—eating the spinach raw, in the shape of a salad.

The correspondent also recommends green apples as medicine, "to stir up the glands of the stomach." Questionable advice. He avoids fried, starchy food, eating double-toasted bread and farinacious foods in small quantities, "if enough onions are used to balance the food and prevent constipation." Olive oil, he declares, is a slow irritant, and must be avoided in this disease. This is not true, if the oil is thoroughly beaten up into an emulsion with a little tomato juice, or something of that kind, and eaten with a salad. It should not be taken otherwise by anybody, well or sick. Oranges, apricots, peaches and all citrus fruits, we are told, must be cooked, and no sugar used. Raw citrus fruit, he says, is exceptionally bad. Why? The editor would recommend all diabetics to partake liberally of fresh fruits of all kind, that are neither unripe nor overripe. Oranges make a fine breakfast for a diabetic.

The ordinary theory in regard to the treatment of diabetes is radically wrong. The idea is to eliminate sugar and raw starch, which is transformed into sugar in the body. Why is this done? Because, in diabetes, the body is unable to oxidize the sugar. Why is it so unable? Because the blood is impoverished, by lack of the natural salts—nerve starvation—which, in turn, arises from eating emasculated food, or from removing the salts, in cooking.

Now, to cure a man of this condition, by removing the food that his system cannot negotiate, is just about as sensible as it would be to take a light burden from the back of a weak man, who is tottering under it, and then to tell him that he is strong and well. Instead of simply removing the foods that the diabetic cannot use up, the effort should be to improve the condition of his blood, so that he may be able to digest, without harmful consequences, a reasonable amount of cane sugar and starch. True, the editor believes both of these substances to be undesirable for well and sick foods. Yet, a person in normal health should be able to consume a moderate amount of them.

A circular, issued by a firm that manufactures a diabetic food, states that "in diabetes the starch is changed into a form of sugar that stimulates the kidneys to increased activity." This is not correct. Diabetes is not due to an increased manufacture of sugar in the body, but to an inability of the body to oxidize the sugar, which has to be removed by the kidneys. In the same way, in obesity, the fat is not removed from the body, but accumulates in the tissues, another proof that all disease is one—"dis-ease," or a lack of ease.

A deficiency of oxygen in the blood may be due to overeating, alcoholism, lack of exercise, but principally to the lack of calcium, sodium and iron in the food, as these are the elements which prevent the decomposition of the blood albumen of the liver into sugar and urea. Having a great affinity for oxygen, these elements become also a source of vital warmth and electricity, and are consequently a sort of guarantee of health, and of immunity from the prejudicial effects of unfavorable atmospheric conditions.

All artificial foods are harmful, containing only proximate food principles. Such, for instance, as refined sugar, gluten, preparations, white flour, etc., which are deficient in organic salts. All foods containing the above named mineral elements in abundance are beneficial, such as spinach, cabbage, apples, strawberries, peaches. There is no reason why the diet should be restricted to onions. We find the necessary elements more abundantly in other vegetables, and in fruits. Unpolished rice may be eaten in small quantities.

In addition to this, diabetics should live and sleep in fresh air, and get regular light exercise. Water should only be drunk according to thirst, which will be light, if plenty of green foods are eaten.

In his pamphlet, "Medicinal Foods," reprinted from the Care of the Body department, Otto Carqué says in reference to kidney and bladder ailments:

"All these ailments are caused by an insufficiency of oxygen and organic salts, chiefly due to an excess of meat eating, table salt and frequent indulgence in alcoholic beverages. Phosphate of potash is almost the only mineral basis present in meat, wine and beer, while merely traces of other salts are present. Bladder stones consist chiefly of phosphates and oxalates of lime and compound of urea. By means of sodium these deposits are gradually dissolved and removed from the system. Without a liberal supply of sodium uric acid gradually accumulates in the system and lays the foundation for concretions in the capillaries, impeding circulation and providing local pains and spasms, common with meat eaters who spend much of their time in ill-ventilated rooms and drink beer and wine to quench their thirst. The oxidation of alcohol withdraws oxygen from the blood, consequently the urea compounds cannot be sufficiently oxidized and half-burned portions remain in the system. Blood in its normal constitution must have an alkaline reaction in order to make the oxygen breathed effective. Normal blood serum must contain sufficient sodium and chlorine, while for the formation of blood corpusles sulphur, calcium and iron are necessary. Only when these elements are introduced in the right proportions can the acid reaction of the blood be brought back to its normal alkaline state, and the concretions dissolved, while the excess of sugar is gradually burnt up.

"All artificial food preparations, such as gluten products, should be avoided, as we can only derive the necessary organic salt from natural foods. The following vegetables and fruits are indicated: Strawberries, apples, prunes, peaches, spinach, carrots, asparagus, radishes and onions. It generally takes a strict dietetic cure of at least three months to restore the normal function of the kidneys."

To the above remarks of Mr. Carqué, it may be added that diabetes is one of those diseases that are largely due to lack of proper elimination. When in addition to this you have a large surplus consumption of food—often unwholesome food—it is not surprising that disease should follow. It is a case of too much intake and imperfect outlet. You will find that diabetes seldom troubles men who work hard in the open air. It is particularly a disease of sedentary people—of people who eat much and exercise little. The best thing for a diabetic to do is to go up into a mountain lumber camp and earn his living. When you can't do that, however, you may unfailingly restore your health at home, by following the above suggestions.

"New Thought."

READING many of these thumbnail "New Thought" monthlies, that spring up semi-annually at country cross-roads, has somewhat of a similar effect upon the mind as would be superinduced upon the physical faculties by eating wind pudding, or baked sawdust pie. The perpetual reiteration of vapid and wearisome platitudes, punctuated by capitals and italics, the working round and round in an endless circle, until the mind is dizzy, the "words, words, idle words," world without end, the "affirmations" that mind is all in all, that neuralgia is a bad dream, that the affirmant is powerful and rich, when perhaps he is a nervous wreck, and can't pay his baker bill—all these things, and many others, affect the normal healthy mind with that tired feeling we read about in the patent-medicine ads.

Not that there is nothing good about the so-called "New Thought" cult. By no means. So far as it is a revulsion from gross materialism, it is well, but all is not mind, any more than all is body. Whatever is good and useful in "New Thought" may be summed up in this: "Keep a siff upper lip, and look at the bright side side of things."

What, however, can be expected from a movement that is handicapped by such an absurd misnomer as this? "New Thought," indeed, when Solomon said there was nothing new under the sun, and centuries before his time Job enunciated truths that the new thoughters have not yet begun to digest.

It is about time for level-headed members of the cult to break away, and adopt the best there is in old thought, combined with the results of modern experience regarding the care of the body. "Mens sana in corpore sano" is a motto that is hard to beat.

The latest is a "New Thought" daily, published by Harry Gaze, who is among those entertaining the presumptuous and illogical idea that puny man may escape the great law of change that affects the animal, vegetable and mineral worlds and the planetary systems, and that he may live forever. The "New Life Daily" is a four-page leaflet, the size of a commercial envelope, and Females Jewish race are noteworthy for getting fat, as they grow old. This is due to the fact that they are great enjoyers of what people call "the good things of life," and having the magnificent vitality of their race, are able to digest them, and store them up, thus preparing for themselves much suffering in their old age.

There is much difference of opinion in the books regarding the proper proportion of weight to height. For instance, in one book that lies on the editor's table the correct weight of a person six feet in height is given at 170 pounds. In another, the weight is given at 190 pounds, a difference of over 12 per cent. The weight, of course, depends largely on the framework of the body. A large boned man will weigh more than one whose bones are small, even though the height be the same. The editor believes that in these tables the tendency is to give a much heavier figure than is necessary, just as the necessary amount of food is exaggerated. For a six-foot man, with an ordinary frame work, 170 pounds should be a good weight.

In conclusion, the editor would strongly impress upon his readers the fact that obesity is as truly an abnormal or diseased state as dropsy.

Following is from an "ad" of an anti-fat dope: "My new discovery, taken at meal time compels perfect assimilation of the food and sends the food nutriment where it belongs. It requires no starvation process. You can eat all you want. It makes muscle, bone, sinew, nerve and brain tissue, absorbs the excess fat and quickly reduces your weight to normal. It takes off the big stomach and relieves the compressed condition and enables the heart to act freely and the lungs to expand naturally and the kidneys and liver to perform their functions in a natural manner. You will feel better the first day you try this wonderful home food. Fill out coupon herewith and mail today."

Of course, all such preparations are not only absolutely useless, in permanently removing fat, but are also dangerous. You can't fool nature.

What Not to Feed Children.

"HYGIENE OF THE NURSERY" is the title of a book by Louis Starr, M. D., now in its seventh edition. The author treats on such subjects as the features of health, the nursery, the nursemaid, clothing, exercise and amusements, sleep, bathing, food, dietary, massage emergencies.

Referring to indications of disease, the author says:

"Incomplete closure of the eyelids, rendering the whites of the eyes visible during sleep, is a symptom in all acute and chronic diseases of a severe type. It is also to be observed when rest is rendered unsound by pain, wherever seated. Twitching of the eyelids, associated with oscillation of the eyeballs or squinting, heralds the visit of convulsions. Widening of the orifices of the nose, with movements of the nostrils to and fro, points to embarrassed breathing from diseases of the lungs or their pleural investment. Contraction of the brows indicates pain in the head; sharpness of the nostrils, pain in the chest; and a drawn upper lip, pain in the abdomen. To make a general rule, it may be stated that the upper third of the face is altered in expression in affections of the brain; the middle third in diseases of the chest, and the lower third in diseases of the organs contained in the abdominal cavity."

The earlier chapters contain useful information and good advice. When we come to the question of food, however, the author, as in the case of most members of the "regular" medical fraternity, is away off, preaching a most dangerous doctrine. For instance, in a menu for children over three and a half years old, he recommends, for breakfast, fish or eggs, or chicken hash, or stewed liver or kidney, the latter the depurating organs of an animal. For dinner, soup, meat and vegetables. Among other preparations recommended for young children—and for which recipes are given—are "peptonized beef tea," "peptonized oysters," "meat broths," "raw beef juice," consommé, chicken broth, veal broth, oyster soup. In regard to raw beef, pounded up, he says: "A teaspoonful of this pulp, three or four times daily, will be sufficient for a child one year old." Doubtless!

The author gives a "no milk" diet for acute gastro intestinal disorders. This includes veal broth and raw beef juice. Think of it! Again, a diet for chronic gastro intestinal catarrh includes beef, chicken or mutton broth, chops, poultry, game, fish and raw oysters. And, to cap the climax, the author says: "If there be great debility, small doses of whisky, well diluted, may be allowed."

A diet for chronic diarrhoea, when milk foods undergo acid fermentation, in children from six to twelve months old, includes veal broth, chicken broth, the yolk of a raw egg and ten drops of brandy. A diet where there is excess of uric acid, in children four years of age, actually includes meat broth, chicken, turkey, wild fowl or fish. Any semi-intelligent person, who has studied the rudiments of food values, knows that meat broth is composed mainly of urates from the animal, plus water. A diet in pulmonary phthisis, for a child seven years of age, includes raw or stewed oysters, meat, oyster or clam broth, roast beef or mutton with gravy, and stewed oysters or sweetbread. Sweetbread contains a larger amount of the purins than any other known food substance.

The author, furthermore, advises a woman who has a scant supply of milk to use freely animal broths, also "tonics," such as "beef, wine and iron." What folly, instead of advising the mother to consume food that is rich in the organic salts, such as raw fruits, salads and vegetables.

A little table salt is recommended to be added to the food of infants, after the second week. A rotten idea, this, of giving a mineral poison to a child, so soon after it enters the world.

The author recommends the sterilization of milk, and describes a sterilizer he invented, ignoring the fact that sterilized milk is starvation food, deprived of the organic salts, and is the direct cause of rickets, scrofula and other ailments, from which so many infants suffer, when deprived of the mother's milk. Yet, on another page, the author says:

"Infants fed on condensed milk, though fat, are pale, lethargic and flabby; although large, are far from strong; have little power to resist disease; often cut their teeth late, and are very likely to drift into rickets. It must be remembered, also, that condensed milk, when long kept, or when packed in imperfect cans, not infrequently undergoes decomposition, and thus becomes utterly unfit for use."

Exactly. And the reason, which Dr. Starr apparently fails to grasp, is that in such milk the organic salts are changed, or destroyed by heating. He also recommends a peptonized animal food, prepared by a New York firm, whose name he advertises.

On the other hand, Dr. Starr properly calls attention to the mistake of pacifying infants by constant feeding. He also properly condemns the use of starch foods. In a later chapter the author has some good words to say in regard to massage.

It is, in the editor's opinion, a crime to give forth such misleading and dangerous advice in regard to the feeding of infants—advice that, when followed, must necessarily be the cause of the death of thousands of innocents. Bearing in mind these exceptions, the book contains much useful information. Published by P. Blakiston's Son & Co., 1012 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Oranges as a Medicine.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:

"Is the too-free eating of oranges known to produce an affection of the skin, indicated by a breaking out, attended with troublesome itching? Some doctors—whom you and I do not worship, though we must admit they are sometimes accidentally right—some doctors, I say, proclaim this as a fact."

Of course it is, if you have impurities in your blood, as 999 out of 1000 "civilized" people have. Not necessarily the "too free" eating of oranges, but the moderate eating of them. Also of strawberries and other subacid fruits. If you were a careful reader of the Care of the Body, you would not need to ask such a foolish question, which shows that you are yet in the kindergarten class.

The acid of oranges and other fruits, containing the important organic salts, is a medicine—good medicine—the only natural medicine. If you have impurities in your blood, it will aid nature to cast them forth. Then, eat more oranges and other fruits and salads in season, and still more, until your blood is pure, and rejoice that you have an eruption, meantime refraining from all gross food, and bad air, and using water externally.

Radical Statements by a Rational Physician.

A REMARKABLE series of articles has been running for a couple of years in the Medical Brief, under the heading, "Medical Wonders and Medical Blunders—A Story of Facts." The author is M. J. Rodermund, M.D., of Milwaukee. In the course of the February installment he makes the following sensible remarks, after referring to the "big four" health rules—breathing, eating, sleeping and working:

"I am sorry to say that our present medical philosophy, education and medication is far more injurious to the health and constitutions of our race than were the practices of the dark ages. We are today depending upon various pie-hunting medical and political gods to preserve the public health, who seem to know as little about these 'big four' laws as some of the men elected to Congress know about the Federal Constitution, or Calvin's confession of faith. By chasing the harmless microbes and instilling the public mind with fear of contagion, and the benefits of quarantine and vaccination, we have quite lost sight of the enormous meaning of the 'big four.' . . .

"The fact stares us in the face that if the profession would give the public what they actually claim to give them, more than one-half of the physicians would have to go out of business. These are two widely-separated and antagonistic propositions. I don't see how they can live together, any more than divine love and the devil himself. I have always maintained that a separate organization should exist for the purpose of educating the people and this body should see that the people were given the opportunity to live right and that they did live right. Then the physician's duty would be solely to properly treat those who through ignorance or negligence should violate the laws here set forth. No man is going into any kind of business and then stand in front of his store and demonstrate to the public that they can get along without buying his goods."

Women's Woes.

A CORRESPONDENT suffers from one or more of those all-too numerous ailments, generally referred to as "female troubles," or "female complaints." They are caused by ignorance of the laws of health and often by ignorance, or willful recklessness, on part of a husband. The correspondent is told by her physician that she must have her ovaries cut out, and wants to know what to do. This, of course cannot be told, intelligently, without a knowledge of the case. It may safely be said, however, that in a great majority of cases, an operation is unnecessary, and that in all cases it is harmful, for a person is never again, in all respects, "himself," or "herself," after the removal of a normal portion of the anatomy. Ask any one who has been operated upon, after a couple of years have elapsed. Of course, the surgeons don't advertise such facts, or hospitals would not be so popular, or pay such big dividends.

A case like that of the correspondent may often be permanently cured by natural treatment—hydropathy, osteopathy, diet, etc. As so frequently explained here, there is no drug or food specific for this, or any other disease. A person in such a fix should seek advice from a rational physician, who does not depend on drugs.

Autology.

THE author of "Autology" has issued a booklet—"in a nutshell." As the editor said in reviewing, it is a fine book. In two things, however, the editor entirely and emphatically does not agree with Dr. Moras. He belittles or even denies heredity, and disapproves of teaching sexology to grown children. Apart from these things, it is a most excellent book. Send for the descriptive booklet, to Dr. E. R. Moras, 1403 Washington Boulevard, Chicago. No price mentioned—apparently free.

"I cannot be grateful enough for the blessing of perfect health that AUTOLOGY has brought me. Its effects on me were miraculous. Before I became on AUTOLOGIST I was reduced to a diet almost exclusively of Zweibach and cereal milk. Sick headaches, etc., frequently warned me to fast even with this simple diet. From the very first day I began to follow Autology—vegetables, fruits and meat agreed with me and have ever since. From all tendency to sick headaches, which I had very frequently and to which I was subject from childhood, was immediately removed.

"I have heard of the fright Autology was giving the Chicago physicians and of their efforts to suppress the book. I don't wonder at it if many of their patients have undergone my most gratifying experience."

It have not felt so well in years; I never more have an ache or pain; I sleep like a top; I scarcely know what fatigue is. In many respects I am reminded of my boyhood days, though I am over sixty. # Well or Sick, You Need AUTOLOGY

Autology is no theory, no fad, no creed. It deals with the practical business of your body and brain as you have learned to deal with the practical business of your home affairs, plants and flowers, your land and gain, your dollars and cents. It tells you how to get the most and best out of every one of your organs and functions; how to cure and cultivate them; how to fertilize and improve them. It makes health and disease an open book, as clear as day to your own mind, divested of all mystery and dread. You become your own physician and specialist, as well as your children's or family's. Read what a prominent physician, educator and author writes:

"I must acknowledge that your book contains more useful knowledge than any other work of its kind. You have written the various topics of the book intensely instructive, practical and entertaining. Indeed you have made the physiological dietary and curative knowledge and facts as much interesting and fascinating as any historical novel. Once familiar with its important subject 'How to Know One's Self and How to Cure One's Self' and it will become everybody's 'Family Physician;' for that is just what Autology is in the full sense of that expression and meaning."—DR. J. AUGUSTUS WEIMAR, Estero, Fla.

Well or sick, you need Autology. Without it your are bound to sicken, suffer or linger or die when you shouldn't. With it there will be no such thing as pain or sickness in your life. Do you realize what this means? This letter from a grateful Autologist tells:

'A desperate case of complicated meningitis (brain fever) taken at its hopeless stage (when physicians had given it up) and brought back to health in the hands of a layman, stamps Autology at the forefront in relief of suffering and cure of disease. This will be an epoch in my life for it not only gives a restored wife and mother, but also that knowledge that makes disease no longer possessed of a mysterious dread, but an open book divested of all its terrors, for with Autology there need be no such thing as disease and the name disease can become obsolete."

EDWARD BALTZLEY, Tallapoosa, Ga.

"Dr. Moras broke away from the old drug systems years ago and devoted his scientific training to advocating and disseminating knowledge of 'Nature's Remedies.' In reading the volume we kept marking the paragraphs we wanted to quote for the benefit of our readers, but when we finished and looked back at the unbroken line of marked pages, we gave up. Read it for yourself. It is thoroughly practical, thoroughly original, thoroughly reliable. When you've read the chapter 'What You Are Made Of and Why You Eat,' when you've considered 'The Origin of Diseases,' 'Nutrition and Mal-Nutrition,' when you've mastered 'What to Do and What Not to Do,' when you've got the strong meat out of the chapters on 'Prejudices in Your Way,' the essence of good sense in 'Natural Remedies'—when, in other words, you have read this book, you'll urge your friends and neighbors to go and do likewise."

To revert to cheap lots again, there is no doubt that the laying out of suburban tracts in from half an acre to an acre in area at prices about on the same level as usually asked for fifty-foot lots in the far outlying subdivisions has affected the sale of the small lot. The street car service is oftentimes better to these suburban tracts than to some nearer the city limits. There are about the same conveniences in the one case as in the other, and naturally half an acre, and still more an acre, looks better to the investor than a lot 50x150 or 40x130 feet.

More Hopeful Conditions.

In about six weeks the city will be overflowing with Shriners from all parts of the world. We will all, no doubt, put our best foot forward to impress these visitors. They will be followed a couple of months later by tens of thousands of school teachers from all over the country. The outlook is for perhaps 70,000 or 80,000 in all of these visitors to come during the summer. They will be highly intelligent people, and they will go back carrying their impressions with them, all over the country. If their experiences here are happy, they will, no doubt, spread broadcast over the country the idea that we have here a desirable place of residence and a place where business is prosperous. We may not reap a harvest from this at once, but it will have its effect in time to come. We should all leave nothing undone that is within our power to do to show the city and country in all their aspects in the most favorable light to these intelligent visitors. Simultaneously with all this, the railroads are pouring a great stream of homeseekers in all along the Coast. They do not all come at first to Los Angeles, but those who go even to the far Northwest will, in many instances, come down this way and look us over before making up their mind where to settle finally. Many of those who do not come here, but decide to try the Northwest for a while, will do in the future as they did in the past. They will find the long wet season of the northern coast about as trying as the severe frosts of their old homes, and in the end they will drift down to the land of sunshine, flowers and mocking birds.

Better in the End.

Perhaps it is better in the end for all concerned that there should be a little check in the great activity in the real estate market. Indisputably, the rise in property values all over the city and its surroundings has been very great. If we go back four years, the rise has been startling. There is no doubt plenty of cheap property in Los Angeles, even at ruling prices. There is just as little doubt that some of it is held at quite as high prices as the conditions justify. One might go farther and say that there is not a little property here held at higher values than are consistent with all the conditions. People of large means coming here, and learning that central business property has advanced with such great rapidity naturally incline to hesitate a little about paying the price. Property all over the United States is generally higher in price than it was five years ago. It is a natural idea to come into people's minds that a reaction is not impossible. While there is perhaps little reason to look for an absolute reaction in the best property in the city of Los Angeles, yet in the end it will be better if we cease to raise prices above the present level until the presence of a larger population here furnishes better grounds on which to base higher values. As this department has pointed out again and again, in the next few years probably the largest profits will be made in the choicest kind of residence sites and in property which must soon be suitable for apartments, flats and small hotels, now used mostly for residence purposes, and to be had at $100 a front foot, and even a little lower prices. If one will stop and figure the revenue to be derived from good flats and choice apartments, even at the present cost of erecting buildings, he will find that at $100 to $200 a foot his income is satisfactory.

HALF ENTIRE BLOCK BOUGHT.

Land Between Figueroa, Fifth, Fremont and Sixth Brings Two Hundred Ten Thousand.

Through the agencies of Robert Marsh & Co., and Mines and Farish, the sale of more than half of the entire block bounded by Figueroa on the east, Fifth on the north, Fremont on the west, and Sixth on the south, is reported for a consideration of $210,000. The grantor in this deal is John Harlan. The buyers are local investors. The property has a frontage of 240 feet on Figueroa street, and 215 feet on Fremont street. There is a uniform depth of 330 feet. Improvements consist of nine or ten well built residences, and a large apartment house valued at $20,000. The remainder of the improvements is valued at $30,000. The property does not touch either Fifth or Sixth streets, but is nearest Fifth street. This deal is said to have been stimulated by the fact that improvements are of vast magnitude, are planned for the future, both by the Harriman interests and by those syndicates of agents which have been planning to obtain the Normal School site. It is considered a bargain by those who have purchased.

SOUTH SPRING STREET FRONTAG

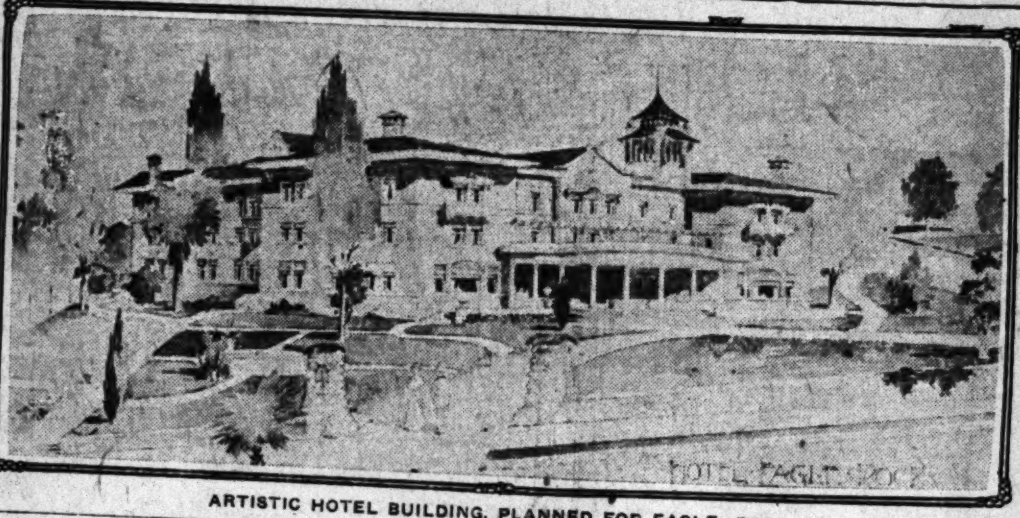
The sale of thirty-three and fraction feet of frontage on Spring street, south of Sixth street for $115,000, or at the rate of $3422 a front foot, was reported last week from Dwight Whitting to a local syndicate, formed through the agencies of R. A. Rowan & Co., and W. B. Merwin & Co. The property is at Nos. 613-615 South Spring street, just a few feet south of the Hayward Hotel. The improvements consist of a one-story brick store building. The lot has a depth of 135 feet. Plans are said to have been made for the improvement of the present one-story structure by the addition of two more stories, and the extension of the building to cover the entire lot.



ARTISTIC HOTEL BUILDING, PLANNED FOR EAGLE ROCK.

ATHLETIC CLUB BUYS LOCATION.

NORTHEAST CORNER OF SEVENTH AND OLIVE STREETS.

Four Hundred and Fifty Thousand Is Price—Issacs Brothers Sell Old Hotel Baltimore—To Be Demolished to Make Way for Magnificent Structure.

Four hundred and fifty thousand dollars has been paid for the Hotel Baltimore, on the northeast corner of Seventh and Olive streets. The lot has a frontage of 155 feet on West Seventh street to a twenty-foot alley on the east line. On the Olive street face the lot is 147.75 feet deep.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club is the organization for which the purchase was made. Isaac Brothers are the sellers. The price per front foot for the Seventh street frontage figures at $2903.25. The purchase was made by a new corporation of bankers and capitalists, comprising many of the prominent moneyed men in the city. This corporation will erect a magnificent club building to cost $1,000,000, second to none in the world, and will manage the business of the athletic club, as a holding company. The deal was made through the agencies of R. A. Rowan and Company, Robert Marsh and Company, and William Garland and Company.

Isaac Brothers purchased the property for $350,000 on December 1, 1906, and have since received many tempting offers for it. The present deal shows them a profit of 28½ per cent. in less than five months. The improvements on the property consist of a three-story frame hotel building, which occupies the entire Seventh street frontage and extends back fifty feet on the Olive street side. The remainder of the lot is vacant.

The club building will be begun soon after October 1, 1907, the date the leases on the building expire, as the old hotel can be demolished sooner. The building will be one of the finest equipped clubhouses in America. Frank A. Garbutt, who is prominently connected with the organization, has been visiting every famous club building this side of the Atlantic Ocean, and plans are being prepared to make the local organization's home second to none in the world. The building will be of the latest fireproof construction, and will be between seven and nine stories high.

Not until late Saturday afternoon was the deal finally tied up, but it now is an assured fact that the location has been purchased for the sum named and that the property has been secured by a deposit of fully half the gross total now is certain. Named in connection with the purchase are the following well-known business men and bankers of Los Angeles. The amount each has subscribed also is placed after each name. R. A. Rowan, $25,000; Frank A. Garbutt, $50,000; Robert Marsh, $25,000; R. W. Kenney, $10,000; Hellman and Sartori, $10,000; J. A. Graves, $10,000; J. S. Torrance, $5000; A. Kingsley Macomber, $5000; Fishburn, Woolwine and Rogers, National Bank, $5000; Isaacs Brothers, $15,000; W. L. Brent, $5000; W. M. Garland, $15,000; W. H. Holliday, $5000; H. Jevne, $5000; Dan Murphy, $5000; E. S. Rowley, $5000.

SAN FRANCISCO REBUILDING.

Work has been begun on the new Orpheum Theater for San Francisco. The building is a fine type of the true theater building and will be one of the show places of the new San Francisco when completed.

"The new Orpheum, to be erected on the old O'Farrell-street site, will be the most beautiful theater in America."

So says Morris Meyerfield, Jr., president of the Orpheum circuit.

"The new Orpheum will be entirely devoted to theatrical purposes—there will be no stores or offices in the building," continued Mr. Meyerfeld. The seating capacity is to be 2700. Construction will be of steel and absolutely fireproof. Stewart & Co. of New York, who have the contract, promise to have the theater ready for occupation in October next. The contract price is $500,000.

After the earthquake and fire which destroyed the Orpheum Theater on O'Farrell street, the Orpheum moved out to Chutes Park, and performances were given continuously in the Chutes Theater until the new theater on Ellis street was completed. This was occupied about two months ago. There is also to be an Orpheum Theater in Oakland. With three first-class vaudeville theaters in the two cities, there does not seem to be much opening for the threatened invasion of vaudeville by the theatrical trust. So far as San Francisco is concerned, it would look as though the Orpheum had complete control of the situation.

BUYS ON LOMA DRIVE.

John T. Rowntree has sold to Adolph Jahnke a handsome twelve-room three-story stone and frame residence, No. 331 Loma Drive, with large highly-improved grounds, 100x198 feet. There are also many choice trees and shrubs and Mr. Jahnke intends to improve this place further, making it a private park and one of the show places of the city. Mr. Jahnke is a retired banker and capitalist from Germany, and will make this city his future home. He has only been here a few months and has invested quite heavily in Los Angeles real estate. The price named is $21,500. The sale was made through the Althouse Bros.

HOTEL "EAGLE ROCK."

Train & Williams have completed plans for Hotel Eagle Rock, to be erected in Eagle Rock Valley on Colorado street.

The building is to be on the Spanish Renaissance order of architecture, with plastered exterior. It will be three stories high. The ground plan is 54x82 feet, with the dining-room wing 30x40 feet. A circular veranda is a feature of the Colorado street front, being 30x46 feet, with a balcony overhead. From this veranda, one enters the hotel rotunda, 39x50, finished in dark oak, and equipped with massive coblestone fireplaces, etc. Opening off the rotunda are billiard rooms, smoking-room, large reception parlors, and dining-room.

The second and third floors will be arranged en suite, with wide, well-lighted, corridors, and lounging spaces. The hotel will be completely equipped with all modern conveniences, and will cost approximately $48,000. Col. J. W. Eddy, of the Angels Flight, is the principal promoter of the hotel. If present plans are perfected he expects to begin work on the building about July 1.

GREAT TRACT SOLD.

More Than Quarter Million Paid for Poole & Jones Tract in Southwest.

Probably the most important deal of the week must be credited to the Jones & Ryder Land Company (Inc.) in the sale of the Poole & Jones tract to an eastern syndicate, represented by W. H. Hopkins, at a price considerably over $250,000.

This deal has been pending for some time, but perfect title can now be given and a large sum of money has been placed in escrow to complete the purchase about the first of May.

The tract consists of 162 lots, ranging from 50 to 75 feet in frontage, and about 150 feet deep, and is situated in the heart of one of the best residence sections of Los Angeles.

As an evidence of the great profits derived from real estate investments in Southern California it might be stated that just prior to 1880, the late Dr. Isaac N. Reed purchased the forty acres, of which the above property is thirty-four acres, and paid $8000 for it.

About a year ago, Poole & Jones, a building corporation of this city, purchased the thirty-four acres referred to above from the Reed estate for $225,000. Many of the more conservative real estate firms of the city felt that the price paid by Poole & Jones was high when it was considered that it amounted to over $7000 per acre.

Poole & Jones were considerably handicapped in the sale of lots in this tract, owing to the delay in closing up the Reed estate, but the certificate of the Title Insurance and Trust Company shows the title to be perfect, free and clear of all incumbrances, and all the lot purchasers will now be able to secure their deeds and it is probable that within the next few weeks handsome residences will be started upon this tract, which is roughly bounded by Budlong, Jefferson, Normandie and Twenty-ninth streets.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC BUILDING.

Improvements which will cost fully $40,000 have been planned by the Southern Pacific Railroad for its yards and equipment. Additions to the buildings will include a two-story brick shop building, 88x114 feet over all, to cost $20,000. A two-room oil-car repair shop, 61x225 feet in size and one story high, is next in importance and will cost $10,000. A brick structure to be known as a carbide house also will be erected at a cost of $4000. The dimensions are 41x61 feet. This will have a concrete base. A blacksmith shop, 44x74 feet, also will be built. The cost will be $4000. A paint storage and mixing house to cost $2000, and two large frame bunkhouses, costing $500 each, complete the list. Permits were issued yesterday and work has been begun.

SHOWS BIG PROFIT.

Mrs. J. D. Thomas has sold, through the agency of O. A. Vickery & Co., lot 60x125 feet, on the west side of Hope street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, for $50,000. There is a six-flat building on the lot, which rents for $200 a month, and has for several years. Local investors bought. Five years ago this property was purchased by Mrs. Thomas for $25,000. By this sale she has cleared 100 per cent., and also has had the steady income of $2400 a year rental.

The same company also reports the following transfers: For Alice Hope to Frederick and Anna Scheider, house and lot at No. 795 Clanton street for $4500. House and lot at No. 899 West Eighteenth street, from Juan Lliteras to Lucas Arviza, consideration $7500. William Blinn from Mrs. Call, house and lot on Bonnie Brae street near Sixteenth street, $5000. Also the northwest corner of Hoover and Tenth streets, lot 70x175 feet, unimproved, from the Huntington Land Improvement Company to Mrs. E. P. Taggart of Santa Barbara, price $6500. Mrs. Taggart will immediately have work begun on a handsome home, which she plans to build there at a cost of $10,000.

WILL WIDEN AND PAVE.

Project Afoot to Beautify Occidental Boulevard—Want to Pave Several Streets.

There is a movement on foot among the property owners along Occidental boulevard with the object in view of having that thoroughfare opened and widened to 120 feet, with parkways in the center. Every indication points to a quick consummation of the project, as the majority of the frontage is said to have been secured. Fully 8000 feet of the 17,500 feet is controlled by Smith and Dieter.

The opening of Occidental boulevard north from Sunset boulevard, a distance of about 3300 feet, will make it the only direct thoroughfare to the north city limits. There are 2600 feet of frontage signed up for the opening and the promoters are confident of soon obtaining the remainder.

The same persons are also interested in the project to pave First street, from Vermont avenue to Union, Temple, from Hoover to Birch street, and Rampart from First to Seventh street. They claim that by doing this there will be an opening into the city for the people of the Cahuenga and Hollywood sections during the winter, bringing all the traffic finally into the center of town by way of Seventh street. At present the roads are said to be in a fearful condition and the people in those sections are suffering as a result.

ACTIVITY ABOUT MONROVIA.

T. N. Wheerley, a retired attorney of Seattle, has bought of Dr. and Mrs. Wheeler the five-acre orange ranch on North Charlotte avenue, Monrovia, paying the record-breaking price of $12,000. This is $2500 per acre. There is no improvements. It is bought for the purpose of erecting a handsome residence near the center of the tract to be the permanent home of Mr. Wheerley.

F. W. Jacques is completing a handsome bungalow for himself and adjacent to it he will build a residence for William Hughes. Robert Struthers has commenced the erection of a cottage on Maple and Shamrock avenues, which he will occupy upon completion. Mr. and Mrs. M. Westover are now occupying their new bungalow at the corner of Lemon and Shamrock avenues.

SALES IN VARIOUS SECTIONS.

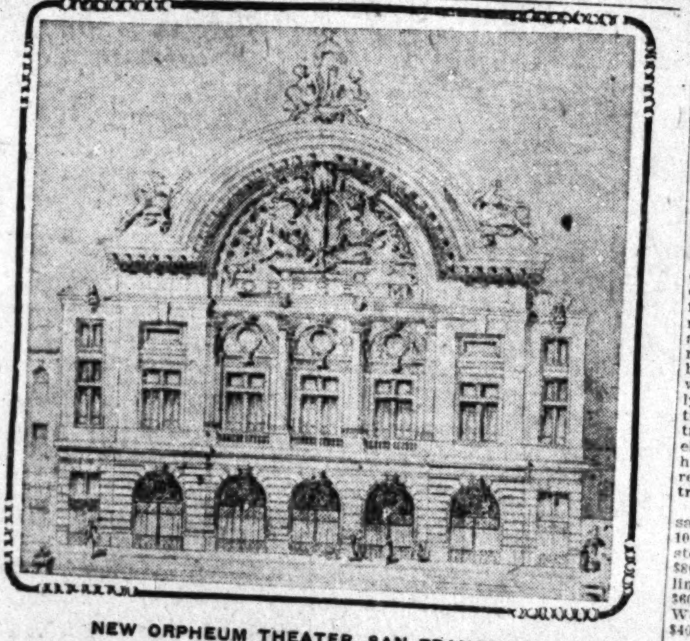
Mines & Farish report the following sales for the last few days: From William A. Banks to H. G. Mines, two-story ten-room house, No. 2619 Kenwood avenue, lot 65x132 feet, consideration $15,000; from a local syndicate lot 120x165 feet on Flower street, near Second to William A. Banks, consideration $24,000; from Anders Peterson to W. W. Shrader, Jr., two-story ten-room house, No. 3025 Vermont avenue, with lot fronting 125 feet on Vermont avenue, 140 feet on Thirtieth place, and 140 feet on Thirty-first street, consideration, $30,000; from W. W. Shrader, Jr., to local investor, northwest corner First and Olive streets, lot 64x80 feet, improved with six modern flat building, renting for $175 per month, consideration, $28,000; two flats, Nos 835 and 837 West Ninth street, lot 50x135 feet for Clarence Drown to local investor, consideration $14,500.



NEW ORPHEUM THEATER, SAN FRANCISCO.

RAMONA ACRES TO FRONT.

Activity has awakened about Ramona Acres. Sales within the last week and a half have been stimulated by the prospect that the new car service, by the new Huntington Covina line, soon will be in operation.

Track layers now are within a short distance of the old convent, after which the subdivision is named, and advices from the railroad offices say that the line will be completed to Garfield avenue and the cars in operation within a fortnight. Petitions also have been in circulation among the property owners for the establishment of a grade in Monterey Pass, and efforts are being made by those interested in adjoining subdivisions to have the railroad company extend the Brooklyn avenue service to the subdivision. Should this be accomplished this section will be very well supplied with transportation facilities.

On the first filing on Ramona Acres there are only a few unsold lots, and sales have already been begun in the second filing. All the streets now are in fine condition, oiled and rolled. In the second filing the cement sidewalks and curbing have been put in, and the entire countryside, under the influences of the plentiful rains, presents a most attractive appearance. Several up-to-date homes and pretty bungalows are being erected, or have been built for some time, and more are planned.

The Emerson Realty Company, which is handling the tract, report the most recent sales as follows: Lot, first filing, on Garfield avenue, sold to Rev. Samuel Blaire of El Paso, Tex., $1375; lot on Garfield avenue, to Henry D. Buddington, also of El Paso, $1375; on Hunt avenue, to Louise C. Goodin of this city, $1000; lot on Nicholson avenue, to Mrs. E. Wood Davis, Boyle Heights, $1100; lot on Hunt avenue, to Mrs. Elizabeth Best, Long Beach, $1210. There are now more than ninety lots sold in the first subdivision.

GOOD DEMAND AT COVINA.

Real estate has been in great demand in Covina during the week. Among reported sales are the following: G. W. Hepner to Perry W. Cheney, eighteen feet on Citrus avenue, consideration, $3500; C. F. Parker to L. M. Butler, formerly of Des Moines, Iowa, five-room house with modern improvements; consideration $2800; J. H. Mathews & Co., to Perry W. Cheney, fifty-foot lot on West Center street; consideration, $650; J. S. Eckels to F. W. Sherwood, lot at corner of Fourth and Center streets with ninety-six feet frontage on Center, consideration, $1900; John Kinney to G. W. Hapner, a residence and two lots on Dexter street, consideration $2500; R. A. Meredith to J. M. Thornlley, a ten-acre orange grove on Cienega avenue, consideration $12,500; Madison Basher to Mr. Miller, a ranch, consideration, $12,500; Mr. Earl to J. C. Hutchinson, cashier of the Covina Valley Savings Bank, a sixteen-acre orange grove on Azusa avenue, consideration $12,500.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

Young & Adams report an increased demand for lots in their Sunrise Heights tract. The street work is practically completed, and this, together with the starting of work on the East Seventh-street car line, which will run on Hollenbeck avenue, on the south side of this tract, is turning the attention of investors and home buyers in this direction. Contracts for a number of buildings have been let, to be started at once. The following recent sales have been made: Lot on Boswick street, 45x130 feet, to N. C. Stamps, $550; on Lorena street, lot, 40x140 feet, Bella M. Curtis, $4575; adjoining lot, same size, to George F. Clark, $575; Hollenbeck avenue, three lots, each 45x125 feet, to E. R. Young, Winnifred Sands and W. T. Gage; Garnet street, lots 40x130 feet one each to Anna Matson, Ebba Andren, Mrs. S. C. Riff, each $450; Opal street, lot, 45x125 feet, Edward Carson, $550; lots 40x125 feet, to J. C. Lessell $450; John Morgans, $475; Sara A. Sylvester, $475; Lenore B. Callan, $475; two lots to Mary F. Davis, $475 each.

Emil Firth states that his latest tract, Athen Heights, which had its opening sale on the 9th inst., is two-thirds sold out. One hundred and thirty-six lots sold for $68,170. The lots range from $375 up. This tract occupies the highest point on Vermont avenue, between the city and the beach, and commands a view limited only by the snow-capped mountain ranges and the ocean. The special free observation cars which are being operated by Emil Firth, between the city and this tract, were not able to carry all the people who wanted to see the property last Sunday. The service will be continued this week to enable everybody to visit the tract.

Sales of property in Searchlight, Nev., aggregating seventy-seven lots, for $32,500, are reported by the H. H. McCord Company. Most of the buyers are persons who have visited the camp and acquired their holdings after a face-to-face investigation. Business property has been in greatest demand, and practically every lot on Hobson street, the main thoroughfare of Searchlight, is now owned by Southern California investors. Dr. Taber has bought six residence lots and will erect three-room cottages to rent. Dr. C. A. Ellis is building two houses, and G. F. Woods will soon begin the erection of a business block on Main and Hobson streets. A lease has been made between the Postoffice Department and M. E. Paddock, and the postoffice will occupy a building on Hobson street, about 200 feet west of the Searchlight Bank. The lease is for three years. The Santa Fé Railroad has completed its track to a point a few hundred feet west of the original townsite, and Railroad Day has been definitely set for April 1. The waterworks company has been busily engaged in extending its mains, until the service now reaches to the extremes of the city. Carl Leonardt's electric light plant has now several hundred patrons, and many of the residents are preparing to use electricity for heat as well as light.

J. Frank Bowen reports his tract sales this week as follows: Tract No. 10, lot 33, block E, Marguerite Hockerson, $800; lot 33, block D, John Childs, $800. Tract No. 9, lot 315, Mrs. Paulie Law, $650; lot 2, E. R. Peralta, $600. Tract No. 14, lot 301, Henry W. Weber, $400; lot 302, Theo A. Pawlik, $400. Total sales, $3650.

MINISTER SQUARE

Westminster Square is one of most beautiful, well located residence tracts on the market today. It is commandingly situated at the corner of Fourth and Western avenues, is free from fog and dust and presents a magnificent view of the surrounding country. The aristocratic Wilshire boulevard almost adjoining. The improvements are of the superior order, found only in the most exclusive residence subdivisions. All streets are 75 feet wide and have palms and ornamental trees planted in front of every lot. Car line, running through the tract, will be soon completed. Two elegant homes are nearly finished, while plans for several others are being drawn. Entirely surrounded on all sides by superb residences and sightly home tracts. Prices of lots are exceedingly low, considering the excellent location, numerous improvements and splendid environments. Lots only $1250 up. One man bought six, another five, and another three lots, which bears evidence to the merit of the property. Search the city over, you won't find another site possessing the advantages and unusual features of Westminster Square priced so low. It's an opportunity you can't afford to miss, either of securing a matchless home site or money making investment. Conveyances waiting at our office to take you any time. Go out and see the tract early Monday morning, early choosing means the best located lots.

FOR SALE—
Don't buy lots when you can buy stock that will be worth three times its present quotation from a company that has 4000 lots that they are selling every day at a good profit; we are offering for sale a small portion of our stock at a very low figure, 25c per share; this is a sacrifice, but the time has come when we have got to build a hotel of about 100 rooms and extend our pier some 300 feet, as well as some street improvements. When this work is completed the stock will be worth not less than $1 per share; I know that this is the best offer you get in the stock market, and I will be pleased to explain it to you at any time convenient to you. This company is not in debt a one dollar. Address N, box 83, TIMES OFICE. 24

FOR SALE—
FOREST PARK.
WILSHIRE-WESTLAKE DISTRICT.

There is money to be made in Forest Park lots; if you will go to the park and observe the activity there you will be as sure of this fact as those who have already invested.

THE CITY HAS GROWN AROUND AND BEYOND FOREST PARK.

How long will it take Forest Park to fill up? What effect does building operations have on land values? Is it possible for land values to stand still in a tract like Forest Park where houses are going up so rapidly?

MANY HOMES ALREADY BUILT AT FOREST PARK.

Take into consideration the advantages of Forest Park—15 minutes from Broadway by electric car; 3 car lines in actual operation; full grown palms, pepper and ornamental trees; splendid wide walks, heavy curbs, gas, electricity, police protection, altitude, view, freedom from fog and frost, high-class neighborhood, elegant homes, high building restrictions.

Forest Park is attracting well-to-do people; most of the buyers are building homes.

SIX $5000 HOUSES BUILDING, A DOZEN MORE CONTRACTED FOR.

You can invest here with safety, profits are sure; nowhere are they more visible to the eye—you can see the reasons for natural increase; if you want to build we can save you some money on both building and lot. Let us talk it over.

BUILDING INDUCEMENTS OFFERED.

Let us show you or take Bimini Hot Springs or Inter-Urban Westlake car direct to tract office, corner Commonwealth ave. and Second street.

SCHMIDT HEIGHTS

In the fashionable WILSHIRE-WESTLAKE district, will be the nearest high class exclusive residence tract on the line of the Fourth st. SUBWAY, for the VERMONT AVE. SUBWAY STATION will be located in this tract where the tunnel emerges, and the time from 4th and Hill sts. will be ONLY FOUR MINUTES.

SCHMIDT HEIGHTS is now reached in 15 minutes from Broadway by the Bimini and W. 6th st. car lines.

Distance from business center is 3 miles.

The tract embraces Vermont ave. and Catalina st. east and west, and W. 4th and 5th sts. north and south.

Several east front lots on Vermont avenue, can be had at $3200, size 60x155. On New Hampshire, Berendo and Catalina sts., prices are proportionately cheap, and terms easy, but when the first shovelful of earth is lifted and the work on the SUBWAY is commenced, you will wonder why you could not foresee that SCHMIDT HEIGHTS was destined to be THE MOST VALUABLE RESIDENCE TRACT in Los Angeles.

FOR SALE—
The best corner on E. Seventh st., east of Main, the southeast corner of E. Seventh and San Pedro sts., 100 feet on Seventh by 112½ on San Pedro to an alley.
The track for the new car line is just being laid; the paving of San Pedro is nearing completion. We will sell this corner for less than one-third of what inside property has sold for farther from the business center on W. Seventh st. You do not have to wait for business at Seventh and San Pedro sts. It is already there.
This corner, improved, will pay from 15 to 20 per cent. on the investment. Why go farther out, where there is no business, and pay from two to three times as much?
If you want a good buy, call to see us.

We have 116 feet frontage on San Pedro st., just north of Seventh, with nominal improvements, bringing in $50 per month. This is the cheapest frontage on San Pedro st. near Seventh; other frontage being held as high as $750 and $900 per foot.
This property improved will pay 15 per cent. on the money invested. San Pedro st. is ninety feet wide and is one of the longest thoroughfares in the city. We will sell this as a whole for less than $525 per foot; or we will divide it. The owner needs the money to develop a mine.
This is an opportunity.

FOR SALE — DO YOU KNOW THERE IS more business done on Central ave. than any other through street leading in to Los Angeles. It will be a second Broadway when the industrial location on the east is build up. It is now predicted by good authority that corners on Central ave. will sell for $300 per front foot in less than 2 years. Central is now paved and sewered 5 miles long. There is no other street leading in to the city that will take you to all kinds of business like Central ave. Everybody south and east taking in all that San Pedro and Long Beach country pulls for Central ave. Look at the map, see where the big industries are going, and then you will see Central ave. among them leading in to the city and right among big things doing. Buy Central ave. and buy quick, buy before Mr. Huntington owns all the frontage. We have for sale the best unimproved prospective business corner, being the N.W. corner of Lee and Central, 65x130 to alley, for $7000. IS GOING TO BE PAVED.

FROM TEMPLE TO JEFFERSON ST.

You don't need to take my statement for this, but come in and I will show you the petition signed up for the work.

Present prices on this fine wide avenue are very low and we all know what effect paving has made in values on all other long streets, not nearly so well located as Grand Avenue.

In working up the petition for this work we have got in communication with most all the property owners and consequently are in a position to offer you the best bargains on the street to choose from, any of which will make you money.

But the people who investigate and invest right now on Grand ave. are the ones who will make the largest profits. So we would advise you to act at once.

FOR SALE—

THE ACTIVE DISTRICT.

Long experience in the real estate market of Los Angeles shows that the biggest profits, and usually the quickest ones, are invariably made in the district of current maximum activity. The difference between a successful and an unsuccessful real estate investor, or between a good and an indifferent agent, lies in their quickness to perceive the curent active distict; and many a clever operator has caught himself napping whilst others got into the ACTIVE DISTRICT ahead of him.

Maybe you think you're not one of the sleeping beauties. Ches? No?

How does it come, for instance, that you have been caught sleeping whilst a new born active district has suddenly sprung into existence on Figueroa st. from Sixth as far north as Second? How does it come that you failed to get in on the ground floor at least ten days ago? And if you did not, why don't you wake up and do it now.

What made it an ACTIVE DISTRICT? Aha! Caught asleep at the switch again, hey! Well, Mr. Manyana, the things that made it an ACTIVE DISTRICT are two: First, Mr. Harriman and his subway; secondly, the Normal School sale, which takes place next month, and the consequent opening of Fifth st. through to Figueroa on traffic grade. The first made the second posible, and you can bet Harriman's wealth to a red cent that if the subway was not an assured fact it would pay no syndicate to monkey with the Normal School band wagon.

Figueroa street between Sixth and Second contains today the cheapest real estate in the business district situated on a traffic grade and close to the great retail and banking centers of the city. The tunnel at Third st. and the cut which is some day sure to be made at Fourth makes this one of the easiest reached districts for close-in apartment house sites, and the busy retail district at the corner of Third and Figueroa streets today shows the great possibilities which are in store for Figueroa street north of Sixth in the future.

The statement as to the cheapness of Figueroa street real estate north of Sixth can be proved to the satisfaction of any real estate investor who will go over there and check up values today as compared with Figueroa st. south of Sixth where it is no longer in close walking distance of the retail center; or any of the real estate situated on cross or side streets south of Seventh and lying between Hill and Figueroa. It is still possible to buy Figueroa st. inside stuff at $400 to $500 a foot, and corners from $800 to $1000 a foot. And on a basis of these values they will doube quicker than any other real estate in the city of Los Angeles today.

Just to show you what we can do, we will deliver within the next 30 days the following properties at the prices quoted. All prices subject to change after that date.

—$12,500—

This is the finest real estate investment for a small sum of money that was ever offered in the real estate market in this city. It is 90 feet north of the northwest corner of Third and Figueroa, and in the center of the busiest focus of retail business to be found outside of the regular business district of Los Angeles. The lot measures 30x125, and as it is only 90 feet from the corner it is virtually a part of the corner and will some day be gobbled up by some shrewd investor who wants about 150 feet on a corner lot on Third and Figueroa.

—$24,000—

—$60,000—

120x165 feet on the west side of Figueroa st. between Third and Fourth. It contains an old two-story frame building bringing about $600 a year. The value stacks up $500 per foot, and it is going to sell for $1000 a foot long before the present Broadway or Spring-st. values have had a chance to double.

—$100,000—

This is the southeast corner of Fourth and Figueroa, 120x165 feet. The off corner of the lot is conveniently close to the subway right of way, and there is no telling to what important use it may be put some day. It is just a little bit over $800 per foot, and we are not dreaming at all when we see visions of the corner selling at $1500 per foot long before Broadway and Spring st. values have advanced 50 per cent. above their present point.

It is a matter of common knowledge among successful real estate operators that the greatest profits are made in second-rate business property such as above. And this is particularly the case if you get in on the ACTIVE DISTRICT.

FOR SALE—

CONCERNING JEFFERSON STREET.

This is an excelent time to buy something on JEFFERSON ST., in that grand little three-quarters of a mile, between Main and Wesley. The preliminary survey for the paving has been completed, and bids will be let in about 3 months' time. The rest of the paving, between Central ave. and Arlington, will follow a little later, and then we shall have a through PAVED BUSINESS STREET OF ABOUT FOUR MILES.

The cross-town car line, from Central to Main, is no longer a question of doubt, the Shriners' magnificent auditorium is almost completed, and other notable improvements in this section, such as the paving of Grand ave. to JEFFERSON—are foreshadowed—all tending to make this street a lively and permanent business center very soon.

I notice that, in the matter of building permits, the first three months of this year have been no exception to the previous two years. The Fifth Ward—which JEFFERSON ST. bisects—shows up, as usual, with the largest total in the city, with the exception of the downtown, or Third, Ward.

FINEST CORNER ON JEFFERSON.

The location is, without any exception, the finest on the street, between Main and Wesley, and it is likewise one of the largest. It is, in fact, one of the best corners in town; the price is $70,000. It will pay well to get the particulars about this magnificent property, which has not been on the market for 20 years, and probably won't be for 20 more, unless sold within 40 days.

TWO BEST SMALL BARGAINS.

One is near Figueroa, the other near Grand. I will GUARANTEE either or both to be the CHEAPEST on JEFFERSON, between Main and Wesley, little over $5000 cash; that's sufficient description. Further particulars at my office.

FOR SALE—

LAND PRODUCES $600 TO $1000 PER ACRE ANNUALLY.

ROGUE RIVER VALLEY, OR.

Our climate combines all the best features of California and Oregon and possesses none of the objectionable features of either, here we have no excessive rains; the rainfall averaging twenty inches, with days and weeks of bright, clear, sunny days during the winter; no excessive cold, the temperature seldom falling to the freezing point; during this terrible cold wave from which the entire country is still struggling to extricate itself, we did not even have a frost here; no excessive hot weather, while in summer blankets are a necessity, the nights always being cool.

OUR APPLE AND PEAR INDUSTRY

Is our greatest attraction; here we have orchards which produce per acre $600 to $1000 annually. Our pears bring the highest prices in the world in the markets of New York and London. Our Newtown apples also bring higher prices than those of any other section of the world. Our Spitzenberg apples are unsurpassed for quality, color and size. This industry is still in its infancy here, we have thousands of acres of undeveloped lands irrigated, and upland, at lower prices than ordinary alfalfa lands are selling for in California. Here we get four crops of alfalfa without irrigation.

Three new railroads are to be built immediately, one to our copper mines, one to our coal mines, and one to our timber. Our lands will produce anything that grows out doors, corn, grain, vegetables, alfalfa, fruits of all kinds and berries of all varieties from April till November.

Our copper mines are developing such a volume of ore that the entire mining world is now turning its eyes this way.

Medford is a beautiful little city of 4000 inhabitants, possessing all modern conveniences and with the hosts of homeseekers now settling here, promises to have a population of 10,000 in the course of a couple of years. We have splendid schools, electricity, new water system now going in, fine business houses, hotels that any large city might feel proud of, and a delightfully picturesque environment.

We can offer more undeveloped opportunities for money making than any other section of the United States, and that with natural attractions unsurpassed anywhere.

DO YOU WANT A BARGAIN?

Here is an opportunity, on account of sickness, that presents itself but once in a great while to some people, and never to many. 32 acres in alfalfa, in prime condition, just reseeded last year, and is good for 300 tons a year; the place has been in alfalfa for the last ten years, the reseeding last year is all that has been necessary, and has averaged 7 cuttings during that time, allowing the place to rest during the winter. This place is thoroughly sub-irrigated, no irrigation needed in the dryest years, which alone is of almost inestimable value, doing away with the expense of supplying water, labor and the waste in the land for ditches and so forth. It is on an electric car line with a station on the property and only 7 miles from the Courthouse of a city of 30,000. There is a very well-built lath and plaster house covered with large old trees, giving shade and comfort to the occupants. There is a domestic well furnishing an abundance of water, analysis of which is 99 per cent. pure. There are improvements well worth $4000 on this property, consisting of stock, buildings and tools. The place is well fenced with boards and ribbon wire. It is ready for some one to step into, and go right ahead without any extra expense, as the house is furnished and everything in first-class condition. This place, if taken at once, can be delivered for $13,000, with only $4500 cash, the balance as long as you want it at 6 per cent. The land alone, on account of its location, we believe, will be worth $1000 an acre in a few years.

FOR SALE—
Country Property.

FOR SALE—COUNTRY PROPERTY.
The time has arrived when first-class acreage with abundant water supply lying between the city and the sea on electric lines is appreciated. City lots in the country have had their day as a speculation. The advance in building material has squeezed the profit out of small homes, the water in the upper stories of syndicate operations has evaporated into hot air, and left the best and safest investment for the average man with average brains and average means to make. Namely, small acreage from 2½ to 10 acres, which, when intensively farmed will pay as much net as the same amount invested in legitimate city business.

I have for sale—

160 acres on electric car line, ½ mile below Inglewood at $450 per acre; easy terms.

160 acres in alfalfa, joining Hawthorne, below Inglewood, with large pumping plant furnishing 160 inches at $500 per acre.

160 acres, one mile from Moneta car line, with pumping plant of 100 inches for $400 per acre; will take part city or will trade clear and assume $20,000 to $30,000 on city property.

640 acres lying between Santa Fe and Recondo electric for $300 per acre; will make first-class subdivision in 2½ to 20-acre tracts; has school on land. Only 2½ miles south of Inglewood.

60 acres on Inglewood car line, 1 mile below Inglewood; improved partly for $450 per acre.

I will take pleasure in showing any of this property.

THE BEST TIME
to buy at Alhambra is right now, before the prices have advanced, due to the developments that are now assured. Don't wait but see us this week, and let us show you some of the choice opportunities that we have. Two new and modern cottages, strictly up to date, in very attractive locations, on streets all improved, and near the car line, we can sell at $2350 and $2500. These are bargains, and we do not expect to have them but a few days.

A very fine home place at $8050, which would satisfy any body for a home. Glorious view of the whole city, as well as the valley and mountains, located on the right corner of two streets, near the car line, grounds set out to ornamental trees, shrubbery, and oranges. This is a beautiful residence.

At prices from $1500 to $2500, we have a number of good purchases in homes, on improved streets, near the car line, which will pay inspection.

At $900 and up, we can sell you a fine lot in an orange grove on Marguerita avenue, near the car line. We only have a few lots here, and they are being rapidly taken, for the very good reason that there is nothing to equal them at the price, in the city. Terms on these make them easy of purchase.

We are in a quandary. Our "ad." writer is buffaloed. We want the readers of The Times to help us out, and offer the above
—CASH PRIZES—
FOR YOUR TIME AND ADVICE.

Before the big storm, we had contracted for fifteen carloads of furniture, which our eastern buyers had purchased direct from the leading factories. We had purchased them in such a way that one car should reach us every two days, which, owing to our enormous trade and low prices, we have had no trouble to dispose of. Advices from the railroad company advise us that the fifteen cars will arrive next week ALL IN A BUNCH. The question is, How to make room for all this furniture and sell these goods quickly, so as to give our customers the benefit of this extraordinary condition of affairs, and in the meantime which will be the quickest way to make a quick sale of the goods we have now on hand?

Write us an advertisement which you would consider readable for our next Sunday's "ad.," covering the above question.

Here are a few pointers to go by, which may help you win one of these prizes.

We are one of the oldest and most reliable furniture houses in the West. We have no underhand methods of doing business.
—We are here to stay—
We carry a full line of household goods and can fit up a mansion or a humble home.

ASSASSINATE SCIENTIST.

Moors Fire Upon and Beat to Death Member of Geodetic Survey at Morocco.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TANGIER (Morocco) March 23.—A courier who arrived here today from Morocco City reported that Dr. Mauchampa, a French subject, has been assassinated by natives who are extremely agitated in consequence of the operations of the geodetic mission commanded by Prof. Genly, for which signal posts were fixed upon the roof of the doctor's house. The Moorish authorities, it is added, make no attempt to maintain order and anxiety is felt relative to the wife of Prof. Genly and his family.

The assassination of Dr. Mauchampa was particularly atrocious. He was fired upon and then beaten to death by a mob.

WILLIAM ALDEN SMITH, MICHIGAN MAN, WHO BEGAN LIFE AS A PEDLER OF POPCORN AND NEWSPAPERS.

By James B. Morrow.

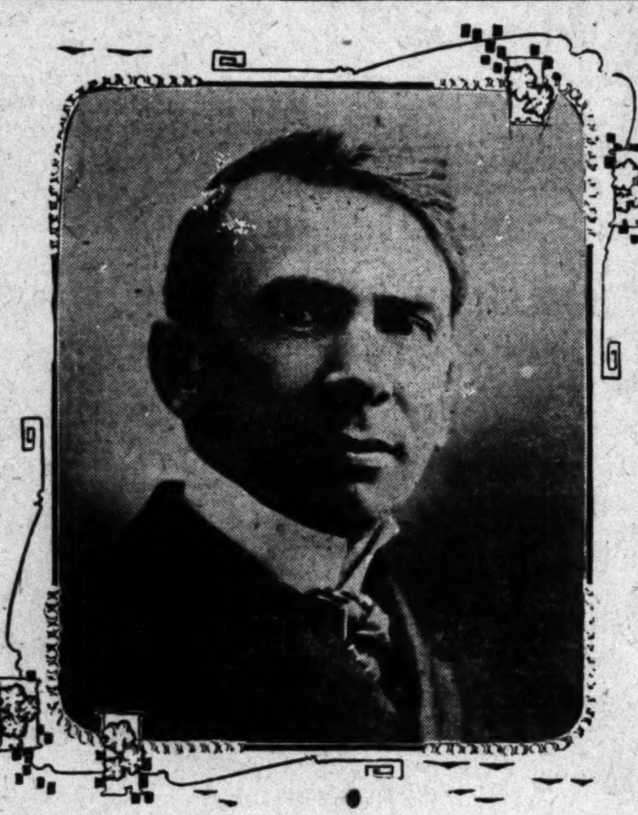
[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON (D. C. March 19.—Thirty years. At the beginning, a boy pedler of the streets; at the end, a Senator from Michigan in the Congress of the United States.

"I went into a lawyer's office one day with a basket of popcorn on my arm," William Alden Smith said. "I saw great cases filled with books and desks littered with documents. The morning had been stormy and unprofitable, but hope was busy with my heart. 'I mean to be a lawyer some day.' Unconsciously, my thought was spoken in words.

" 'What! You?' a young student exclaimed, adding a smile to his stress upon the pronoun. I went out into the rain afire with anger and shame."



WILLIAM ALDEN SMITH.

The bugle call had sounded; the march had begun.

A slovenly reader of human character would say that art in words alone, the peculiar oratory of voice, phrase, and countenance which decoys and pleases, put William Alden in the Senate. But energy, sunshine and daring have been paramount in all of his achievements. Physically, he is not uncommon. His stature is neither for nor against him. The eyes, not large, are neutral, as if nature had been careless with its brushes and dye pots, mistaking brown for gray and blurring its colors. The nose, mouth and upper teeth, however, are large and positive. But spirit is more potential than features. William Alden has it. The men who bought his popcorn and newspapers helped him recently to defeat two millionaires and a group of miscellaneous candidates for the Senate. Therein is the aggregate of his story. The details are as fascinating as fiction.

HAD A CLEAN BED.

"I am pictured as having grown up like Topsy," Senator Smith said, "but I want you to understand that I had a mother. This button in my coat comes to me because four minutemen of my father's family were in the Revolution. I wasn't kicked into the streets for a living; I went there voluntarily. At night I had a clean bed. In the morning a mother's kiss gave speed and zest to labor."

"Your father was dead?"

"No; but he was ill and unable to work. In his earlier years he was a tailor, but he loved music and became a dealer in pianos and organs. An indulgent father and 'a good provider,' as the saying goes in the country, he spent all that he made on his family. We lived at Dowagiac, not far from the State line of Indiana. When I was 13 years old we moved to Grand Rapids, seventy miles away, where we hoped to prosper. At 14 I quit school and went to work."

"It is said you sold newspapers and popcorn in the streets of Grand Rapids?"

"Yes, and I blackened shoes at a hotel where I had employment for a short time. First, however, I was a messenger for the Western Union Telegraph Company at $15 a month. Several years ago I took lunch with Col. Robert C. Clowry, president of the company, and several of his directors. I told them of my service in Grand Rapids, whereupon they all shook hands with me. Col. Clowry said that he had begun in the same way at Joliet, Ill. At the age of 20 he was a district superintendent, and, because of his youth, was almost ashamed to take the position. He was an uncommon youngster, I must say.

"But I had to earn more than $15 a month. My father was ill, and there were other children at home. One day I saw an advertisement that a newsboy was wanted on the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad. I applied for the place and got it. Next morning I went to the depot for my first run. I have always believed that success is largely a matter of environment. I was told that I must deposit $10 as security for my box of candies, oranges and books. 'If I had that much money,' I said, 'I wouldn't want such a job.' I cried half the way home. That morning, so sorrowful to me, was a turning point in my life. If I had gone on the road I suppose I would now be a baggage master or a minor officer for the news company. Several days later I was a cash boy in a large store. My old employers are living today, and whenever I run for office help me all they can. But my wages were not equal to the family appetite and necessities. I simply had to make more money.

LEARNED OF POPCORN.

"While at Dowagiac I had learned how to pop corn. Two brothers, by the name of Hannan, taught me. One of them is now a real estate operator in Detroit, and the other gets $25,000 a year for looking after the Boston credits of Swift, the meat packer. They peddled the corn and I poped it. We traveled about during our summer vacations, going to fairs and circuses, and wherever there was a crowd. I concluded to try the business in Grand Rapids. My brother George, then 12 years old, was my partner. Later he was found to have a remarkable baritone voice, with a range of two and a half octaves. A teacher in Boston gave him free lessons, and Emma Abbott hired him for her opera company. He died, however, at the very beginning of a most promising future. Well, George and I popped our corn at home, put it in little paper bags, and peddled it in stores and offices. Early in the morning I sold newspapers. Some months we made $75. At the age of 14, therefore, I was in business for myself. The family was decently comfortable, and I was thankful, but not satisfied. I couldn't sell corn and newspapers all my life.

"Pages in the Legislature were well paid, I was told. So, I became a candidate for public office. I thought I saw an opportunity to get off the streets without suffering a material reduction in my revenue. I borrowed enough money to take me to Ionia, near which town lived the Lieutenant-Governor. Snow covered the ground, and I recollect that I was not warmly dressed. The Lieutenant-Governor kept me waiting a long time and then turned me away. He had promised the place to a boy who didn't need it. As I walked through the deep snow in one of his fields, I stopped, held up my hand, and promised that if I ever had the chance to employ boys I would look for those who were poor and friendless. I have lived up to that promise ever since.

"Greatly disappointed, I concluded to go to Lansing, the State capital, and electioneer among the members themselves. Being without money, I tried to steal a ride on the railroad, and although put off the train three times, was succesful. John T. Rich, Speaker of the House, afterward a Representative in Congress and Governor of Michigan, heard my story and gave me a place. I was elected to the United States Senate last January, and, strangely enough, Mr. Rich was a member of the Legislature. I, took occasion in my speech of acceptance to thank him for his kindness twenty-seven years ago.

HIS STORY WAS ACCEPTED.

"Presently I began to write for the Chicago Times. I sent Mr. Story, the editor, a three-column description of the Greenback movement in Michigan. When I found that only one word had been changed, and that my article had been printed in full, journalism got into the many fantastic castles I was building in Spain. I was 19, and to me the years were going fast. One day during the spring I sat on the young grass in the yard of the State House and reflected upon the flight of time and my life, which was barren of method or plan. When the Legislature adjourned I went home with $100. I told my mother that I was going to travel around the world (an unusual journey in those days;) that I would see our foreign ministers and consuls, do their errands, sweep their offices, and by one means or another pay my way. She wept, and I remained at home. I suppose I meant to write about my travels, although the hopes of those days are not very distinct in my mind at this time. Then the law called again. Moreover, I remembered the emphasis on the word 'you.'

"I had to earn something, and so I tried to find an office where students were paid for such work as they could do. I went to Burch & Montgomery. They didn't laugh at me, but they were not in the habit of doing business with students on that basis. An uncle in Chicago was a prosperous lawyer. I would go to him, but he was away from home for an indefinite absence. Returning to Grand Rapids, I found the office of Burch & Montgomery locked. Col. Edwin S. Pierce, the owner of the building, gave me a key. I used to sell him papers, you know. I opened the office, swept the floor, cleaned the windows, dusted the books, and took care of the mail. In a week one of the partners returned. Then the other came back. I told them I thought they would rather have their office open than closed. They growled a little—I am sure they had plenty of reason—but I remained at $25 a month. Judge Montgomery is now Justice of the Supreme Court of Michigan. Mr. Burch is an officer in the Department of Justice in this city, and Col. Pierce, having lost his fortune, came to me and I had him appointed deputy sergeant-at-arms of the national House of Representatives. I bought a lot for $600, making a down payment with part of the money I had earned at Lansing. In a little while I sold it for double the price I had paid for it. William Alden was now in fairly respectable circumstances."

"Tell me about your first days at the bar."

HIS FIRST FEE.

"I got along in some way, doing a little business in real estate and collecting bad accounts. I always had a knack at making money. Frequently I was pressed for funds to pay my living expenses, but I could borrow from the men who had known me when I peddled in the streets. My first good fee came from a railway. An extension was to be built by the Detroit, Lansing and Northern road, and I was employed to obtain the right of way. I made terms with every farmer but one. There was a difference of $100 between us. I suggested that we play a game of euchre. If I lost, I would pay his price. If he lost, he would take my price. But as neither of us knew that particular game, we compromised on seven-up, three out of five. We played on the farmer's front porch, and I won. 'The next time,' his wife said, 'I'll do the playing myself.' The farmer has been my good friend ever since. There were houses in the right of way, which I bought and moved to some land I owned. Accordingly, I was a landlord as well as an attorney at law.

"Just before I was employed by the railroad I tried to borrow $100 at a bank in Grand Rapids and was refused the loan. Another bank gave me the money, the president himself going on my note. The railway company put $100,000 into my hands, and you may be sure I did not deposit it in the bank which had declined to trust me. One must be careful in this world. The boy who is down today may be doing considerable business tomorrow. The student who said, 'What, you!' afterward wanted a place in my law office."

"I have heard that you built a railroad with no capital but your nerve and industry?"

"I was 28 years old and without money or prospects. While in the office of the manager of the Chicago and West Michigan Railway the representative of the Boston syndicate which had paid $600,000 for a tract of pine land on the Upper Manistee River came in and tried to arrange for a branch road to his property, which was forty-four miles distant from the main line. The manager said his company had neither the money nor credit to build it. When the Boston man went away, I said I would undertake the work if the Chicago and West Michigan would lease the road or agree to pay me a fair rate on my tonnage. The manager laughed at me. But I went ahead. I organized a company composed of financiers as opulent as myself, and had it award me the contract for constructing the road. In a week surveyors were running the line. We went straight through a billion feet of hard wood timber, which could have been bought at $4 an acre. I begged men with money to buy it, and attempted without success to get some of it myself. When my road was built that timber multiplied nine times in value.

HAD TO BORROW $20,000.

"I shall never forget my first pay day. I needed $20,000 and didn't have that many cents. Hurrying to Boston, I showed a number of capitalists my plans and contracts. They telegraphed to Grand Rapids, and a message came back saying that 'Smith is honest and industrious, but has no means.' Nevertheless, I got the money. Then I needed steel. I knew Samuel R. Callaway, president of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway, and later president of the New York Central and also the American Locomotive Company. He had been a poor boy, too. There is a brotherhood among men who have walked in steep and stony paths. 'I want steel,' I told Sam, and he sent me $60,000 worth. Opposing railways and interests who had prophesied my ruin and laughed at my pretensions saw Sam Callaway's steel and heard of my Boston loan. Well, the road was built. The pine land which had cost $600,000 was sold for $1,300,000. My own profit was $300,000 in stock. However, I couldn't have sold it then at any price. I doubt if I could have borrowed $500 if I had offered is as collateral. Just the same, I valued it at $100,000, and that is exactly the sum I got, finally. Then I went into another railroad enterprise and made some more money."

"A year ago you bought the Grand Rapids Herald. Was that the newspaper which you sold when you were a boy?"

"Yes, and that is why I wanted to own it. But it is a profitable property, and sentiment has paid for once, at least."

"You were elected to Congress when you were 35 years old. What circumstances made you a candidate?"

"McKinley delivered a speech in Grand Rapids in 1890. I presided at the meeting. He told me I ought to go to Congress. Four years later I was there."

"Why did Speaker Reed give you a place in the Committee on Foreign Relations soon after you became a member of the House of Representatives?"

"Because I went straight to him and asked him to do so. I had delivered an address in Boston, of which he had heard, and that helped, too. He was a peculiar man. Early in 1896 I made a speech favorable to McKinley's nomination. Reed refused to speak to me for a month. One day I stopped him. 'You have not been treating me rightly,' I said. 'I have never thought of you in connection with the Presidency. Although you are assured of support in Michigan, let me tell you, Mr. Reed, that you will not get a single vote. I think so much of you that I want you to know the truth.' After that he was as friendly as ever."

"You were elected to Congress seven times, and by an increased plurality at each election. Did your campaign expenses grow in proportion?"

OPPOSED TO MONEY IN POLITICS.

"I never had any. I always gave the State Committee a small contribution, but I spend scarcely a dollar myself. I am opposed to the use of money in politics. Moreover, I am invariably hard up. I buy things and must pay for them; the Elkhart (Ind.) gas works, for instance, and the Grand Rapids newspaper. I get along, both in politics and business, without much money. I started a six-story building just before the panic in 1893. As usual, I had no funds. The workmen said they would go ahead and trust to luck. Astrologers who had been casting my horoscope every time the moon changed, cheerfully said that I had met my Waterloo at last. But the building went up. It's standing yet."

"You were chosen for the Senate over two millionaires. Nevertheless, you think the voters of each State should elect their Senators?"

"So long as that is impossible under the Constitution, I am of the opinion that Senators should be nominated at primary elections by the voters themselves. The entire responsibility of government should be with the people."

"What is the most important question before the nation?"

"We shall have few vexatious problems after capital and labor are brought into better relations. And they will be. The American people are wiser and more kindly in every generation, and wisdom and a good heart are the groundwork of individual and national character. We are a sensible, thrifty, and righteous nation. More than ever before, intelligent men, for example, see the foolishness, if not the wickedness, of drink. At a recent dinner I attended, Senator Beveridge and others of his age and prominence turned their glasses upside down. Look at the savings banks, which are fairly bursting with money of the common people. I reflect upon these things, and am sure that America will settle all questions, high finance and low finance, capital and labor, with justice and a full understanding."

SAW HIS PARENTS' FACES.

"When you thanked the Michigan Legislature for sending you to the Senate, you said that, looking beyond all of the friends who were present, you saw at the window of a humble cottage 3000 miles away the faces of your father and mother. What did you mean?"

"Precisely what I said. I bought a home in California for my parents, and I knew that out there among the flowers they were thinking of me. And so my heart went out to them and I had to confess it."

GIRL WHO BROKE GUEST'S HEAD.

VERA SYLVAS,
the Italian cafe concert singer who broke a guest's head at the banquet given to celebrate Leonard Thomas's diplomatic promotion.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

ROME, March 6.—Something was doubtless cabled to America at the time about the breaking of a head at the banquet which the friends of Leonard Thomas, secretary of the American Embassy here, got up to celebrate his promotion to a better billet on the official staff of the American Ambassador at Madrid. But it may interest readers to see the accompanying photograph of the young woman who broke the head and incidentally a champagne bottle.

Vera Sylvas is her name, and she is something of a celebrity. As a child, her piping voice was heard occasionally in the streets, when she gathered in a few pennies. She then dressed herself as a Roman peasant and sold flowers and posed as an artist's model. She was next seen selling coffee at a bar where her bold eyes enslaved a "Signore," who had her take a few singing lessons, clothed her in purple and fine linen, and set her on the road to—breaking heads if not hearts. From him she fled one night after a free fight in which another head was broken but this time not by her. She afterwards came to light selling matches, poorly dressed, in the streets of Naples, but before long another "Signore" aided her, and she became a café concert singer, in very abbreviated skirts, and with a shockingly bad voice.

After breaking the head of one of Mr. Thomas's convivial friends Vera disappeared. The broken head was taken to a hospital where all sorts of unpleasant things were done to it, and it has not since been seen amid the gay and festive throng in the Italian capital.

The incident is hardly calculated to advance Mr. Thomas in his diplomatic career. A man is apt to be judged by the company he keeps. The company which assembled to give him a "send off" was a very lively one. There were several women among them whose acquaintance men do not openly acknowledge even in Rome, where the code of morals is much laxer than that which prevails in America. The wine flowed freely. The men took to "guying" the women and pelting them with bread balls and edible scraps. This species of attention some of them resented and retaliated. Vera Sylvas lost her temper and a bottle of champagne wielded by her strong arm did the rest.

Mr. Thomas was well-known in Roman society, and well liked by those who held rather lenient views concerning the sowing of wild oats. He occupied an apartment in the house made famous by Hall Caine in his "Eternal City."

SCHOOL BOYS IN REBELLION.

Refuse to Be Whipped and Hide Strap.

Principal Coats Defied and Fighting Follows.

Sierra Madre Town Is in an Excited State.

Armed rebellion is the state of affairs in the public school at Sierra Madre and all the big boys refuse to be whipped

A solemn meeting of School Trustees Hosmer, Clark and Kemp will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in the brand new school house there to discuss the serious question which threatens—"To lick 'em or not to lick 'em?"

There have been a good many "lickings" in the Sierra Madre school this term, according to all accounts, but the last licking to date was Friday afternoon and it was the principal of the school who was the surprised victim.

Friday evening at the various supper tables the whole town, or at least that part of it with children, was startled by the juvenile tale that "Chico licked the principal." It may not have been dignified upon the part of the old people, but at least they wanted to know and then the whole story became known and yesterday it was a matter of common talk in this beautiful little foothill city.

The three trustees feel that a crisis has come upon them, but they have steeled their souls to an investigation and discipline will be upheld—discipline with justice. Principal W. W. Coats and Frank Leon will attend the meeting this morning. So will all those who don't go to church.

THE PRINCIPAL'S PROBLEM.

When Principal Coats announced before the eighth grade that he was going to "strap" Frank Leon, known as "Chico," for hiding the strap, the whole class sat up with interest. Even the girls in the class made eloquent gestures to Frank, as he was leaving the classroom with Mr. Coats, to resist.

Out in the hall Mr. Coats told Frank to lie down over a chair. Frank said he wouldn't and as he is a strong, well-built boy, 18 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, and was born in Tucson, Ariz., a rather serious problem faced the principal all of a sudden.

"Sit down there or I'll have to put you down," commanded the principal sternly.

"See here, Mr. Coats," remarked Frank, "I have let you lick me twice, but I'm not going to do it again. I'm willing to go home if you say, but I won't be whipped. I'm too big."

But Principal Coats felt that his dignity as head of the school was at stake and he insisted that young Leon take his punishment.

"You'll have to put me down then," said Frank.

Principal Coats is not so tall as Frank, but he is stouter, and was dead game. He peeled off his coat. So did Frank.

Meanwhile the greatest excitement dominated the school. Some of the girls were frightened and ran home. Miss Hough and Miss Gifford, the teachers, tried to preserve order, but were themselves so nervous that they really could not have told off-hand whether Cuba was free or not.

A moment later and it sounded as though a couple of threshing machines were having an argument out in the hall. Every eye in that big class room was glued on the door so to speak.

BATTLE LIKE GLADIATORS.

According to eye-witnesses, including some workmen, this is how the battle, on one side for discipline and on the other for exemption from "lickings," ebbed and flowed over the gory field:

Finding that Frank would not lie down to be peaceably whipped, Principal Coats decided to lick him as he stood, so he struck him with the strap, which is made of harness tugs sewed together. Frank grabbed the strap and took it away from the principal. In the tussle they clinched and fell to the floor and there was a lively mix-up.

Then they arose panting. "Give me that strap." Frank handed it over to the principal. Again he was struck and again he jerked it away and there was another tussle. Frank says the principal grabbed him by the throat and he acknowledges that he then unceremoniously bumped the principal's head against the wall.

By this time both were panting, but especially the stout principal. "Give me that strap," commanded the principal and again four years of school discipline prevailed and Frand handed it over and again the impolitic principal struck at Frank.

By this time the quick tempered boy of Spanish descent became the aggressor and it is said that he knocked his principal down and could claim first blood. "I knocked him down or threw him down four times," said young Leon yesterday, and half a dozen schoolboys nodded their heads and gazed admiringly at Frank.

Finally the fight came to an end. "Get your coat and go home," said the principal, and as Frank started Coats struck him on the head with the heavy handle of the strap.

THREATENED TO KILL.

Frank turned enraged at this unprovoked attack and eye witnesses say that Principal Coats picked up a baseball bat and threatened to brain Frank if he came near.

"Keep your distance, Frank, or I'll brain you," he cried at the angry boy.

"I'll keep my distance all right," remarked Frank at last as he grabbed his coat and hurried home. From there he went straight to School Trustee Clark and told his story.

"I don't know whether I will be allowed to finish my school or not," said Frank, "but I would like to as I will finish this year."

"Certainly you must go back to school," said Mr. Clark. Then the special meeting was called for this morning of all the trustees.

Principal Coats, who is a graduate of the Iowa State School and holds a California certificate, was not at home yesterday. He had gone up the mountains with some friends. Mrs. Coats stated that her husband had not told her about the trouble and did not believe that it was in any way serious.

A number of others were seen and in every case the story of the rebellion was told in about the same way with hardly a varying detail. Several of the big boys had agreed not to be whipped and a few days ago they entered the schoolhouse after hours and took the strap and Frank took it home with him.

Friday when the teacher asked for the strap Frank told him he had it and was sent home for it. When he returned with the strap Mr. Coats undertook to use it.

WIDE YAWN JAW-BLOCK.

Sleepy Man on Way to Work Opens Mouth Too Far, Can't Shut It.

I. R. Tilton yawned so widely that he dislocated his jaw yesterday morning. Receiving Hospital surgeons who treated the case say that it is remarkable.

The man had risen and was on his way to work. He was very sleepy, and yawned a number of times, stretching himself. Finally he opened his mouth to its fullest extent. There was a snap and a sharp pain. Tilton was unable to close his lips. In severe pain he hurried to the Central Police Station, where the dislocation was reduced.

NEW FREE SITE OFFERED.

Proposal to Give State Normal Fifteen Acres on East Side Hills, and Build Incline Railway.

Still another offer of a free site within the city limits for the new State Normal School has been received by the Board of Trustees. This time it is the East Side which looks with longing eyes upon the prize.

The offer is made by M. E. Johnson & Co., and they propose to donate to the State, free of all expense, a tract of fifteen acres on the crown of the hill lying back of Griffin avenue.

In presenting this offer the owners say: "This entire fifteen acres is nearly level; that is, it lies in two different elevations. The first elevation is about 720 feet, containing about eight acres; and the adjoining elevation is about 740 feet, also containing about eight acres. As we understand a portion of this land required is to be used for agricultural purposes, gardens, etc., it would not be absolutely necessary that all the land should lie on the same elevation."

The offer sets forth that the Griffin avenue car line runs on an elevation of about 460 feet, and that the company proposes to build an incline railway from this car line to the proposed Normal School grounds provided the site is selected, and that it is willing to contract so to do.

The claim is also made that the company has arrangements completed with the Los Angeles Railway Company, whereby that company is to extend its Downey-avenue line through the property, and that this would bring an electric line onto the same elevation as the proposed building site.

This would give the school two car lines direct to the city, with transfer privileges, and with a running time of probably twenty minutes from the center of the city. The company states that it can furnish an absolute guarantee from the Los Angeles Railway Company that the proposed line will be built and in operation in less than one year.

There are still other communities to be heard from on the Normal School site proposition. Certainly the one which offers a fifteen-acre tract right in the city, and also agrees to build a road to reach it, is entitled to careful consideration.

CHARTER DAY BANQUET.

Alumni Club of State University Gathers in Remembrance of Alma Mater—Officers Re-elected.

Loyal sons of the University of California gathered at the banquet board last night at Levy's to do honor to "Charter Day" of their alma mater. It was the annual dinner given by the Alumni Club of Southern California, and forty guests were assembled of the 150 members scattered all over the seven southern counties.

College yells and university songs rang out with spirit. The programme included short addresses by Leslie R. Hewitt, president of the club, Ed. North, Russ Avery, E. A. Dickson, H. H. Mayberry and Sam Haskins. Then there were informal talks by several other guests, and the balance of the evening was spent in university reminiscence and story.

The election of officers resulted in the selection of last year's roster, as follows: President, Leslie R. Hewitt; vice-president, Man Loewenthal; secretary and treasurer, Marco Newmark.

There were several present at this banquet who have never missed an annual gathering of the Alumni Club since it was organized in 1896.

CITY CLUB DISCUSSION.

Councilman Wren States That Receiving Hospital Will Be Removed from City Jail.

At the weekly meeting of the City Club yesterday, Dr. L. M. Powers talked of the needs of the City Health Department; Dr. A. W. Moore, of the city milk supply, and Walter J. Wren, of the Receiving Hospital.

Councilman Wren went over much of what has been said of the inadequacy of the present hospital, and stated that a location will be secured near by and the hospital removed from the City Jail. He also said that his committee will recommend to the Council that one surgeon be placed at the head of the hospital, instead of two as at present. Dr. Moore acknowledged that the milk is bad but said that stringent steps are under way to compel dairymen to toe the mark.

VALLEY TRAINS RUN.

No Hitch Occurs on This Northern Route, but Rains Threaten Further Complications.

Traffic was resumed over the Valley line of the Southern Pacific much as usual yesterday, and last night three trains went out, including the "Owl," the 6:30 and train No. 7 at 11:30. A large force of men are still at work along the line strengthening threatened spots and the remnants of the landslides which blocked the San Fernando tunnel and tunnel No. 14 are being cleared away.

The Coast line is still tied up for through traffic, but it is expected unless some other accident happens, to have it clear by tomorrow. A large force of men is at work clearing the cave-in at the Santa Margarita tunnel. Word from up the coast, however, is that it is still raining and that at several points the line is again threatened.

THE ANTI-SMOKES.

The crusade against smoking on the street cars will occupy the attention of the Anti-Cigarette Club at its meeting in the Chamber of Commerce this evening at 5 o'clock. They will also advocate an ordinance declaring it to be unlawful to smoke in elevators.

NOT DIRECTORS.

Charles Grimes and O. C. Ainsworth are not directors of the Stephens-Johnnie Mining Company as reported erroneously, although both are stockholders.

DEAFNESS AND CATARRH CURED

By "ACTINA"

"ACTINA"
W. G. WILSON INVENTOR
MANUFACTURER

Ninety-five per cent of all cases of deafness brought to our attention is the result of chronic catarrh of the throat and middle ear. The air passages become clogged by catarrhal deposits, stopping the action of the vibratory bones. Until these deposits are removed a cure is impossible. The inner ear cannot be reached by probing or spraying, hence the inability of specialists to always give relief. That there is a scientific cure for most forms of deafness and catarrh is demonstrated every day by the "Actina" treatment. The vapor current generated by "Actina" passes through the eustachian tubes into the middle ear, removing the catarrhal obstructions as it passes through the tubes, and loosens up the bones (hammer, anvil and stirrup) in the inner ear, making them respond to the slightest vibration of sound. "Actina" has seldom failed to stop ringing noises in the head. We have known people troubled with this distressing symptom for years to be completely cured in a few weeks by this wonderful invention. "Actina" also cures la grippe, asthma, bronchitis, sore throat, weak lungs, colds and headache and all other troubles that are directly or indirectly due to catarrh. "Actina" is sent on trial postpaid. Write us about your case. We will give free advice and positive proof of cures. A valuable book—Professor Wilson's 100-page Treatise on Disease, Free. # Fortunes Can Be Made In This Industrial Stock

No Other Line of Investments Pays as Much in Dividends as Manufacturing Companies Pay in the United States

This is Your Opportunity to Secure Stock in this Established Money Making Manufacturing Business While this Small Allotment Lasts. 80 Cents Today. Goes Higher in a Few Days

Electrical industrial development offers today the greatest opportunity probably ever known in the commercial field, for remunerative, attractive and safe investment. Millions of dollars will be made in the next few years by the electrical manufacturing companies of the United States. The wonderful advance recently in the invention and improvement of electrical appliances for household and other uses has been most remarkable, and the demand immediately created for these articles is sufficient to return immense fortunes for the makers.

At Dolgeville, just outside the city limits of Los Angeles, is located the new and splendidly equipped factory of the Electric Heating and Manufacturing Company, in which has been installed one of the most complete and finest machine shops in Southern California, representing an expenditure of $24,000. Here is represented the greatest achievement in electrical development, embracing the most advanced and practical ideas of the present day. Not only does the company own its splendid plant, but also a number of the most important and valuable inventions in the entire electrical field. These resources of the company are, from a practical standpoint, almost priceless.

The success of the Electric Heating and Manufacturing Company is assured. Controlling an absolute monopoly in the articles which it produces, with a trade already built up which puts it upon a self-sustaining basis, it has surmounted all the difficulties which ordinarily surround the average new enterprise. Nothing remains but to turn out the goods. Orders are now held far in excess of the company's ability to supply. And in addition to its own manufacturing resources, further profits will accrue in the shape of royalties from other companies, from whom applications have been received for the privilege of making the exclusively controlled articles.

A Few Month's Record

The Electric Heating and Manufacturing Co. was organized last July to manufacture a full line of heating and cooking utensils. Since that time a sufficient amount has been realized from the sale of stock to build and thoroughly equip a model factory at Dolgeville, just outside the city limits of Los Angeles, which is now in operation.

Shipping Goods Every Day

Thousands of dollars worth of these goods are being shipped every week—many thousands of dollars worth of unfilled orders are on hand to be made up—the factory is behind on its orders and it is to enable it to fully handle this large trade as well as to reach out for more that a small block of stock is offered at a very low price.

These Goods Are Superior

To any other on the market. They are manufactured under several patents granted to George L. Leonard, the inventor and president of this company, which insures this company a monopoly of the business.

The Electric Heating and Manufacturing Company has a capital stock of 250,000 shares of $1.00 each—every share just like every other share—no preferred stock—all stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every stockholder has the same advantage and shares just the same as every other stockholder. The management is a thoroughly conservative one, and the enterprise is being conducted on the strictest business principles. Investigation is invited as to every particular. Investigate at once and satisfy yourself that this is one of those decidedly exceptional opportunities which come about once in a lifetime.

This Is Not An Experiment

The manufacture and sale of these goods is already an accomplished fact. The goods are on sale at many Los Angeles stores and other California towns. Repeat orders are coming in rapidly. A San Francisco agency has been established and is sending in orders regularly. Three applications are in for the Oregon and Washington territory, two for Colorado, several from other States, one from Mexico and

A Large Foreign Order

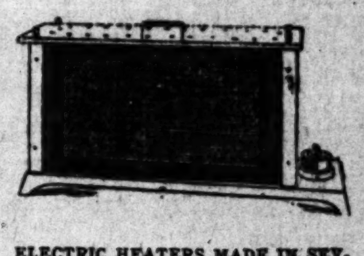
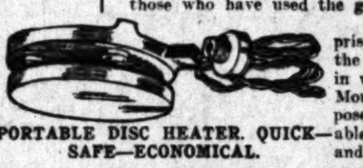
Covering the sale of $10,000 worth of these goods is now under contract, the details of which will be announced in a few days. This one contract which is protected by a bond will make the stock increase at once, as soon as the details can be announced. As an evidence of good faith this party has already sent in two orders—one has been filled and the factory is busy making up the other.

This should be enough to interest you in the success of this company.

Every possible protection is extended the stockholders. We court the fullest investigation—show you the factory—the unfilled orders—letters of inquiry—words of praise from those who have used the goods.



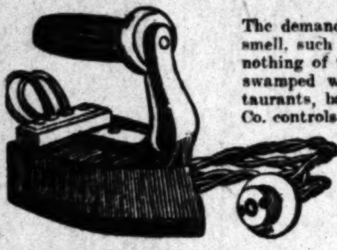
ELECTRIC HEATERS MADE IN SEVERAL SIZES—BETTER THAN COAL OR GAS.



PORTABLE DISC HEATER. QUICK—SAFE—ECONOMICAL.

Remember, this is without question the most profitable industrial enterprise in the entire commercial field today. Not only are the profits large, but the possibilities are unlimited. There are hundreds of thousands of homes in which these improved electric appliances will find their way sooner or later. More than this, these same appliances are in equal demand for business purposes—in restaurants, laundries, bakeries, confectionery factories and innumerable other trade establishments. This company is now far behind in its orders, and the goods are now sold by nearly all first-class dealers on the coast.

It Is Industrial Stock Like This That Earns Fortunes



THE ELECTRIC FLATIRON.

The demand for electrical household appliance is growing greater every day. The saving of time, labor, smoke, gas, soot and smell, such as must prevail when coal or wood are used, is a factor that makes electricity superior beyond comparison, to say nothing of the economy. The demand for the electric flatiron alone has become enormous—so great that the company is swamped with orders far beyond their capacity to meet. Not only for household use, but for commercial purposes, in restaurants, bakeries, launderies and other establishments, does electricity commend itself. The Electric Heating and Manufacturing Co. controls a number of the most important appliances yet perfected, and has a practical monopoly in them.

Buy Stock While You Can

This stock will soon be withdrawn from the open market. Only a small amount of money is needed now to purchase additional material and supply the trade with goods. Within a very little time it will be impossible to secure this stock at any such price as now offered. Opportunities to participate in industrial enterprises of such exceptional inducements—such unlimited possibilities—such lucrative profits—as offered here, are few and far between. A few dollars—a few hundreds—a few thousands—in surplus funds, can be invested in this stock to better advantage than in any other enterprise in the entire commercial field today.

Dividends From Patents

According to an estimate by the Commissioner of Patents, three-fourths of the entire manufacturing capital of this country, of upwards of $6,000,000,000, is based on patents. Several hundred patents in the United States are paying each more than $1,000,000 in dividends to their thousands of stockholders every year. The product of all the gold and silver and diamond mines in the world would not equal the annual incomes of American patentees.

LEGISLATORS PLAY PRANKS.

Territorial Lawmakers Do a Turn at Fun.

Boost Fake Bills and Receive Startling Messages.

Horse Play Incidental to the End of Session.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) March 22.—The Twenty-fourth Legislative Assembly of Arizona passed out today, in the early morning, four hours after the stroke of 12, on which its legal existence is assumed to terminate. The night had been spent in wrangling over the appropriation bills, mainly upon the point whether the Federal judges should be allowed $2000 or only $1500 each per annum, for attending to the Territorial business done by their courts. The conferees wrangled an hour or so, as well, over a difference of $10 in the emolument of the janitors of the two houses. The more liberal ideas of the Council members finally prevailed, and then the bill went to the Governor.

Despite wet weather, the galleries were jammed with townspeople and Territorial visitors, who expected, and received, a large amount of entertainment. This was furnished mainly by a kangaroo session of the "Third House," Assemblyman, Bo Whitesides of Santa Cruz in the chair. Not a member of either house escaped a keen thrust, aimed at his pet mannerisms or most cherished aspirations, but all was in the most excellent good humor. Fake bills were passed in wholesale lots, messages of startling import were received from the Governor of Sonora, Members O'Neill and Bell were convicted of having used up half of the time of the session in their speeches, Miss Sharlot M. Hall, a committee clerk, furnished a witty address, and Councilman Cleaveland sang a song, rather than submit to bodily injury.

The appropriations, though scaled $50,000, by cutting down that amount on the sums voted for improvements at the public institutions, still are immense, designed, apparently, to correspond with the large revenue expected through the increased valuation of the Territory's mines this year. The biennial maintenance budget alone is $431,000. Yet the Governor and Auditor agree in an estimate that the Territorial tax rate will hardly be lifted above 85 cents. The rate last year was 75 cents, a very material reduction from that of two years before, $1.15, a condition mainly due to the undervaluation of mines. The expense account of the Legislature itself is considered moderate, if not economical. Most of the clerks were effective, though it is charged that several were so soon demonstrated so inefficient that their jobs became sinecures from the start. A couple more were absent much of the session, but their pay went on. Still, these were minor offenses, judged by the standards established by past legislatures, and the people are very well content.

The members were prolific in their production of bills and equally industrious in passing them. The House had 183 bills, and the Council 151; about 60 per cent. greater in number than last session. The bills passed and signed number 110, believed to be a record in Arizona. It has been estimated that the session laws will make a book of 500 pages. Most important were the anti-gambling, bullion tax and prison removal measures, though there are many that restrict the liquor traffic and that otherwise incline toward a stricter construction of morality than might have been expected in the supposedly wild Southwest.

FEW VETOES.

Almost every recommendation included in Gov. Kibbey's message to the Legislature has been carried out to a greater or less degree in the laws enacted. In return, the Governor has vetoed very few bills, and those usually for legal defects. Only one veto was not sustained, that of the Cameron Trail Bill, disapproved at the instance of the Interior Department. About fifteen bills were pocketed by the Governor at the last. Most of them, the Executive has stated, were based upon good intention, but had accumulated legal flaws, mainly through excessive amendment by legislators who know not the law. Among the bills thus lost was one that imperiled the incorporation fees collected by the Territory, in order to assure the payment of a $3 fee for filing notice of the appointment of agents. The bill that permitted farmers and ranches to slaughter their own cattle and to sell the meat was considered as offering a premium on cattle "rustling." Doran's bill, creating a pioneers' home at Prescott, never got back from the Governor, and the same was true of the bill appropriating $500 for the benefit of the old San Xavier Mission, near Tucson. The same fate befell what was known as the Pacific Coast Wholesalers' Bill, designed to force the collection of mercantile accounts in Arizona. Other bills in the same drawer were those creating public weighers and county road superintendents; permitting the deposit of a cash bond, though with no provision for the care or return of the cash; the bill permitting a vote upon the change of location of county seats, designed to benefit Clifton, Graham county, and a bill that probate courts must take charge of bodies of persons upon whose deaths inquest is to be held.

Prison removal was authorized on the last day by a bill which instructed the Board of Control to select a new site on the south side of the Gila River and not over three miles distant from the town of Florence, granting an appropriation of $120,000 for the necessary buildings. It is understood that the people of Florence have offered 160 acres of good land as a site, with water from the Florence Canal for irrigation. The main trouble with the site is that it is remote from stone quarries and that an unbridged river flows between it and the nearest railroad. It is expected that the stream will be bridged, however, and that a railroad will be built through Florence not so very far off in the future. An effort led by Cleaveland of Graham to move the Reform School from Benson to Solomonville was defeated.

BILLS BY THE SCORE.

A score or more of bills were signed by the Governor on the final day. Perhaps the most important was one establishing juvenile courts. A bill making general changes in the school law was signed. Other bills made laws were: Permitting Yuma county to bond for a new courthouse; prohibiting against using the same brand on cattle in Arizona as maintained by the same owner in Mexico; encouraging by tax exemption the creation of water power; authorizing $1000 expenditure in each county for a mineral exhibit at the Territorial Fair; authorizing the teaching of commercial branches in public schools; providing for the sanitary inspection of sheep, and regulating building and loan associations. The Governor was sustained in his veto of a bill placing a heavy license tax upon traveling peddlers.

The last official nominations confirmed by the Council included:

Attorney General, E. S. Clark.

Territorial Treasurer, E. E. Kirkland.

BREWSTER'S FRUIT ECONOMY

Picking Sack.

Mr. Chas. W. Brewster of Sierra Madre, Cal., has been granted a patent for a novel and very useful fruit picking sack. It is especially adapted for oranges, lemons, pears, apples and all other fruits which require careful handling. It is not the "long poke" which is commonly used in picking, but consists of two iron bands bended in in a semi-circle to conform to the body, paralleling each other on the same horizontal plane about 6 inches apart. Below this the canvas is attached, forming a wide arch, and there is no possible chance of a "bruise." In fact, it permits the picker to handle the fruit the same as eggs, for there is no "drop." The weight is also divided on the two shoulders, and by simply unsnapping a hook the golden fruit is placed into a receptacle without the possible chance of the least mar. Large fruit growers claim this is the only picking sack that will bring perfection to the fruit-saving industry.

The sack weighs about two pounds and wherever Mr. Brewster has shown this picking sack he has displaced all others; he has no competitors. All persons who are interested in fruit handling will be given further information by addressing CHAS. W. BREWSTER, Sierra Madre, Cal. He has given years of his life to the fruit industry.

From "The Times" Care of the Body Dept., Sunday, March 10, 1907, on "Sure Cures," the editor says: "The Times does not insert in its reading columns, free or for pay, notices of things that are for sale." The editor has made an exception to this rule, when he referred to a cancer cure. Knowing personally the discoverer, having the names and addresses of over a hundred cured persons thereby, and recognizing the awful nature of this disease, and the uselessness of cutting, the editor deemed it his duty to give readers the benefit of this information. Physicians are among our 500 cures. Our prices are moderate and within the reach of all. You need not lose time while being treated.

Only $90 Per Lot $4 Down, $4 Per Month No Interest, No Taxes

FREE ROUND TRIP TICKETS from Los Angeles to Redondo and Return, On cars going every 20 minutes, every day, are given away at our office absolutely free upon application. Also Free Automobile Ride at Redondo.

level lots, 50x150 feet. Rich Soil, Pure Water, Fine Climate. All lots, including corners, one price—$90 per lot—no more, no less. You know what you have to pay—$90 per lot—no higher. At Redondo over $2,000,000 has already been expended in and substantial improvements. The beautiful "Redondo Villa Tract B" is on the Camino Real (King's Highway) boulevard connecting Redondo with Los Angeles. We have just bought this beautiful tract for $151,000, and believing in the principle that it pays to let our customers make a profit, hence we have decided on this grand profit-sharing plan. We will make a profit and all our purchasers are guaranteed a profit of 25 per cent. within one year, as per our written agreement.

MR. H. E. HUNTINGTON IS EXPENDING OVER A MILLION DOLLARS AROUND REDONDO IN SUBSTANTIAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Go down to Redondo and see for yourself. At Jefferson street and Grand avenue see the immense stacks of heavy steel rails for the double-tracking of the present two electric lines of the Los Angeles and Redondo Railway Company. The rails are arriving daily. Dirt is now flying. Better buy now. Then there's the Los Angeles-Pacific Railway Co.'s electric line to Redondo, the broad-gauging of which will soon occur. And in addition to the above three electric lines now running to Redondo is the great Santa Fe steam railroad. With four lines of transportation it would seem as if same would be sufficient, but surveyors are in the field laying out the shortest line of all to connect Los Angeles with its choicest seashore suburb—Redondo. Mr. Huntington is now building at Redondo the largest electric power house on the Pacific Coast, to cost $1,250,000, as fast as men and money can do it. Go down and look at the mammoth cement smokestack.

A suburban electric railroad is now nearing completion at Redondo. The grand three-story business block of Mr. W. M. Garland at Redondo is just finished. Follow successful men like Mr. Huntington and Mr. Garland—they know that Redondo is substantial and a safe place to invest in. Buy anywhere around Redondo and you are sure to make large profits. Three commercial wharves. A safe harbor by twenty years' practical test. Redondo is permanent and has just begun to grow. Then again, referring to successful men, we notice that the following men have bought to the north of Redondo:

Mr. Edwin Chambers, the far-sighted General Freight Agent of the Santa Fe; Mr. George H. Peck, the successful banker of San Pedro; Mr. John J. Byrne, the capable General Passenger Agent of the Santa Fe, and Dan Murphy, the millionaire oil operator of Los Angeles. A word to the wise is sufficient! BUY

Remember that your purchase is made with the distinct understanding that we will refund all money paid us, with per cent. per annum interest added, if after visiting the "Redondo Villa Tract B" it is found that we have misrepresented our proposition in the slightest particular.

Per Cent. Guaranteed Increase

For $4 down and $4 per month until paid for we sell you a "Redondo Villa Tract B" lot for $90, subject to the following guarantee from us: If at the expiration of one year from purchase this $90 lot is not worth $112.50—or 25 per cent. increase—based on the price at which our corps of salesmen will then be selling similar lots, we will refund all of the money you have paid us, with 6 per cent. interest additional. If you should die at any time before payments have been completed, we will give to your heirs a deed of the lot without further cost. If you should lose employment or be sick you will not forfeit the land, but upon such written certificate of sickness or non-employment received monthly your time for payment will be extended another month.

Our Restrictions

No saloons, no shanties, no factories. Purchasers are not compelled to build, but if they do then they must erect attractive looking houses, there being no "dollar limit." We leave it to each purchaser to build a pretty looking home, which must be neatly painted, as we known that for a moderate sum one can now build a very pretty bungalow. Lumber is cheap at Redondo, as there are three commercial wharves at Redondo, at which lumber schooners are daily discharging their cargoes.

If Russell Sage, the multi-millionaire of New York, told you that you could make a fortune in suburban real estate (especially when it costs you only $4 down and $4 per month) wouldn't you be impressed? Well, listen! That's just what Mr. Sage did say in the New York World of September 28, 1902: "Young man, buy real estate, especially acre property, in the outlying boroughs, and then work hard at your usual avocation. Your real estate purchases will make your old age comfortable."—Russell Sage.

GRANDEST SUCCESS OF THE SEASON—Everybody delighted. The golden spike of the Redondo Villa railroad was driven Jan. 6—the commencement of great transportation facilities for the Redondo Villa Tract. The roadbed has been graded, ties are on the ground, rails will soon be laid.

TITLE GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY PERFECT

The 604 acres of the Rancho Sausal Redondo, embraced in the "Redondo Villa Tract B," was purchased by us from George H. Peck, president of the Bank of San Pedro, for $151,000.

It is protected by an Unlimited Certificate of Title and all deeds to purchasers of lots in the "Redondo Villa Tract B" will be Warranty Deeds, which is an assurance that every purchaser in the "Redondo Villa Tract B" will receive an absolutely perfect deed.

BE ON HAND EARLY. COME AT ONCE

This sale of large, level lots, 50x150 feet in size, for only $90, in payments of $4 down, $4 month—no interest, no taxes—is unparalleled.

Remember that the "Redondo Villa Tract B" has the advantage of having no city taxes to pay.

BUY WHERE THE AIR IS THE PURE OZONE FROM OFF THE HEALTH-RESTORING WATERS OF THE PACIFIC.

Buy where the soil is rich and injurious frosts never prevail.

Buy around Redondo, where there are three electric lines and one steam railroad, and there will soon be another electric line.

Buy where the purest of water, from the large water works now on the tract, can be had for only 7½ cents per thousand gallons for irrigation.

Buy where you will make large profits.

Buy at the opening sale, which has been the history, invariably insures a great profit. If you can't be on hand at the office tomorrow morning, then telephone (Main 3379 or Home 5330,) telegraph or write at once, and a beautiful illustrated prospectus, map and sample contract will be mailed to you absolutely free.

EVERYTHING IS A-COMING TO MONROVIA

(The Favorite Residence Spot for Los Angeles Business Men.)

After all, the real merits of a city or a locality must be judged by the actual substantial natural growth.
True, Monrovia's improvements are more elaborate than those of any town in the State of the same size.
Monrovia has a healthier climate, a more delightful location, better drainage.
Monrovia is world-famous for its oiled streets, most of them arched with beautiful pepper trees.
There is every convenience—gas, electricity, clubs, schools, modern stores, newspapers.
But the remarkable point is the low price of property and the constantly increasing population.
Nowhere in Southern California can be found such superb residence sites for the money.
The condition is only paralleled by that of Long Beach a few years ago. Wise investors, looking ahead, realize that in a comparatively short time every desirable location in Monrovia will be occupied.
Monrovia never went ahead so rapidly as during the past two months. The big things that are planned assure a period of still greater activity between now and July 1st.
Population is what counts. Monrovia is the fastest growing suburb of Los Angeles.

THE CARLTON BUILDING, NEARING COMPLETION ON SOUTH HILL STREET.

NEW WESTLAKE CHURCH.

Architect H. M. Paterson has prepared plans for the Westlake Presbyterian Church, which is to be erected on the east side of Grand View avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets. The building will be of brick, trimmed with stone, of the design shown. The main auditorium, with lecture room on south side of it, will be built on the front end of the lot, and the chapel part of the building, now being erected, will be back of main auditorium. Provision is made in the plans for throwing together main auditorium and the auditorium of chapel, and this will give a total seating capacity of 1300. The chapel part of the building is arranged with special reference to the work of the Sunday-school, auxiliary societies, and the social features of the church work. In the basement will be a large dining-room, kitchen and pantries, retiring and toilet rooms. The heating and ventilating plant will also be established in the chapel basement. On the main floor of the chapel will be the chapel auditorium, primary department, consisting of two rooms, with children's toilet, ladies' aid room and parlor and library. On the second floor will be the open gallery, eight open class rooms and seven closed rooms. The chapel will have working accommodations for a Sunday-school of 500 members, so arranged as to give the best advantages for the work. Used for assembly purposes, the chapel will have good accommodations for an audience of 700.

The outside walls of the chapel will be plaster finished at this time, and when the main part of the building is erected these walls will be veneered with brick and stone, so that finished building will have a uniform appearance. The completed chapel will cost about $19,000. Entire building will cost about $40,000. H. M. Patterson is the architect. A temporary chapel building is being erected on the front part of the lot for use while the permanent chapel is being erected. This temporary chapel will be ready for use by the first of April and the church services will be held there the first Sunday in April. Rev. W. K. Landis, the pastor, and his people are to be congratulated and commended for the broad and strong manner in which they are doing church work in that important district of the city.

THE CARLTON, ON SOUTH HILL.

Another indication of the extension of the business center of the city is evidenced by the building of a modern brick store building at Nos. 723-725 South Hill street. Mrs. L. H. Carlton is the owner. Train and Williams are the architects. The building is a four-story and basement building with a forty-five feet frontage on Hill street, and a depth of 145 feet to an alley. The building is equipped with all the conveniences of a modern commercial retail loft building, finished inside with stained woods, hardwood floors, large passenger and freight elevators, well provided with stairs, electric lights and workrooms.

The first story front is especially designed as a modern and up-to-the-period store front. The first story is seventeen feet high and contains a gallery for the display of goods. The second, third and fourth floors are ten feet in the clear and nicely arranged for the display of goods. The basement is well lighted with prismatic lights in the front, and has a cement floor. The elevators run down to the basement. The Hill street front is an artistic design rendered in pressed brick with Chatsworth Park sand stone trimmings, carved capitals and prism glass transoms. Excellent room and facilities are provided in the rear for loading and shipping furniture.

The entire building will be occupied by the Rice-Nimock-Le Sage Company, formerly known as the Broadway Drapery and Furniture Company. There is no change in this firm except in name and this is on account of change of location. They will be found at their new location after April 1; but owing to the conditions that prevail this season it will be two weeks or more before the store is thoroughly completed.

MOVEMENTS AT WHITTIER.

One of the principal sales of ranch property made in Whittier this week was that of the Edwards acreage on South Greenleaf avenue to L. A. Pickering. The five acres included in the tract are set to full-bearing orange and lemon trees, and is improved with a modern cottage. The sale was made by Stafford & Smith. The price was $12,000.

John H. Caverly has sold his handsome residence on Painter avenue and Philadelphia street to Dr. Greene of Pasadena. The new owner already owns a fine ranch here, and now plans to remove with his family to this city. The valuation of the place is $10,000.

INCREASE SHOWN IN BUILDER'S REPORT FOR WEEK.

More Than Ninety Per Cent. Gain Made Over Last Week's Record. Month's Record Forty-two Per Cent. Less, Compared With Last Year.

More than 90 per cent. of gain is shown in the building report for the week as compared with last week's record. There were fewer permits issued this last week, however, and the big total is helped by the commencement of operations on the annex to the great Hamburger Realty and Trust Company's building at Broadway, Eighth and Hill streets. This was for $100,000 alone. Last week the total was $195,888 for 177 permits, while this week the total is $363,784 for 163 permits, showing amount of gain above. The month to date, as compared with March, 1906, however, shows a loss of more than 42 per cent. in the amount of money involved in building operations. There are 511 permits issued to date calling for an expenditure of $832,594. This is compared with 1906 for 700 permits and $1,436,837. Following is the classified report:

ALL READINGS REDUCED THIS WEEK.
I CALL YOU BY FULL NAME.

I possess the SECRET POWER of reconstructing unhappy domestic affairs and making the home happy, of gaining the one you wish in marriage, of making the ONE YOU LOVE ADMIRE AND LOVE YOU, of overcoming rivals; gives you the SECRET POWER OF INFLUENCING PEOPLE WITHOUT THEIR KNOWLEDGE OF DOING YOUR EVERY WISH, OF OVERCOMING ENEMIES AND PLACING YOU IN A PLACE OF POWER AND INFLUENCE.

ST. ELMO,
THE ACKNOWLEDGED ADEPT AND RECOGNIZED AUTHORITY OF HINDOO PHILOSOPHY AND OCCULT MYSTERIES MAKES A REMARKABLE STATEMENT: "YOUR GREATEST WISH CAN BE REALIZED—YOU WOULD NOT DESIRE A THING IF YOU WERE NOT CAPABLE OF ATTAINING IT."

I KNOW HOW TO CONTROL AND USE THAT POWER FOR YOUR SUCCESS AND MINE. IF YOU WISH TO SUCCEED IN ANY BUSINESS UNDERTAKING, CONSULT ME. I can put you on the right road. If you desire to win in love, or be reunited with one from whom some trouble or estrangement separates you, I CAN AND WILL HELP YOU TO GAIN THE DESIRE OF YOUR HEART. Are you tired of being poor and living a "from-hand-to-mouth" existence? If so, COME TO ME AND I WILL SHOW YOU A BETTER WAY. Life is not half so much of a mystery as some people would have you believe. If you had studied more in Nature's laws and learned the lessons there revealed you would know better WHY SOME PEOPLE SUCCEED AND OTHERS FAIL. There is a good reason, just the same as THERE IS A REASON why water will run down hill more easily than it will run up hill. I CAN EXPLAIN THAT REASON to you. I AM SUCCESSFUL MYSELF. I do not make this claim in the spirit of a braggart or egoist, but to enable you to appreciate what I can do for you.

MY EXTENSIVE PATRONAGE AND GREAT SUCCESS ARE THE ENVY OF ALL COMPETITORS. I AM NEVER IDLE. MY MOTTO IS—"WORK AND WIN." I HELP MY PATRONS TO SUCCEED IN ATTAINING THEIR VARIOUS AMBITIONS, THAT IS WHY I HAVE SO MANY OF THEM, AND WHY EACH ONE RECOMMENDS ME TO THEIR FRIENDS.

The All-wise Creator did not endow you with high ideas, noble inspirations, desire for happiness and return for that great love craving within your heart without at the same time placing within your reach the means of attaining these desires. If you are in trouble of any kind or not satisfied with your condition in life, come to me and I will make this clear to you. I have helped others. I CAN HELP YOU. Positively NO CHARGE if I fail to TELL YOUR NAME IN FULL, your occupation, what you called for, whom and when you will marry, anything you wish to know.

Those who wish to take advantage of this low fee must call at once.
THE NAME SHELDON
A DOUBLE GUARANTEE.

MAN OF PSYCHIC GIFT POWER IS SHELDON.

The most critical test that one who practices a profession must submit to is the crucial test of time. No business that is ever so slightly tinged with fakirism or doubt can withstand the development of time and the interchange of ideas among those who consult, investigate and pass judgment. Professor Sheldon has been in California eighteen years. He has been consulted by thousands. The best evidence of his wonderful power is the testimony of his large clientele, who come from every walk in life; secondary to this is the true and brilliant work of eighteen years of restless activity and without exciting the hostility or failing to secure the admiration of every person who has consulted him. A man should be judged by his works, and so he is. Prof. Sheldon has been tried. He has met every expectation, every advertised promised, and his reputation is established.

I hereby solemnly agree and guarantee to make no charge if I fail to call you by name in full, names of your friends, enemies or rivals. I promise to tell you whether your husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false, tell you how to gain the love of the one you most desire, even though miles away. How to succeed in business, speculation, lawsuits; how to marry the one of your choice; how to regain youth, health and vitality. Removes all evel influences, cures drink habit, locates treasures, cures all nervous diseases.

How can I have good luck?
How can I succeed in business?
How can I make my home happy?
How can I conquer my enemies?
How can I marry the one I choose?
How can I marry well?
How soon can I marry?
How can I conquer my rival?
How can I make any one love me?
How soon will my love propose?
How can I get a letter?
How can I get a good position?
How can I remove bad influences?
How can I control any one?
How make distant ones think of me?
How can I settle my quarrel?
How can I hold my husband's love?
How can I keep my wife's love?
Sheldon never asks questions.

STANDING CHALLENGE.
$5000—FOR HIS EQUAL—$5000.

SHELDON
has been a native of California for the last eighteen years and is legally ordained to one of the oldest spiritualist societies in the world.

My only reason for calling you by name and what you called for—I do this incidentally as a chain to read by.

He will tell you frankly your condition and what you may expect; if nothing can be done for you he will not take one cent of your money. Has not this honesty on the face of it?

The folowing list shows purely and simply that Sheldon has been consulted by the most popular and most noted men and women of the world, and his reading of their lives was pronounced most wonderful—Julia Marlowe, Sarah Bernhardt, Helen Gould, Hon. C. H. Harrison, President McKinley, President Harrison, President Cleveland, Senator Depew, Senator Hanna, Senator Foraker, Senator Spooner.

No man has ever been consulted in more notable affairs than he. In Europe and America he has advised thousands in various walks of life, and always to their advantage.

Sheldon stands alone, possessing a force, a power, a gift—call what you will—that none can explain, none can account for.

During the last ten months I have brought around through this wonderful power of personal control, 721 marriages, 142 separations, without any after trouble, came by the mutual consent of opposing parties; located 16 buried treasures; located 19 wills and 11 deeds; success in gaining 810 pensions; reunited 118 separated; have helped 182 investors; there have been 714 cases of such private nature I do not feel like classifying; in fact, it suffices to only say there is no heart so sad or wish too great that your hopes cannot be speedily realized by the force of this wonderful power.

He can relieve your anxiety, care, embarassment, can astonish, guide, comfort, cheer and strengthen you.

Make no change in business, do not buy or sell a rooming-house, do not buy mining stock, do not buy a lot, a farm, a ranch, or make a lease without first seeing Sheldon. He will advise you to your advantage. He asks no questions.

SUCCESS AWAITS YOU.
OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS AT YOUR DOOR.
WILL YOU ANSWER?

BEWARE
of pretenders and partially developed mediums. They copy his advertisement and in many smaler cities use his name. Please remember, Professor Sheldon can be seen only at his home office, in the Windham, 109½ S. Broadway.

My practice and professional reputation are built upon "honor," reasonable charges, fair dealings, faithful service and speedy success for my clients have won for me the largest practice in the State of California. My superior knowledge and power, give me advantages which warrant me in guaranteeing safer, surer and more rapid results than can be obtained elsewhere.

This most famous of modern oracles will tell you exactly just what you wish to know without asking a single question of you, no matter what you may be in doubt or trouble about, he will find the way to success for you. Don't do, don't go into anything until you have seen Trevelyan. He will easily find a way for you to improve your conditions and to gain your wishes.

IF YOU CONSULT TRAVELYAN, THERE IS NO DOUBT BUT WHAT YOU CONSULT THE BEST AND FOREMOST PSYCHIC ADVISER IN AMERICA.

NO NEED TO TELL HIM.
There is no need to tell Trevelyan your story. There will be no "quizzing" or asking of questions by the life reader. His talents enable him to instinctively know your wants and troubles. Without any attempt at mystification, but with unerring sight into the inner nature of things, he reveals that which you most wish to know. His advice and help on all matters, business, lawsuits, marriage, health, is invaluable. It is exact and correct—not guesswork. He gives names, dates, facts and figures and shows clearly and distinctly the road to success in business as well as in domestic and family affairs.

WILL TELL YOUR FULL NAME, AGE, BUSINESS WITHOUT A QUESTION.

Without any previous knowledge and having no natural means of knowing who you are, whence or for what you came, he tells your name and occupation. He tells you names of friends and enemies—who is true and who is false. Tells whom and when you will marry, giving names and dates, and facts and location, taking no fee in advance, accepting none unless satisfaction is given.

HE USES HIS MARVELOUS POWER TO SETTLE LOVER'S QUARRELS, REUNITES THE SEPARATED, CAUSES A SPEEDY AND HAPPY MARRIAGE WITH THE ONE OF YOUR CHOICE.

HOW TO SUCCEED IN MATTERS OF LOVE, PATENTS,
COURTSHIP, LAWSUITS, MARRIAGE, DIVORCE,
HEALTH, INVESTMENTS,
SPECULATION, CLAIMS,
MINING, CONTRACTS,
INSURANCE, COLLECTIONS.

Or any other matter of importance he will positively teach and show every one who calls on him. He could and would publish
THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS from people on every continent whom he has helped to quick success, but for the fact that he holds all his business as

STRICTLY SACRED AND CONFIDENTIAL.

Read what the press says of Trevelyan:—

"Then Trevelyan, a young Egyptian with a world of hair and serious expression began doing wonderful things in the way of mental telepathic. His tests were wonderful, really wonderful, and they proved to be the hit of the evening."—Nece (France) Journal.

At the seance fo the Society for Psychic Research, of which Princess Albrecht of Prussia is a prominent member, O. Trevelyan, the Egyptian psychic and life erader, gave what may be called the best tests of occult power, given there this year. Even the most rabid skeptics had to acknowledge that there are more things on heaven and earth than they were willing to belief."—Berlin (Germany Tageblatt.

"Trevelyan is undoubtedly a leader in his profession."—London (England) Spectator.

"Trevelyan's talent is a most remarkable one. His appearance and earnestness and more particularly his mental feats show him to be entirely a class by himself."—New York Telegraph.

YOUR READING IS ABSOLUTELY FREE IF YOU ARE NOT ASTONISHED, PLEASED AND SATISFIED—YOU TO BE THE JUDGE. CAN ANYTHING BE FAIRER THAN THAT?

PERSONAL—

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE, at 305½ S. Spring St., near Third.

THE CELEBRATED, RELIABLE PALMIST AND ASTROLOGER.

whose work is known throughout this entire land, and who has made a life study of PALMISTRY AND ASTROLOGY, has convinced hundreds of the best intellects and persons in all walks of life that HIS REMARKABLE READINGS AND PREDICTIONS FOR FUTURE EVENTS IN THEIR LIVES ARE UNPARALLELED.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S readings, which are thorough and scientific, have nothing in common whatever with the fictitious readings of illiterate, unreliable humbug palmists, astrologers, psychics, fortune tellers, and those who, THROUGH TRICK METHODS, CLAIM TO TELL YOUR NAME, etc., after you yourself have written the information—who scarcely know one line or mount from the other, and who, by their disgraceful readings, drag these useful sciences into the mire of fortune telling and fraud. Prof. Althouse is not actuated by any feeling of ill-will toward any reader who may be GENUINE (for he believes all reliable readers should be encouraged); but he will—in the future, as in the past—denounce humbug work whenever and wherever he can.

A SATISFACTORY AND ABSOLUTELY CORRECT reading can only be had from one who has thoroughly mastered the laws of these wonderful sciences through years of critical study of planetary influences on the lines of the PALM, combined with large experience, trained judgment, etc. All kinds of diseases can be accurately diagnosed. Careful advice given in domestic, love affairs, etc.; also of financial success or failure; changes, deaths, investments, vocation in life, and many other important things you should know, which cannot be mentioned here—with each palm reading there is also an astrological reading.

PROF. ALTHOUSE stands at the very head of the profession, having read—FROM LIFE—more celebrated people than any other reader. He does not deceive the public in this respect. HIS READINGS, TOO, MUST IN NO WISE BE CLASSED WITH THOSE OF ANY OTHER READER NOW OPERATING IN THIS PART OF THE COUNTRY, AND HIS SKILLED WORK HAS NO COMPARISON WITH THEIRS WHATSOEVER.

E. H. SOTHERN says—"I find your readings coincide with Cheiro's," and "I am greatly interested in Palmistry." Frederick Warde says "Your reading of my hands was most satisfactory. Your knowledge and skill in palmistry is REMARKABLE and gave me a much more exalted idea of that science than I have hitherto entertained." Louis James, actor, says, "I wish to say that your reading of my hand was ENTIRELY SATISFACTORY." Paul Gilmore, actor, says, "I want to express to you my keen appreciation of your reading; it is by far the most scientific I have ever had." Juliet Crosby, actress, says, "Prof. Althouse has given me a most helpful, complete and satisfactory reading." Prof. Althouse also read Admiral Schley, Senator Clark, ex.-Gov. Pardee, Gen. Chaffee, Baron Rothschild, Joaquin Miller, Ysaye, Sousa, Edison, Capt. Hobson, Creatore, Huntington, Susan B. Anthony, Nance O'Neil, Caruso, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Lillian Nordica, Constantino, Alice Neilson, Calve, Julia Marlowe, Modjeska, Adaberto, Sembrich, Gadski, Jefferson, Nat Goodwin, Maxine Elliott, James O'Neil, Lillian Russell, Wm. H. Crane, Dustin Farnum, and hundreds of others. These are a few names of PUBLIC persons and are merely given to indicate the class of people being read, as well as the very best people of Los Angeles, WITH WHOM ALL HIS BUSINESS IS STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL. Intelligent, high-class patronage solicited—those capable of appreciating the superior qualities of a fine reader.

ASTROLOGY AND THE HOROSCOPE.

PROF. ALTHOUSE has also given many years of critical study to, and is an experienced practitioner in, the science of MODERN ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The HOROSCOPE IS DECIDEDLY A GUIDE IN LIFE, showing remarkable things when properly cast—from the position of the planets at your birth; in fact, TELLS EVERYTHING ABOUT ONE'S SELF WORTH KNOWING, being in truth one of the best investments the world offers. YOUR HOROSCOPE is also a key to the character of others, and in this respect can be of the utmost use to you. SCIENTIFIC PREDICTIONS, embracing all question of life, for the present, immediate future and events up to the close of life—made by these sciences—with most complete Primary and Secondary Directions (arcs, etc.)—through the trained judgment of Prof. Althouse—will stagger the senses. Beware, however, of the incompetent and unreliable reader.

Astrology underlies all manifestation of the universe. No branch of study in the school or college curriculum is as useful as MODERN Astrology. And yet, in the face of these facts, imagine the audacity of certain contemptuous, would-be critics endeavoring to denounce these sciences which have stood the test of thousands of years!!!

In every single instance, where these would-be critics, press writers, etc., have been questioned by Prof. Althouse, he has found them absolutely ignorant of even the alphabet of, or even of the names or the authors of the standard works of these sciences, and who had never given one single hour of study to them. Is there anything more ridiculous or even dishonest conceivable? Certainly not.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in hand reading and casting of horoscopes has brought him a large and successful practice. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances.

Daily and evenings; Sunday, 11 to 2.

STUDIO PARLORS, 305½ S. Spring st. 24

PERSONAL—

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at

322 S. SPRING ST. (Suite 17.)

by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn, in his investigations along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper, can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HAS HIMSELF WRITTEN THAT INFORMATION.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in everyday life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health, marriage and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill-luck into wide paths of success and prosperity can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Daily 9 to 6; Sundays 9 to 1.

Evenings by appointment.

Crifield, St. David, Ariz., reports 94 STRONG chicks from 98 eggs, and all doing nicely with a "Sure Hatch" brooder. We have many other reports EQUALLY AS GOOD from the 1907 "Sure Hatch." The "Sure Hatch" brooders will raise from 85 to 100 per cent. of all strong chicks put into them. NO cold corners to produce crowding, but an EVEN TEMPERATURE OVER THE ENTIRE BROODER, with PLENTY FRESH AIR to produce strong healthy chicks. Don't buy a brooder until you have seen the "Sure Hatch." YOU WANT THE BROODER THAT WILL RAISE THE MOST CHICKS. See the "Sure Hatch" incubators and brooders in operation at 840 S. Main street. FLATIRON BLDG.

LOOK UP old ads. and remember what we told you about the stocks. It is not too late to buy stocks yet, and you will make money on them. The strike of the miners was a bad setback for some of the stocks, but you remember what we have said in regard to the GOLDFIELD BURLINGTON M. CO.

If the strike had not occurred the BURLINGTON M. CO. would have been among the rising ones. The president stated that he thought that he would list the stock on the Los Angeles Exchange, when the strike was settled.
Will do better on some of these.

GOLDFIELD.
As was predicted a week ago, the labor troubles are gradually being straightened out, and the camp is settling down into the normal condition with brighter prospects than ever before, the mines will soon be employing more men and work is being pushed, as only work can be, in a thriving mining camp where millions upon millions of dollars in gold are hid in mother earth, where a turn of the shovel or a strike of the pick, may mean a fortune of millions to the lucky prospector, can any labor be more fascinating than gold mining, with the goal seemingly just within reach, and it is found oftener than even the most sanguine dreamer dares to hope for. Statistics show that if the same care is used in mining as in any successful mercantile business, the failures are comparatively few, and in such a district as Goldfield, which is without a doubt, the richest gold mining camp in the world, if money can be had for proper development work, there can be no doubt but that the outcome will satisfy the most pessimistic investor. The Third Chance Mining claim of 30 acres, is so situated that development work must cut the same ore vein that is being mined by some of its rich neighbors, the men behind the Third Chance are what is commonly known as hustlers, and are among Goldfield's leading citizens and practical mining men, they have deposited with me a limited amount of development stock at 20 cents a share, that will be worth a deal more money 90 days from now. Investigate.

FOR SALE—
Don't buy lots when you can buy stock that will be worth three times its present quotation from a company that has 6000 lots that they are selling every day at a good profit; we are offering for sale a small portion of our stock at a very low figure, 25c per share; this is a sacrifice, but the time has come when we have got to build a hotel of about 100 rooms, and extend our pier some 300 feet, as well as some street improvements. When this work is completed the stock will be worth not less than $1 per share; I know that this is the best offer you get in the stock market, and I will be pleased to explain it to you at any time convenient to you; this company is not in debt a one dollar. ## MINING—
And Assaying

GUARANTEED DIVIDENDS.
GUARANTEED SPECULATIVE VALUES. THAT'S ATTRACTIVE. READ ON.

This is not to tell you what we propose to do with a prospect, it is about a MINE. We have a group of twelve claims in Nevada in a district that has produced over $160,000,000, according to tax records.

We have developed one claim and have over 1000 feet of tunnels and over 1300 feet of work on the ledge in drifts, winzes, and upraises.

We have over 50,000 tons of ore "in sight" ready to mine, and 2000 tons on a dump, all of which assays on a thorough sampling of over $35 per ton.

We have good ore on each of the other 11 claims, proved by outcroppings and shafts. We have spent our own money developing our mine and have on the property a building for a milling plant and a building for a boarding-house for miners; part of the machinery for a mill, plenty of water piped to the property, own our own water rights and plenty of wood.

We are capitalized for only $300,000, par value $1 per share, and have over 75,000 shares in the treasury. Based on assured profits, this stock ought to be worth $10 per share on first returns from the smelter.

We have never before advertised this stock for sale, but in order to work this property on a large scale and get into the big profits at once, we are offering shares of the treasury stock at 50 cents per share until we have $15,000 subscribed and a part of this amount is already subscribed.

Only prompt attention to this opportunity will enable you to get any of this stock. There is no apparent reason why we will not be able to pay large dividends in 90 days after the mill begins operation.

We have ordered the most approved type of mill and it will be installed at an early date. Our company, the property and its management will bear the strictest investigation and we shall be pleased to furnish bank and personal references and detailed information to any one interested.

There are very few mining or industrial stocks that compare with ours in real value and we urge you to call and investigate.

MINING—

LEAD—LEAD—LEAD.

One of the best and safest investments in California today is that offered by the DAGGETT LEAD MINING COMPANY, having offices at 204-206 Wilcox Bldg.

These people have been saying nothing, but sawing wood.

They have not found it necessary to advertise the stock owing to the limited amount placed on the market, this being quickly taken by their friends.

This is no wildcat or get-rich-quick scheme, but a plain business proposition with business men at the head of it.

They have been working on their claims day and night for eighteen months, and have been rewarded by tapping a large body of lead ore assaying from 30 to 60 per cent.

They now have less than 100 ft. of tunnel work to do, when they will be in a position to take out the large body of rich lead, silver and copper ore in sight.

These claims are not for sale, and only just enough stock to complete the tunnel, at a fraction of what it will be worth within sixty days.

This is a safe investment and will stand the closest investigation.

If you are interested and want a limited amount of this stock at a price that will make you good money, call and see us.

THE PRESIDENT, WHAT SHALL HE DO?.

Serve Another Term, Enter the Senate, or Dig the Panama Canal.

Many Expressions of Opinion from Californians and People the Country Over in Newspaper Referendum as to the Future of Roosevelt—Large Vote for Reelection to the White House—Canal Next in Favor.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT
President of the United States.

WHAT should Theodore Roosevelt do at the end of his present term as President?

This question is today one of the most interesting on which a citizen of this country may reflect, and it is one which The Times, at the suggestion of the Philadelphia North American, has propounded to its readers with a result interesting in the variety of answers.

Evidently both Democrats and Republicans believe that Mr. Roosevelt is capable of doing almost anything which can redound to the welfare of the United States. Only one among all the many letters received by The Times expressed decided opposition to his doing anything for the public. This one read, "Back to the woods." But the sender carefully refrained from signing his name.

Besides The Times and the North American, other papers are asking their readers the same question: "What is to become of ex-President Roosevelt?" Among these papers are the New York Globe, Boston Post, Portland Me. Express, Providence Journal, Pittsburgh Dispatch, Washington Times, St. Paul Dispatch, Topeka Capital, Omaha News, Denver Post, Memphis News-Scimitar, Seattle Post Intelligencer. The summaries of views from all of these centers of population are given to the readers of The Times as showing the national trend of opinion as to what Roosevelt ought to do.

From all parts of Southern California letters have poured into The Times office addressed in the "Roosevelt Editor," in which the gamut is played upon the highest positions to which a distinguished man could aspire. But far in the lead are those who believe that President Roosevelt should succeed himself.

The overwhelming expression along this line shows the deep impression which the President has made in the hearts of his countrymen. Even those who say otherwise, explain in most cases that it is because they do not believe that Mr. Roosevelt will under any circumstances accept a renomination. Second in popularity is the suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt take charge of and finish the construction of the Panama Canal.

But there are many who believe that in no place could he make his strong personality felt to such great advantage to the country as in the United States Senate. The idea that he be elected Senator at large for life by the people of the country is expressed by some thinkers and it is an idea which certainly seems to deserve careful consideration.

As Senator at large, representing the people of the country, Mr. Roosevelt would be a power for righteousness in the upper house of Congress, and would tend to curb the power of the corporation representatives. At the same time his aggressiveness and experience would find a field for action as congenial to him as beneficial to the country.

Besides renomination for the Presidency, head of the Canal Commission and United States Senator, it is suggested that Mr. Roosevelt would make a good secretary of a board of public works of national scope, a good Secretary of State, a Secretary of War, commander-in-chief of the army and navy, might take to the lecture platform, control transportation or do half a dozen other things, even to being the messiah of a new cult of medicine.

Following are some scores of the letters received by The Times in which the writers express their belief in what Theodore Roosevelt should do at the end of his term:

Must Be Boss.

SANTA BARBARA, March 21.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fé Railroad, who is spending the winter at his home in this city, when asked if he approved of President Roosevelt accepting the nomination for another term, said he did not approve of pressing the President for another term against his wishes. Mr. Ripley stated:

"I believe the public should comply with the wishes of the President if he does not care to run for the office again. He has proven an efficient public servant and is a good man and would be of inestimable value as a member of the Panama Canal Commission if it would be dignified for him to accept a position of that kind after his retirement. But I am sure he would not accept that commission unless he could be boss. He would not make a good subordinate. If his preference is to retire from public life, he should be permitted to do so. I have no objections to the President for a third term if he is the choice of the people, but I do not believe in a third term for any executive of the United States of America. He has not made a bad President."

He Can Beat Bryan.

RIVERSIDE, March 21.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Emphatically I believe Theodore Roosevelt should be made President to succeed himself. First, for the reason that no other man in the Republican party can beat Bryan. Second, for the reason that he has the Panama Canal in hand. He knows more about it and is better calculated to push it to completion than any other man we have among us. Furthermore, he should be elected to complete his work in the regulation and control of the railroads of the country.

E. A. CHASE.

Really His Second.

William D. Stephens, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, favors the renomination of Theodore Roosevelt. He says: "President Roosevelt should be reëlected. That would not be a third term, for he has been nominated for President but once. His next term would really be his second."

Let Railroads Alone.

T. C. Peck, assistant general passenger agent of the Salt Lake road, said: "I don't care particularly what he does, if he will only leave the railroads alone."

Should Take No Chance.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I think the President should accept another term unless he feels that he has bitten off more than he can swallow. He has started much good work which he should take no chance of some one else not going ahead with and making a failure of. His work, to my way of thinking, is just beginning.

GEORGE W. SETTLE.

Leader for Peace.

ORANGE, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Roosevelt should be the leader in the International Peace Conference at The Hague, as his insight and judgment of right is the highest ever attained by man. The whole world has faith in him. The railroad controversy, the Panama Canal, our new possessions, the irrigation problem; where shall we put Roosevelt that he can oversee and help control these great undertakings? Is there any other place except the Presidency?

MRS. L. AINSWORTH.

He Knew Roosevelt.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times.] At the rate of speed we are going it would be experimental, reckless and dangerous to change the pilot of our ship of state. We all know our Theodore Roosevelt, his convincing personality, integrity, forethought and consideration shown throughout his public career. I knew him at the age of 23 and all prophesied then that he was a young man with a great future.

PROF. J. H. VON KEITH.

Would Vote for Him.

SOLDIERS' HOME, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am a strong believer in Republican principles and a great admirer of our President and hope I may be spared to cast my vote in 1908 for that true and loyal man, Theodore Roosevelt, once more. We need just such an executive and I am anxious to help put him in the chair at Washington again.

E. O. KINCAID.

Desires to Do Things.

NORWALK, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I believe that in no other position can President Roosevelt serve the country better or attain greater fame than as President of the Panama Canal Commission, for this he seems to be especially fitted by his desire to do things. I am unalterably opposed to a third term.

B. F. WILLIAMS.

No Side-Track.

SESPE, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] What should Roosevelt do at the end of his term? Serve four years more. No side track.

MATT ATMORE.
Late Co. K, Second Cavalry Cal. Vol.

Finish His Work.

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] My opinion is that Roosevelt should serve one more term as President. The American people want him to finish his work, which he can best do as President. He has the confidence of the people.

A. H. MORLEY.

Corporation Department.

SAN DIEGO, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I propose that if Mr. Roosevelt will not accept another election as President that Congress organize a corporation department, amend the Constitution making all corporations with more than $50,000 assets subject to it and elect Roosevelt as appellate judge and head of the department to hear all corporation cases.

E. T. STEEN.

Work Enough.

LOS ALAMITOS, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The people want Roosevelt to be President another term, but if he will not, here is work enough: Get him to head a commission of representative men untainted by Wall street to rid the country of all gambling in stocks and the necessaries of life. Put stock exchanges in the same category as the banished Louisiana and Honduras lotteries. Make it impossible for a Rogers or a Harriman to dominate the country in defiance of the government because of their gambling gains. This done let him attack other national evils, until the millennium comes.

"RUSTICUS."

No Ex-President.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In answer to your question, What is to become of ex-President Roosevelt? I would say that in 1908 there should be no ex-President to consider.

DR. ALBERT E. FINN.

Honorary Life Senator.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In the present case of Presidential succession the country's prosperity is so much interested that the question what to do with our ex-Presidents ought to be postponed until after the country has given its decisive demand for another term of the incumbent.

Then an honorary life position should be created in the United States Senate for such ex-Presidents as are willing and able to serve their country further.

To put Theodore Roosevelt in full charge of the Panama Canal with exclusion of any other political usefulness, would simply remove the foremost leader and exponent of the peoples' rights and privileges from the political horizon.

G. ZOLL.

Needed in Senate.

SANTA MONICA, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Believing that

DOMINION OF THE FORESTER.

Gifford Pinchot's Empire Is Vastly Increased.

Value of Big Reserves to the Whole People.

Advantages to Accrue from Preserving Rainfall.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Gifford Pinchot is monarch of a dominion larger than the German empire in Europe, larger than France exclusive of her colonies, five times as large as the Empire State of New York and six times as large as Ohio. When President Roosevelt on March 1 added 17,000,000 acres to this government's forest reservation he brought the total up to 142,000,000 acres. He knew as everybody else knew who has kept in touch with western sentiment that his action would be bitterly resented in certain States of the mountain group. There is an irreconcilable conflict between those who would save the nation's forests and those who would destroy them. The fight is now more acute than the contest between the cattle baron and the homesteader. The forest reservations have come to stay despite unyielding opposition. The only problem remaining is one of administration. In the opinion of the Forester the acreage is now larger than it will ever be again. The homesteader is free to enter the forest reserves at any time and under the law he is permitted to cut all the timber necessary for establishing his home. Gradually the acreage will be slightly reduced but the total will not be materially decreased.

GIFFORD PINCHOT,
chief of the Forest Reserves

Even with the latest reservation by executive order the United States has set apart only about one-fifth as much as Russia, whose government forests aggregate 643,000,000 acres. But compared to other countries the United States has a commanding lead.

The expenditures per acre in the United States to care for its forests as compared with expenditures by other countries is ridiculously low. All told, less than one thousand rangers guard or patrol this vast domain. The cost to the government per acre for the maintenance of the forestry bureau is only one and three-fifths cents. In France, Prussia and Switzland it exceeds one dollar an acre.

The area of forests in private lands is many times greater and more valuable than that owned by the government. The theory of the government while preserving its own forests is to assist in preserving the forests under private ownership. The government through the forestry bureau cooperates with private forest owners with the end in view of obtaining for all the the people the highest value for the nation's timber supply.

THE BENEFIT.

One would have been led to believe from some of the speeches made by Western Senators when the agricultural appropriation bill was under discussion and especially when the section relating to the expenditure for the forestry bureau was reached that when the government sets aside a forest reserve its use for the public was at an end. On the contrary the public derives its greatest profit from the reservations. Under the old policy the timber land was taken by individuals and passed into the control of companies and corporations. The most valuable portions were cut out and marketed. That which remained was burned up and the land became an unproductive waste. It should be thoroughly understood that the vast acreage which has been set apart for forest reserves does not include land desirable for agriculture. Throughout the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast regions there are vast areas of high and rocky land sometimes densely timbered but unfit for agriculture. If unreserved these lands would never be taken by homesteaders. The most careful examination is made to determine whether the lands could be utilized for agriculture before they are set apart. But even if some homesteader should desire them they can be taken even after reserved by the government for forestry purposes.

Nor is the vast domain which has been taken by the government any the less available for grazing purposes because it is under government direction. Where good crops of grass or herbage is produced the forestry bureau establishes grazing districts and permits cattle or sheepmen to graze the land for a small fee, which goes into the Treasury. For the timber land under the rule the government received at most $2.50 an acre, while its actual market value has been from $5 to $100 an acre, and its economic value under forestry is many times the highest figure. When the unreserved public lands is made into a forest reserve, the timber is still available. It is neither withdrawn from the market nor left to rot from age nor to get wiped out by fire. Anybody can buy it; a thousand feet at a time or a million feet. But the timber cannot be cut at the will of the man who buys it. The timber must be wisely cut under directions of the forester. The reserve must be so used that it will continue to produce timber for all time to come. The timber is harvested so that future crops are assured. The lands are kept productive and the county, State and nation get the benefit.

It is estimated that in five years the forestry bureau will be self-sustaining and a few years thereafter will turn into the United States Treasury a handsome revenue. The new administration policy means that where private owners receive $50 or $100 an acre for their timber lands adjacent to the public domain, the government will get an equal sum for its timber and will continue to own it for the benefit of future generations.

Yet another advantage from forest reservations is the method of utilizing the rains. The controversies between sheepmen and cattle men and the constant bickerings between big cattle men and little ones are avoided. Cattle men everywhere will tell you that the great ranges are being rapidly destroyed. There is no part of the great West where the grass compares with former years. On a forest reserve the range is still accessible under the terms and conditions imposed by the forester. The big cattle man cannot run over the little fellow on the government reserve, nor is the little chap permitted to harass the baron. The range is regulated, too, and kept at its highest productive capacity. It is precisely the same with the range as with the timber. A forest reserve makes sure of a better and wiser use and a permanent prosperity.

INLAND WATERWAYS.

In view of the recent creation of an Inland Waterways Commission and the marvelous promises of the Reclamation Service, the good which will be accomplished through a protection of the sources of water supply is of as great consequence to the nation as the conservation of the timber supply itself. So long as the vast timber areas were still part of the unreserved public domain they were left to the ravages of fire, to destructive lumbering and grazing. Gradually these vast areas were losing their sponge-like properties by which they became great reservoirs for holding and regulating the water's flow. The rains rushed quickly down the slopes of the denuded mountains, causing floods at one season and assuring protracted droughts in others.

In a statement made before the Senate Agricultural Committee it was asserted that the saving by the increase in the life of fence posts, telegraph and telephone poles and railroad ties alone due to the work of the forest service, was worth every year more than the total appropriation asked for the forest service. The saving of forest destruction by fire is worth infinitely more than the total appropriation.

When an application is made for a sale of timber on a forest reservation, an investigation is made by the forest officers. First, there is a careful study on the ground to see whether the proposed cutting will imperil the conservation of the water supply and threaten the safety of the forest. If it is safe to cut, a contract is prepared, showing just how the cutting is to be done. Advertisements are made and the timber is sold to the highest bidder. Then the timber to be cut is marked and the cutting is watched to see that no timber is wasted by high stumps and that the tops are disposed of to prevent fires.

JESSE L. CARMICHAEL.

ALCOHOL IN COMBINATION.

The combination of denatured alcohol with acetylene gas is said to produce superior results in the use of alcohol as a producer of motive power. Alcohol alone is slow in vaporizing and explosion, and as a fuel is valuable in comparatively slow engines only. Tests of more than 400 revolutions a minute have proven unsatisfactory. Acetylene gas goes to the other extreme, exploding quickly, and demonstrating too much power for motor uses. The combination of the two offered a neutralizing effect.

ELECTRICITY FOR DEATH VALLEY.

An enormous scheme for furnishing light and power for Death Valley in California and in and about Bullfrog, in Nevada, has been revealed by the filing of claims for water rights. Power plants are to be established at various points on Kings River, an immense amount of force being obtainable from the numerous tributaries. The mines of Southeastern California and Nevada have long lacked water for developing purposes. A calculation of the amount of water and force shows the magnitude of the scheme. The project will cost a fortune, as the country to be worked through is most inaccessible.

Keep Him in Office, General Cry.

under no possible conditions Theodor Roosevelt will accept another nomination for the Presidency, I regard him as the logical successor of Senator Platt in the upper house of Congress. In no other position could his influence be more salutary and potential than as representative of New York in the United States Senate.

M. D. GAGE.

Keep Him There.

RIVERSIDE, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Had we not better put this question to ourselves: "How will it be with us after the expiration of President Roosevelt's term?" We shall rise above the senseless childish thought of no third term; and now, having our best man in the office, keep him there. EDWARD COPLEY.

Stand by His Word.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] No third term. He said so and if he doesn't stand by his word he ought to be defeated. The Panama Canal needs him, as that is the most important thing in the country just now. G. LOFGREN.

Run for President.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] "What shall President Roosevelt do at the end of his term?" Run for President again.

M. A. ROGERS.

That "Square Deal."

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am heartily in favor of keeping Theodore Roosevelt where he is, just as long as he handles affairs with the good judgment he has used and the disposition he has manifested to give all a square deal. We can't afford to lose him.

JAMES H. WOODS.

Secretary of War.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The best place to put Roosevelt is in the Cabinet as Secretary of War. His practical war experience, knowledge of human nature, tireless energy and working common sense fit him for the job of putting the fighting "arms" of the country in a condition to dictate our own terms to Japan.

FREDERIC F. JOHNSON.

A Greater Work.

SAN DIEGO, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] "What should Roosevelt do at the end of his term?" By all odds push the Panama Canal to completion. This is the greatest undertaking of the age. With Roosevelt in the lead he would be doing even a greater work than being President of the United States.

E. S. DUNCAN.

Work of Generation.

REDLANDS, March 20.—[To the Editor of the Times:] It seems to me that President Roosevelt's work is plainly before him and before the American people—the great work at Panama—the work that is to place its peculiar mark upon this generation is the building of the Panama Canal. While a tremendous task, President Roosevelt has shown decided interest and enthusiasm and is eminently fitted as no other man for that great work.

Expansion of Enterprises.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Create Roosevelt president of a general commission for the expansion of government and State enterprises and the suppressing of unlawful organizations of capital and labor. A. N. LAWRENCE.

Swapping Presidents.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] For President Roosevelt to step down and out at the end of his present term will be swapping Presidents (not horses) in the middle of the stream. His great ability will be needed for another term at least. I hope he will run again.

T. B. WILCOX.

Two Big Sticks.

SANTA MONICA, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Let the cry go on: "We need Roosevelt with two big sticks." Members of both houses serve fifteen to twenty years, why not a President—is it the wish of the people?

W. P. GRIFFITH.

Well and Speedily.

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Under the powerful supervision of Theodore Roosevelt the canal of Panama would certainly be finished well and speedily.

COL. G. R. DECLAIRMONT.

Elected Only Once.

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Roosevelt should serve another termz as President because he was elected only once, and a better man is not to be found in the United States for that office.

E. H. MEUSCHKE.

Serve in Senate.

ELSINORE, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] My wish is that Theodore Roosevelt be in the Senate at the end of his present term. At the end of four years, let him again be elected President of the United States and finish the work he has so nobly begun.

THOMAS E. ELLIS, M.D

Control Transportation.

RIVERSIDE, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] President Roosevelt should be the next President, if within the bounds of possibility. Otherwise, he should head a commission for the construction of the Panama Canal and control the entire transportation interests of the country.

H. M. STREETER.

Finish the Business.

REDLANDS, March 19:—[To the Editor of The Times:] My judgment is that Roosevelt should be a candidate for reëlection so that he can finish the business with the trusts, including the labor trust, which I consider the greatest curse in our country.

A. M. GARDNER.

Guiding and Pushing.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Should our President not be reëlected, I believe he will best serve his country by managing the affairs of the Panama Canal. With such a man guiding and pushing affairs, the canal would be quickly and honestly an accomplished fact, redounding to the glory of our American nation, and of inestimable commercial value to the world.

JOHN MORRISON.

Universal Confidence.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times.] Although there is no one in whom there is such universal confidence to take Mr. Roosevelt's place, the prejudice against a third-term is too general, I believe, to admit of his serving again. There is a strong sentiment, however, in favor of his accepting a third term, and on account of his integrity and ability I would like very much to see him reëlected, notwithstanding precedents. Excluding this possibility, I believe he should accept entire charge of the greatest undertaking in the western world, and retain control of the canal until it is completed.

HERBERT THURSTON.

Secretary of State.

SAN BERNARDINO, March 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I would suggest the place of Secretary of State for President Roosevelt after his present term expires. By no means retire such a courageous, tactful statesman to private life, as this great nation can ill afford such a sacrifice. If, after he serves one term as Secretary of State and the people offer him another term of the Presidency I see no cause why he should not accept such an offer, as that would not be a third-term precedent. J. L. MARTIN.

Senator at Large.

CLAREMONT, March 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] By all means nominate and make him the next President. It cannot be that the greatest American since Lincoln would ignore the unmistakable appeal that would go up from every State for such a consummation.

But if this cannot be, then give him the next most important position, whether it be United States Senator at large, member of the Cabinet or chief of the construction of the Panama Canal.

W. J. GARLOCK.

Kidnap Him.

WHITTIER, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Roosevelt should not waste his abilities in the schools. Though he might squelch fake and immoral professors. He should not dig the Panama Canal. Though he would carry it to completion if God spared him. He should not become Senator. Though the "big stick" is needed to rattle the collars of the trust's slaves. The country cannot spare him till his work is done. He was not twice elected President. If he refuses, he should be kidnaped and put in the chair. A. E. LYNCH.

Permit Re-election.

TROPICO, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Most emphatically the President should permit the people to reëlect him. Failing of this, he would do well to devote the first three years to lecturing throughout the country. Every man and woman of sane mind in America desires not only to see, but to hear, Mr. Roosevelt talk on the great questions of the hour. J. C. GARMON, M.D.

Do What He Pleases.

SIERRA MADRE, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In reply to the question "What should Theodore Roosevelt do at the end of term?" let me suggest that he do what he pleases, provided he does not interfere with the like freedom of any other person. J. M. SEE.

An Ideal Senator.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] President Roosevelt is, beyond doubt, the most sterling public man the country has had for many a day. In my mind he would make an ideal Senator, and that position alone gives opportunity for the development of all there is in him, and he would prove a lump of leaven to that august body that would be of inestimable value to this country.

WILLIAM QUALLS.

Champion of People.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In no other manner could Roosevelt serve his country to such advantage as to continue as the champion of the people for another term. The legislation he has been so active in securing seems just fairly launched. Theodore Roosevelt's experience at the head of the nation so far has been, as it were, an apprenticeship. His best usefulness is before him. Why should he refuse to serve? Elect him again and raise his salary. H. G. A.

No Other Man.

ONTARIO, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I would be glad if Roosevelt would accept a third term. No other man can fill his place there, but if he will not accept, then the Panama Canal would be a success if he would take the task.

WILLIAM D. WAITE.

Change His Mind.

CLAREMONT, March 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I would say that as the office of President of the United States offers greater opportunities for "doing things" than any other, and as Theodore Roosevelt, in energy, ability, convictions and experience, is better equipped for that work than any other man, therefore he should be reëlected President in 1908. When he declared that he would not accept another term, he doubtless meant what he said, but every human being ought to change his mind when he finds that he was wrong.

EDWIN SQUIRE.

By Unanimous Vote.

SAN GABRIEL, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] It is my opinion that Mr. Roosevelt would accept a nomination for the Presidency at the hands of the National Republican Convention, if it was tendered him by a practically unanimous vote. The American people have absolute confidence in his ability, and he stands for the special good of the common people. Lastly, I am heartily in favor of him because I believe he can overcome the foolish prejudice that exists against a third term. J. W. ROE.

Just Draft Him.

TROPICO, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Draft President Roosevelt for President next term—that is, unanimously elect him on the part of the Republican party. He is needed to carry to completion the great reforms thus far developed in civic righteousness. No man understands the great principles of the "square deal" better than he. M. M. ESHELMAN.

Strike Out the "Ex."

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] What vocation would the American people deem best fitted for Theodore Roosevelt, ex-President? Just strike out the "ex" before the word President and you have it. Talk about third term! It will not be a third term. Roosevelt only finished out the McKinley term and the McKinley policy. This is an exception to all precedents, and an exception to all Presidents. The times demand the finishing up of the job. Don't hurry. Don't worry. Just put your ear to the ground and listen to that rumble.

C. E. JOSLIN.

Conserve Interests.

LONG BEACH, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In my opinion our President can better conserve and subserve the interests of the people of the United States in the position he now occupies than in any other to which the said people might deem it wise to assign him. The field for the exercise of his active and fertile mind should not be narrowed

J. T. SMITH. M.D.

Veteran's Opinion.

SOLDIERS' HOME, March 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] "What should Theodore Roosevelt do at the end of his term?" Succeed himself for another term as President. He is able to meet all eventualities. He is fearless. He is the best equipped man among our statesmen. He is at work for America and the American people. He is not wasting time playing politics. We should work for him and ourselves, and "not swap horses in the middle of the stream."

GEORGE W. FISHER.

Patriotic Democrat.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] As a Democrat I believe it is Mr. Roosevelt's patriotic duty at the expiration of his present term to accept the office for another term. Patriotic citizens of every political faith will certainly indorse his efforts to regulate interstate commerce, to prevent extortion and discrimination by the railroads, to curb and control the trusts, to complete the Panama Canal, to bring to justice all dishonest public servants, to bring about universal peace, to give the American people a high standard of moral conduct, and to give all the people a "square deal." R. M. LUSK.

Country Trusts Him.

SAN BERNARDINO, March 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Theodore Roosevelt should be elected President of the United States for the next term, because he is the right man for the place, and the country needs him in its business, and trusts him as it does no other man; failing such election he should be given the management of constructing the Panama Canal, for he does things, while graft and politics are down and out.

W. G. WRIGHT.

Twelve Years More.

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Theodore Roosevelt must not be permitted to leave the White House until he permanently has concluded the rehabilitation of national economics, which he made the tenor of his internal policy, if it takes four years or twelve years more. He has not been merely a Chief Executive; nor is he altogether free to say when to quit. Let him finish!

A. E. BOEHNKE.

Give Him a Free Hand.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The United States has many men who will make an acceptable President. At the expiration of his present term President Roosevelt should be placed at the head of the Isthmian Canal Commission and given a free hand in the management of it, for the reason that the people want the canal built, and he possesses the integrity of character, the ability and the untiring energy necessary to accomplish it. J. H. BOWLER.

Sit in the Game.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] President Roosevelt should be reëlected. It seems absolutely necessary that he carry out the policies and undertakings which he has inaugurated. In electing him for another term the people would only establish the precedent that the accidental elevation of the Vice-President to the Presidency for a part of a term would not prevent his election by the people for two full terms. If not the Presidency, let him build the canal.

CHARLES S. WALTON.

Loves a Fighter.

LONG BEACH, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Roosevelt for next President. "All the world loves a fighter." G. R. BROWNING, Four years a soldier under Grant.

One Place for Him.

PASADENA, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] You refer to Theodore Roosevelt as "the foremost American of this generation." I believe four-fifths of the American people, and most men composing the world powers agree with you. This being the case, there is but one place for him—President of this great republic. His services were never more needed than today. The people want him, and will have him, if they only insist, notwithstanding his declaration not to succeed himself. The man who cannot be convinced of error under the prevailing circumstances is no patriot. Such a man Theodore Roosevelt is not. Roosevelt for President in 1908. No other.

C. T. JAMES,
A Democrat.

His Compelling Power.

LONG BEACH, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] What place next for the President? The Presidency. Mr. Roosevelt has had experience, has great mentality; a compelling power over men; physical and moral courage; powers of endurance; the good of the people at heart; unswerving purpose to do right and to deny equity to none. No other is so well equipped as he to correct existing evils.

W. H. WILLIAMS.

Courage of Convictions.

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] What should Theodore Roosevelt do at the end of his term? He should succeed himself as President for a third term. Because he has the courage of his convictions, something which very few of our public men have..

A. P. ST. GEORGE.

Care for Himself.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The responsibility of taking care of Theodore Roosevelt will never devolve upon any one. He is amply able to take care of himself. I would prefer to see him elected to another term as President. Second, at the head of the Panama Canal Commission, the most important enterprise of the age. Third, in the United States Senate, where the ability, backbone, integrity and aggressiveness of such a man is greatly needed.

M. M. BECK.

Secretary Public Works.

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Allow me to suggest that the most appropriate career for President Roosevelt would be Secretary of Public Works. Let Congress create the position, place Theodore Roosevelt in the office with the requisite authority and he will do the rest. With him in charge the Panama Canal would be completed on time and without a national scandal.

B. F. COMBS.

Keep Him Where He Is.

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] By all means let us keep Roosevelt where he is for another term, we cannot find another man just like him that could take up his unfinished work and get the results that he can. The country needs him another term, which would be his second term by election. The next best place for him would be in entire charge of the Panama Canal work.

A. RAYMER.

The Intrepid Roosevelt.

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The future public services of President Roosevelt is a simple proposition. Having been before the National Republican Convention but one as Presidential candidate he should receive a unanimous renomination, and at the close of another Presidential term give him the work of completing the Panama Canal. This action would be to the interest of the entire nation, for a change of administration in the zenith of our prosperity would doubtless inaugurate an industrial and financial crisis. The work of regulating trusts, railroads and monopolies must be prosecuted by the intrepid Roosevelt. D. C. BURSON.

Dangerous to Be Crooked.

POMONA, March 21.—[To the Editor of The Times:] There is but one place for President Roosevelt. I feel sure that the people—whose will should be law—will demand that Mr. Roosevelt shall serve another term as President. That will enable him to complete much of the great work already under way. He has the courage of his convictions and has not feared to strike at the largest organizations of capital that the world has ever known. Unearthing grafting and general crookedness has been given an impetus by Mr. Roosevelt that will grow until, in this land of ours, it will be dangerous to be crooked and a grafter.

A. W. RICHARDS.

National Calamity.

FALLBROOK, March 21.—[To the Editor of The Times:] When Theodore Roosevelt chooses to become ex-President the needs of our nation and the voice of the American people will probably call him to the hardest position there is to fill, for the reason that he is an honest worker. The words graft, failure or fatigue are not in his vocabulary, consequently in time the Panama Canal may fall to his sturdy shoulders. But do the American people realize that our honored President is only serving his first term of his own seeking? And if he refuses the nomination in 1908 it must mean a national calamity.

M. A. CROMWELL.

Make His Own Place.

HOLLYWOOD, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times.] It is belittling to our President to talk of making a place for him. If he is worthy of nothing more than a life of "inocuous desuetude," let it be so. A man like Theodore Roosevelt will enjoy continuing to make his mark, and reflect credit on himself and country doing so. Accepting such a "place" would be an admission of decay.

F. P. SPENCER.

Thorns for Trusts.

LANKERSHIM, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times.] I think that T. Roosevelt should be President for another four years, to get the Panama Canal pushed along and to make it a little hotter for the bad trusts and railroads; they are on nettles, give them the thorns. Roosevelt is doing more for the people than any other President for a long time.

LEMUEL D. FRANKLIN, G.A.R.

Popular With All.

RIVERSIDE, March 18.—[To the Editor of The Times.] A few reasons why we should have Roosevelt for another term is that he has proved to be honest beyond question. He has not finished his job, especially the Panama Canal. He is the only one now that can beat Bryan. There is not a man that knows and understands all classes of people and is as popular with the same (except railroad magnates) as he is.

M. M. RANDALL.

Commander-in-Chief.

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—[To the Editor of The Times.] President Roosevelt will succeed himself for another term because it is in harmony with the general fitness of things, and a large majority of liberty-loving American citizens demand it. The country was never in a more prosperous condition and if allowed four more years to pursue the course so wisely mapped out his administration will go down in history as one of the very best. After that term of office will have expired then he should be made commander-in-chief of the army and navy with a permanent place in each succeeding Cabinet for life.

W. H. SEWARD WELCH,
Veteran Civil War.

In Useful Place.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times.] If Theodore Roosevelt retires from the Presidency in March, 1909, the one vocation that would seem highly appropriate would be at the head of that marvelous undertaking which has been peculiarly identified with Theodore Roosevelt—the Panama Canal. Here President Roosevelt would be in an eminently useful place, where his energetic personality would find an ample field.

H. G. LEONARD.

Earned Vacation.

EAST PASADENA, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] What place next for Theodore Roosevelt? Your invitation of a discussion of such a question is refreshing in these sorry times when yellow journals disgust the decent element of American citizenship by inviting correspondence of opinions on the guilt or innocence of a murderer who is being tried for his life. "What place next for our President?" First, a place deep in the hearts of his countrymen. Secondly, and inasmuch as I believe him sincere in his declaration to not again be a candidate, a place in retirement.

FRED C. SCHIFFMAN.

God May Abdicate.

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—[To the Editor of The Times.] "What is to become of ex-President Roosevelt?" is your query. Inasmuch as some time must elapse before his term expires, I, for one, give it up, which is probably what you will do before the next national convention convenes. I am at a loss to know whether the gentleman will want to do anything after he gets through playing horse in the White House. If he does, I have no doubt he will find plenty to do at many jobs. There is a possibility that before that time, King Edward, Emperor William or even God may abdicate, and this will open up a chance for him.

M. J. COCHRAN.

P. S.—If there is any premium goes with this you can send it by freight to Ballarat, Cal.

Serve God and Country.

SAN BERNARDINO, March 21.—[To the Editor of The Times.] How President Roosevelt, when retired from his present office, can best serve God and his country, is best known to himself, as he knows his own tendencies and ambitions better than any other, and success travels swiftest in the light of natural inclination and ambition. But, I freely say that, for his country's sake, Roosevelt should continue up the pathway of the statesman and diplomat, either as United States Senator, Secretary of State, Ambassador to the Court of St. James, preferably former, where he can do infinite public good.

HENRY M. WILLIS,
State Senator.

Non-Partisan Committee.

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Make Theodore Roosevelt president of a non-partisan committee of ten clean, brainy lovers of justice, effect an organization, independent of government, to last for ten years.

Raise $10,000,000 by public subscription for use of the organization. This sum can be collected in six months if Roosevelt will promise to take the helm.

Make salary of members so large that they will be independent for life.

Object of organization: Suggest legislation to the lawmaking bodies of the country. Ferret out lawbreakers of every kind and push them clear into prison. Use the word "thief" instead of "grafter."

Theodore Roosevelt is the only man the public would trust such power to.

"HALT DESIRED."

People Want Him.

SAN BERNARDINO, March 21.—[To the Editor of The Times.] Reëlect him President, of course, not because he wants it, but because the people want him. Certainly he would make a good Senator or canal commissioner, but he can do more where he is. Why make him a lieutenant when we need him for captain? Of course there are other Republicans available for the Presidency, but their availability is measured by their likeness to Roosevelt. Why accept a copy when we can have the original?

F. F. OSTER.

Superior Judge San Bernardino County.

National Board of Works.

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Theodore Roosevelt, as ex-President, might, to the great advantage of the United States, be chairman and executive of a national board of public works, which might have charge of forest preservation, irrigation, systematic improvement of rivers and harbors, construction of Panama and other canals, and a system of fine national roadways, the latter work to be reserved for a coming time of industrial depression. We may soon add to the above "labors of Hercules."

C. H. DUBOIS.

Back to White House.

PASADENA, March 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In my opinion, President Roosevelt should be sent back to the White House for another term after his present term expires. He has only been elected to the Presidency one term and he is certainly the man for the place. It seems to me that the business interests, as well as others, will suffer greatly should a change be made.

A. T. DORMAN.

"I'm Well

Because of Liquozone" Is Now Said the World Over

All the world over there are millions of people who know the power of Liquozone. They know it from actual experience—from the results they have felt—from the good it brought to them.

Five years ago people said that such results were impossible. Now, if one says that, his own neighbors will answer, "I am well because of Liquozone." Please don't say to yourself that these things can't be done, when millions know better. Try the product and see, and we'll pay the cost of your test.

What Liquozone Is

Liquozone is a tonic-germicide, the virtues of which are derived solely from oxide gases. No alcohol, no narcotic, nothing but gas enters into it. The process of making requires large apparatus, and consumes 14 days' time. The object is to so combine the gases with a liquid as to carry their virtues into the system.

The result is a germicide so certain that we publish with every bottle an offer of $1000 for a disease germ that Liquozone cannot kill. It destroys them because germs are of vegetable origin. But to the body Liquozone is exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying.

That is its main distinction. Common germicides are poisons when taken internally. They are impossible, for they destroy the tissues as well as the germs. That is why medicine proves so helpless in dealing with germ diseases. Liquozone, on the contrary, acts as a remarkable tonic.

We Paid $100,000

For the rights of Liquozone, after thousands of tests had been made with it, after its power had been demonstrated for more than two years in the most difficult germ diseases. Conditions which had resisted medicine for years yielded at once to it, and diseases considered incurable were cured.

That was five years ago. Since then millions of people in every part of the world have shared in the benefits of this invention. Nearly every hamlet, every neighborhood, has living examples of its power. Now we ask you to let it do for you what it did for them.

Germ Diseases

Most of our sickness has, in late years, been traced to germ attacks. Some germs—as in skin troubles—directly attack the tissues. Some create toxins, causing such troubles as Rheumatism, Blood Poison, Kidney Disease and nerve weakness. Some destroy vital organs, as in Consumption. Some—like the germs of Catarrh—create inflammation; some cause indigestion. In one of these ways, nearly every serious ailment is a germ result.

Mines and Mining.

SOUTHERN ARIZONA.

More Miners Needed in the Helvetia District—Good Ore Struck in Greene's Patagonia Mines.

TUCSON (Ariz.) March 22.—A meeting of the directors of the Helvetia Copper Company is being held at the property of the company, twenty-three miles south of Tucson. It is stated that the directors visited the camp to determine upon a new policy to be pursued. The 200-ton smelter, which the company owns and has been operating with its own ore, will be shut down next week and all energies will be devoted to a more rapid development of the property. Boston and Minneapolis people own the Helvetia, and their deepest works are down 900 feet.

George B. Kaufman, who is one of the chief representatives of the Guggenheims, is here getting operations started on the Tip Top property, which the smelter people recently purchased. He stated that operations are being delayed owing to a shortage of miners, and that the Tip Top is in need of 150 men in addition to its present force of fifty miners.

Three tunnels are being run on the Omega property in the Helvetia district. One tunnel is on the 450-foot level, while another is on the 200-foot level.

The South San Xavier Copper Compan is doing much development work and is shipping some ore, which nets over $500 per car.

Ore shipments from the Gould mine in the Tucson mountains will commence shortly. The company has a contract to supply the Globe smelters with silicious ore necessary to be added in smelting the high grade Globe ores.

A good strike has been made on the Three R properties, which Col. W. C. Greene recently acquired in the Patagonia district. The mines have shown much low-grade ore, but the latest strike reveals 30 to 40 per cent. copper ore with gold and silver values.

The Welden Copper Company, operating in the Quijotea district, has a force of sixty miners at work. The company was troubled by an inrush of water at the 300-foot level and was compelled to suspend operations for a time. Big pumps have now been installed, which keep the mine free from water. The company is operating a fifty-stamp mill with ore which yields fair gold values.

It is reported that the Calumet and Arizona people purchased the Mitchell group of claims in the little Rincons. They are said to have given a bond of $50,000 for the properties.

S. J. Entrikin, general manager of the Republic mine at Johnson Camp, has announced that as soon as the new engine is set up a double compartment shaft will be sunk to the 900-foot level. Stations will be put every hundred feet in the shaft. The Republic company gives preference to married miners and offers to build cottages for its married employés.

The Arizona & Michigan Development Company, operating at Johnson Camp, has let a contract for $15,000 for the sinking of a double-compartment shaft to the 800-foot level.

IN SONORA.

The rapid extension of the Cananea, Yaqui River & Pacific Railroad out of Guaymas by the Southern Pacific is stimulating mining in Sonora to an unusual degree. This road will furnish a cheap means of transporting ore, and will open up a rich copper region.

The Pacific Smelting & Refining Company is building a 1000-ton smelter at Fundicion, which is the present terminus of the Alamos extension of the Cananea, Yaqui River & Pacific. A narrow-guage railroad is to be built to connect the smelter with the mines of the Douglas Copper Company at El Cobre in the Bayoreca region, and of the Sonora Consolidated Mines Company, which owns the Trigo mines in the Quiriego region.

Dr. John R. Magruder, general manager of the U. S. A. Mines Syndicate, states that a carload of machinery is en route to the mines at Constitucion and Italia in the Tortuga region. When the machinery is installed the company will operate four mills. The Yeso property has been taken over by this company and a cyanide plant will be built there.

MINING STATISTICS.

State Bureau Seeking Information from All Owners of Mines and Quarries in California.

The State Mining Bureau has sent to all known producers of mineral substances, statistical blanks which it is desired that they shall fill out and return to the bureau as soon as possible, giving the amount and value of the substance produced for the calendar year 1906.

The annual statistical tables of mineral production by the State Mining Bureau have long been recognized as being the most complete and correct of those published in any State in the Union. They are useful to the general public, but even more so to the producers of mineral substances, who may thus learn exactly the condition of their special branch each year, the total amount produced and its value. If each producer will assist the State Mineralogist by promptly replying to inquiries, much labor and time may be saved. The matter is really one of mutual benefit, the object of the Mining Bureau being to promote the mining industry of the State in every way. One of the ways is to keep a correct account of what the miners are doing and how much wealth they are adding to the world each year. Without some showing of this kind, from official sources, the press and general public will have only a vague idea of what the miners of the State are accomplishing. If the miners themselves will furnish the details of their own operations, the State Mining Bureau will do the work of preparing and publishing the matter in a form convenient for reference, which will show to any one at a glance the progress and condition yearly of the different branches of the mining industry of California. Blanks will be supplied to all producers who send their names to the bureau.

GOLDFIELD.

Figures Show Industrial Progress of the Great Nevada Camp—Nine New Strikes of Rich Ore.

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) March 20.—Nine properties made up last week's shipment of 518 tons of high-grade ore from Goldfield. The Gold Bar was a new beginner and in a short time it will be joined in the primer class by the Higginson lease on the Jumbo Extension, the Morton-Beesley lease on Combination Fraction and the Robinson-Vickers lease on the Little Florence. Shippers and their several tonnage contributions were: Frances Mohawk, 34; Combination, 40; Gold Bar 40; Curtis-Mohawk, 42; Ish-Sheets, 46; Jumbo, 62; MacKenzie, 65; Loftus-Davis, 72; and Red Top, 117.

No fewer than nine new rich strikes were made the week past. As fast as the shafts attain substantial depth they are almost invariably being rewarded by disclosures of high-grade ore. The nine recent discoveries were made by the Robinson-Vickers and Pollard leases on the Little Florence, the Mohawk Consolidated lease on the Mohawk, the Poleverde and Higginson leases on the Jumbo Extension, the Codd lease on the St. Ives, the Kavanaugh and Gold Crown leases on the Silver Pick and the Morton-Beesley lease on the Combination Fraction.

ORE THIEVES CONVICTED.

Two men have been convicted in Fallon of having received stolen ore from the Mohawk. It is Nevada's first successful attempt to bring to justice men who have been positively known to have robbed mines.

An authority worthy of notice states that between Denver and Philadelphia there have recently been sold 12,000 tickets for Goldfield and other Nevada points. Every train into camp is loaded to the vestibules. There are many who predict that by the dawning of 1908 the population of Goldfield will reach 100,000.

The recent purchase of ground on Main street at $1000 per foot shows the faith of Goldfielders in Goldfield.

Pipe and other materials are on the road for the gas plant to be doing business before fall. The plant will cost $100,000, and will be able to take care of 50,000 population from the start.

ORE SHIPMENTS.

Ore shipments for each week of the current year to date are as follows:

|---|---|
| Week ending January 5 | 2,220 tons |
| Week ending January 12 | 1,789 tons |
| Week ending January 19 | 1,920 tons |
| Week ending January 26 | 1,619 tons |
| Week ending February 2 | 1,280 tons |
| Week ending February 9 | 1,112 tons |
| Week ending February 16 | 1,016 tons |
| Week ending February 23 | 1,672 tons |
| Week ending March 2 | 1,288 tons |
| Week ending March 9 | 518 tons |
| Total, ten weeks | 14,463 tons |
| Average, ten weeks | 1,446 tons |

Tailings.

A record in breaking and hoisting ore from a mine was recently established in Bisbee, Ariz. The Spray shaft hoisted 1187 cars of ore in seven hours. During one-half hour 103 cars were hoisted, and in the following fifteen minutes fifty-three more were elevated, making a total of 156 cars in forty-five minutes. The average for the seven hours was 169 4-7 cars per hour.

Some 7000 tons of Japanese coal have been ordered for consumption in Tacoma and Seattle, as the shortage of domestic fuel has become aggravating. Last year the total imports of Japanese coal into the United States amounted to 11,996 tons, valued at $48,364, which compared with 41,956 tons, $102,027, in 1905, and 45,429 tons, $98,658, in 1904. The imports of Australian coal at San Francisco were 191,758 tons, valued at $372,539, in 1906; 184,426 tons, $372,313, in 1905, and 235,069 tons, $571,963, in 1904. These figures suggest that the domestic production on the Pacific Coast is not equal to the demand, and also prove that foreign fuel is considerably cheaper than Pennsylvania bituminous coal at San Francisco.

The entire plant of the Twin Buttes copper mines near Tucson has been closed down for a short time. Fuel oil is short and an inventory of all property is in progress, following the assumption of the management by William McDermott, who lately resigned the mine superintendency of the United Verde at Jerome. There were two small strikes at the camp last week, both over race questions. Several shift bosses objected to the employment of Mexican miners, and several Americans and Mexicans struck because of the employment of a Japanese in the kitchen of the miners' boarding-house.

FORTUNE IN AN IDEA.

A Kansas Medicine Manufacturer Became Rich by Ingenious Method.

In the town of Abilene, Kan., is a man who has made a fortune in sixteen years selling medicines of his own make to the farmers of Kansas. Sixteen years ago this man paid his way through Ann Arbor College by peddling medicines from a satchel. After he had graduated he went to Abilene and began peddling his medicines there. He has yet an old memorandum book in which he kept his accounts in those days. On the first page is a record of that first day's work. The sales amounted to $3.20, of which he collected 80 cents in cash. Many days thereafter he did no better, and the first year was one of only moderate success.

Last month this man gave a house warming in his new home in Abilene, said to be the finest dwelling house between Topeka and Denver. It cost $40,000. It is the show place of the town, and is equipped with every modern convenience, says the Kansas City Star. It has a house system of telephones, a ballroom in the third story and a bowling alley in the basement. He owns a block of buildings, the largest brick business house in the town, a large laboratory, and a theater that cost him $12,000. He has planned to build a large hotel.

All of this fortune was made by appealing to one little weakness in human nature. Upon every bottle of medicine sold by the doctor is a horizontal ridge blown in the glass one-fourth of the way down from the top of the bottle. Upon the side of the bottle is a notice that the medicine may be used as far down as the ridge without pay, and the user may return the bottle. But if the medicine is used below the ridge, the whole bottle must be paid for.

When Dr. Seelye hit upon that idea he discovered the secret of his fortune. It turned out that human nature was such that one-fourth of a bottle either lasts until there is improvement, or hopes are entertained that more may be beneficial, and it is seldom that a farmer returns a bottle that has been partly used.

Dr. Seelye has fifty two-horse wagons that drive all over Middle Kansas, Oklahoma and Northern Texas. The agents call at every farmhouse and attempt to leave a package of the medicines. It contains several bottles of different remedies for different ailments. Each bottle has the ridge blown in it. The package is left on credit, and the agent collects for what has been used when he drives that way three months, six months, or a year after. The agent tells the farmer:

"You can use down to this mark, and if it has done you no good, you may return the bottle when I come this way again and it will cost you nothing."

As a result of this plan the wagon venders make sales that would be impossible under other circumstances. Some of these agents make $100 each month for their own profits, and, of course, return a liberal profit to the maker of the medicine. Several medicine companies have tried to imitate Dr. Seelye, but have failed.

Where the Old Clothes Go to.

A correspondent writing from Kabul says: "I used to wonder once upon a time where all the old clothes got to. It required a very brief acquaintance with Kabul to assure myself that, at any rate, some portion of our ancient garments drifts there.

"I had only to look around at my own guard of soldiers to see that. One man wore the jacket of a Midland Railway porter; another a policeman's great-coat; a third a very grand garment (in his estimation) which bore the mystic inscription, 'N.E.R., Ticket Collector.' Some of these derelicts were in good condition; others had passed through many hands—and many lands."

MEXICO.

NEW ROUTE IS THE SADDLE.

Tehuantepec Line Opening Great Opportunities.

South American Trade for Mexico and the States.

Great Field Well Worthy of Our Cultivation.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

MEXICO, March 15.—Success infolds the conditions of success. Mexico, by opening the great Tehuantepec route, was successful in giving to the commerce of the world a natural saddle, the easiest and most practical on the continent. An astonishing traffic, requiring eight heavy freight trains daily, is growing up already, and thus the signet of success is set on this Mexican venture. This transcontinental avenue for trade means much not merely to Mexico, but to the United States. It means much also to the western coast of South America. That region, isolated from traffic, but now open to the touch of trade via the Tehuantepec route, has a fair-sized population and is a field worth cultivating by the trade-seeking Americans. Oh, for a revival of the days when the merchant marine of America whitened every sea with its canvas wings, making it necessary for a Paul Jones to fight for it on the blue Mediterranean! It seems a pity that Americans wishing to go from New York to Rio Janeiro or Buenos Ayres have to go via Liverpool, and wishing to reach Santiago, Chili, have to circumvent Cape Horn or go via San Francisco. The successful opening of the Mexican route will now enable the passenger and freight traffic of the United States to reach the ports on the Pacific Slope of South America by a route far shorter than via Cape Horn or San Francisco. That Pacific coast line of South America includes the republics of Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Chile, to which should be added Bolivia. Bolivia has no coast line, but its trade reaches the Pacific through Chile and Peru. The population of these five states is about 11,000,000, mostly living along the coast.

The foreign trade of that immense coast region is growing but slowly, for hitherto it has been so isolated from the rest of the world, but the creation of a short route across the Mexican isthmus will now obviate that difficulty and remove the obstacle from the path of progress broadening out before Western America. The foreign trade of that region has now reached the sum, approximately, of $400,000,000 Mexican silver. The most important of the group of five Republics is Chile, whose material development places her in the forefront of Latin American states. Her population does not increase like that of Argentine, it is true, for the latter has an influx of immigration second only to the United States among the nations of the world. But Chile has assimilating qualities far superior to those of the Argentine; the foreign imports into Chile are about 50 pesos per capita, while in the Argentine the quota is 35. Chile is a mineral region essentially, and 90 per cent. of her exports are mineral. Its principal consumer is England, and Germany comes second, with the United States trailing third in the race for commercial ascendancy. American manufacturers and consumers will now be able, via Tehuantepec, to reach that privileged region and command its trade, as she did in Mexico after the construction of the short railroad lines in 1883.

Peru is another important trade center. Its exports increased from $16,000,000 in 1897 to $42,000,000 in 1905, or 160 per cent. of an increase. England is still the main provider of Peru, supplying it with her excellent machinery, iron, coal, etc. But the commercial invasion of the ancient empire of the Incas has been commenced in real earnest by Americans; during the past few years they have invested $30,000,000 gold in Peru.

The little republic of Colombia is important not merely because of its strategic relationship to the republic of Panama, formerly part of its own heart, but the country is preëminently resourceful in the line of agriculture. Its fair valleys, like those of southern Mexico, abound in coffee, tobacco and sugar cane. But agriculture and mining are both dormant in Colombia. Miser-like, she seems to cling to her treasures. But one reason for the non-development of the country is the lack of railroad transportation; there is only one short line, and the wagon roads are so poor that the natural products cannot find an exit; oranges and other tropical fruits fall to the ground and rot away as apples often do in the great Northwest of the United States, not only for lack of labor, but cheap and rapid transportation. But Mexico had just such conditions facing her twenty-five years ago, prior to the building of the trunk lines to and from the United States; but the foreign trade of Mexico has jumped from $15,000,000 per annum at that time to $200,000,000 now. Colombia receives her manufactured products in large part from England, but her imports are less than those carried into either Peru or Chile. However, Colombia rivals Mexico in most excellent coffee and tobacco, which reach the New York market via Hamburg.

The annual foreign trade of the republic of Ecuador now reaches $40,000,000, of which $16,000,000 relates to imports, thus showing a respectable balance of trade. The United States is acquiring foothold in Ecuador; last year 32 per cent. of the imports were from the United States, the volume of American good. destined for Ecuador having increased 135 per cent. during the past twelve years.

Bearing in mind the enormous but almost untouched natural resources of Bolivia, the future of that country when once wakened by American genius will be phenomenal. Her mineral riches are fairly agleam with promise. England and Germany at present monopolize the supply of machinery for her mines. The trade of Bolivia is forced to seek exit through the ports of Chile and Peru, whence it goes to Europe and comes therefrom via the Straits of Magellan and Cape Horn, while not a little goes overland to the Argentine, thus reaching Atlantic ports.

This is an impressionist touch of conditions along the Pacific coast of South America. The United States has now the opportunity to enter that field and reënact the miracles brought about in Mexico by the construction of the Mexican Central and the Mexican National railways, whereby not less than $700,000,000 of American money is now under investment in this wonderful country. In the best sense of the term, America for the Americans means that interdependently the nations on the American continent shall supply each other what they need without necessary recourse to the old continent.

South of the Rio Grande are found all the fruits and grains incidental to the tropics, and really sufficient to supply the American market, could cheap and rapid transportation be once established. North of the Rio Grande are found not only wheat enough to feed the world, to say nothing of the rest of the American continent, but every grain and fruit incidental to the temperate zone, while the genius of the American for the manufacture of machinery is proverbial and really historical. Mexico, too, has much, very much, to gain by the trade possibilities at Tehuantepec. Her 14,000 miles of railroads and 60,000 miles of telegraph have brought her remotest corners into immediate touch not only with her own capital city of Mexico, but with the great waiting world outside, and she can now lean further south and give a helping hand to her struggling sisters, the less-favored members of the great Latin-American family.

President D. P. Doak of the Pan-American Railroad, who returned shortly since from a thorough inspection of the road, is now in San Francisco. His line is being built southward at the rate of one kilometer per day. General Manager J. M. Neeland tells me he expects the construction of the road will be completed to Guatemala by the first of next September.

POSIBILIDADES DE RUTA NUEVA.

TRAFICO INTERNACIONAL PARA LA LINEA TEHUANTEPEC.

Region Costena Incluye las Republicas de Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia y Chile—Obstaculos para el Comercio Estan Removidos Ahora. Oportunidades para Americanos.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

MEXICO, Marzo 15 de 1907.—Envuelve el éxito todos sus propias condiciones. Por la apertura de la ruta de Tehuantepec, evidenció México al mundo entero un éxito magnifico. Ha proporcionado al comercio internacional la salida mas practica y mas comoda en el continente Americano. El trafico ya requiere ocho trenes grandes de carga cada dia, y asi se patentiza el éxito tan merecido de la empresa Mexicana. Significa mucho a México la ruta Tehuantepecana pero tambien a los Estados Unidos, y a toda la costa occidental de la America del Sur. Aislada del trafico internacional, aquella region ya esta abriendo sus puertas al mundo, merced al espiritu emprendedor del gobierno Mexicano, traducido por esa empresa grandiosa. Tiene aquella region una poblacion considerable y es un campo muy digno de ser cultivado por los Americanos. Hubo dia en que las alas blancas de buques mercantes Americanos ondeaban en todas las mares, y hasta fué necesario la intervencion del Almirante Paul Jones en su defensa sobre el espejo azul del Mediteraneo. Lastima es que ahora quien desee ir de Nueva York al puerto del Rio o a Buenos Aires tiene que viajar primero a Liverpool. El que ahora desea ir al querto de Santiago, Chile, se obliga pasar por el Cabo de Hornos o por San Francisco.

La ruta abierta sobre el Istmo de Tehuantepec ya significa que tanto el trafico de fletes como de pasajeros podra alcanzar los puertos del Pacifico de la America Latina por un conducto mas facil y mas corto que antes. Aquella region costeña incluye las Republicas de Colombia, Ecuador, Peru y Chile, añadiéndose Bolivia. No posee Bolivia puerto alguno, sino que tiene salida al Pacifico por puertos del Peru y de Chile. La poblacion de las cinco republicas aproxima a 13,000,000, que viven en mayor parte sobre la misma costa. Crece el comercio exterior de la region paulatinamento, pues hasta ahora ha sido aislado del resto del mundo. Sin embargo, el establecimiento de la nueva ruta Mexicana al través del istmo, allanara las dificultades removiendo los obstaculos que impeden el progreso a aquellas entidades Latino-Americanas. El comercio exterior de aquella region aproxima la suma, en pesos Mexicanos, de $400,000,000 al año. La mas importante entidad en el grupo de las cinco republicas es Chile, cuyo progreso material le ha puesto en la vanguardia de los estados Latino-Americanos. No aumenta su poblacion como Argentina, porque la ultima crece solo por la inmigracion. Pero asimila Chile mejor que la Argentina; las importaciones del extranjero a Chile tienen la proporcion de cincuenta pesos por cada habitante, mientras que en Argentina la proporcion es de trienta y cinco. Es un pais esencialmente minero, y noventa por ciento de las exportaciones Chilenas son de minerales. Favorece los mercados de Inglaterra y de Alemania, ocupando los Estados Unidos el tercer lugar. Ya, por conducto de la via Tehuantepecana los fabricantes y consumidores Americanos podran entrar plenamente aquella region, dominando su comercio, como sucedio en Mexico después de la construccion en 1883 de los ferrocarriles a la frontera comun.

Peru tambien es un centro comercial de importancia. Aumentaronse su exportaciones de $16,000,000 en 1897 a $42,000,000 en 1905, o sea un aumento de 160 per cent. Todavia Inglaterra suple al Peru de preferencia, con su excelente maquinaria, hierro, carbon, tejidos, etc. Ya comenso, sin embargo, la ocupacion comercial del Peru de parte de los Americanos, los cuales habiendo invertido en los ultimos años la respetable cantidad de $30,000,000 en oro.

La republiquita de Colombia es importante por causa de su relacion a la del Panama, antes porcion de su propio corazon, pero es un pais esencialmente agricolo. Sus hermosos valles, como las de este pais, abundan en café, tabaco y caña de azucar. Miéntras tanto la agricultura como la mineria yacen latentes en Colombia. Como un avaro, atesora sus bienes. Hay otra razon por aquel abandono, y es la faula de transportacion ferrocarrilera. Existe solamente una linea férrea nada mas, y los caminos carreteros son tan miserables que los productos del pais no encuentran salida. Las naranjas y otras frutas tropicales caen al suelo a podrirse como sucede en la parte norte de los Estados Unidos con los perones, faltando brazos para la cosecha y trenes para su transportacion. Tuvo México las mismas condiciones hace veinte y cinco años, antes del establecimiento de la comunicacion ferrocarrilera con los Estados Unidos. Pero desde entonces el comercio exterior de Mexico ha aumentado de $15,000,000 al año a $200,000,000. Recibe Colombia sus productos manufacturados de Inglaterra, mas en menor escala que Chile y Peru. El cafeé Colombiano que llega a los mercados Americanos por via de Hamburgo, rivaliza buenamente al de México.

El comercio exterior de la Republica del Ecuador alcanza ya la suma de $40,000,000 al año, con $16,000,000 relacionados a las importaciones; de manera que goza de un balance comercial a su favor. Ya se insinuan en Ecuador los Estados Unidos. En el año proximo pasado treinta y dos por ciento de las importaciones eran procedentes de la América del Norte, habiéndose aumentado la representacion americana 135 per cent. durante los doce ultimos años. Dando cuenta de los recursos fabulosos de Bolivia, su futuro bajo el impulso americano sera fenomenal. Prometen mucho sus minas. The Doctor and Specialist
Drs. Shores have been asked time and again why it is that their treatment cures so many people whom other first-class physicians are unable to cure. They have also been asked if they would advise people to give up their family doctors and employ specialists exclusively.
To the first question Drs. Shores would say that the reason that their treatment cures is not because Drs. Shores are the only good physicians in California, for there are hundreds of eminent doctors here. It is not because they possess superhuman powers, for Drs. Shores never attempt any such shallow deceit as that.

It Is Because
They have specially studied the diseases they treat and nothing else. They pay special attention to diagnosis, have every facility and a world of experience to enable them to properly diagnose a case and after diagnosis is complete they begin to REMOVE THE CAUSE of the disease and make the organs do their proper work, instead of simply giving drugs to do the work of nature in an artificial way.

The Mistake of Doctors
Many doctors, for instance, use pepsin, bismuth, etc., in stomach troubles to ARTIFICIALLY DIGEST THE FOOD, and expect the patient to take medicine forever. But Drs. Shores cure the diseased stomach and make it do its own work. That is why they cure stomach troubles.
The old way is like giving a lame man a crutch instead of curing his lameness. It is a temporary "help," but sick people want Cures, and Drs. Shores try to give them cures that stay cured.

All Diseases
Drs. Shores not only cure Catarrh, but they cure Nervous Diseases, Kidney Diseases, Bladder Troubles, Heart Diseases, Diseases of the Stomach and Bowels, Piles, Fistula and Rectal Diseases, Female Complaints, Diseases of Women and Children, Rickets, Spinal Troubles, Skin Diseases, Deafness, Asthma, Bronchial and Lung Troubles, Ovarian Diseases, Sciatica, Rheumatism, Hay Fever, Neuralgia, Hysteria, Ear Diseases, Goitre (or Big Neck,) La Grippe, Blood Diseases, Scrofula and all forms of Nervous and Chronic Diseases that are curable.
DRS. SHORES TAKE NO INCURABLE CASES under the promise of a cure. Diseases that have baffled the skill of other doctors and specialists and stubbornly refuse to yield to the ordinary methods of treatment in most cases are quickly subdued and mastered by these noted doctors. Prices and terms within reach of all. Everybody who has a symptom of disease should call and consult these noted specialists free. CONSULTATION AND EXAMINATION FREE, whether you take treatment or not for any disease.

The Making of Perfumes.

[illegible] ALL COME DIRECTLY FROM FLOWERS—SOME ARE MADE [illegible] DELICATE COMBINATIONS—OUR CALIFORNIA ODORS.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

[illegible] modern perfume-maker is an [illegible]. As the expert tea-[illegible] detects flavors that are [illegible] by the less trained palate, so [illegible] maker of perfumes, odors are [illegible] to the ordinary nostrils [illegible]. There is a regular and [illegible] scale of odors, as there is of [illegible] sounds, and it is in the skillful [illegible] of these odors that the [illegible] and symphonies of perfume [illegible].

[illegible] is really the correct word [illegible] in this connection. Your true [illegible] hears a strain of music that [illegible] his ear; out comes his pencil [illegible], and in a few moments he [illegible] to half a dozen bars of [illegible] score, the complete harmony [illegible] line and space, and the [illegible] sharps and flats to stand [illegible] another might enjoy the music, [illegible] probably, at the farthest, [illegible] to retain the tune in his mem-[illegible].

[illegible], a company passing along [illegible] roads in this sweet [illegible], and greeted by an unusu-[illegible] odor, might exclaim [illegible]

"[illegible] that delicious perfume."

"[illegible] oranges."

"[illegible] the pomelo."

"[illegible] it must be the eucalyptus."

[illegible] meantime one of the company [illegible] trained perfumer would have [illegible] out, and very shortly [illegible] odor would be down as a [illegible] harmony, and the [illegible] ago that when he gets [illegible] his laboratory he will [illegible] this bottle, and that, [illegible] for you artificially that [illegible], ripe pomelo, California [illegible]. For, careful experimenting [illegible] collecting of data has enabled [illegible] perfumer to reduce to [illegible] notation most known odors. [illegible] violet water is not the odor [illegible] violets, but the careful [illegible] blending of such chemicals as [illegible] upon your olfactory nerves [illegible] effect as that produced by a [illegible] in full bloom.

[illegible] that the olfactory nerve [illegible] worker must be developed to [illegible] that makes some strong [illegible] positive pain. He never smokes, [illegible] this sense; he avoids [illegible], he takes as much care [illegible] ears and throat as does a [illegible], only he emphasizes the [illegible] of one of the three nearly [illegible], and she another, and [illegible] to the ear, while he ap-[illegible] the nose.

[illegible] OF ODORS.

[illegible] know that the sense of smell [illegible] the memory when all other [illegible] one may think he has for-[illegible] event, so far back in his [illegible] it hidden. An old-time mel-[illegible] was associated with that [illegible] back no recognition. A [illegible] that was the prominent [illegible] action comes to be like [illegible]. Some dainty of the palate [illegible] to make the event stand [illegible] time fails now to locate it, [illegible] of a garment worn then, [illegible], is like handling the dress [illegible] stranger. But bring back [illegible] a once well-known odor, [illegible] the picture has begun to [illegible] the dark-room of his mem-[illegible].

[illegible] smell like? Oh, yes, [illegible] grandmother's pre-[illegible] that is the odor of the [illegible] used to stand in rows [illegible] white jars, along the [illegible] the dark-blue checked [illegible] she used to wear, [illegible] her high heels that [illegible] she walked across the [illegible] her hair that waved over [illegible] and hung in two curls [illegible] and was piled up un-[illegible] on top of her head. [illegible] to sing that old hymn, [illegible] that you played a mo-[illegible] Dear me, I can taste that [illegible]." And so, through the [illegible] jelly, this sense of mem-[illegible] to make all the other [illegible] bring back the past.

[illegible] modern magician will not [illegible] for the ingredients [illegible] to create the odor that is [illegible] back this memory, and the [illegible] man in his efforts is [illegible] who can best blend. For, the [illegible] will after the new perfume [illegible] and dress. Who now knows [illegible] Kiss-me-Quick, or [illegible] even Patchouli, our [illegible] scents?

[illegible] safe now to attempt to [illegible] latest, for between the time [illegible] printing there is time [illegible] a new one to appear. Yet, [illegible] true, that while new [illegible] songs spring up, mush-[illegible] over night, and claim the [illegible] for a few days or weeks, [illegible] symphony or nocture in [illegible] as well as sweet sounds, [illegible] longer intervals, and con-[illegible] in favor.

[illegible] largest perfume establish-[illegible] United States keeps a [illegible] at a large salary, as [illegible] personage might keep a [illegible], and when the muse [illegible] he evolves a new odor, [illegible] made up, named, and [illegible] market by the firm. Most [illegible] is spent in the mountains [illegible] stocked laboratory, away [illegible] and distracting worries

[illegible] FROM FLOWERS.

[illegible] the most common process [illegible] the odor from flowers is [illegible] as "enfleurage." When the [illegible] above the horizon to [illegible] world of flowers and folk, [illegible] must be up and afield [illegible] fragrant petals before [illegible]. By huge basketsful or [illegible] are carried to the fac-[illegible] plates of glass have been [illegible] a film of finely purified [illegible] this the petals are lightly [illegible] thin layers. After a time— [illegible], according to the na-[illegible] flowers, the evasive spirit [illegible] deserts the petals and be-[illegible] with the fat, a strange, [illegible] seemingly. Then the [illegible] wilted petals, shape and [illegible] the soul flown away, [illegible] up and thrown aside. [illegible] a fresh supply of flow-[illegible] to the fat, until it is satu-[illegible] will hold no more. It [illegible] as pomade, and in this [illegible] the manufacturing per-[illegible] into small cubes and put [illegible] this same coquette, odor, [illegible] the flower for the fat, [illegible] the fat for the alcohol, and [illegible]

[illegible] a common method of [illegible]. This is accomplished [illegible] water over the flowers and [illegible] heat and condensing the [illegible]ration. The oily sub-[illegible] can be then easily col-[illegible].

[illegible] the odor is contained in [illegible] skin or rind of fruit; it [illegible] by expressing, which [illegible] great pressure, [illegible] of all efforts and proc-[illegible] elude the pursuit. [illegible] the modern perfum-[illegible] still [illegible] found that all known odors may be grouped into a few classes, the individual members of which resemble each other more or less. So when an odor refuses to come at his bidding, he combines two or three already in his possession, to make an odor that closely resembles the stubborn one, and his efforts are so successful that we rarely detect the trick played with our noses.

For instance, heliotrope itself is both scarce and unprofitable to the perfume maker, but the aroma of vanilla combined with the sharper scent of bitter almonds gives a fragrance much resembling the delicate heliotrope. So he blends the two and adds enough rose and orange-flower essence to give sweetness, and so easily makes what is called an excellent extract of heliotrope.

The so-called lily-of-the-valley, honey suckle, myrtle, clove pink and wall flower are usually skillful combinations of other scents.

About 60 per cent. of all odors, however, are obtained from flowers; the other 40 per cent. being chemical combinations.

While odor hides in the blossom of the rose and violet, it is in the root of iris, in the stem or wood of cedar and sandalwood, in the seed of the Tonquin bean, and in the bark of cinnamon. However, all the more delicate scents come from the blossoms.

FIXED ODORS.

Some odors after distillation or enfleurage are volatile, like a restless soul ready for flight, for that is the exact meaning of the word, a winged creature; in this case another companion must be added to stay its flight, and the latter is known as a "fixed" odor. These fixed odors, while they are good companions to keep in capitivity another, are seldom or never used alone. The principal ones are orris, tonka, vanilla and benzoin, and three animal substances, civet, musk and ambergris.

Orris comes from the root of the iris or flag, the word being a corruption of iris. Tonka is the seed of a tree of the West Indies and South America; the seeds are called tonka beans. Vanilla comes from the seeds of the vanilla plant, and is as valuable in perfumery as it is in confectionery. Benzoin is a gum from the benzoin or Benjamin tree.

Of the animal substances musk is the most important of all, and is a secretion of the musk deer. Almost all scents combine well with it, and, despite the fact that it is very strong, it is difficult to detect it when blended, for it hides in even the most delicate. Genuine musk is very costly, bringing from $25 to $30 an ounce in the market, but its great strength balances the price. Its odor when recent or fresh is said to be so powerful as to cause the blood to gush from the nose. But its most wonderful quality is its lasting power, far exceeding that of any other known odor. In the mosque of Sancta Sophia at Constantinople a quantity of musk was used in the mortar with which the walls of one room was laid. This was in the year 525 A.D., and to this day one may detect the odor in passing through that room. Think of an odor that can outlive great empires!

Ambergris is little used now. It is a secretion of a whale, and is found floating in the ocean near the haunts of the whale. The name comes from the color, amber-gris—gray amber.

Civet is a secretion of the civet cat. Its properties are similar to those of ambergris, but it harmonizes more perfectly with flower scents.

The priceless perfume attar or otto of roses, comes from the Far East. It is prepared in various parts of Asia, in Egypt, and in Turkey along the foot of the Balkan Mountains.

The most elaborate care is taken in its preparation. The petals are gathered before sunrise, and 100,000 roses yield only 180 grains of the attar, or 100 pounds yield only about three teaspoonfuls. It is needless to say that very little real attar of rose is in the market.

France leads all other countries in flower farming for perfume, but the whole south of Europe is what might be called the perfumer's happy farming ground, with its acres on acres of violets, mignonette and cassia.

Nimes is famous for its rosemary and thyme; Nice for its violets, that seem to grow sweetest there, and Sicily for bergamot. England is noted for only two products used in perfumery, lavendar and peppermint but English lavendar is worth in the market four times as much as any other.

The word perfume has a historical interest. It comes from the Latin "per," from, and "fumas," smoke, and the first perfumes were made from wood or aromatic gums which in burning gave aff agreeable odors.

Perfumes, as well as oils, were used in anointing kings in Egypt; spices and perfumes preserved the bodies of their dead, and scented oils were everywhere used in the baths. The Egyptians were very skillful in making perfumes and scented oils. A museum in England has a specimen of ointment which, although over 3000 years old, still retains an odor.

The modern perfumer is an artist in his profession. His improvisations are with delicate, evasive, etherial substances that escape the cognizance of us duller mortals till he has imprisoned them for our delight, and light, indeed must be the touch and keen the perception of him who deals with this sense of memory.

Art of Approaching People.

There is just as much of an art in approaching people properly as in approaching a landscape to get the best possible effect. We are all more or less animals, and we do not like to have the fur rubbed the wrong way. It is a great art to know how to approach people so as to make the best possible impression, and not arouse their antagonism, or prejudice them against us at the very outset. One needs to be a good judge of human nature, and to have a great deal of tact, in order to approach a person through the right avenue.

One should cultivate the art of reading character at first sight. Some people know at a glance what road to take to get into a stranger's confidence. They walk right in without hindrance, while others, without this tact, art, or knowledge of human nature, cannot enter at all, or only with great difficulty.

There is nothing else which will create such a good impression upon a stranger, says Success, as a sunny face, a cheerful gracious manner. All doors fly open, all barriers disappear before the sunny soul. He does not need to use a crowbar to make a way for himself. The doors open for him, and he is as welcome everywhere as the sunshine. He does not need an introduction. His face and his manner are introduction enough, and as for confidence, such people carry a letter of credit in their faces. You cannot help believing in them and trusting them implicity the first time you see them.—[Journal of Commerce.

ROMANCES READ IN STREET SIGNS.

HOW MANY OF THEM TELL A STORY OF DIFFERENT DAYS.

The Sign Painter Learns Many Things Regarding Changes in Personal Circumstances That Escape the Casual Reader of Various Advertising Methods.

Did you ever note anything in the advertising columns of a newspaper that told a tale in brief as plainly as if it filled a column of the reading matter in another section of the newspaper. Some people read between the lines romances and tragedies of the signs as readily.

A city sign painter has recently chatted entertainingly about the suggestiveness of his work. Ever since I first learned my trade, he said, I have been a reader of signs as well as a maker of them. Between the lines of many a sign I read a story—a tale of triumph or a tragedy of defeat. Again, I have acquired the habit of industry, and by industry I thrive, pay rent, meet bills, keep square with my fellowman and am in the shop when wanted.

I painted a window card for a prominent merchant years ago. It read, "Boy Wanted." It was a remarkable boy who got the job. As I lettered it, I imagined who the boy would be and how he would turn out. I kept my eye on the boy who took the job, the merchant's daughter for a wife and a place in the firm. That was a romance, and a fact.

In my time have I painted many a "Boy Wanted." Well, some of them did not turn out so well as my first hero, more than one was not wanted long and went to the bad.

It was only the other day that a man along in years dropped in on me. He purchased a "Furnished Room" card and I could not hide the expression of surprise on my face. He explained that he had lost a fortune since retiring from business. He told me that the only thing that was saved from the wreck was the family home, which, as good luck would have it, was in the name of the wife. As he paid for the placard he said sarcastically: "My wife has furnished rooms to rent in the house and I have a vacancy in the upper story."

I have in my shop now a "Piano Lessons" sign that is a dirge of buried hopes. The job was done to order for as nice a woman as ever trod the earth, the flower of a family of high degree. No end to their wealth, so everybody thought. Father died, left an immense fortune in trust. Trustee, a scoundrel, beggared the estate and skipped. When the exposure took place girl was about to marry a nob. He had a frozen heart on account of the changed financial conditions, and the wedding, already announced, was postponed. The Lord didn't postpone the measley chap. The races and the bucketshop got him, and if he lives long enough he will be pedding shoestrings Saturday nights and panhandling the rest of the week. The brave little woman is now giving piano lessons to support herself and mother. Everything they had went, and they are the poorest of the poor.

Another sign reads: "Receiver's Sale. Entire Stock to be Closed Out." There is a story goes with that. A man in trade crawled all the way up the ladder by patient degrees, winning every inch and every dollar by hard work, square dealing and clean methods. Then at the height Mr. Man got dizzy from a swelled head and thought he knew it all, made some blunders that jarred him, but taught him no lesson. Thesn he got gay, became extravagant, then reckless; instead of hauling in sail, he spread more canvas, threw discretion to the winds, and his craft turned turtle. Mr. Man is in a sanitarium, his affairs in the hands of the receiver, and his wife was in yesterday and ordered a window card, "Board by the Day or Week."

I sell "Girl Wanted" signs to the restaurant folk. The last one that I disposed of produced unexpected results. A wicked wag stole it out of the window and fastened it to the coat tail of a bachelor friend and he paraded the whole length of the street with the announcement in view, and as he passed down the street a pretty young woman ran after and halted him and removed the sign with many apologies and blushes. That strange meeting led to an acquaintance and a wedding.—[New York Commercial.

STIFFNESS OF BACKBONE.

PRESIDENT OF FRANCE SETTLES TEACHERS' UNIONS.

Tells Them They Are Not Working for Any Ordinary Employer but for the State and a Revolt Against the State is Quite Dangerous to Their Salaries.

The French government is apparently in the hands of a strong man. The strike of electrical workers in the city of Paris was brought to a sudden end by the threat of President Clemenceau to equip the electrical works with men from the Engineer Corps of the army. The strikers and their employers got together and settled their differences. The public backed up the President, and even in this country his threat awoke admiration. A year or so ago the parcels postmen of Paris went on a strike, and the government had soldiers perform their duties till the mail service could be reorganized. Now the teachers of Paris and of the larger indutsrial centers of France have organized, and their unions, known as syndicates, have been giving special attention to Socialist propaganda among their pupils. The syndicate of Paris gave out a statement setting forth that it was the duty of the school masters to give special instruction along such lines in the primary schools, and that to fit themselves for the work, the masters must of necessity be affiliated with other labor organizations. The response of the government was prompt and to the point, as follows:

"Because of the very nature of your service, the state can never permit you to act as other employés do. You are not working for an ordinary employer, but for the state, and revolt against the state is revolt against the country, whose representatives vote your salaries."

It can be easily understood what the result would be of a failure to take the hint contained in the above reply of the government. The schools might suffer a little inconvenience, but the result would justify the action of the government.

The position taken by the government leads the Chicago Record-Herald to remark that "this is just one more of the indications which are continually being given of the folly of public officials, who not only tolerate but encourage union organization of public employés in their worst forms. The declaration of industrial war against the State is intolerable, and should be suppressed at the beginning." Had the city of Chicago been in the hands of President Clemenceau it is safe to say that the teachers of that city would not be organized as they are at present, nor would the firemen be affiliated with any labor organization. The relations of both public school teachers and firemen are too closely connected with the public safety to be allowed to come under the dictation of any labor organization, and weak-kneed officials will do well to take courage from the French President and put a stop to the same whenever the movement shows any evidence of spreading to other locations. The public will support any official who will stand by the public interest instead of bowing the knee to unionist dictation of any character. The man who succeeds is the man who dares, and the man who dares is the one who has the courage of his convictions.

LABOR AND LEGISLATION.

POLITICS PROVES THE DEATH OF UNIONISM.

Legislators Need Have no Fear of Results When They Do Their Duty to the Whole People Rather Than Truckle to Demand for Class Legislation.

The demand made by union labor for certain legislation at Sacramento was in accord with similar movements before other legislative bodies. At the same time there is no special reason why such legislation should be enacted. The object of all law is to protect the rights of all without discrimination. So the enactment of any special legislation is in effect to place some class above another class, and this should be frowned upon whether it be the capitalist or the working man that is thus discriminated against. If legislators would keep in mind the fact that these laborite demands are not made so much by the laboring people themselves as they are by "leaders" who do no real work with their hands, but are more appropriately classified as "jawsmiths," there might be less truculency. There is no such danger from the result of union labor's indignation as some legislators appear to believe. Unions do not yet hold all the laboring people and they never will. Nor are the unions in politics except as they violate the foundations of their organization. How little fear of results there should be may be seen by the result of the attempt in the Congressional elections last fall to defeat some of the members of Congress who would not assist in the enactment of certain legislation organized labor had demanded. Gompers took the lead in this movement personally with a result that seems farcical. Into each of the districts selected for the battle his ablest lieutenants were sent, and the chief in person directed the fighting. Not a man was defeated whom he and his campaigners opposed. Mr. Gompers selected his own battlefields, and not even those who openly defied him suffered appreciable harm. Littlefield, Cannon, Mudd, Dalzell, Lilley, Gardner, and all the others went back to Congress with pluralities as large as ever before, or if reduced, only by so much as may be attributed to the diminished vote of an "off year." Mudd of Maryland, in whose district particular efforts were made by the federation's speakers, received a larger majority than in 1904. It appeared there that the activity of the unionists had called forth resentment among the farmers. So in Maine, the Democratic opponents of Littlefield asserted that they would have won had Mr. Gompers stayed away.

Even the industrial centers failed to respond to the unionists' appeals. Littlefield ran ahead of his ticket in every county, but made the biggest gains in the organized-labor counties, Knox and Androscoggin. In Androscoggin are situated the large industrial cities of Lewiston and Auburn. Draper, candidate for Lieutenant-Gopernor in Massachusetts, opposed by the Independence League, as well as by the American Federation of Labor, received in Boston 31,074 votes to his Democratic opponent's 51,081. Again, in a district of Pittsburgh which includes the big steel mills, where there are more than 25,000 mill workers, and about 5000 miners—opposed by a particular "friend of labor"—a man who was known as the "Strike Mayor," Dalzell was reëlected. In short, the long-suspended club of the union-labor vote proved a mere feather when it fell.

What was true in these campaigns will be found equally true in every case in districts where local issues are involved. The real laboring people are not trying to influence special legislation. Nor are they out with a club on election day. For this reason the public should take note of those legislators who are so eager to promote special legislation and understand that they are doing it for a selfish purpose, hoping thereby to get some political gain for themselves rather than to do their duty for the whole people whom they are supposed to represent.

Moreover, the union movement as a whole is not in such a flourishing condition as the so-called leaders would have the public believe. The open-shop movement has been growing much more rapidly than has the closed shop. The membership in the unions has been decreasing the country through rather than increasing. Their own figures show this fact. And again, organized labor is only a small proportion of the whole. In 1904 the American Federation of Labor reported a membership of 1,675,400, a gain of 209,600 over the previous year. In 1905 the total membership was reported as only 1,494,300, a loss during the year of 207,419, equal to 14 per cent. during a single year.

If the Federation of Labor persists in entering politics then is its doom written or else the examples of the past are no guide for the future. The National Labor Union, which in 1868 boasted a membership of 640,000, four years later held a national convention and nominated David Davis of Illinois for President. In the following year the union expired from internal dissension. The case of the Knights of Labor is too recent to have been forgotten. It entered politics and Mr. Powderly made a speech in New York in favor of the election of Henry George for Mayor of that city. In 1888, only two years later, the report at the annual convention showed the membership had fallen to about 300,000 members and it was but a short period before the organization became a negligible quantity industrially as well as politically. Not only the Federation of Labor, but even local unions should take note of the effect that has followed excursions into politics by organized labor, and should recognize the accompanying fact that the politicians who are trying to lead them in this direction are their worst enemies.

GET A THOUSAND DOLLARS.

With This as a Nucleus Additional Money Making Becomes Easy.

"Get the first thousand dollars. After that money-making is easy." This is the old-time sage advice of the hard-headed, self-made man. That axiom has set many men to saving. They fix upon that sum as the glittering, far-off herald of a fortune some time to be made. To a man on a small salary—a salary, say, out of which something can be saved weekly without too much deprivation, the advice is good. There is something in it that acts as a stimulus to economy. And who will deny that economy is a good thing or that any truth that lights the way to it should not be known?

Many men, therefore, have been buoyed up in their economies by the belief that the first thousand dollars is the hardest to get and that afterward all the rest would be easy and the good things of the world that follows a bounteous supply of money would be within easy reach. It is a pity that the man who invented that saying could not also have told us with equal advantage how to turn the thousand dollars over and make two of it. It takes a long time to make a wage earner see that "money works." His idea of making money is to work for it himself. It never occurs to him that money works much easier than he can and without any of the hardships he himself experiences; that is to say, until he has got the first thousand. That usually makes a young man feel like a financier and he talks wisely of investments.

It is then that the turning point in his business career has arrived. If he has any business sense it begins to develop and show itself. Just to remember that the most difficult thing in the world is to get money honestly and the easiest thing is to get rid of it, will do him good; the most sensible thing he can do is to find the safe investment.

That first thousand may be the hardest to get, but it doesn't always grow real fast, and there is always the danger of losing it in some wild scheme before it has grown at all. The study of investments and the selection of the one that makes the capital safe and certain is the only logical evidence of good business sense. If no safe investment can be found, 4 per cent. in a savings bank is good enough until the investment walks alone, which it will do soon or late. The first thousand dollars is the hardest to get, but that doesn't necessarily imply that the second is to be acquired immediately.—[Exchange.

MAKE GOOD FRIENDS.

Every Person Should Have This in Mind Because of Future Benefits.

It is not worth while to pause to consider whether men in olden times placed a mercantile value on friendships. The significance of the modern application needs no justification. Friendship pays; acquaintance pays. That is a wise young man who looks to it that his acquaintances are formed with a view to future benefit to himself. What does it profit any man to know a lot of men who are only ordinary mortals with no capacity for doing anything special, or anything especially well—merely men who do a day's work at whatever they have to do and who spend their leisure time at the races, baseball games, or at the theater?

The men to know are those who have a serious purpose in life and who go on cheerfully toward the goal, developing their powers meanwhile. At college a young man has an excellent opportunity for selecting among his classmates, companions for a future career, but if a boy is denied the advantage of a college course, with its discipline and associations, and is cast into the huge swirl of the commercial world without training, he must make his friends and get his start there. To begin with, it requires no mercenary foresight. No pleasant fellow need be slighted because he probably cannot "be of use," but the importance of spending little time with good fellows is apparent when one has his way to make by his own efforts in the world. Courtesy is always commendable and courtesy costs nothing; it helps everywhere. The value of a long list of friends and acquaintances to a commercial man is most obvious, for by his acquaintance, his popularity, he obtains much valuable information that helps when it comes to doing business. And the point is not to overlook the opportunity to cultivate the friendship of those whose knowledge and worth have already advanced them to high position, for their example inspires to emulation, thus association develops our best powers and their counsel and friendship are worth something ethically and financially.

MARSHALL FIELD'S PARTNERS.

They Were Chosen Because of Their Fitness Rather Than Personal Friendship.

All the commercial giants of fifty and sixty years ago had to go it alone. Temperamentally they could not tolerate junior or ranking partners, and perhaps this is one of the important reasons why their establishments passed away with their generation. In February System, Harold Irwin Cleveland tells of Marshall Field's partners; the men he selected and developed—the men who helped him develop his mercantile business. Says Mr. Cleveland:

"The Field house is not merely the child of his talents, of his 'steely coldness' and powerful intuitive sense of what must be bought and what could be sold at a profit; it is the offspring of the minds of almost a dozen other men; of Shedd, Higinbotham, Selfridge, McWilliams, Willing, Woodhouse, Fair, Templeton, Leiter, Palmer and others. All began as clerks, some on the recommendation of friends, some merely because they were needed at the time. The men who became junior partners, in every instance but two, brought to Mr. Field or their immediate superiors some suggestion, some plan for the improvement of the business and offered to put it into effect if the house would sustain them.

"They were chosen because they were abreast or ahead of their time in business methods, and Field needed their brains. At least half a dozen of them were not personally agreeable to Mr. Field. This, however, did not matter to him. Being satisfied of their integrity he waved personal pleasure to one side for the greater use of their abilities—a use mutually profitable. But Mr. Field always planned to have full control of his business—and not merely majority control, but complete sway without responsibility to minority of stockholders or board of directors. So far as their holdings of stock were concerned, and therefore as far as the public knew, the junior partners were all coördinate. No two of these men were alike. No two of them performed the same functions in Field's. It is the story of Carnegie and his staff; of Hill and his aids; of Rockefeller and his generals; of Rhodes and the satellites he grouped around his throne. It is the story of Need, Brain, Opportunity and Coöperation, and, of these, the greatest is Cooperation; and Marshall Field, master business builder, knew that."

HEROES ARE ADORED.

May Be Found in the Ranks of Labor, as Well as in More Stirring Events.

We agree with a contemporary who says there is plenty of heroism in common life. It may be a sort of passive heroism, but it is heroism just the same. He who does the hard task with cheerfulness, who shakes hands with hardship as if it were his friend, who bears his burden without complaint, who does drudgery with undaunted spirit—there is something of the hero in him. No one unless there is something of this spirit inside of him can rise above his task and be content. It is the unheroic who allow the task to master them. And especially is there heroic stuff in that man who goes cheerfully to the work that is uncongenial to him.

Morris tells us that art is the expression of a man's joy in his work. And he who faces the work he dislikes to do with cheerful spirit may not be an artist, but he has hero's blood in his veins. The father who goes to a daily grind that does not fit his taste, but who does it joyfully because he can thereby minister to his own, is a hero—commonplace, perhaps—but a hero. The mother who takes up the drudgery of her household, not because it meets her pleasure, but because she finds joy in doing for her loved ones—she is heroic. Our human nature is full of this heroic action.

On the other hand, he who whines because his task is unfitting and sputters about it for sympathy's sake may get sympathy. But he will not get admiration because he does not deserve it. In its heart of hearts humanity loves the brave man who fights on to the death and goes down with the colors flying and the drums beating the march. It adores the hero who battles on with broken sword. Only its eyes are not open to see these things in everyday life.—[El Paso Times.

Champion Typewriter Is a Woman.

One of the largest and most interesting typewriting competitions that ever have taken place was the recent one at Paris, when 157 competitors, male and female, rattled and banged at their machines for four hours. Those who were present describe the noise as a miniature hail and thunder storm. It says much for feminine nerve and endurance thatit was a woman who gained the first place. Mlle. Gabrielle Revert, a native of Bordeaux, at the end of the four hours was 2000 words ahead of every one else in the room. How formidable was her victory may be imagined from the fact that her most dangerous opponent all through the dictation was a M. Porez, secretary of the Paris Chamber of Commerce. At one time, indeed, this gentleman had gained some hundred words on Mlle. Revert; but she soon pulled up with a brilliant finish. The judges had given some chapters of "Paul and Virginia" as the test—fairly difficult prose, as all the world knows—and when the bell was rung for a finish Mlle. Revert had written 17,000 words in the four hours, or at the rate of seventy words a minute. An amusing, if somewhat pathetic, incident of the competition was an old-fashioned scrivener, who would not admit that the pen could be beaten. The contrary was proven before he was half an hour at his task.

Had a Slow but Sure Gait.

There have been numerous disappointments in the outcome of some of the boys. We remember one boy in particular who was the butt of all ridicule from the boys of his age, and he took it good-naturedly. He seemed to have no particular friends and herded by himself. His clothes always looked funny, and he had that awkward swagger over which the rest of us had much sport. No one ever thought that that plug would ever get anywhere or have anything. But today that plug is drawing a better salary than any two of the old gang. He has more money, more influence and more friends than any of the rest of us. The plug had a gait that was slow, but it was sure. He didn't appear to be a bit bright then, but he had a surface that took on a polish.—[Westphalia (Mo.) Times.

WHICH ARE YOU?

The two kinds of people on earth I mean
Are the people who lift and the people who lean.

Wherever you go you will find the world masses
Are always divided in just these two classes.

And oddly enough, you will find, too, I ween,
There is only one lifter to twenty who lean.

In which class are you? Are you easing the load
Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road?

Or are you a leaner, who lets others bear
Your portion of labor and worry and care?

"Playing Even" Is Not Enough.

Don't ever be satisfied with merely "playing even." The man who thinks he is "about playing even" is a loser every time. Even if he doesn't lose anything else, he loses his time—loses the months and years of his life that he'll never get back—months and years in which he might be a big winner, just as well as not, if he would only watch the bull's eye, and be careful to keep the score.—[Nokomis Ginger.

No Limit to Business Getting.

The fortunate thing about this business game is the fact that you are not tied down, you are not bound by conventions, you don't have to sit and wait, but you can go out after new business and more business anytime, and in any way that suits your own judgment.—[Nokomis Ginger.

Can a Dog Climb a Tree.

Can a dog climb a tree? A correspondent writes: "While on a walk on snowshoes in New Hampshire we tracked a porcupine to a balsam fir, in which it had taken refuge. My Scottish terrier climbed the tree, pulling herself up from branch to branch to a height of about seven feet, where a space of bare trunk separated her from the porcupine, which had watched her progress with evident alarm. The terrier made several ineffectual attempts to scale the smooth bark and finally jumped down into the snow." And of another curious trait the same writer continues: "This little dog and her mate, now dead, though enthusiastic fire worshipers at home, never sat near the bonfires built at luncheon or tea time on winter walks, but dug holes in the snow at a little distance, in which they curled themselves up after the manner of their primitive ancestors."

Weather Conditions.—The pressure has increased considerably in the Southwest during the last twenty-four hours, following the northeast movement of the storm area which occupied this section yesterday. The storm is now central over the British Northwest, while a second depression is central in the Missouri Valley. This distribution of pressure has resulted in general precipitation on the Pacific Coast and at some stations in the intermountain districts of the Northwest. East of the Rocky Mountains, no precipitation of consequence has occurred. The weather continues warmer than usual in the East and South, while temperatures slightly below the normal are noted on the Pacific Coast. The weather on the South Pacific Coast continues unsettled this morning, and the indications point to increasing cloudiness in Los Angeles and vicinity, possibly with showers late tonight or Sunday.

Forecasts.—Local forecast for Los Angeles and vicinity: Increasing cloudiness, probably with showers tonight or Sunday; winds becoming southerly.

TRADING GENERAL ON THE EXCHANGE.

Trading during the early call on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange Saturday, was more or less general. The volume of business was comparatively small, but the activity on the floor showed that considerable trading was going on on the street. Prices were slightly weaker as a rule.

Columbia Oil was again well liked by the majority of the traders. Prices held up well, but trading was limited to 1000 shares at 83 cash. The demand for the security is fairly pronounced. The close was at 82½@84. Central Oil was wanted at lower prices and only 100 shares were handled at 1.13. The close was at 1.12½@1.14. Associated Oil lead the decline, selling off to 39.50 on sales of but thirty shares. The demand for Rice Ranch oil was more pronounced and seemed to be affected by the rumor, current on the street, that Well No. 3 had come in with a good showing. Reports have been heard, also, that the stock has sold at as high as $3.00 cash on the street. The close was at 2.60@3.10, both quotations being ten points up. Olinda sagged, and closed without a trade, at 19¼@20¼. Union was bid for at 214.37½ and offered at 216. Mexican petroleum was slightly weaker at 1.33@1.34½, and Continental closed with a rise of ½ showing in the bid. Others were inactive.

Home Common was traded in to the extent of twenty shares, the prices ranging from 26.25 to 26.12½, the latter on a "buy and sell" deal. The preferred stock of the same company also shows on the sales sheet with sales of ten shares at 65, a price fractionally lower than that of the preceding few days. United States Long Distance was handled to extent of five shares at 52. The close was at 50@55. Edison Electric common was bid for at 72.50 and closed with an offering at 75. The remainder of the list showed few changes.

Bank stocks and the bonds were inactive, Saturday. Bidding was sluggish for both classes of securities, and those changes which were made were for the worse.

MINING CALL.

Despite the sluggishness of the market for the mining stocks, the sales sheet of the call shows a fair total. In all 36,000 shares of mining stock changed hands. Prices were on about the same level at which they have rested for several weeks.

Consolidated mines was traded into a total of 20,000 shares. The price was at 2⅛@2⅜ cash, and at 2½ buyer thirty days. The close was at 2@2½. Goldfield Wild Horse was handled to 1000 shares at 6⅛. Johnnie consolidated shows with 1000 shares at 11¼, a new low level for this once popular stock. Clark Copper was traded in to a total of 3000 shares at 30@30½. The close was at 30@31. California Hills shows on the sales sheet with transactions totaling 4000 shares at 5⅛@5¼; 5@5¼ was the closing quotation. The remainder of the business was done in Mohawk Johnnie at 17@18. Several thousand shares changed hands on "buy and sell" deals. It is more and more evident that the public is not in the market for this stock, but that the trading is carried on by a clever manipulation originating from the office of a promoter, who is trying to give the impression that there is considerable trade in it thereby attracting the investing public. Several prominent brokers have condemned the method employed.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

Owing to the unsettled condition of the weather yesterday's produce market was uneven. Demand for staples was light on 'Change, and dealers are holding off until the weather clears. Receipts were necessarily light. Eggs were steady at quoted prices. Storing of Eastern eggs will begin the first of April. Stocks laid down here from the East this season will be 21 cents a dozen. The average price paid for Aprils last season was 20 cents. The Pacific Electric is now bringing the heaviest shipments of eggs to this market. Eggs from local points were formerly brought by team, but now, most of the local supplies come via the electrical roads.

No change was made in butter prices. Receipts were 10,102 pounds. Dairy lands are flooded in the northern part of the State; and many producing sections in the south are somewhat inundated. Butter dealers are opposed to any advance, saying it would be taking advantage of the situation to raise the price when the shortage is only a temporary condition.

Bellefleur apples are moving out of storage at an improved rate. Large-sized grapefruit floods the market, and make prices unsteady. Oranges are fairly active. The rain interferes with the ripening of strawberries. The first shipment of raspberries of the season was received yesterday by Beasley & Dundore of the produce market. The berries came from Tropico and will sell at 40 cents a basket.

Poor onions glut the market. Potatoes that arrived yesterday were all Eastern stocks and arrived on the Southern Pacific via Barstow. The general potato situation showed little change from that reported throughout the week. Fancy goods bring fancy prices, and inferior grades bring low prices. Minnesota's to arrive were offered at $1.60 per hundred. Reassorted Colorado Rurals were offered as low as $1.25, but bids were too low for consideration. Other offerings and bids were featureless.

Lettuce declined to 40@1.25 per crate under a desire to cut prices because of the oversupply. Asparagus was not offered owing to the difficulties in shipping. Cabbage was firmer at 1.25@1.50 per sack. Peas advanced to 6@11c.

Lobsters, halibut and mackerel were plentiful. Small fish were in moderate supply.

The receipts of produce as reported for yesterday's exchange were as follows: Eggs, 438 cases; butter, 10,102 lbs.; cheese, none; potatoes, 960 sacks; onions, none; beans, none; sweet potatoes, none.

6% MUNICIPAL BOND COMPANY 514 Chamber of Commerce Bldg. 6%

BONDS THAT PAY 15%

These Bonds or Debentures are first liens on two semi-business lots on Figueroa street and represent the safest form of investment known.

The building to be erected on these lots will pay 15 per cent. (payable quarterly) dividends, which is clear profit, because these debentures are not taxable.

THEY DOUBLE IN VALUE

As the lots increase in value, so the bonds will increase, and as the property is not to be sold until it has doubled, the bonds will be worth twice their face value, and in the meanttime be earning 15 per cent. interest. If you need to borrow money you can use them as security. If you have to sell, they are worth the added valuation of the valuation of the property.

SAFEST INVESTMENT

We will send you a booklet fully describing the Debenture system of safe investment, and another folder descriptive of Syndicate "M," which is the investment referred to above as paying 15 per cent. and doubling in value. This syndicate is such a big money maker that an investor will make as much as on a "wild cat" stock investment that happens to "strike it rich," but there is no element of risk in these debenture bonds. They are first lien on gilt-edged semi-business property on Figueroa street.

Only a small amount is now required to complete the bond issue. Investments of $100 or more accepted. This is a grand chance for the small investr.

As soon as this issue is completed we will have others. Find out about our safe debenture bonds so that when you have money to invest you will know of a safe investment. Call or write for the free booklets. DO IT AT ONCE.

MEN ONLY
I Cure the Cases That Others Cannot Cure
A bold statement, but just as true as it is bold. Not all cases that others fail to cure are curable by my methods, but fully ninety per cent. of them are. The way to learn whether your case is curable is to consult me. I know exactly what can be done in every instance. I ought to know this, for I have done nothing else other than treat men's diseases for twenty-five years. If your case is curable I will treat you. If it isn't I will not. If I treat you, and if you so desire,

DR. TAYLOR
The Leading Specialist

I Will Wait for My Fee Until You Are Well.

WEAKNESS
Weakness in men is comparatively a simple ailment and is but a symptom of local disorder, a congestion of an important nerve center. No stimulating treatment, whether internal or locally applied, can do more than excite temporary activity. By my system of local treatment I restore absolutely normal conditions throughout the organs involved, which promptly results in complete and permanent restoration of strength and vigor. This treatment is original with me, and is the only radical and certain cure yet devised.
VARICOCELE.
Varicocele is a relaxation, knotting and twisting of the most vital blood vessels of the organic system. It stagnates the local circulation and interferes with the processes of waste and repair. Neglect brings derangement of functions and injury to the general health. Most physicians resort to surgical operations and hospital treatment. I cure Varicocele in one week without operation, pain or detention from business. My cures are absolutely permanent and no ill effects whatever can follow my treatment.
I also cure all special diseases of men such as Hydrocele, Nervous Debility, Blood Diseases, etc.
EXAMINATION FREE
I offer not only Free Consultation and Advice, but to every case that comes to me I will make a careful Examination and Diagnosis without charge. No ailing man should neglect this opportunity to get expert opinion about this trouble. If you cannot call, write for diagnosis chart. My offices are open all day from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., and Sundays from 10 to 1.

Trust and Anti-Trust

Or, in other words, high or low prices—it rests with you—Will you pay tribute to the trust, and buy furniture for exorbitant prices, or will you come to Brent's, where the best furniture made is sold at prices that are actually 20 per cent. to 40 per cent. less than the trust asks? No difference in the furniture—just in the price. Brent's works for the interest of the people. The trust works for the interest of the trust. Don't stop till you get to Brent's—712 to 718 South Main street.

BRENT'S

We Buy For Spot Cash
Sell Quickly for Small Profits

You should see our big shipping department and the army of men engaged in packing furniture and loading it on trucks for distribution all over Southern California. Factories are glad to get Brent orders. It means spot cash payment. Big buying and big selling cut down the proportion of expenses and so we can easily afford to cut down exorbitant trust prices at least 25 per cent. to 40 per cent.

Brent's Low Prices
Cause Constant Surprise and Wonderment
20 to 40 Per Cent Below the Trust

People have come to realize Brent's prices are lower, but HOW MUCH lower they do not really appreciate until actual comparisons are made. In order to make such low prices to you, we must take advantage of every concession the manufacturers allow. We do this when we buy in carload lots and pay spot cash. This brings our buying price 'way down and allows us to make comparative prices to you—in other words, 20 to 40 per cent. below the trust. Remember, no better furniture is made than we sell—qualities right up to the top notch.

Had you noticed how trust prices continue to "soar?"

ple of the wealthy class often do not even ask the price."

"How much could one get a plain little street hat for?" asked the reporter, who was thinking of buying a hat at this most expensive shop.

"Twenty to forty dollars," answered the milliner, "for a very simple hat." And the reporter faded away.

CHEAP ONES LOOK GOOD.

The beauty of this season is that in spite of the fearful prices, there are inexpensive braids and other styles which make a good appearance for little money. For young girls the black sailor on the Knox order has come in vogue again. The lingerie hats are lovelier than ever. The popular kind this year is in a champagne shade, and instead of ribbon, field flowers, daisies, for-get-me-nots, rosebuds, and others intermingled, are used in a wreath between the crown and the brim.

A perfectly new plumage used this season is that of the cassowary, the Australian bird, whose tall feathers are like those of the bird of paradise.

A notable absence of dead birds on hats, or breasts or wings which have necessitated the death of the bird is noted—the result, no doubt, of the various State laws on the subject, and also of the local action of various women's clubs in Los Angeles. The Civic Federation of Los Angeles passed a resolution whereby the members agreed not to wear birds on their hats, and there has been a remarkable change in consequence in the headgear of several of the smartly-dressed members.

This stringent act does not exclude ostrich feathers, as those are obtained without injury to the bird, and in Los Angeles the most popular between-season hat seen at the matinée is the large black picture hat with a round fluff of ostrich feathers about the crown, and extending nearly out to the brim. These artistic productions are to be worn with thin gowns of the opera shade, light blue, and pink and green.

PASTIMES OF WOMEN.

Writes Epigrams.

Miss Elfie Fay, the vaudeville artist, delights in scribbling cynical epigrams when she is not busy in her theatrical work. The following are a few of her latest:

To the victim belongs what's spoiled.

He who hesitates gets left.

A word to the guys is sufficient.

Charity covers a multitude of sinners.

There's many a true word spoken from the chest.

It is never too late to lend—nor to borrow.

A still tongue makes an idle head.

There is no use crying over skimmed milk.

Man is judged by his ability to work and woman by her ability to work him.

The fool and his money are soon spotted.

Women are fickle—men simply change their minds.

Telephone in Prison Cell.

Mrs. Yohlande Degg, who is confined in a county jail in Alabama, sentenced to a twenty-three-year term of imprisonment for manslaughter, has devised numerous ways of beguiling the tedium of her enforced retirement. The most unique idea is to have in her cell a private telephone, by means of which she can chat with her friends whenever she pleases. Mrs. Degg appealed from her sentence and expects to be liberated soon. Having wealth and political power, she has been granted many privileges not ordinarily the lot of prisoners. They say she keeps the operator busy with her numerous calls. It is the only instance ever known where a telephone has been put in a prison cell.

Sits for Portraits.

"Miss Ethel Barrymore," said a comedian at the Players' Club, "is continually besieged by painters. And she is so gracious that sometimes she sits to indifferent artists.

This happened in Philadelphia last year. A young impressionist made a rather ghastly yellow and green portrait of Miss Barrymore.

"When it was done, he asked her to sign it and to write something or other—some little sentiment—above her signature.

"Miss Barrymore smiled as she looked at the wretched portrait, and she wrote:

"'Be not afraid; it is I.
"'ETHEL BARRYMORE.'"

Miss Bessie Blossom of Berkeley has sailed for Yokohama, where she will become the bride of Newton Knox, who is connected with a large British copper mining syndicate.

Easter Creations Already on View at Capital.

Bachelor Diplomats Running Cupid's Gauntlet.

Agitation Over "Commands" of Cabinet Ladies.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, March 19.—With Easter only a week off, it is right and mete that the flowers in Washington Park should rise from their winter bed and give some glorious indication of their intention to maintain their record as first harbingers of spring. T'was no easy task this time, with the elements against them until St. Patrick's Day, and the great spring festival of Easter due to arrive almost as early it is possible for it to come on the calendar. Indeed, for a time, it looked as if milady's spring hat—a veritable flower garden, itself—would outstrip the pansies, crocuses and tulips in blooming in the many circles of the town. Much Easter finery is already making its appearance, but it pales before the multi-colored beauties of Nature.

Already there is a reassembling of the social and official clans, and indications plainly point to a lively "small season," with rather more than the usual number of fashionable entertainments for sweet charity's sake. Furthermore, the reopening of so many of the most hospitable homes will give society delightful opportunities to cultivate the acquaintance of the new British Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, and the Spanish Minister, whose arrival here has caused quite a ripple of interest. The latter is not only the first diplomat of full rank to represent Spain at this capital since the retirement of Señor Géda, after a very brief régime, but he is a bachelor as well.

Apropos to this, is the still mooted question: "Is that government wise which sends to Washington a young bachelor diplomat, and a Minister at that?" Developments recent and of earlier date, prove that danger lurks in the atmosphere of Uncle Sam's capital city. In short, the marriageable maidens here are numerous, fascinating and wealthy withal. Time was, and that not so far distant, when foreign governments considered such temptation a serious disadvantage to Washington as a diplomatic post, and more than one young foreigner has been suddenly recalled when his attentions to some special American girl became known to his home government. But times change, and with them the policy of many, the nation most bitterly opposed to American alliances for her diplomats, represented here by an Ambassador, who, before receiving his commission, had married a member of Uncle Sam's family. The Kaiser is still further represented by three eligible bachelors, one of them being the only prince in the entire diplomatic corps entitled to be adddressed as "His Serene Highness." His colleague in the princely realm, is Prince Nicholas Koudacheff, who, within the year, succeeded the popular Theodore Hansen, as first secretary of the Russian Embassy.

Like his immediate predecessor, Prince Koudacheff is exceedingly musical, and has been a frequent contributor to the programme at Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth's regular Thursday evening recitals. These recitals, by the way, are milestones, which punctuate the musical life of the official haute monde. None but those to the manor born, and with a cultivated musical sense, are invited to attend. It follows also that only well-trained musicians and singers among the socially elect are asked to add an occasional number to the programme.

Germane to the fact that many bachelor diplomats are just now accredited to Washington, it may be interesting to point out the apparent happiness in each case where an American girl has married into the foreign diplomatic service. This is all the more conspicuous when compared with the separation, if not divorce, of those Americans who have acquired by marriage little more than a high-sounding title and a fund of bitter experience.

During the slight calm that followed in the wake of the supposedly "quiet season," official society has become a bit retrospective. It has also branched into prophecy concerning the future of the wives of certain statesmen who quitted office on March 4, as the result of altered conditions at home. Some are reasonably certain to reappear in Congressional life. Others, by reason of the age and talents of their respective husbands, are likely to cause surprise here and there.

Mr. Blackburn is 70 years old and has lost his grip on Kentucky Democracy. Hence Mrs. Blackburn was bidden farewell with a tinge of sadness as the keynote. Few of the outgoing hostesses are better known than Mrs. Blackburn, who, taking her husband's service in House and Senate together, has been an official matron for over thirty years.

An official hostess, whose régime promises more than the ordinary interest socially, is Mrs. Meyer, wife of the new Postmaster-General, who, with her two daughters, has joined Mr. Meyer at the family residence on New Hampshire avenue. Though living not so far out as Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Metcalf, the Meyers are still rather far from the center of the circle supposed to contain all of the Cabinet homes.

However, the house they have chosen, is admirably adapted to entertaining on a large scale. It is also provided with a charming music room, and the official world hopes to soon enjoy there the singing of Miss Viola Meyer, who, though glad to be again in her own country, confesses to a regret at leaving Paris and the music of the American colony there.

One of Miss Meyer's particular friends at the French capital, is Miss McEvilly of Montana, who is soon to make her début at the Opera Comique. Unlike many American girls who have sung there before having acquired some reputation as a singer in America, Miss McEvilly, left the United States with strong credentials. One of these was offered to her by Mrs. Roosevelt after her recital at the White House in November.

Saturday, April 6, has been selected as the wedding day of Miss Frances Williams and William Wallace Mein, the ceremony to take place in the afternoon at St. Thomas Church. Mr. Mein was formerly of Los Angeles and has only recently returned from a visit to his parents who still live in that city. Miss Williams, who is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Williams of this city, will have a number of bridesmaids, and the ceremony is likely to be one of the prettiest of the spring season. A small reception at the new home of the bride's parents will follow the ceremony, after which the bride and bridegroom will leave for the first stage of their long wedding journey, which is to end at Johannesburg, South Africa.

BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY.

United States History.

A HISTORY OF THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES. Vol. VI. By John Bach McMasters. D. Appleton & Co., New York. (Price, $2.50 net.)

The seventh volume of Prof. John Bach McMasters's History of the United States begins with Jackson's first message to Congress, and closes with Tyler's veto of the Fiscal Corporation Bill, in 1841. Prof. McMasters' handling of his subject is finely modern, treating it from the sociological viewpoint, giving in much pithy detail the history of important movements that affected the life and thought of the people, rather than devoting the space to bare facts and figures. It contains many new facts of the deepest interest on these points, much that bears on the progress of the negro and the advance of humane sentiment and measures, the opening up of industries that specially affected the civilization of the country, financial crises and their reasons, popular movements of various sorts, inventions. The style is clear, polished and scholarly.

As indicative of the moral status of the early part of the nineteenth century, in this country, where conditions were in a number of ways superior to those of England, were the criminal laws and the management of the prisons originated and maintained by a community that no doubt thought itself as moral and humane as does our own at the present day—our own—which is capable of quite as great grossness and cruelty, in other ways, carried with even as great a self-complacency as in those days:

"The sensitive community," says the author, "which could not gaze upon a nude statue, was indifferent to many forms of real immorality and human suffering which did not happen to be publicly displayed. Nothing called more loudly for reform than the condition of the jails, and no prisoners in them were so cruelly treated as lunatics. A careful examination by the Prison Discipline Society brought to light thirty lunatics whose condition was a disgrace to humanity. One who had been nine years in a wretched den had a wreath of rags around his body, and not another stitch of clothing. In his cell was neither chair, bed nor bench, but in one corner a heap of filthy straw like a nest of swine. In the House of Correction, so called, in a plank apartment, a lunatic had been jailed eight years. During this time he had left his room but twice, and for eighteen months the door had never been opened. Food and water was thrust through a hole in the door. When seen through this aperture, the first question was, 'Is that a human being?' The hair was gone from the side of the head, and his eyes were like balls of fire In the cellar were five lunatics, in cells six by eight feet. The darkness was such in two of them that nothing could be seen by looking through the hole in the door. In one a lunatic had been confined seventeen years, and on opening the door the cracks about it were found to be stuffed with hay to keep out the cold. In the upper story a man and woman were shut in the same cell, through the broken window of which snow was falling on the woman as she lay huddled against the wall.

"Conditions in Massachusetts were in no sense peculiar. The Bridewell, in New York, the Walnut Street Prison in Philadelphia, the Baltimore prison, the jail in Washington, and the Newgate prison in Connecticut, where an old copper mine, seventy feet under ground, was still used as night quarters, are described so late as 1827 as places of filth, vice and immorality.

"The laws for the punishment of criminals had changed but little since the century opened. Here and there traces of the barbarous code of colonial days still lingered. In Rhode Island the forger of notes, blank bills, or securities, must sit in the pillory, have a piece of each ear cut off, be branded while in the pillory with the letter C, be imprisoned six years, and fined. Like punishment awaited those who passed or had in their possession forged notes or bills, or counterfeit coin, or owned the plates and tools necessary for counterfeiting. The perjurer must be cropped, branded and pilloried for three hours; the duellist carried in a cart with a rope around his neck to the gallows, and made to sit thereon for one hour; the bigamist must be placed on the gallows with a rope about his neck fined and imprisoned; the man guilty of arson, pilloried, cropped on both ears, and branded with the letter B. In Connecticut, the woman who concealed the birth of a bastard child must, on conviction, stand on the gallows with a rope around her neck for one hour. Delaware pilloried, flogged with twenty-one, thirty-nine or sixty lashes, imprisoned, and sold her criminals for any term of years;" etc.

The book gives a particularly clear idea of the formation and divisions of parties—nearly always a subject put with some confusion because of its complexity.

Biography.

THE LIFE OF DR. SAMUEL A. MUDD; also the "Diary" of John Wilkes Booth.) Edited by his daughter, Miss Nettie Mudd. Neale Publishing Company, Washington, D. C. (Price, $2.00.)

The story of Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, who set the leg of John Wilkes Booth when the latter applied at his house on the morning after the assassination of Lincoln, is pathetically told by his daughter, with many quotations from Dr. Mudd's letters, etc. The book makes a strong case for the supposed member of the Booth conspiracy, and one closes the book with the belief in the probability of the innocence of Dr. Mudd. The law has made terrible mistakes, even in this country and even in the advanced nineteenth and twentieth centuries; and Booth's diary appears to confirm the theory of the doctor's innocence. The story is that both Booth and his companion, Merold, gave assumed names, and that Booth's boot, left in the doctor's house, was not found until after his departure, in sweeping out the room.

RELIGIOUS.

Biblical Criticism.

BIBLICAL CRITICISM. THE NEW APPRECIATION OF THE BIBLE. A study of the spiritual outcome of Biblical criticism. By Willard Chamberlain Selleck, D.D. The University of Chicago Press.

In the preface to his new book, Dr. Selleck says: "The author's aim has been to prepare a manual that might be distinctly helpful to those who desire to appropriate the best results of modern biblical scholarship." His volume is a sincere, earnest, forceful effort toward that purpose. It is at the same time tender and considerate toward the opinions of others who may not have been led along the same lines of thought as the author. He believes thoroughly in the newer views of biblical interpretation as brought out by the so-called "higher criticism."

The great danger feared by those who are not yet ready to abandon the long-established orthodox interpretation of the Bible has been that such a shaking of his present faith would plunge the devout believer into the abyss of skepticism and infidelity. Dr. Selleck recognizes this danger, and sympathetically and cautiously leads his reader along a way calculated to avoid it, quoting fact and appealing to reason as he progresses. The evident sincerity and profound faith in the scriptures which permeate the work compel the reader to give serious consideration to the evidence which leads to the ultimate conclusion that the newer and broader interpretation is the higher and better one—is, in fact, the only true one.

But the danger incurred by disturbing the old faith is, Dr. Selleck argues, more than offset by that of the alienation of educated, thinking persons by the rejection of methods of interpretation that appeal to their reason. He justly says: "No worse calamity could befall the Christian churches in our day than to lose the support of the thinking classes." "So believing," he adds, "I desire, as a reverent and glad disciple of Jesus Christ, to do what I can to avert this danger from the great institution which serves the world in His name."

The book is divided into two parts. The first part, under the general heading of "The Meaning of Biblical Criticism," treats, in successive chapters, of the history of the Bible since the completion of the canons, the traditional view of the Bible, the new view of the Old Testament, new view of the New Testament, inspiration of the Bible, divine revelation, etc. The second part, under the general head, "The Value and Use of the Bible," comprises chapters on the new appreciation of the Bible, the Bible and spiritual progress, the service of the Bible to our time, how to read the Bible, use and abuse of the Bible in the Sunday-school, the Bible in the public schools, the Bible in the home,etc.

NEW MAGAZINES.

The leader in the March Out West is an article on the "Reconstruction of San Francisco" by Edwin Emerson, Jr., giving many statistics of various sorts. Summing up on building, Mr. Emerson says: "From the time of the earthquake to the present day, over 5000 permits for permanent buildings, not including many more thousand permits for temporary structures, have been issued in San Francisco. So far $65,000,000 have been invested in this work. During this year $100,000,000 more will be spent. As a result of this work, San Francisco is growing up like a young forest springing from the base of a burnt giant redwood tree." David Starr Jordan contributed an article on "The Japanese Problem in California."

Commander Peary's articles under the heading "Nearest the North Pole," are concluded in Harper's Magazine for March, and the third of Maeterlinck's "The Intelligence of Flowers," appears. Norman Duncan contributes a story and Richard Le Gallienne a poem. Gwendolin Overton has a story, "Miss Etherington." Dr. Woods Hutchinson has a timely article on "Exercise and its Dangers."

PEOPLE AND THINGS LITERARY.

A book that is making a host of friends is Dr. Wesley Mills' "Voice Production in Singing and Speaking," lately published by the Lippincotts. Dr. Mills is both a physician and a specialist in voice culture, and he has written a book which is both scientific and practical, and which has been received most heartily by singers, teachers of singing, elocutionists and other voice users.

The Macmillan Company has just issued in this country a new collected edition of the Works of Coventry Patmore, in five volumes. Two of the volumes are devoted to the Poems, the others containing respectively, "Principle in Art and Other Essays," "Religio Poetae and Other Essays," and "The Rod, the Rood and the Flower."

An English publication is authority for the statement that John Oxenham's new story, "The Long Road," is founded on a very unusual motive, the strength of which recalls to one's mind Edward Everett Hale's "The Man Without a Country"—though it is added that there is no other resemblance between the two. It is further stated that "The Long Road" is "the story of a man's life under conditions most unusual, almost impossible—yet based on historical fact."

The Macmillan Company has in preparation a new edition of Prof. Richard T. Ely's "Outlines of Economics," extensively revised and enlarged by the author, with the assistance of Profs. Adams and Lorenz of the University of Wisconsin, and Prof. Young of Leland Stanford. The new book will be nearly twice the size of the old one. The scope, method of treatment, and general spirit of the present work will be preserved; but statistics will be continued to date, and otherwise the book will be brought abreast of the present stage of economic life and thought.

Dr. Luther H. Gulick's book, "The Efficient Life," shows the way to live in order to get the most physical satisfaction out of life while doing a real share of the world's work. The various chapters will be as follows: Speed, Life that is Worth While, Efficiency, Neck Against Collar, Fatigue, Sleep, Pain—The Danger Signal, Stimulants and Other Whips, The Bath for Body and Soul, States of Mind and States of Body, Vitality—The Armor of Offense, Waste, Exercise—Its Use and Abuse, The Business of Digestion, Meat, Drink, and the Table. The dedication is as follows: "To Theodore Roosevelt, who sometimes leads the simple life, who often leads the strenuous life, but who always leads the efficient life."

Doubleday, Page & Co. have set March 26 as the date of publication for Commander Robert E. Peary's book, "Nearest the Pole," which is the first complete story of the expedition that carried the Stars and Stripes "farthest north." The publication of this book will be an event of international importance. It will be the first complete account of one of the most notable of all Arctic successes. Special interest attaches to the volume in the fact that the introduction has been written by President Roosevelt, for whom Peary's ship was named. The Roosevelt's fight against the ice is told Roosevelt's fight against the ice told the North. The frontispiece of "Nearest the Pole" is in color and by Operti, the famous Italian artist who accompanied Peary on two expeditions and who is therefore better qualified than any one else, to do this kind of work. This picture shows the intrepid explorer at 87 deg. 6 min., the highest point ever reached by man.

H. G. Wells owes his career to a hemorrhage of the lungs. Without that he would probably be a professor of biology. At an early age he showed a desire for scientific study. He studied at the Royal College of Science, took the degree of B.Sc. at the University of London, and for several years taught biology in the University Tutorial College in Red Lion Square. He wrote a text-book on biology which attracted so much attention that it was even translated into Chinese. It seemed as if his life career was mapped out. Then came the sudden and severe hemorrhage, with its warning to give up, at least for a time, educational work, and seek something entirely sedentary. He began writing articles for the London newspapers, where his work attracted the attention of H. B. Mariott Watson. Through Mr. Watson, acquaintance was made by Wells with W. E. Henley. With such men to advise and help him, Mr. Wells's literary future was secure. He soon began to write books, and has gone on from one success to another.

THE NEW SHORT LINEN COAT

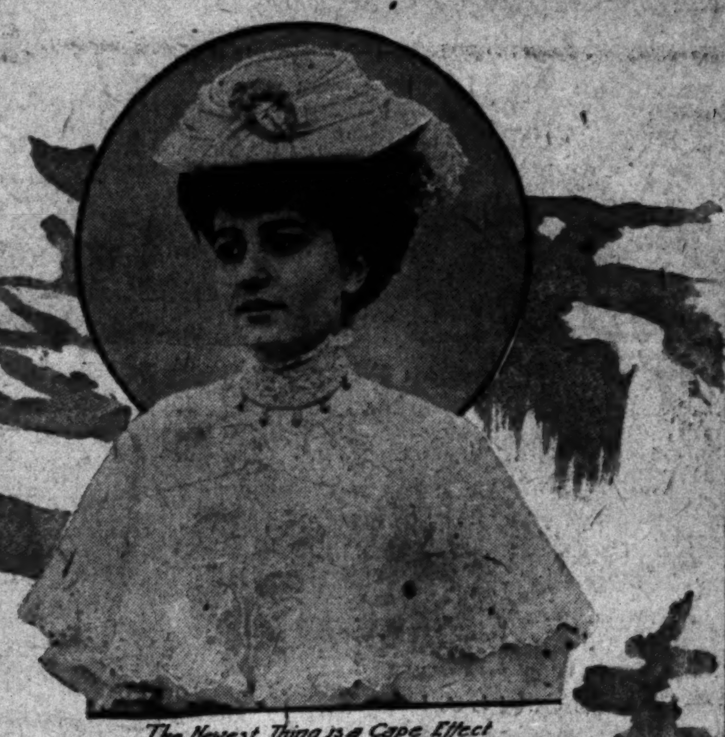
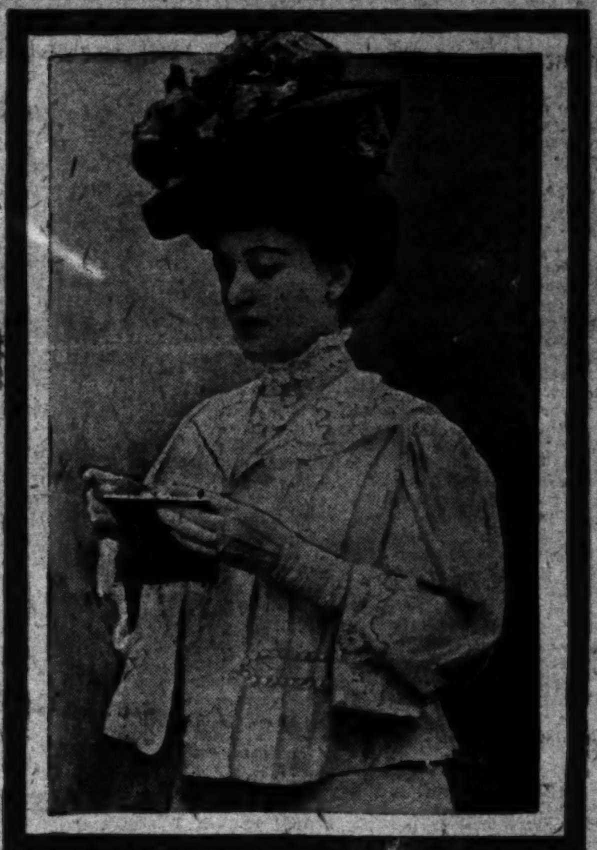
Lingerie Coat with Embroidered Linen



The Newest Thing is a Cape Effect



A Simple Model in Embroidered Linen.

A FEW seasons ago no one bothered much about the occasional coat, especially for summer. We had the coat suit, either strictly tailored or on fancy lines, and probably most women possessed a long cloak or two for carriage or evening wear; but there was little or no demand for a fancy short coat either in silk, lace or linen, that, while very dressy, could be made to do duty with many different gowns.

Nowadays, however, the fancy separate jacket has a distinct and really prominent place of its own. For afternoon and for carriage wear they are in great favor, and for use with the lingerie gown nothing quite takes their place. For the last few summers there has been a sort of unwritten law that a wrap or jacket of some kind must be worn for formal use, even in very hot weather. So great, indeed, is the success of this short separate coat that it is developed in soft broadcloth, taffeta and lace, elaborately trimmed with hand-embroidery, gold and silver galloons, jeweled buttons and rich lace medallions. These coats have no seeming connection with the gowns they cover. Often a green or blue taffeta is worn with a white skirt; black taffeta with bunches of forget-me-nots and trimmed with creamy valenciennes is worn over a pale blue batiste.

But it is, after all, the short linen coat that appeals to most women, both for its beauty and convenience. Many of them show bolero effects, others are quite cape-like, and some, indeed, are on the lines of the short mantillas worn by our mothers and grandmothers in the sixties. Often, too, these jackets have the Empire waist-line in the back, with plain or pleated loose-fitting fronts which just meet at the bust-line and fall in points several inches below the waist.

The trimmings—and most of them are almost alike as far as trimming is concerned—are of hand-embroidery, in both eyelet and solid effects, insets of heavy lace and crochet medallions, big buttons, and even combinations of colored linens. Irish crochet, both real and imitation, is the favorite lace for these jackets, though some are seen with heavy torchon.

The models shown today are so varied and up-to-date that they cannot fail to be a boon to the woman who can make her own summer gowns, or at least, have them made at home.

The little coat on the upper figure is a sheer lingerie coat of fine batiste or handkerchief linen. It is a one-piece jacket of almost kimono lines, the back reaching just to the waist-line and the fronts falling into each other in surplice effect and ending in rounded points below the waist. A French knife-pleated ruffle edged with valenciennes lace runs around the entire jacket and edges the bell sleeves. The trimming of horizontal strips of heavy net set between broad bands of hand-embroidered batiste is very rich, and the effect is further heightened by embroidered floral designs on the fronts and sleeves.

The next little jacket is less fanciful and is well-adapted for use with the separate linen skirt. It is of a heavy but fine white linen, trimmed with collars, cuffs and belts of pink linen. The jacket is made with side pleats embroidered in daisy sprays down the fronts, the hem at the bottom being finished in large coin dots. The sailor collar and shaped cuffs are of pink linen, with turnover parts of white linen embroidered with daisies and buttonholed flat to the pink. The pink linen belt, which is a little above the waist-line, has a scalloped edge and coin dots done in white mercerized cotton. The jacket is fastened with one small button at the bust-line.

Heavy white linen buttonholed in canary yellow mercerized cotton and trimmed with broad bands of hand-crochet Irish lace in the same shade of yellow forms the next striking and very new model. The heavy eyelet embroidery is also done in yellow. The coat is fastened with large crocheted rosettes, finished with danglers ending in crocheted balls. Similar tassels and rosettes trim the sleeves, and there are big crocheted buttons on the shoulders. This coat is equally charming in lavender, pale blue or pink.

A graceful coat for slender women is of heavy linen, made with one box-pleat on either side of the front and four in the back. Narrow torchon lace is used in the centre of each box-pleat, with wider torchon bands down the front and across the sleeves. Hand-embroidered dots are run up the sides of every box-pleat for about six inches, and continue around the bottom of the coat in a novel border. The collar, narrow in the back and forming lapels in front, and the turn-back cuffs are embroidered in an oak-leaf design, which also finishes the ends of the broad lace. The jacket is fastened at the bust-line with oak-leaf medallions and acorn tassels.

The last little wrap shows the quaint new cape effect, which is as convenient as it is popular. It is a circular cape cut in one piece, with a fitted six-point collar or yoke fastening to one side of the front and attached to the cape with a linen cord. The torchon lace inserts on the collar and down the fronts are of Alice blue put in with white buttonholing. The cape is edged with a white buttonholed scallop, while the pointed dot trimming is in the Alice blue. Such little capes are also shown in pink, lavender and blue.

EACH AND ALL SOCIETY

CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK, PRESIDENT

Mrs. Herrick Chats About the Great Stimulus of Work

"DON'T you think, Mrs. Herrick, that it is almost a necessity for girls of our age to have plenty of occupation? I find it so in my case. Unless I have something to look forward to, I'm 'blue as indigo.'"

This is taken from a letter I received a while ago from one of the girls, and it has set me to thinking pretty hard.

I must say I sympathise a good deal with the girl. Most of us do, I fancy. Perhaps there may be girls of other nationalities who are satisfied with a sort of day-in, day-out routine, but I don't believe you will find many American girls like that. They are eager to be up and doing, and, as this correspondent says, to have something to look forward to. I plead guilty to the same complaint. Ever since I was conscious, as a child, of the terrible "slump" that came after Christmas, when the great day to which all my expectations had been turned for so long, had come and gone, I have tried to plan to have something ahead of any big pleasure that lay before me, so that when that was over there would be something left to go on with.

If we took a vote of all the girls I believe we would find that they feel the same way—at least ninety-five out of every hundred. And I don't see any particular harm in it, unless you insist upon having the wrong sort of thing to look forward to.

By the word "wrong" I don't mean anything sinful, as a matter of course. But it is almost as bad as a sin if a girl cannot be happy unless she lives in a rush of excitement and seeks her pleasure regardless of the comfort and convenience of others. When, however, a girl guards the point as is done by the girl whose letter opens my talk, the case is different. She says she likes plenty of occupation. And when she puts it in that way she shows her good sense. Occupation is what we all need, and that is, after all, what brings most pleasure, if the occupation is wisely chosen.

PLEASURE BRINGS REACTION

I wonder how many of you girls are too young to know the abiding comfort there is in work. That is the sort of thing I plan for when there is pleasure ahead that is likely to bring a reaction with it. I say to myself, "There will be that big batch of letters to be answered to-morrow." Or else it will be, "There are letters to be read and edited and put in shape for printing on the page that will mean long, hard work!" Then I feel the comfortable sense of satisfaction that comes with nothing else so much as with good, hard work. Are there not some of you who know it, girls?

Work is, in fact, to my mind, the best refuge in all cases. If you are unhappy or blue, think of something to do and go and do it and you will find you have forgotten half your woes, or else that you can bear them with more courage. Try it, and see if I am not right.

A striking illustration of this sort of thing was presented to me the other day in the case of a dear friend whose father had died after a long and trying illness. The daughter, a woman of about thirty, had been off in the country with him on a farm. They were near enough the city to have medical attendance, but all the work of the place devolved upon the daughter, for close economy was necessary.

"I have done a man's work this winter," she told me. "I have sawed wood and carried it in, I have drawn water, washed and ironed and baked and done all the nursing of my father as well. And I have never been better physically in my life."

At the end of several months' illness the father died. He was all she had in the world, and the bond between them had been close and tender. When I went to her after his death I found her sad, but plucky and strong as ever.

"I shall keep on with the farm," she said. "The only thing that saves me is the thought that I have to work. I don't know how I could live if I once stopped to mourn over the past or to look forward to the future. But I have all I can do to support myself and to make a little provision for my old age, and I can go on a day at a time without looking ahead beyond the present needs."

That is the only way to do, girls. Go on with your work, and keep up your courage as you go.

But do some of you say, "That is all very well for those who are older, but girls want a little fun"?

Bless your hearts, of course you do! And I would be the last one to grudge it to you. I approve with all my heart of planning ahead for fun as well as for work, so long as you care for it. I am not a bit one of the "all-work-and-no-play" variety. I think it makes Jill a dull girl, as well as renders Jack a dull boy. But I have found by long experience that planning for fun or amusement, with no thought of work, or thinking of your own happiness with no reflection as to what you can do for the enjoyment of others, is a good deal like planning and eating a dinner composed entirely of sweets. Did you ever try it? Or if not exactly that, haven't you eaten a lot of sweet stuff a little before meal time so that you had no appetite for good, solid food? If so, you know the mean, sick feeling you have afterward, and my idea is that you have much the same mental sensation after a period of nothing but fun. I feel in the same way when I have been reading stories a great deal and have done no solid reading.

HAVE SOMETHING PLEASANT AHEAD

So I would say to the girls who get "blue as indigo" when they have nothing to look forward to that they should by all means keep away from that state of mind by arranging to have always something pleasant ahead. Only choose your bill of fare for living with as much judgment as a sensible person bestows upon his menu of food. Have the solids as well as the sweets. If you have not tried it, go in for the experiment now and see if the new plan does not agree better with your mental digestion than that which you have followed hitherto.

Don't for a moment think that I mean the work to be unpleasant. I have unpleasant work as much as any one can, and although in a way it is true that the things we can do well we like to do, there are exceptions even to that rule. Take the washing of dishes, for instance. As the housekeepers say, "I don't turn my back on any one when it comes to washing dishes," so far as doing them well is concerned, but there are a great many things I would rather do than wash dishes. In point of fact, I don't like it one bit! although I try to do it well when I have to, and, of course, I make a point of conscience of doing it cheerfully. I find that when something has to be done right along one grows used to it and doesn't mind it so much.

But there is pleasant work to be done, and work for others brings a sweetness with it that equals or surpasses any pleasure you can get in any other way, to my way of thinking. That is one of the great advantages of Each and All. It supplies you with a chance to do a work that gives you happiness and brings joy to others.

With all my heart I wish that you girls who long for some occupation, something to make a variety in the days that seem burdensome and monotonous at times, would get to work and see what you can do in the way of making yourselves happy and helping others in Each and All. There is plenty for you to do. You cannot read a page of Each and All without seeing your chance waiting for you. Get to work to form a chapter or join one of the others now in existence. Do what work you can [illegible] about you. Take your pledge into your daily life, which is the place where it belongs, by the way [illegible] you for chances and plan ahead as to w[illegible] for your club in the spare time that may [illegible]. Try it, some of you girls who suffer from b[illegible] if it will not help you as it has helped others.

As [illegible], I don't know anything that would make me more sure of escaping the blues for the next year than to be sure of having each girl in Each and All turn in a new member to me once a week.

Christine Terhune Herrick

P. S.—Every mail brings a host of letters asking one or the other (or both) of these two questions: "How shall I address your letter?" or "How can I get a badge?"

Address all letters to me, in care of the paper in which you see our page, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish a personal answer.

For the badge—send 50 cents in stamps, registered letter or money order, made payable to me, and addressed to me in care of this newspaper.

What the Workers Are Doing and Thinking

A Spanish Study Chapter Wanted

SOME things puzzle me, and I should like to hear what the other girls think of the same things.

You asked some time ago for the girls to write and tell you what they thought of the beauty question. I think that it is utterly foolish to use the many lotions, etc., which are supposed to be guides to beauty also, and that it is foolish to be forever trying to beautify one's self. But, really, I myself would prefer to be possessed of wondrous physical beauty rather than to be talented. I think that beauty, linked with goodness and purity, has more influence in this world than great talent, such as is possessed by the master musicians, artists, etc. But circumstances sometimes alter the case entirely.

Have we a Spanish Corresponding Chapter in Each and All? I should like very much to learn Spanish if some of the girls would teach me. I could give lessons in domestic science or photography in return. Or perhaps I could return something else in the way of postals or specimens of rock or specimens of Canadian wild flowers.

ELSIE (Hamilton, Can.).

More about the beauty question. Have any other girls further opinions on it? And how about a chapter for the study of Spanish?

One of the Busiest of Girls

You must excuse me for not sending for a badge, or not saying what I intended to do to live up to my pledge. I do not have much time, as I have to rise at 5.30 and get breakfast, as my mother has been ill. I have to be at work at 7 o'clock, and have to walk thirteen long squares to work, and have to work to 6 o'clock. In the evenings I go to church, as I am interested in church work.

I would like to have a correspondent of my own age—18. I am very lonely. I would like to hear from some one interested in music and dancing. I am just learning to play the piano, and I would like to learn how to dance. I gather children from the streets and make them go to their church. If I could help any one, I would do all in my power to accommodate her.

MARY R. (Philadelphia, Pa.).

A letter like this takes my breath away! Busy! I should think so. It puts to shame some of us who consider our hands overfull of work. I hope "Mary R." will find time to go to our club rooms and have pleasure and company there.

Two Fine Offers

I am a graduate nurse, and am married, so cannot go out on a case all the time, but will be willing to give my time free, from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M., to nurse any sick member of Each and All. Or, I will call upon the sick and read to them. I am also a fine needleworker and will give lessons in art needlework.

ELIZABETH W. S. (Philadelphia, Pa.).

These are generous offers, and will, I know, be appreciated by all who read them.

Of Interest to Young Mothers

I do hope, as you say, the cold weather will bring more members to the Mothers' Chapter, for I am sure there are mothers in the club who could be benefited by the Mothers' Chapter if they would only join.

Mrs. F. J. M. (Los Angeles, Cal.).

There are such possibilities of mutual helpfulness in the Young Mothers' Chapter that I wish with all my heart more of our members would join it, determined to do their share of correspondence.

A Birthday Quilt

I would like to exchange quilt blocks with Each and All girls, mine to be bleached muslin, 6 by 6, worked in red silk, with name, address and date of birth.

A WESTERN GIRL (Ventura, Cal.).

Will some of the girls help "A Western Girl" to get her birthday quilt?

The Church-Going Question

You speak of girls going to church, and I would like to say something about it. I happen to be one of your many salesgirls, one of six weeks' experience, but in that time I have learned the consideration due them. Last night we worked till 10 o'clock. Of course, that's not late, but, considering that one has to be on her feet from 7, almost anybody would find it tiresome. To me it is doubly so, as my former work for three years past required sitting. This morning I rolled the question around in my mind quite a long time before I finally concluded to go to church, for my feet ached so badly. Finally I went, was at Sunday school at 2 o'clock, stayed for practice at 3 until half-past 4, just returned, and must start out again at half-past 6.

L. B. J. (Shamokin, Pa.).

We have spoken on this matter of churchgoing for busy girls before, but I would like to hear from more of them on the subject. How do you manage it, you girls who work hard all the week?

Recipes and a Quilt

I see by the page a number are collecting stamps. I have a few foreign ones I will be glad to exchange.

I have been much interested in reading on the Each and All page what you say about forming a Recipe Exchange Chapter. I have a lot of nice recipes, and am making a book of recipes cut from the paper. Perhaps I could help some one in that way.

I have not lost my interest in my Each and All quilt, but am sorry to say it does not progress as rapidly as I would like. I keep up my courage, however.

BROWNIE (Charlestown, Mass.).

Where are all the quiltmakers? There are certainly enough to meet all requirements.

Two Fancy Work Suggestions

I send some fancy work suggestions that may be of use: A ball of red string, costing 5 cents, has rolled around it a stiff paper—the ends left open. Then red crape paper is placed around this, allowing the end of string (taken from the centre of the ball) to hang out at one end. These ends are then tied with narrow green ribbon, allowing the crape paper to frill at each end. The whole costs about 13 cents. A 15-cent roll of paper makes at least six.

Ordinary coathangers may be purchased for 5 cents, and the wire covered plain, with silk and cotton batting inside, and the whole finished with bows of ribbon; or the silk can be cut twice as long as the hanger and the edges gathered. A frill of lace can be added to the edge, and sachet powder sprinkled over the cotton batting if desired.

QUEEN BESS (Wayne, Pa.).

Our fancy workers who are always on the lookout for suggestions will be glad of the foregoing.

OBJECTS AND AIMS OF EACH AND ALL

PERHAPS some of you, seeing this page for the first time, wonder just what the Each and All Society really is; what there is about its aims and objects to create so widespread an interest among "young girls of all ages."

The society was founded in February, 1905, with Christine Terhune Herrick for its president, and with an almost instant membership of girls in nearly every State in the Union and in Canada.

Its object is to help girls help themselves by developing their talents into something the world wants; to solve difficult problems—the sort a girl wants a calm, unbiased, out-of-the-family opinion upon—and to promote the exchange of general help.

Any girl may belong. There is no red tape about it. The sending of your name for membership gives you the range of every opportunity the society boasts. And Mrs. Herrick stands ready to welcome, to advise and to help.

Tired Out and Discouraged

Maybe I am too old to join Each and All. I am past 50. I am a stranger here, and very lonely. I came from the East about thirteen months ago. I have seen some pretty hard times since I came West. We had a little ready money left after paying our fare here, but that was all gone several months ago. We found a little place to live in the country, about twelve miles from Los Angeles. I am a shut-in in one way, as I cannot go anywhere. I am so stiff and lame I can hardly walk, and I am a cripple in my right hand—can close it only just enough to enable me to hold a pen to write, and I can't write very well. I get so tired out trying to do what work I have to do that I get discouraged sometimes.

I never had even one postcard in all my life, and never saw but three. Those were pretty, in colors. I would like one leather postal card from some of the sisters, for I never saw one.

I. F. T. (Gardena, Cal.).

Won't some of our girls who are in the cheering-up work write for the address of this lonely member? I don't wonder she is discouraged.

Another Seeker for the Badge

I wear my pin where it can be seen, and have never seen one pin yet except my own. What is the matter with the girls? Doesn't it say for us to wear them where they can be seen? Ought not we to take that obligation when we become members?

R. R. (Middleboro, Mass.).

Where are you, badge wearers? Can't we hear from some of those who have noticed the bee pin on others? Surely there must be some of them somewhere.

Wishes to Earn Money

Will you put my name on the Correspondence and Postcard Exchange, and also state that I have a new pattern sofa pillow, which I will make—just the top—for $1? I am very much in need of money, having two small children. I would like to earn some money for an Each and All pin. I am anxious to have a card from every State in the Union. I should be very glad to join a Recipe Exchange Chapter, as I am always glad to get new ideas about cooking.

BESSIE (North Berwick, Maine).

The chairman of our Domestic Science Chapter is trying to collect recipes for an Each and All Cook Book, and would no doubt be glad to exchange with "Bessie." There are others who can offer directions for cookery, as see below.

Offer of Recipes

I am 20 years of age, and have kept house for my father and five brothers and sisters since my mother died, four years ago. I think I could help in exchanging recipes and household hints with any member who might desire it.

M. H. (East Cambridge, Mass.).

Here is some one ready to exchange recipes.

Still Another Quiltmaker

I am much interested in making an Each and All souvenir quilt. If any girls are interested in the same, I would be very much pleased to hear from them. I have sixteen "patches" from Each and All girls, and am anxious to get enough to finish my quilt.

DIXIE (Pittsburg, Pa.).

And here is yet another would-be quiltmaker. Awhile ago there were dozens of them, and in imagination I saw half the society sleeping under Each and All quilts. Are they going to work off their energy in writing about it?

Who Wants Poems?

I will take pleasure in finding such poems as any of the girls may wish.

"DEWY ROSE" (Taunton, Mass.).

Constantly requests come to me for special poems. Will those who are in search of such send a stamped and self-addressed envelope to me for the address of "Dewey Rose"?

even if she was sleek and well she was a conscientious old cat. And she did not consider that her duty was done when she had merely played "going to bed" in the children's matinee once a week.

So when, this night of the new opera, she suddenly perceived what she believed to be a host of her natural foes in the very act of audaciously trespassing on the stage, she gave a piercing "Mi-au!" of indignation, leaped down to the stage from her favorite corner in the wings and, to the unbounded amusement of the audience, fastened her claws into one of the counterfeit rats.

In a twinkling she discovered, of course, that she had been fooled, but she never "turned a hair," beating her retreat with all the majesty of a well-born, self-respecting tabby.

The audience howled with delight, and gave her such an enthusiastic recall that finally one of the actors brought her out to acknowledge the applause.

THIS is gardening made easy:

Each of the players is asked in turn what was planted in his garden, and what came up.

Articles planted may be of any description, but must come up plants of some kind whose names have some punning connection with the articles planted.

Second Player—I planted the United States and it came up a motor carnation (car nation).

Third Player—I planted a calendar and it came up dates.

Fourth Player—I planted a ship and it came up a dock.

Fifth Player—I planted an old coat and it came up firs (furs).

Sixth Player—I planted a watch and it came up four o'clock.

Seventh Player—I planted a pert young miss and she came up a wallflower.

Eighth Player—I planted some steps and they came up hops.

Ninth Player—I planted an Irishman and he came up a potato.

Bird That Fishes

ONE of the most interesting objects in the London Zoo today is—what do you suppose?

Why, a baby fishing cormorant. The bird was caught early in the spring by a young Scotsman, and he taught it this useful accomplishment.

Now, don't you wonder how he taught it to be so clever? because you'd think—wouldn't you?—that it would eat all the fish it caught.

Well, he just put a ring round its neck so that it couldn't swallow, and sent it into the sea off the coast of Scotland—and there it learned to fish.

The owner of this clever bird was obliged to travel, so, thinking that other people might be interested in his pet, and not quite knowing what to do with it in his absence, he took it to London, chained to his wrist like a hawk—probably some of you have seen pictures or prints of people hawking in the olden times, with the hawk attached to the wrist by a chain, resting on the back of their hand?—and left it at the zoo.

THE CORMORANT

Don't you hope it will settle down quite happily and that it will show off its accomplishment in its new home—the fish-house—next time any of us go there?

Dan Deegan and the Boys Parade.

HALLOWS had always been considered the most aristocratic suburb of the great city, and the house occupied by the Stillwells had always been held (though an old-fashioned house in need of repair) as the home of all that was elegant and refined.

But one terrible fall day (terrible I mean for the prim inhabitants of Hallows) the Stillwells removed to the city, sold their house and an Irish family moved in.

Unlike the usual Irish family, there was only one child, a boy, and, of course his name was Dan—Dan Deegan.

Dan was a sociable little fellow, with blue eyes, a snub nose and, of course freckles. His hair, though, luckily, was not red. He was singing from morning till night, and apparently hadn't a mean hair in his black head. The first day he went to the village school attested this, for he had his pockets full of candy, cookies and other things, which he tried to give to his schoolmates. But they wouldn't take them. No, indeed! Instead of that, they quite snubbed poor little Dan, who was soft-hearted, and whose merry eyes filled with tears when he found his friendly overtures rebuffed.

He didn't give up, however, but tried and tried to be friends. He tried to get into their games, he tried to help the duller children with their lessons. But it was of no use. Even the teacher despised him, simply because he was Irish. Of course, all this couldn't happen in a large town or city, where everybody has got beyond the silly prejudices of fifty years ago. But old Hallows hadn't kept up with the times, and the people were all like so many Sleeping Beauties (only some of them weren't very beautiful) waiting for a magic prince to wake them up.

PLOTTING AGAINST DAN

At Christmas time Dan gave his teacher a fine present, much better than any of the other scholars—and dear knows how many tempting chocolate creams and popovers and marbles he went without to get it for her. But she simply said "Thank you," never opening the package in front of him, so that he might have the joy of seeing her face when she saw what was in it. In fact, she put it away in a drawer of her desk, and never opened it until a momentous occasion that I am going to tell you about.

Now, all the time that Dan had been trying so hard to be kind and sociable with the children of Hallows they had been doing everything they could to hurt his feelings, playing all sorts of practical jokes on him and letting him see eternally that he wasn't wanted.

But as the 17th of March drew near the boys got together and tried their best to think of some perfectly awful thing they could do to hurt Dan's feelings, and make him understand, once and for all, that he was not one of them.

"I have it!" cried Horace Jones. "A parade!"

"A parade?" echoed all the boys.

"Yes, a St. Patrick's parade, like the ones they have in New York. Haven't you read about them?"

"That won't bother him," said Chester Brown. "He'll think it's a compliment, and that we want to show we really like him."

Horace smiled very deeply, but shook his head.

"Leave the arrangements to me," he said, "you'll see."

On the 17th of March little Dan got up feeling very unhappy. The boys had been particularly mean to him the day before, and he remembered with longing how in the old tenement house district they had moved from, "to get a breath of God's air," as Mrs. Deegan said, he had celebrated this day with his other little snub-nosed, freckle-faced friends. He had his green flag yet, and he took it out of the sacred place where he kept such things, and looked lovingly at it. Memories of the happy days when he had marched around and around the alley with that flag at the head of the procession floated over him and made him smile, so that not uncheerily he finished his dressing and went to school.

ST. PATRICK'S PROCESSION

As he neared the little wooden house he began to feel that there was a difference; the door was shut tight, the window shades were down, and, yes, he looked closer, but it was true, there was a green flag over the schoolhouse door and on the door itself a huge placard, white with green letters, which read, "Closed on acount of the death of St. Patrick; funeral services from the house of Dan Deegan at 9.30 sharp."

Such a bewildered little boy you never saw. What did they mean by funeral services? Why the blessed Saint had been buried hundreds of years ago, he was sure. It must be a joke, another of those terrible jokes, and his first impulse was to run home and tell mother everything, and weep it all out in her arms. But the second clause in that placard came back to him. "Funeral services from the house of Dan Deegan at 9.30 sharp." It was after 9 now, whatever they were going to do, they must be beginning. So he walked back very cautiously and quietly, and from behind a big tree he watched his own house.

He had been right in his guess. The boys had already gathered about a hundred yards from his house, nearly every one of them dressed in green, and all carrying banners, which were too far off for Dan to read, but which he felt were just as unkind as the sign on the schoolhouse door. It seemed to Dan as he remembered that sign that he had only just realized how much his teacher disliked him, as otherwise she would never have consented to help the boys with their practical joke.

They had a sort of a band, too, Dan could make that out. One boy had a drum, another a pretty poor specimen of a fife, and another a trumpet. From his tree Dan could see them getting into line as for a procession, and starting with their banners toward his house. When they got near enough the band began to play and the other boys to sing, "The Wearing of the Green."

At least, Dan thought it must be that, but it didn't sound much like it. Dan had a great ear for music, and a very sweet and strong soprano voice. The discordant noises the boys were making grated most dreadfully on his ears, and he longed to show them how the tune really went.

In the meantime Mrs. Deegan had heard the strains of the song and come to the front door to see what it was. Her eyesight was none of the best, and she had not learned to read English with all the fluency that Dan had. So the joke end of the procession was lost on her, and the patriotic feeling it stirred in her caused her to shout at the top of her voice, "Hooray for Ireland!"

Above the heads of the procession far down the street the cry was borne to Dan's ears, and instantly, without thinking, he had echoed it.

The procession, a bit astonished by this reception of their joke, kept on its way, still murdering the lively tune of "The Wearing of the Green." They had nearly reached Dan now, who, suddenly, to every one's astonishment, jumped from his hiding place, ran to the first boy, snatched from his hand a great green flag he was carrying, and, placing himself at the head of the procession, proceeded, with all the power that was in him, to sing "The Wearing of the Green." Unconsciously the musicians altered their time, wavered and died away, but Dan marched on with his banner, singing and singing till it seemed as if his little throat would break.

THE TABLES TURNED

The astonished procession, meanwhile, didn't know what else to do with their joke but to follow on; and so they paraded all through the streets of the village, and the mothers and sisters, who had been let into the secret of the great joke, didn't know what to think when they saw Dan there at the head of the procession and the band feebly trying to follow the musical air he was singing.

At last the procession wound back again to the house where Dan lived, and now another surprise awaited the jokers.

Mrs. Deegan appeared at the door, and, with much laughter and talking, seized every boy of them and brought them all into her house, where in the dining room they found a feast spread for them. Mrs. Deegan had taken the parade as a sign on the part of the boys of wishing to make up to her son for the mean jokes they had played on him, and she had hurried right back as soon as the procession had passed out of sight, put her washing away and spread the dainties on the table that simply made the boys stare.

Grown-ups in Hallows were not used to doing much for the younger population in the way of spreading feasts for them, and each boy knew that if he went home to lunch he would get nothing but a cold slice of the meat they had had the night before.

Horace Jones was particularly fond of good things to eat, and he saw no help for it but to appear as if he had meant all the kind things that Mrs. Deegan and Dan assumed he had meant all along. So as soon as he had sized the table up, he turned to the other boys, hid the banners which had the worst inscriptions on them, and shouted, "Boys, give three cheers for Mrs. Deegan and Dan."

In the meantime, Miss Harkins, the schoolteacher, had come to feel a little qualmish about the permission she had given the boys to lock the schoolhouse up for the morning, and shortly before lunch she decided to walk down that way and see what was going on. When she saw the placard on the door she was very angry, for she had not intended anything like that. She tore it off, went into the schoolhouse and sat down at her desk for a few minutes, thinking it over. Somehow kinder thoughts of little Dan came into her mind this morning than usually dwelt there, and presently she found herself thinking of the Christmas present he had given her. She thought, of course, it was dreadful trash of some sort, but she decided to open and throw it away while the boy was not around to see her do it.

DAN HAD REMEMBERED

But when she opened the package she did not throw it away. It was something that she had some weeks before Christmas spoken of as wanting. And little Dan had remembered! All the others had forgotten, but he had remembered. Like a shot she was out of the schoolhouse and up the road to Dan's house.

The sounds of mirth which met her ears as she neared the door puzzled her. What had the joke turned out to be, after all? But at last she rang and was admitted by Mrs. Deegan.

That good woman almost embraced her in her enthusiasm. It was all right, at last, for little Dan, even the schoolteacher had come to show her change of heart, and Mrs. Deegan, with her big generous Irish nature, quickly overlooked the past, and ushered her into the room where the boys sat.

"Mrs. Deegan," said Miss Harkins, as soon as she could speak for the noise, "I want to tell you about Dan. I want to tell you that he is the best boy in my school, the most studious, the best behaved and the most generous, and that," she paused and looked the now humbled jokers over very carefully, "the other boys are agreed that he is the nicest playfellow they have in the village."

It only took the boys one minute to understand their teacher, and it also gave them an opportunity for some more of those ear-piercing shouts which had been so frequent that morning.

JEAN RIDDELL.

Willy, the Eagle Hunter

A DARING FEAT

WILLY'S GREAT EAGLE

WHO IS the bravest man in the world?

Well, that's a hard question to answer, isn't it, boys? So much depends!

But suppose we ask who is the most daring man in the world? One might say the Arctic explorer, another might say the African lion hunter, and so on. But I rather think you had not thought of another fellow—the eagle hunter of the Alps. Ah, but he is a daring man! And he is so used to running risks that he actually thinks nothing of it.

One of the greatest eagle hunters in Switzerland is Willy Amrhein. A man who went with him on one of his eagle hunts (and Willy, by the way, makes a specialty of capturing young eagles alive) has written the following account of the day's experience:

We started long before dawn, for we had a long and arduous climb to make, over colossal rocks, dangerous glaciers and yawning abysses, before we could hope to reach the eyrie heights where the eagles nest.

At last we reached a cliff where Willy halted the party and bade us hush, while he crept to the edge, and leaning cautiously over, scanned the shelf of rock at some distance below.

An uplifted finger both warned and beckoned us. With infinite care we crept to the edge and looked down. There was a nest with a couple of eagles just the age to have shed their white baby down and begin to put on soft feathers. Beside the nest, on the sun-warmed shelf of rock, stood the mother eagle, performing her morning toilet. It was a charming sight! But we had work before us, and alas! had one cruel thing to do!

While the rest of us held him, Willy aimed carefully. Crack! went the gun, and zip! flew the bullet straight to the eagle's heart. She leaped far out in air, gave her wings a mighty flap, then sank straight as a plumb line out of sight into the ravine below.

"Wait here for me," commanded Willy, and he descended as rapidly as he could in the right direction as noticed by his practiced eye. After a time he returned with a broad smile on his face.

"She's a bird, indeed!" said he; "seven feet, if she's an inch, from tip of wing to tip of wing."

After this came the daring work. Having found a suitable ledge overhanging the nest, Willy directed us in arranging some heavy logs as a sort of crane or support for a long pole, from the further end of which he had suspended a stout pulley, and from the pulley hung a long and very strong double rope, to each end of which a sack of rocks was attached.

A set of signals having been arranged between us, he now descended the mountain to a ledge which was about fifty feet below the nest, preferring to ascend from there rather than descend from where we were, for we were fully seventy-five feet above the nest.

Removing one of the sacks of rock and carefully fastening into its place a rude sort of seat, with a stout, sharp alpen hook in hand, and a couple of sacks in which to place the young eagles, he gave the signal and we from above began to pull him up in air.

Slowly, jerk by jerk, we fetched him up through the fifty feet of perilous ascent. When he got fairly swung out in air, we could see the rope begin to swing around in a circle. It was all Willy could do, by means of his alpen hook, to keep his body from striking against the jagged rocks. One mistake might have cost [illegible]. But no mistake was made, for our man's name was Willy Amrhein.

When he found himself close to the level of the nest he signaled "stop," and as the rope swung him to, he caught the ledge with his hook, drew close and gathered in the eaglets one by one, with infinite care. Then, with a signal "down," he gently let go and started on the even more perilous descent, and the farther down he went the larger circles the rope described, and the more he was in danger of being smashed against the jutting rocks. He descended in safety at last (for to us those minutes of peril seemed hours) and before long, having recovered the dead eagle, we were on our way down to the valley with the live young eagles.

Why the Boy Didn't Go.

Congressman Champ Clark, of Missouri, has a very bright and precocious son named Bennett, who is about 12 years of age. The boy, like many other sons of members of the House, is apt to be on the floor when it is announced that his father will speak.

One day Champ Clark made a set speech, and it was quite a creditable effort, winning for him praise from both sides of the House. But Bennett wasn't there that day. The next time he showed up he was asked to explain his absence.

"Oh, pshaw," replied the lad, "I heard that speech no less than three times when mamma was teaching it to him at home. What did I want to hear it again for?"

All of which goes to show that statesmen will occasionally rehearse at home

Home-Made Fountain

A TINY STREAM OF WATER

OF COURSE you all like fountains. Aren't they attractive and cool on a hot summer's day, though? Next summer, of course, you will see them in the parks. But in the meanwhile you can easily make one of your own, if you wish. Follow these directions:

Take a perfumery bottle or something similar, get a good cork half an inch thick or less, and make a hole through it. Put a straw through the hole, so that one end nearly touches the bottom of the bottle, and the other is just above the top of the cork.

Place a piece of blotting paper on a plate. Fill the bottle with water and stand it upon the blotting paper. Now get a big glass jar, warm it, and quickly turn it upside down over your small bottle, pressing it down upon the blotting paper with your hand.

In a few moments you will see a tiny stream of water shoot up from the bottle, right up to the top of the jar, and this will continue until the bottle is almost empty.

Try it.

Cunning Sayings

BEFORE THEY GO TO MARKET.

Little Irene, who had just moved to the country from the city of New York, was sitting on the porch with her brother Edgar. They had never seen lightning bugs before, so they were surprised when they saw several bugs flying and lighting in the air.

"They are bugs," cried Edgar.

"No, they're not," declared Irene, "they're matches in the air!"

AN ADJUSTABLE PERSONALITY.

Little Ian was trying to dress himself after his bath. He got his shirt on front side behind. Looking ruefully down at himself, he said:

"Guess I'd better turn myself around so my shirt will button in front."

ENOUGH TO RAISE A BUILDING.

A small boy, after watching some builders making mortar, said:

"My! What a lot of dough you make."

GRANDMOTHERLY CARE.

One day a little boy went out in the country to visit his grandmother. That evening Grandma picked a chicken.

"Oh, Grandma!" the little boy exclaimed, "do you undress your chickens every night?"

UNCOMPLAINING MARTYRS.

Early in the autumn, little Clara was observing the change in color the leaves were undergoing.

"Poor little leaves!" she sighed, after a time. "They kept me from getting tanned all summer long, and now they're getting all sunburned themselves."

A HAPPY COMBINATION.

While 4-year-old May was at the dinner table her mother asked, "Don't you wish for any potatoes and meat?"

"No," May replied.

"Why, where is your appetite?"

"Oh, Jane will bring it in with the pudding," answered May.

How to Make a Compass

Here is an apparatus—very simple—which a boy fixed up the other day, just to see if he could make a home-made compass.

The frame is constructed of wood, and what wire is used is non-electric conducting. The needle is a plain piece of steel magnetized.

It makes a first-class compass.

Fashionable Water Promenade, the Canal

THERE was many a Nero to fiddle—figuratively—when the city of Bangkok, Siam, was visited, recently, by a $3,000,000 conflagration. Only, unlike the Roman Emperor, these fiddlers—residents of the afflicted city—made merry, not because of the suffering entailed, but for the good which the fire augured.

That fire made of the Siamese capital less a city of contrasts by $3,000,000 than it had been; but still it remains, of all the world, the place where the primitive and the modern are most strikingly displayed, side by side.

Partly, it is twentieth century—as much so as anything in the East—and cheek by jowl with this modern advancement, jostling it at every turn, is the backward stage of the uncouth water-dwellers, as if untouched by the civilization with which they come in contact daily, scarcely more advanced than they were 4000 years ago.

The European quarters, business houses, royal palaces, clubs and residences of the wealthier classes are extremely modern; telephone lines meet the demands of the day, trolley cars glide through the streets, and this part of Bangkok is up to date—and only a few blocks away from the semi-civilization of ages ago.

---

TRAVELERS are going to Bangkok in constantly increasing numbers every year. They are so delighted with the general excellence of its architecture and the quaintness of its thoroughfares—of the modern section of the city—that they have long, by common consent, called it "the Venice of the East."

Almost all the streets are traversed by canals and arroyos, which form a delightful prospect for those residents of means whose magnificent dwellings nod to one another across the pretty waterways.

But on those same Venetian streets a little farther away, and on the river, on rafts, because they cannot afford a rood of ground upon which to live as man is intended to live—in such primitive fashion reside three-quarters of the population.

The anomaly is the more mystifying in view of the fact that Bangkok is the chief city of Siam in every respect—chief port, chief commercial centre, centre of the government and principal residence of the King and royal family. To the royal palace no architectural wonder executed in the days of the Barmecides could be fittingly compared.

Situated on a bend of the river, hemmed in by its great walls, the structure may be seen from far and wide, its minarets and cornices gleaming with fairy-like splendor.

To him who is fortunate enough to penetrate those walls the various Ministry buildings, the royal library and the Buddhist temple, each a gem of the builder's art in itself, enhance greatly the general effect of sumptuousness.

There are other structures almost as grand.

Yet in the whole of Bangkok there is not a single attempt at a drainage system—all the filth and muck accumulated from any cause—from the royal palace as well as the homes of the lowly—is dumped into those canal streets, to be either left, a deadly microbe dispenser, on the bed of the stream, or to be carried out with the tide.

One would think such a place must be a veritable plague spot, but here the anomaly comes in again; for, notwithstanding that plague has every year assumed epidemic form at Hong Kong, a seven-days steamer distance, no case, so far as is known, has got beyond the Bangkok quarantine station.

Outside of those travelers who are impressed principally by the picturesque, Bangkok is known to the world as the greatest rice city in the world. You may have eaten some rice pudding for dinner yesterday or bought a pound at your grocery for 10 cents and thought it very good for the price, never dreaming that for the price you paid for it a man in the rice field where it was grown had worked almost a whole day.

The house of such a laborer is a bamboo structure, and generally consists of one room about ten feet square, sometimes divided by a low partition. On the floor of this room he and his wife and family cook, eat and sleep. What this means when a family numbers eight or ten may be imagined.

Clothing is most meagre—a cloth around the loins, no shoes, seldom a head covering. Sometimes the women manage to get a piece of cloth to wear about the breast.

Largely on account of the cramped way of living and the lack of physical comforts is the fact that the death rate among the poor of Bangkok is tremendous.

Even the entrance to Bangkok is forbidding; sunken junks and other obstructions, placed there to keep out an enemy, block the way after one passes Cape Liant in the Gulf of Siam, which is north of the China Sea. So little has the government seemed to care for shipping business that it has neglected to provide adequate lighthouse service.

Of all the population, those who dwell in the floating houses are the least progressive. They are Asiatic, but many tongues are heard among them.

The coolies, boat builders, carpenters and sawyers are Chinese; so are most of the market gardeners, smiths and tradesmen.

Malays, Annamites and Siamese do most of the fishing, and the Malays extensively cultivate padi and work the machinery of the mills.

The Javanese are gardeners, the Bombay men are merchants, the Tamils, cattlemen and shopkeepers; the Burmese, gem dealers and country peddlers; the Singalese, goldsmiths and jewelers, and the Bengalis are the tailors.

Hand to mouth is the rule of living among all these lower tribes. They keep close to the water, and appear as satisfied with a bare living, without considering clothes or higher amusements, as the alligators which splash here and there in the muddy water, always ready to gobble up a child when one misses its balance and falls from a houseboat, or to nip off a man's arm if he venture to stick it in the water.

You may leave this primeval scene, and in a minute or two find yourself in consular Bangkok, where fair-sized verandahed houses, flagstaffs, tennis lawns and shade trees, with well-dressed men, women and children, make it seem a part of another world. Consular Bangkok prefers to know nothing of that other Bangkok, and quite well succeeds.

And there are worse Bangkoks than that of the port. To reach one of them, the traveler drives along an unutterably filthy road, which is made terribly malodorous by dead dogs, diseased Chinamen and polluting sewers—the open sewers which are expected to carry the filth to the canal, but do not except after a hard rain.

Go a little further on, and you are in Siamese Bangkok, cleaner, healthier, where the people are fond of bathing and whitewash gives an impression of cleanliness.

Palace of the King

Yet so slow to improve themselves are the Siamese, as well as the other Asiatics among them, that the government could never have advanced as far as it has but for the large number of Europeans who have been appointed to the various departments of the civil service and to the failings of some of these Europeans may be due much of the trouble into which the country has fallen.

To show that the King of Siam has seriously tried to elevate the standards in his dominion, it may be cited that in 1892 he created in addition to the old Council of State, a Council of Ministers, of twelve members, mostly heads of departments, composed of his relatives and a few of the higher nobles, and named the chief ones Departments of the Foreign Office, the Army, the Navy, the Public Works, Agriculture, Justice, Education and Finance.

The navy is a very capable organization, but the military instinct of the people has been wholly squelched, and they prefer death itself rather than serving in the army. A Danish officer has for years done practically all the drilling that is done in the army, for the native officers are apathetic.

His Majesty, Chulalongkorn, has about [illegible] wives, and every Siamese mother and father would sacrifice every other aim in life to that of having a daughter admitted to the harem, this in spite of the fact that thereafter only the King has the right to speak to them.

Should a woman of the seraglio become engaged in an adventure, she is sewed up in a leather bag, alive, and is thrown into the river. If her accomplice be of noble family, he is given the privilege of being beaten to death with a sandalwood rod; if a mandarin of low degree, or a man of the people, he is impaled on a spear point and left as a dreadful example for his kind.

In the temple to Budda there is seen the highest accomplishment of the Eastern architect's ingenuity. One of the things that seem out of place to the Westerner is the prevalence of silver cuspidors in every part of the temple. This is a concession to the people, who cannot refrain from chewing betelnuts even while prostrating themselves in prayer.

Of all the disreputable streets in the city the worst is Talat, the market place, which is too narrow to admit of the passage of a handcart, and the slippery pavement of which is covered with a coating of vicious black mud.

Here one finds himself surrounded by opium dens, theatres, coolies and the sound of petards and tomtoms. Famished curs bark furiously and bite at European legs; lepers pass unheeded among the crowd.

No other city anywhere is full of such violent contrasts.

POMONA WINS TRACK MEET.

Ten Points Ahead of Rival U.S.C. Aggregation.

Three Intercollegiate Records Are Broken.

Johnson Runs the Two-Mile in Fast Time.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, Mar. 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Pomona, 54; U.S.C., 44; Occidental, 20; Whittier, 4.

In the most exciting and most closely contested field meet ever held in Southern California, Pomona College defeated all her rivals and won the intercollegiate track championship of Southern California.

The winning team broke three records and equaled another, while U.S.C. broke another, and Occidental beat the so-called record relay time of U.S.C.

In the high hurdles W. Spurgeon lowered his own mark of 16s. to 15 4-5s., and in the low hurdles equaled his own time of 25 2-5s., which stands as the Coast record.

Himrod broke his record of 4m. 40s. made in the U.S.C.-Pomona meet for the mile, crossing the finish in 4m. 32 2-5s., twenty-five feet ahead of Mills of Whittier.

In the fastest two miles ever run in an intercollegiate meet in California, Johnson made a new Coast record of 10m. 17 4-5s., breaking the former record by 1 1-5s.

In the high hurdles Spurgeon was an easy victor and cleared all but two of his flights. Comstock of U.S.C. ran his usual race, wading through the sticks, leaving but one flight standing.

The day was full of surprises, the first one coming in the hundred. Bird of Occidental, who was expected to take second in this event but did not place, being beaten by R. Spurgeon.

In the mile run, Queen, a Pomona half-miler, went in the race and paced Himrod for a fast half. The pace was so fast that many of the starters dropped out. When Queen dropped out at the end of the half, Himrod had the lead, which he kept till the end. He finished the race with a fast sprint. Mills of Whittier proved his worth as a miler, taking an easy second, from Nordhal, who was dead at the finish.

VERY FAST QUARTER.

The 440 was very fast, McKee and Bird fighting for the lead until the last turn, when the lanky Presbyterian forged ahead. Hodge of Occidental beat McKee out at the tape for second. Bird scratched in the 220, which was won by Parsons in record time.

Contrary to the expectations of Coach Holmes, Parsons bested R. Spurgeon by only a scant yard and a half instead of the eight which his supporters thought he would go. Had Spurgeon not been set back for jumping the gun he might have bested the U.S.C. man.

In the low hurdles, W. Spurgeon cleared every flight in the record time of 25 2-5s., equalling the Coast record held by himself. Had not Wharton of Pomona stumbled over the last hurdle he would have taken third from Hodge of Occidental.

When the half was called Brown, the tall Pomona champion runner, who had not appeared in any meet heretofore this season, appeared on the field he was accorded such an ovation as has never been witnessed in Southern California.

He won his race easily and had he so desired could have run it in two minutes flat.

The two-mile run was the most sensational of the day. Estoppey of U.S.C. did not finish the race.

Himrod paced Johnson for the first seven laps. Johnson then took the lead and sprinted for about 300 yards, setting a new Coast record.

The relay race was won by Occidental by Capt. Bird on the last lap, when he beat R. Spurgeon by a yard and a half. Cooper, the first U.S.C. runner, strained his leg and finished so far behind the other two teams that U.S.C. did not continue the race. For Pomona, Chisholm ran the first lap, finishing even with Rush and sending W. Spurgeon off for a fast start. Spurgeon beat Clark and McKee held a yard lead which Spurgeon gave him over Hodge, and sent R. Spurgeon off ahead of Bird. The long stride of the Occidental captain told and he beat his small opponent in the stretch.

One of the biggest surprises of the day came in the hammer throw, when Metcalf, with a throw of 140 ft., 6½in., made Richardson throw 140ft., 7 5-8in. in order to win the event.

Birdsall surprised the Pomona people by capturing second in the pole vault, when it was not supposed that he would even place. Richardson tried for a record, but failed. Munger was so ill with the grip that he was unable to capture the Coast record, for which he tried in the high jump.

In the shot put, Davenport, who was expected to take second, did not qualify.

SCOTT'S QUEER ACTION.

In the half-mile run, Scott of U.S.C. entered the race, but when he got to the dressing tent of his school, located on the first turn, he disappeared from view and did not appear until the other runners had completed the quarter. He then darted out and started to pace Newmire, until he was pulled off the track by some one who was not identified. Holmes protested the result, but Referee Cromwell would not allow it, as there was no proof that an official had not removed the man from the track.

The Pomona men were in the best form shown by them this year. A big celebration took place on the Congregational campus last night.

The track was in good condition and the day was warm.

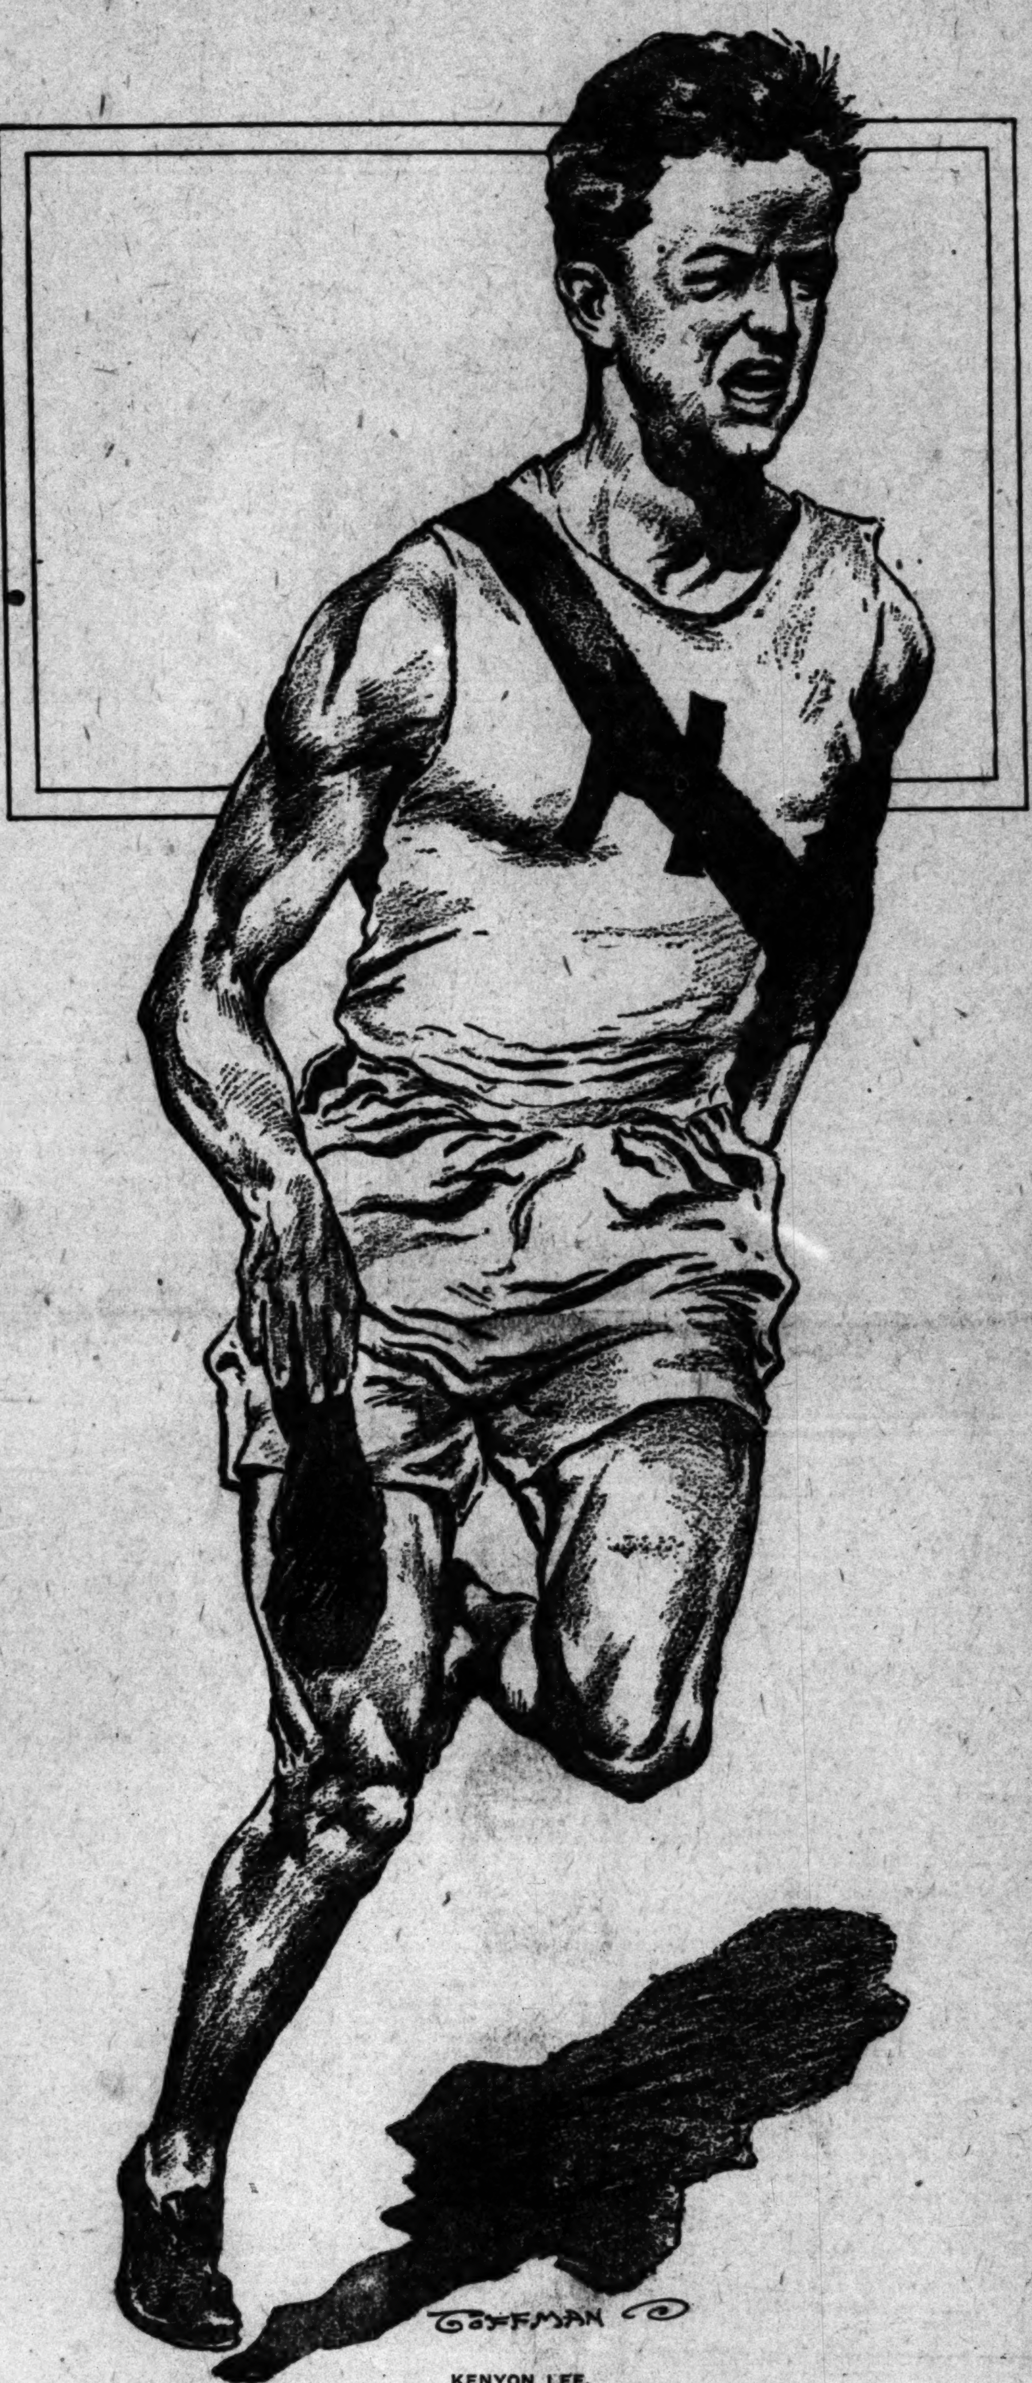
HARVARD SECOND TO OAKLAND IN BIG INTERSCHOLASTIC MEET AT STANFORD.



KENYON LEE,
Harvard School's crack half-miler who won at Stanford, yesterday afternoon.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, March 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Results of the track meet are: Oakland 24, Harvard 12, L.A.H.S. 12, Alameda 10, Belmont 8, L.A. Poly. 7, Santa Clara 7, Hoitts 5, Lick 5, Santa Rosa 4, Berkeley 4, San José 3, Wilmerding 3, Vallejo 2, Pasadena 1.

Five-man mile relay: L.A.H.S. wins, Lick second, Harvard third.

Munn won individual with 14 points, Maccauley second with 10.

Oakland High School won first place in the interscholastic meet at Stanford this year, scoring 24 points, three more than she piled up last year. In spite of the fact that Munn made 5 points less this year, scoring his only first place in the shot-put, the Oakland aggregation was able to eclipse its former showing. The lads from the South put up a game fight and in spite of the hardships of the trip North will not return empty handed. Harvard school retains the second place cup that it won last year. Los Angeles High School will have the Biltner relay cup which it wrested from the Lick school of San Francisco in a sensational race. Polytechnic tied with Santa Clara for fifth in spite of the fact that her men arrived at 4 o'clock on the morning of the meet. Neal Hotaling of Pasadena High School scored third place in the high hurdles, against a fast field, although still sick from the result of the trip. The meet was practically decided when the protest filed against Munn, the Oakland athlete, was rejected by the Interscholastic Board.

MUNN PROVES AGE.

Munn showed affidavits proving to the satisfaction of the board that he was two months under 21. He retains the individual cup, scoring 14 points against 10 scored by Maccaulay of Alameda, his nearest competitor, but failed to approach any of his records of last year.

The condition of the track, although remarkably good under the circumstances, prevented the making or breaking of records. The single exception came in the 100-yard run, where little Newsbaumer of Hoitts beat his opponents to the tape in the slow time of 10:04. This was two-fifths of a second better than was made on a wet track last year.

EXCITING RELAY.

The relay furnished the event of the day. Harvard made a poor start and the race was fought out all the way between Lick and L.A.H.S. Lick led up to the second half of the first lap, when Mattox of Los Angeles pulled away from his opponent for a short distance before passing the race on to Coleman. Coleman held his own. Free lost slightly, which was recovered by Bristol, but the outcome was in doubt until Goodwin tore away on the last lap and came in fifteen yards to the good. Harvard came third, with the other three teams that were entered, far behind.

One of the disappointing features of the day, due to the rain, was the failure of the crack Seattle team to reach the campus. The northerners reached Redding, but were compelled to turn back. They wired a challenge to the team that should win the relay race, the event to take place at the Multnomah Club next month. This may give the Los Angeles boys an opportunity to meet Seattle at some date in the near future.

The Los Angeles boys who scored in the meet were: Harvard, Cline 8; Lee 5; L.A.H.S., Goodwin, Free, and Phelps 3; Bristol, Wallbridge and Coleman 1. Lee had an easy time in the half.

Holmes of Polytechnic was barely beaten for third place in the mile. The mile was the most hotly contested race

CLUBHOUSE TO COST MILLION.

West Seventh and Olive Is Selected as Site.

Los Angeles Athletic Club Secures Option.

Large Sum Subscribed to Finance Project.

Plans involving the erection of a $1,000,000 clubhouse are being formulated by the Los Angeles Athletic Club, and as a step toward their consummation an option has been taken on the site occupied by the Hotel Baltimore at West Seventh and Olive streets. The consideration named in the option is $450,000.

Headed by such representative business men as Robert A. Rowan, Frank A. Garbutt, William M. Garland, J. F. Sartori, J. A. Graves, R. W. Kenny and Robert Marsh, among others, the sum of $215,000 was subscribed to the enterprise in one day, the proposition being taken up readily by the real estate men and bankers. Interest in athletics, not less than the soundness of the investment, appealed to them and made the ambitious plans of the club's directors possible of achievement.

Contemplating the erection of a splendid modern building of many stories, the present quarters long since having been outgrown by the increase in the club's membership, the directors have been casting about for several months in search of a central site in the path of business so that the club might be made as convenient to its members in the new home as now.

Fronting 155 feet on Seventh street, and 147 feet on Olive to a twenty-foot alley, the proposed building may have a ground floor space of 22,785 square feet and light upon three sides. The most conservative judges of realty values consider that the club directors, in securing this property at $2900 a front foot, based on the Seventh-street frontage, bought at least $100 a foot below the market.

It is understood that $300,000 cash is required to float the proposition, time being available for the payment of the balance. In securing their option, the directors of the club were forced to keep a bank open one night, in order to make a tender in gold coin, as the holders of the property were strongly disposed to retain it, thinking they had named too cheap a price.

CENTRAL LOCATION.

Just how much money will be put into a building is not decided as yet, but the size and central location of the lot speak for a splendid modern structure of steel or concrete from five to eight stories in height.

It is proposed to increase the membership limit of the club in view of the ample accommodations that will thus become available, the initiation fee being raised to $100. The appointments and general social equipment contemplated for the new building are planned to be superior to anything now in the city or on the Coast.

Provisions for ample sporting facilities will be made. There will be swimming tanks or plunges; handball courts on the roof, a complete gymnasium, and able instructors.

The phenomenal success of such organizations as the New York Athletic Club, Crescent Athletic Club of Manhattan, Chicago Athletic Club, the old Olympic Club and the Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland, has inspired the directors to high achievement. Los Angeles hopes to go all these famous institutions one better with a "million-dollar club," of which the city may be proud. Such men as Rowan, Garbutt, Garland, Holliday, Canfield, Jevne, Sartori, Kenny and Marsh appear of themselves guaranty that the venture will succeed, notwithstanding the magnitude of the deal and the vast amount of money that must be raised to float the bonds.

Formal announcement of their plans was made by the directors of the club to its members yesterday by a circular letter. The selection of a site is considered a good one from the point of personal convenience as well as future enhancement in value, this fact being ascertained by the directorate through averaging the addresses of the members and striking a central point.

CAREFUL SELECTION.

In their search for a location, the men who financed the Los Angeles Athletic Club mapped out a section bounded by Figueroa, Main, Second and Seventh streets, and decided not to attempt to go farther in securing a site. The one finally chosen was not the only one offered, a number having been under consideration, but opinion was so unanimously in favor of the one selected that others which could have been handled for less money were eliminated.

Anticipating a great deal of difficulty in financing a proposition of such magnitude, the directors were prepared for rebuffs when they put their deal before the men who do things in the world, but the business of $215,000 pledged to the enterprise in the first day bolstered up courage wonderfully.

Heavy stockholders already on the rolls are the following: Robert Rowan, $25,000; Frank A. Garbutt, $50,000; Robert Marsh, $25,000; R. W. Kenny, cashier Broadway Bank and Trust Co., $10,000; Hellman & Sartori, Security Savings Bank, $10,000; J. A. Graves, president Farmers' and Merchants' Bank, $10,000; J. S. Torrance, $5000; A. Kingsley Macomber, $5000; Fishburn, Woolwine and Rogers, National Bank of California, $5000; Isaac Bros., $15,000; W. L. Brent, president Merchants' Trust Co., $5000; W. M. Garland, $15,000; C. A. Canfield, $10,000; W. H. Holliday, president Merchants' National Bank, $5000; H. Jevne, $5000; Dan Murphy, $5000; Edwin S. Rowley, $5000.

Drawing of plans for the new building will be intrusted to the architects as soon as the deal for the property is closed, and it is proposed to make it one of the most beautiful and ornate structures in the city.

New Road to San Diego.

COLTON, March 23.—Contracts have been let for several bridges over streams on the San Diego road, thus assuring a good automobile highway between Colton and San Diego, which will make traveling over this route much easier. The roads heretofore have been impassable. Plans are under consideration for a new route from San Diego to Oceanside.

BIG IMPETUS GIVEN WORK.

Trip of Secretary Elliott Great Success.

Plans of A.A.A. Receive Promise of Aid.

Middle West Enthusiastic on Federal Law.

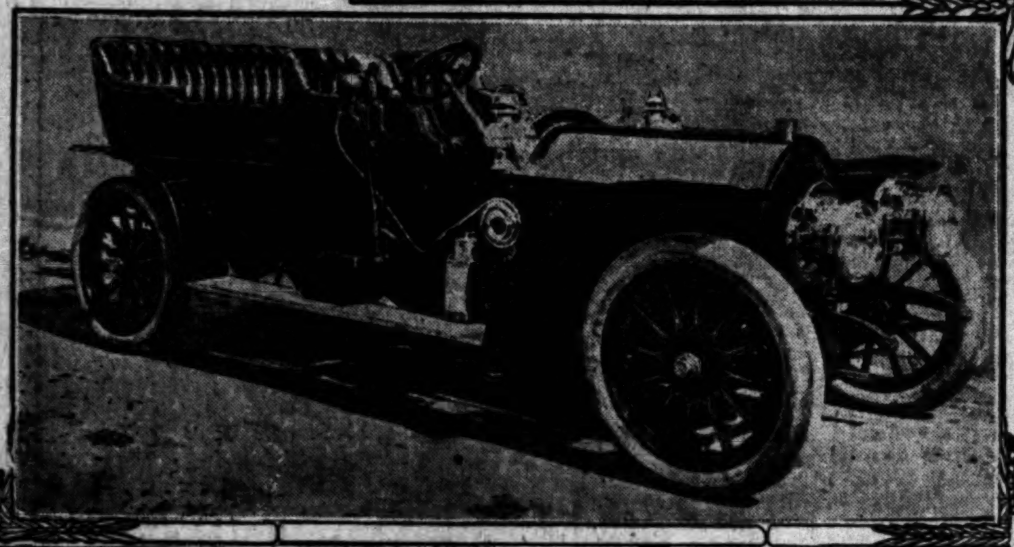
[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As the result of the trip of Secretary Frederick H. Elliott of the American Automobile Association through the States of the Middle West this week, great impetus has been given to the movement of the A.A.A. in organizing State associations to further the work of the main body.

At every point visited Mr. Elliott has been given enthusiastic assurances of support for the programme he has outlined. This includes the bill for the Federal registration of motor cars and the enactment of uniform State laws by the various Legislatures throughout the country.

The Federal measure provides for a registration fee of $5 to be paid to the proper official in Washington, upon which a United States number would be issued to the owner. Under the terms of the bill this would entitle him to tour in States other than his own without the inconvenience of obtaining registration in each commonwealth. All that would be necessary would be registration in his home State and at the national capital.

The A.A.A. secretary, while in Chicago, declared that the organization had 10,000 members on its books and 5000 more in sight. Other State organizations are being projected in Maryland, Iowa, Colorado, California and two of the commonwealths of the South. He said he had found the interest general and believed the national organization soon would be in a position where it could do a vast amount of good work.



Three important arrivals of the past week in automobiledom—above, R. A. Rowan's Locomobile Limousine; in the middle, the big Darracq flier, and below, the six-cylinder National.

GREAT GROWTH MAKES CHANGE.

A.C.G.B.I. WILL HAVE WAR OFFICE BUILDING.

Organization, by Order of King Edward, Will Hereafter be Called the Royal Automobile Club—Second Removal in Five Years, Caused by Increase in Membership.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] So phenomenal has been the growth of the Automobile Club of Great Britain and Ireland, now called by King Edward's command the Royal Automobile Club, that for the second time within five years it has been found necessary to seek larger quarters. The house at No. 119 Picadilly, which is well known to many American automobilists, has become too small for the needs of the club and the old War Office building which was recently vacated by the government for the new offices in Whitehall, will become the club's home according to the Motoring Illustrated. Every American who has visited London knows the historic old building in Pall Mall with its arched gateways and row of old cannon, lining the semi-circular drive, which leads in from the street.

Within the iron fence is space for twenty or thirty carriages and the fact that automobilists will be able to drive in and alight at the club door instead of in the street as at present, will be of immense advantage to members of the club. Many alterations in the interior will have to be made, but there are many rooms with handsome carvings, moulded ceilings and beautiful old fire places and mantels.

TWO INTERESTING CARS.

Brush Runabout and the Model Will Be Sold in Los Angeles—Little Car Has Unique Features.

The Big Four Auto Company has just announced that it has taken on the agency for two cars, both of which are of unusual interest. They are the Model and the brush.

The Brush is the product of Alanson P. Brush, who is known to most automobile enthusiasts as the designer of the single-cylinder Cadillac. He claims for his new product the distinction of being the first true runabout ever produced in this country. When it was first announced, it created in many ways the interest that Henry Ford's announcement of the four-cylinder Ford runabout did. The Brush will sell at the same price that the Ford did, and the maker says that he will produce 10,000 of them this season.

Although Brush claims that his machine embodies no new principles in mechanics, it has several points that are new in automobile construction. The motor is a single-cylinder, set vertically in front. It is rated at six-horse power. The most interesting part of the car, however, is the transmission. There are no gears, but instead a variable speed clutch, which works on the friction disk eccentric drive principle. It gives eight speeds forward. As the reversing mechanism is in the jackshaft, consisting of an extra bevel, there are also eight speeds in reverse.

A differential of the usual type is not employed, but there is a compensating mechanism with driving and releasing cams on the jackshaft. With this arrangement it is claimed that it is almost impossible to skid.

The steering gear is also worthy of notice. This is of the accelerating type. When driving straight ahead, it requires a comparatively large turn of the steering wheel to turn the front wheels. But when turning a corner, as the steering wheel is pulled over, each fraction of a turn pulls the front wheels over a greater arc than the preceding equal fraction did. Thus three-quarters of a turn will bring the front wheels hard over from dead on, while the first quarter of the turn will move them very slightly from the straight line.

The axles and frame of the Brush are of white ash, trussed. Solid tires are used, and instead of elliptic springs, spiral springs placed close to the axle ends.

The Model is not such a novelty. Its principal point is the power of the motor. The engine is of the double-opposed type, placed lengthwise under the body. While it is rated at twenty-four horse power, the fact that the cylinders are 5-inch bore and 7-inch stroke would indicate that the actual horse power at 1000 revolutions should be at least 28. Extra powerful transmission, of the planetary type, is also claimed for the car.

WHAT A CAR CAN DO.

Experiences of Two Dealers With Cars Used for Demonstration Shows Advance in Construction.

What the modern automobile will do is shown in the statements of two dealers regarding their demonstrating cars. A. J. Smith has run his 1906 Elmore demonstrator about 11,000, and offers to give the car to any one who can show where a nut on the engine has ever been touched. He states that it has never required any attention. The car has been the means of selling about 100 cars. Later in the spring Mr. Smith is going to have it painted, and will ship it to Denver. From there he intends to drive it over the roads to the factory. The original tires are still on the car.

The Lord Motor Car Company also have a claim in for perfect service. Immediately after the auto show, they began demonstrating with their 1907 Cleveland. They state that they have now run about 3500 miles with it, and have never made an adjustment of any kind. The original tires are on the car, and not only have they never been repaired, but the same air with which they were inflated at the show is in them still. They have never required the services even of a pump.

Stoddard-Dayton touring cars have been sold the past week to Mrs. L. E. Putram, Mrs. M. A. Briggs, and W. O. Stevens of San Gabriel. Five carloads are on the road from the factory.

A NOVEL demonstration of interest to all motorists will be that given by Mr. Frank W. Paige, Pacific Coast Manager Morgan & Wright, at the Angelus Hotel every afternoon and evening from March 26 to April 2nd, when Mr. Paige will be at the hotel with the entire line of automobile tires manufactured by Morgan & Wright, including the Midgley Wire Grip Anti-Skid Clincher, and Dunlop tires. It will be of interest to all owners and lovers of automobiles to pay Mr. Paige a visit during his visit to Los Angeles.

AMERICAN RACER TO FACE EUROPE.

CHRISTIE IS BUILDING A CAR FOR GRAND PRIX.

Famous Front-Drive Enthusiast Will Produce Speed-Machine of Extremely Light Weight and One Hundred and Twenty Horse Power. Some Details of the Flyer.

It as been announced that Walter Christie alone of Americans will compete in the Grand Prix race, and auto enthusiasts are admiring the pluck and perservance of perhaps the best-known American amateur motorist. Few, however, know anything of the car with which he will race. Its manufacture has been kept a secret.

In an unpretentious machine shop close to the Hudson River in New York there is being built the Christie racer which will compete against the famous fliers of France, Belgium, England and Italy. Of course, it is a front drive car. No car that Christie builds could be otherwise. The details of this form of construction are already familiar through the Blue Streak and other Christie racers that have made their appearance.

The Grand Prix racer has a wheel base of 112 inches, and a track of only 53. It is expected that it will weigh when completed, only 1780 pounds, in full running order. It will surely be the lightest car in the race, as most manufacturers of the continent have admitted that their racers will surpass the weight limit of 2200 pounds, enforced last year, but removed for the coming Grand Prix.

The engine will be, in general, the same as those in former Christie cars, set crosswise over the front axle, and driving direct to the front wheels through universal joints.

Nothing has been said about the horsepower of the car, but the bore and stroke of the cylinders are both 7¼ inches. At 1000 revolutions, this sized engine should easily furnish 120 horsepower. The valves are both overhead operated by rocker arms.

Another thing of interest about the racer which will uphold American prestige is the wheels. They are all metal, with hollow steel spokes. The number of spokes has been reduced from twelve to ten. The reason for this is to increase the speed with which the Christie patent rim may be removed in case of puncture. The rim has no felly, and when a tire is removed, all that remains is a hub and spokes. To hold the rim on, there is a lug which is bolted to each spoke. Reducing the number of spokes reduces the number of bolts which have to be turned, and naturally this saves time.

During the past week A. J. Smith has sold four-cylinder Elmores to J. C. Wright of Azusa and Filiberto Aguirre of Tucson; three-cylinder cars to W. P. Taylor and H. G. Hamilton, and a three-cylinder runabout to C. W. Hobson of Fresno.

AGAIN IS RAIN A CONQUEROR.

Pathfinding Pope-Hartford Submerged in Mud.

Jumping Ditches Ends in Broken Axle.

More Floods May Make Race Impossible.

Again the Pope-Hartford pathfinding crew have run into a three-day storm and have had to abandon the task before reaching San Francisco on the inland route. The rain god has been kind to the rancher, but that means just the opposite to the motorist—at least, with California's present road system. It means more, for the snows which have to melt and flow down into the great San Joaquin Valley are still in the Sierra Nevadas and to a greater depth than has been known for years.

Soon Fresno will have flowing waters to the north and to the south that the great irrigation ditches and river beds will not hold. Last spring and summer the waters covered the country to a width of five miles in places, and with this submerged section roads went from sight as well as the fields.

The fates have been kind to Rainmaker Owen and his Oldsmobile. Twice he has gone through the 500-mile run up the center of the State just ahead of a great storm and twice the storm that followed has surrounded and headed off his rival, Dingley and the Pope-Hartford car.

Last Sunday the Hartford Dingley got no farther north in miles than before. This time the stop was caused by a broken axle shaft, which cracked when Billy Ruess was hurrying too fast to stop for a washout in the road. Dingley had taken the car through the San Francisquito Cañon with its 106 fords, numerous washouts and other drawbacks, and then turned the wheel over to Ruess, who is to be his assistant in the race.

In the San Francisquito Cañon a bank that was more than six feet high, the result of an extensive washout, broke under the weight of the Pope-Hartford and its load, and let the car down, causing two hours' delay to dig it out, and get it on terra firma again. When the open country was reached at Elizabeth Lake and another hour had been used up getting lunch, and gasoline, Ruess tried to make up the lost time, and was doing close to forty miles an hour over a road new to him. He hit several washouts, which were storm-made ditches across the road, and these, being of the same color as the rest of the road, were invisible until a few feet away. Finally an unusually mad one, three feet wide and four feet deep, was seen too late to slow down, and as Ruess did the next best thing, and opened the throttle wide to jump the storm-made ditch. He jumped it all right, but when the car came down from its flight through the air, the frame and body hit the rear axle hard enough to spring it and the axle housing. As the Pope-Hartford seemed to stay together the high speed was kept up and the washouts jumped pretty regularly until in the last one near Neenach stage station, seventy-two miles out the bent axle shaft was sheared off.

As no horse could be secured in that country, the Pope-Hartford crew had to wait till the following morning for the stage, when George Adair was sent to telegraph and telephone for another axle, which he did with so good success that he was back a day later, two hours ahead of stage time. The broken part was soon replaced.

As the roads were reported very bad ahead it was decided to wait till early Wednesday morning before going on north.

The first big adobe sink was made by aid of the chains. Dingley had had almost constant nose bleeding from the high altitude at Neenach, and had caught cold in the rain, and it looked as though he would have pneumonia, but he was game and did his part when the sink holes and fords were reached.

Up in the Tejon Pass good time can be made in fair weather and certainly excellent time was made in this trip, although the roads were dangerously slippery from the heavy rainfall, and getting more so all the time. Added to this was the fresh road work, where big holes and washouts had been just filled with soft earth, which was reduced to the softness of butter by the rain.

Above Gorman Station, where the heaviest grade begins it was necessary to go a few feet at a time as the wheels cut in from six inches to a foot, and yet slid on the curves. The Pope-Hartford crew was taking no chances as once over a bank was enough.

Going down the north side of Tejon Pass where sunshine was encountered, there were some fifty foot drops to the stream below on the sharp bends, and all got ready to jump at these points, but the Pope-Hartford held to the road though it had to slide some.

Down on the great plain the sun had defeated the storm in open battle, and dry roads were found into Bakersfield, by following the ranch roads around by Johnnie Morris's place. This required opening many gates and occasional enquiry, but nevertheless the forty-five miles was covered inside of two hours.

Will Ruess hates to go slow at any time, and when the roads became good he just opened the throttle up to forty-four miles, and then occasionally turned on more. Speed with a good automobile depends almost entirely on the nerve of the driver. Once or twice the speed guage went up to fifty-six miles an hour. When Ruess made these spurts the crew usually got ready to jump.

At Bakersfield Ruess began to feel proud of his Pope-Hartford, and as a result the first twenty miles after leaving Bakersfield were covered inside of thirty-five minutes. About this time Dingley called a halt on the high speed and an easy gait was taken on into Tulare, which was reached at a quarter after six o'clock, the 145 miles having been done in eight hours running time.

There had been heavy rain north of Tulare and every mile became worse, until good roads were again found at Selma. From there into Fresno an average above thirty miles was again kept up.

Between Tulare and Kings River indescribable roads occurred, as water stood in the road almost continuously and some times to a depth of nearly two feet. Where there was water only no trouble occurred, but when deep mud holes were under this water there were delays.

At Kings River bridge a rear tire was punctured and at Goshen another lot of tire trouble cost another half hour, while eight miles out of Tulare, where the road was flooded beside a big irrigation bridge, it was necessary to use block and tackle to get out, and this in the dark. Fortunately two farmers assisted.

Six miles out of Goshen the worst mud hole on the whole day's run of 191 miles was encountered. It was at least 100 yards long and a succession of big holes. Last year this point was impassable for some time and in this section the country was flooded for miles. Three men came out from Goshen to aid with horse power, but it was found unnecessary, strange to say, as Billy Ruess sent the Pope-Hartford through the slough in fine shape.

The last mud fight of the Pope-Hartford crew was in the edge of Fresno, which was reached at 1:30 Thursday morning after over eighteen hours on the road. Thursday, Capt. Ryus wired the boys to come back as the roads beyond Fresno were flooded on all routes and it now looks as though they would be covered with water for some time to come, as there has been almost continuous rain in that part of the State for weeks.

Messrs. Bert F. Dingley, W. R. Ruess, Charles Fuller Gates and George M. Adair returned from Fresno yesterday afternoon on the first train south over the Southern Pacific since the storm. The car was left in Fresno and is in perfect working order.

If the race comes off next Thursday, the crew of the Pope-Hartford will be Dingley, Ruess and probably H. D. Ryus and Harris Hanshue. They say they are game to put the Pope-Hartford through to San Francisco if the Oldsmobile people wish to run.

FRENCH FLYER ARRIVES.

Big Darracq Car Is Now on Exhibition. Motor Attracts Attention of Auto Enthusiasts.

Probably the most expensive and one of the finest automobiles ever brought to Los Angeles in the regular course of trade is the 40-60 horse-power Darracq received the past week by the Pacific Automobile Company. Like the smaller Darracq which has been on exhibition for a few weeks, it has the close to the ground look characteristic of the French engineers.

The latest arrival is finished in shades of red and the body is a beautiful specimen of carriage work. It is a product of Vedrine et Cie., of Courbevoie, well-known French body makers. Compared with American cars, the tonneau is very low and rakish, and exhibits the swell across the extreme rear which is responsible for the name tonneau—literally, "tub."

The motor, which seems to be the center of attraction to the motoring fraternity who havelooked the car over, differs very little except in size from the motor of the smaller Darracq. The cylinders are "square"—that is, they have the same bore and stroke. This is 130 millimeters, or roughly 5 1-8 inches.

The double system of ignition is used, high tension by coil and storage battery, through a set of plugs, and low tension make-and-break by a Simms-Bosch magneto. The automatic governor on the spark is also employed, a distinguishing feature of the Darracq cars this season.

The tires on the car also attract attention, as they are Michelins, of the seldow seen flat tread racing type.

ON GOOD ROADS BOARD.

A. J. Smith Has Been Appointed Member of the A.A.A. Committee to Work for Highways.

A. J. Smith, who is one of the charter members of the A.A.A., has just received the news of his appointment on the good roads board of that organization. The information was contained in a letter from T. H. Elliott, secretary of the A.A.A.

William H. Hotchkiss, president of the A.A.A., has been busy appointing the members of this board, and has now just about completed the work. Mr. Smith is the only member from California. In general, each State has one representative, although one or two of the Eastern States have two men named.

The object of the board is to induce concerted action by the various States on the good roads problem, and if possible to obtain Federal sanction, if not Federal aid. Mr. Smith himself is in favor of comprehensive State action, and advocates convict labor on road-building. This is an experiment which has given good results in several Northwestern States where it has been tried.

Bad at Santa Ana.

SANTA ANA, March 23.—The roads are in bad shape again as the result of the recent rains. When clear weather comes on the road overseers are going to work harder than they ever have to put the most traveled roads in excellent shape. The roads up the Santa Ana Cañon have been in bad shape all winter. As soon as they dry out so that they can be worked Supervisor MacMullan intends to have them put in shape.

THEIR BREATH TAKEN AWAY.

EARLY SHOW IDEA HAS HIT CHICAGO HARD.

Exodus of Windy City Motorists to Old World Has Already Begun. Property Owners Oppose Signboard Campaign of Motor Clubs, Other Plans Must Be Adopted.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, March 20.—Although Chicago motorists had brought themselves to the expectation of an early show next year, they were dumfounded by the assertion of General Manager Samuel A. Miles of the N.A.A.M that the entire show circuit will be so radically readjusted that the Chicago exhibition—the last of the big displays—will be held November 30 to December 7. They have not yet recovered their breath. Pending conferences with factory authorities, local representatives were unwilling to commit themselves for or against so sweeping a change.

"If Chicago is to be the last big scene of show activities for the new season, and yet will be given a date no later than the show of the 'independents' last year, where do the makers get off?" queried one of the agents, in an altogether unofficial discussion of the subject. "Were the new models ready so early this season that the whole programme can be set ahead two months? Or is it planned to hold two shows, one for an advance revelation of new models and another for the final and authoritative exhibition of new designs?"

The advance guard of foreign tourists is about to depart from Chicago. A few of the more eager motor travelers are already on their way to the Old World, and others will follow. All indications point to an unusual amount of touring among autoists of the Middle West. Among Chicagoans of prominence who either have already set sail for Europe, or expect to do so in the comparatively near future, are Congressman Martin B. Madden, who will tour Europe in a Pierce Great Arrow; Mrs. W. A. McGuire, who will make an extended jaunt in a Rainier; W. B. Martin, who is contemplating an early trip in his Peerless; Mrs. Otto Young, who leaves next month for an extended tour in her Panhard; John C. King, who will leave Turin, Italy, in a Fiat runabout; E. W. Cramer, who has just contracted for a Rainier touring car to be used in foreign lands; S. K. Martin, who has routes for a trip in his Locomobile under consideration, and John S. Runnells, who has shipped his Pierce Great Arrow to the other side. Martin C. Beck has just returned from a tour in France, and he has left his Clement-Bayard abroad for the use of J. Meyerfeld, Jr.

Meeting with opposition from property owners, who objected to the presence of concrete anchor posts in their land, the signboard campaign under the auspices of the Chicago clubs has revised its tactics. Instead of affixing the direction signs by angle irons to concrete posts, plans are being made to attach the same signs to telegraph poles. Steps are now being taken to secure the necessary consent of owners of telegraph and telephone poles along the route which are to be marked.

ANOTHER BIG SIX ARRIVES.

National, With Ball-Bearing Engine, One of Week's Arrivals on Automobile Row.

One of the most interesting newcomers to the automobile world the past week was the six-cylinder National car. This is one of the highest-powered machines in Los Angeles. It is rated at seventy-five horse power, and as the six cylinders are of ample size, there seems to be no question but that the rating is a fair one. It is said that the engine has shown nearly ninety horse power on the block.

The engine is always the interesting part of such an automobile, and the motor of the National is particularly so, as it is one of the few machines made with a ball-bearing crank shaft. There are seven bearings for this important member of the motor. The cam shaft is also furnished with ball bearings, as is the transmission.

Two complete sets of ignition are used, one from battery and coil working on plugs over the exhaust valves, and one from a Remy magneto working on plugs over the inlet valves. The valves are on opposite sides, and the cylinders are individually cast.

The wheel base of the car is 127 inches—a commentary on the advance in automobile construction. Such length of wheel base is not very common, but a year or two ago it would have been deemed impossible.

ANOTHER ELECTRIC CAR.

First Order for Baker Machine Is for Specially-Built Victoria and Coupe Combined.

The Electrical Construction Company has taken on the agency for the Baker electric automobile, in addition to the Pope-Waverly, which it has handled for some time. One of the first orders for a Baker was given by W. S. Collins, who is to have built for him a special machine.

Mrs. Collins has designed many of the details of this car. It is a victoria, but built so that an extra coupé body may be used when wanted. The part in which Mrs. Collins took special interest is the design of the fenders and dash. They are so arranged that it will be impossible for mud to gather on the step even in the worst weather, and they perfectly protect the body of the car. The fenders are curved well over on the outside, and join the body of the vehicle on the inside; moreover, they are continuous from front to rear. The dash is nearly a foot wider on each side than is usually the case, and curved outward and downward.

Another idea of Mrs. Collins which will be incorporated in the extra coupé body is a double floor with a felt layer between, which will make the car particularly silent. The finish will be royal blue and gold.

GOSSIP ALONG GASOLINE ROW.

The H. O. Harrison Company report the sale of an Oldsmobile touring car to Glen Edmonds.

A great Smith touring car has been sold to M. F. Olds, for use in the auto renting business.

Cadillac light touring cars have been sold during the past week to A. McCrary of Santa Ana, H. A. Barnes, J. A. Malloy, and Mrs. A. E. F. White of Pasadena.

Harry Harrison has received word that the last car of his allotment of nineteen Peerless "30's" is now on the way to the Coast.

Franklin touring cars have been sold in the past two weeks to E. G. Judah, E. W. Davies, I. W. Shirley and W. W. Wilcox of Colton; a light touring car to H. H. Clark; and a runabout to H. L. Boyer.

Harry Olive has just delivered to Dr. Milbank Johnson one of the Stoddard-Dayton roadsters. The car is finished in Napier green, and is an extremely handsome specimen of the high-powered runabout.

The Greer-Robbins Company, agents for the Mitchell, report deliveries during the past week, as follows: Thirty-horse-power touring car to J. S. Greepe of East Highland; thirty-five-horse-power touring car to Deane Laughlin, Santa Maria; four-cylinder twenty-horse-power runabouts to E. E. Groat, H. L. Gordon and A. T. Park of Redlands.

A six-cylinder Ford was sold and delivered last week to G. Otis of Pomona.

WATER TO THEIR KNEES.

Jack Dempsey and George Lablanche Fought Vicious Battle in Rising Tide.

Frank J. Kelly, the trainer, tells of an old time fight which he witnessed twenty-one years ago. It was when Jack Dempsey defeated George Lablanche, "the Marine," at Larchmont, Long Island, March 4, 1886. The men fought thirteen rounds with skin gloves under the old London rules and the battle lasted almost two hours.

"It was Sunday morning about 9 o'clock when we dodged the police," says Kelly. "We went to an old barn standing on the shore of Long Island Sound. It was low tide then, and no one thought of what the consequences might be later. But the tide began to rise before the men had fought more than two or three rounds, and by the eleventh the men were splashing about in the water.

"It may seem strange that a barn should be built where the tides would reach it, but there are many places along the sound where the action of the waves forms new levels and many buildings are flooded in the course of years.

"When the thirteenth round came on, the men were up to their knees in the water and splashing great showers of spray about in their lunges to get at each other. When one of the men was knocked down he fell in the water and his seconds pulled him out. Lablanche was all cut up and bled profusely, but when he fell into the water much of the blood was washed off. His seconds finally dragged him to his corner and threw up the sponge.

"Some of the rounds lasted many minutes, in one case the men fighting twelve minutes before a knockdown was scored. Recollections of that fight, more than any I remember, show the difference between modern contests and the old time battles."

Jack Dempsey is now dead, while George Lablanche is living a precarious life, it is said, and two years ago was released from prison having served two years with Mike Daly, another former prize-fighter, for sandbagging a man and robbing him of his money.

Burns Starts Home.

MILWAUKEE, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Tommy Burns left this morning, in an effort to get through to Los Angeles. He says he can reach there by 6 o'clock Tuesday if the trains are all on time.

MAKING READY FOR TROUTING.

Season Opens Month Later Than Formerly.

Unusually High Water Found in All Streams.

Fly and Bait Fishing Taken in Comparison.

Trout fishing will not open until May 1 this year. Phenomenally heavy snowfall and considerably more than the usual quota of rainfall have combined to make conditions on the streams such that were the old law in effect, very few of the seasoned rodsters would waste time there upon the strength of the fish prospect. With roily water, and such high levels everywhere that wading is almost impossible work, there is little encouragement to be found at present for the fly fisher.

Putting off the opening until May 1 is generally considered a good thing, although in some years it is quite practicable to fish April 1, and good catches may be had, even at that early season. The water is cold then and the fish are generally in very good order in consequence.

There should be plenty of water in all the Southern California rivers the greater part of the summer, and the fishing bids fair to last longer than usual. There are always more or less trout in the San Gabriel, but after they have been fished two or three months they become very hard to catch. Periodically the stream is stocked anew, but the power companies' intakes, and their custom of draining portions of the river at times is very apt to result in the destruction of fish. Henry O'Melveny and other Creel Club members and the county game warden have done good work in saving trout impounded in the pools thus formed. Last week the process was repeated by the power companies, but it is sain an arrangement whereby the fish were saved was effected. The law prevents the wholesale destruction of trout by dynamite or other manner, and the State is spending money propagating these fish and restocking streams.

With continued rains, it now looks as if the water would be too high for much fishing May 1.

FOR FLY CASTERS.

This is not a fly fisherman's country. Local trout are game enough, but in ordinary seasons there is not a great deal of water in this end of the State upon which a skilled caster can show his art to any advantage. Narrow streams, too much brush and lack of necessity are the causes. In the North conditions are different. Fine trout rivers offer inducements to the lover of fine tackle, and afford him every opportunity to show his skill to advantage. Good casting is often at a premium on such streams as the Eel, Truckee, Humboldt and other big northern streams, while farther south, on the Kings and Kern rivers, there is equal opportunity to cast a fly to advantage.

Locally, the high water ought to afford the fly fisherman a better outlook than usual this summer. All the streams will be running. On the Malibu ranch are two that generally yield trout to the lucky individuals who have a right to fish upon that property. The Malibu itself is a stream of no mean importance, and another not far beyond Port Los Angeles, the Topanga, is much favored of certain local rodsters on account of the goodly-sized steelheads that are often to be had there early in the season. Most of these fellows use small Emeric spoons.

Outfitting for trout fishing on local streams is a different matter than in the East. Local fishermen are rather inclined to favor a shorter, stiffer stick, as better adapted to their work. They seldom use reels, except as a receptacle for line and a sort of counterweight to balance the rod. It is seldom that a fish of sufficient size to start the reel is hooked.

A very common method of bait fishing in local waters is to put two small snelled hooks of No. 8 or 10 Carlisle sizes on a single gut leader, weighted with enough split shot to sink it, and allow the bait, preferably fat worms, to drift down along the bottom with the current. Practiced quietly, it is a deadly way to take trout, and usually produces results. The worm is dropped into the pool carefully on the up-current side and allowed to work down, the angler often following it.

During the summer grasshoppers used without a sinker and so impaled on the hook as not to prevent their striking out for the shore, prove one of the deadliest of lures. Trout sometimes take them when nothing else will tempt them to rise. Insects of various sorts are often caught and used as natural fly, care being taken to select some variety upon which the trout have been feeding, as shown by their pouches when opened. In some seasons caterpillars are successful.

ST. VINCENT LOSES GAME.

Local Nine Shut Out by the St. Mary's Team.

Shortstop Lamer Makes Two Costly Blunders.

Pitcher Krause of Visitors Fans Twelve Men.

St. Mary's, 3; St. Vincent, 0.

The St. Mary's College kids are about the sweetest bunch of young ball players we have ever seen from the North, and the way they played the game yesterday was an illustration of why that college to which they belong is so justly famous in the baseball line at least, not considering what it is in an educational way. Their coach, Hal Chase, sat on the bench and told them what to do, but even if he had been in New York they would doubtless have finished first anyway.

It was a cracking good game for boys and would have done credit to the Coast League, for while there were errors and a number of them, the boys showed that they had the knowledge of the game and understood what to do. And the way they did clout the St. Vincent pitcher Lane was enough to do the business, for they hit him eleven times, a triple and two doubles being part of these. In addition to this bombardment their pitcher, Krause, held the local boys to three swats, and few games were ever won with that small number of hits.

The game was really lost through errors, which were doubtless due to anxiety, Lamer at short played a poor game and was largely responsible for the two final runs of the visitors, through his wild throws to first base. Right Fielder Phillips let the other run in and this is the brief history of the game.

Almost 1000 fans were out to see the sport, and they seemed about evenly divided in their enthusiasm, for both teams were cheered. There was no particular partiality shown, aside from the usual home rooting, and the game was certainly a very good exhibition of how to treat your whilom enemy.

There is no hard luck story to tell about the defeat for it came through bungles and the inability of the locals to hit Pitcher Krause. For five innings he did not allow a hit, and then in the sixth came two singles in succession, but these counted for nothing, for they were made after two were out and the man who followed the hitters struck out. In the seventh inning with one out, Snodgrass singled and went to third when the pitcher made a wild throw to second, to catch Snod off the base. However, the next two men were easy outs, and thus St. Vincent's second chance to score ended in failure.

The visitors had almost as hard a time scoring. In the second round Catcher Burns set his team-mates on edge with a triple to right which Phillips misjudged and ran up under. The next man fanned and then a double play ended the inning. There was nothing doing until the seventh, which Duggan opened with a single to right. Phillips let the ball go between his legs to the fence, Duggan landing on third and scoring a moment later on Krause's hit to left. Things went easily until the ninth inning, which Krause opened with a single. Enright fouled out and then Feeney forced Krause at second. Hamilton smacked a grounder to Lamer, which he threw wild to first, Feeney going to third. Hamilton stole second and then Burns hit another one to Lamer which he juggled and both runs scored.

McCann, Flick and Snodgrass did good work for St. Vincent, while the best work for the visitors was done by Pitcher Krause, who struck out twelve.

TRAINING WORK TO BE DIVIDED.

MAGEE AND CHRISTIE TO HAVE ENTIRE CHARGE.

Athletic Enthusiasm so Great at University of California That Physical Department Has to Be Enlarged—Football and Track Squads to Have Separate Care.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, March 22.—Beginning next August, the work of training the athletes of the University of California will be divided so that the entire charge of training the football team will be in the hands of Prof. Walter E. Magee, head of the department of physical culture in the university, while complete control of the baseball and track team training will be in the hands of Walter Christie, who heretofore has had charge of all the teams.

The change has been made necessary on account of the great growth of athletic popularity here in the last few years. During the football season 250 men report for practice and all require careful attention to keep them in condition. At the same time there are from fifty to eighty men doing fall training on the track, and from twenty-five to fifty men out doing fall baseball work. It is highly important that these men should have constant care and attention as to their physical condition, as well as coaching during the fall months for them to develop their best form for the spring competition.

In the past Christie has been kept busy all the time with the football men, and so the track athletes have done the most of their fall training without any coaching at all.

Prof. Magee is fitted to do the training work of which he has been put in charge. For more than twenty-five years he has given all his time to this line of work. Since he has been in charge of the department of physical culture in the university he has made it one of the leading departments.

Prof. Magee is a graduate of the University of California and is very popular, both with the alumni and the undergraduates. The announcement of the change in the training system so that all branches of sport will receive their proper attention has been received with joy by the athletes, and it is generally felt that the result will be a decided improvement in the performance of all the athletic teams of the university.

GOSSIP ABOUT BALL PLAYERS.

News of the Live Ones From Every League.

Bob Unglaub Is to Play With Washington Team.

Tim Flood's Name in List of Marion, O., Players.

Bob Unglaub, who was once a shortstop for one of the Pacific Coast League teams, will play this year with the Boston Americans. He jumped to the Pennsylvania outlaws last year, and has now been reinstated by the National Commission on payment of a $200 fine.

Outfielder Jimmy Jackson, once of Los Angeles, and recently of the Cleveland Americans, has signed to play with Columbus this year.

President Robinson of the St. Louis Nationals says that Beckley will play first base for his team this season.

Johnny Kling, the Chicago Cub catcher, who is well known here as a pool expert, is the champion of Missouri, having won the honor recently at St. Louis by beating "Buffalo" Dowd, 400 to 334.

The Cincinnati Nationals have promulgated contracts with the following players, well known to Los Angeles fans: Bill Essick, Johnny Kane, Krueger, Del Mason and Catcher McLean.

An eastern paper declares with due solemnity that Manager Berry of the Los Angeles team is moving heaven and earth to get Outfielder Sam Mertes from the St. Louis Nationals. If he is, no one here knows it, and no one cares, for we have as good an outfield as any team on the Coast.

Pitcher Jake Thielman, who was Charley Reilly's star here when the northwest outlaws tried to break into California baseball, is down as a pitcher this year for the Columbus team of the American Association.

Pitcher Ralph Tozer, who was with the local team last year, will play this year with Toronto.

Buck Francks, the former Oakland shortstop, is to play second base and be captain of the Omaha team.

Pitchers Bert Jones and Bernie McKay will be on the Lincoln team in the Western League this year.

Some of the eastern players are still fighting over the question of which one of them invented the "squeeze" play, the latest one saying that he saw it in Detroit as far back as 1903. My, my, my! Old Pete Lohman, now in the mad-house, got that thing up and we have been using it in this league for five or six years.

Pitcher Bobby Keefe is right there this year with the idea that he will be able to hold his own with the New York Americans, for he says he has recovered from his last year's illness. Keefe is certainly a crack when he is right.

Charley Atherton, who played right field for Los Angeles five or six years ago, will manage the Johnstown, Pa., team this year. Fred Raymer will play second base for him.

Local fans will smile when they know that the manager of the Washington team is thinking of putting Catcher Cliff Blankenship on first base. This must be an awful joke, for Cliff won't do for that place.

Manager Drumm of the Marion, O., team of the Pennsylvania-Ohio League has announced his players for this year, and among them is the name of Tim Flood. How the mighty have fallen. This one is a Class C league, and one can hardly believe this is our old Tim.

Addie Joss has gladdened the heart of the Cleveland fans by coming into the fold, after a long hold-out for increased salary.

Manager Cantillion of Washington might try Schlafly at first base, if for any reason Stahl is not on the bag when the season opens. That would give him a chance to use Perrine on second and Altizer at short.

No Women's Golf.

The golf play for the women's amateur championship of Southern California, which was scheduled to begin last Wednesday and later set for Friday, has not started yet, owing to the wet condition of the course at Pasadena. Now the information is given out that the play has been indefinitely postponed, but it is understood that an attempt will be made in about two weeks to play. There were but four entries and only two days would be required to settle the matter.

Pitcher Corridon and Catcher Jacklitsch, return from Williamsport and York, respectively, to the Philadelphia Nationals.

CHEERING CROWDS.

The gaily-bedecked special train from Los Angeles, bearing 800 loyal and enthusiastic supporters of Occidental and U.S.C., pulled into Claremont at 2 o'clock, to be greeted by a cheering band of Pomona rooters. The visitors, together with the crowds that had come in on the morning trains, immediately went to Alumni Field, where 1500 Pomona supporters and friends had assembled.

Pomona occupied the middle and west end of the bleachers; next to them was the Occidental contingent, and on the west end were the enthusiastic U.S.C. rooters. The time before the first race was spent in lusty cheering and singing many new and catchy songs.

Many of the Pomona girls were dressed in blue and white, while the co-eds, from the other schools were liberally supplied with ribbons and pennants. The famous "hayseed" band accompanied U.S.C.

A few Whittier men were in the audience, but because of the uncertainty of their men entering, a large crowd did not come.

Whittier entered by special invitation. A meeting of the conference representatives was held Saturday morning in the office of Dean Norton. Whittier was refused admission to the conference, the vote being a secret ballot as an act of courtesy. Whittier was allowed to enter Mills, Blair and White in the half-mile and two mile.

The best spirit was shown between all the schools, and especially between Occidental and Pomona, who cheered each other's men repeatedly.

GOULD RETAINS TITLE.

Defeats Crane in Great Court Tennis Match—Winner Going to England to Compete.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BOSTON, March 23.—Jay Gould of New York retained his title as court tennis champion of America by defeating Joshua Crane, Jr., of Boston, in the final round of the national tennis championship at the Boston Tennis and Racquet Club. Score: 6-1, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Gould will sail for England, next Tuesday, to compete in the British amateur court tennis championship tournament.

The champion is but seventeen years old.

Compton Beats Whittier.

The Compton High School baseball team defeated Whittier yesterday afternoon by a 2 to 1 score. The only error made by either team was the fumble of a hot grounder by Williams of Compton. The Compton boys won by their superior batting, getting six hits to Whittiers' three.

Sailing Seaward.

PHILADELPHIA, March 23.—Under the auspices of the Aero Club of America, A. R. Hawley of New York and A. N. Chandler of this city made a successful ascension in the balloon "Initial" from the southern section of this city, this afternoon, and sailed in the direction of the seacoast.

That there are fewer reckless autoists is demonstrated by the fact that, although automobiles have enormously increased in the last few years, there has not been a corresponding growth in the number of accidents caused by them.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—Firestone, the $10,000 colt of Thomas H. Williams, scored an easy victory in the Bell Stakes at Oakland today, only four 2-year-olds going to the post. Willmore was an added starter. Once off, Firestone was never headed. Walter Miller, from the Hildreth stable, made his first appearance, and though slow to get going, closed well and took second money. May Pink, at 12 to 1, proved a surprise in the first race.

TEDDY WINS HONORS.

President's Son Elected Second Assistant Manager—"Fags" for Boat Crews.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At a meeting of the Harvard Athletic Committee last night, young Teddy Roosevelt was elected second assistant manager of the 'varsity crew.

The appointment came as the result of strenuous competition. Out of a dozen candidates, young Teddy collected the largest number of subscriptions, visiting hundreds of Harvard men and persuading them to dig down in their pockets for the financial support of President Eliot's favorite sport.

The competition began last October. Young Teddy got an early start. While other candidates were gathering courage to make demands on their classmates, the President's son strove right ahead, and as a result, many of Harvard's most wealthy students said to the grist of other candidates: "I have handed my subscription to Mr. Roosevelt."

Besides gathering subscriptions, young Teddy has been obliged to make himself useful about the boathouse. He assisted the men in getting the tank ready for indoor machine practice. Any odd jobs that any of the oarsmen wanted done, the President's son was obliged to do.

Teddy, Jr., is at present in Washington, taking a few weeks' rest. He does not expect to return till Easter, when he will "grind" up for the final examinations.

Denver dealers claim the business done since the first of the year proves the claim that their city is the best automobile market in the West.

WAGER ENTIRE PURSE IS OFFER OF LOWES.

JIMMY LOWES, manager of Jack Palmer, offers to allow the Englishman to fight Jack (Twin) Sullivan, Tuesday night, winner to take all of the purse.

"We have our tickets to take us back home," said Manager Lowes last night, "and we are so confident of Palmer's ability to win that we will risk all we have on the issue. I have about $500 in money which I will wager at the prevailing odds."

Lowes is not particular whether Sullivan takes up the wager or not; he is willing to wager his share of the purse. The offer shows the gaming instinct of the sporting Briton. Lowes also makes an astounding offer regarding the referee.

"I have come over here and placed myself in Mr. McCarey's hands, and I am willing to accept any referee he may choose. I will not object if it is Mike (Twin) Sullivan," said Lowes. "All I want is to have Manager McCarey select the man, and if he is satisfied, I will be."

Tommy Burns will be the referee if he reaches Los Angeles in time. A dispatch from Chicago says that he left there early yesterday and expects to reach here at 6 o'clock the night of the fight, if the trains are on time. The chances are, however, that the trains will be late, considering the condition of the roadbed after the recent rains.

If Burns does not come, Manager McCarey will have to select another man. He proposes to ask the representatives of the six newspapers to serve, if the question is not settled when the men enter the ring. It is suggested that the six men write their individual decisions on a slip of paper and put it in a hat and let the majority rule. The newspaper boys are not seeking the "honor."

Negotiations between Manager McCarey and Charlie Eyton have been going on for some days. Eyton wants $200 to referee. McCarey cannot see his way clear to give it, and thus establish a precedent.

PALMER IN SHAPE.

Jack Palmer is in excellent condition, according to Manager Lowes, and he must think his man is all right to be ready to wager his share of the purse on the result. He is fast, and as hard as can be expected with his two weeks of training.

Palmer has been a great drawing card since his arrival. He is English in everything he does and is proud of it. The boys at the camp have amused themselves by calling attention to familiar objects and asking him to name them as in England. Manager McCarey, who has been passing the week in a course of training with Palmer, took a stroll with Jack the other night after dinner.

"We call that a 'moon,'" said McCarey, pointing to the luminary in the sky. "What do you call it in England?"

"And we call that a half moon," answered Jack, and it was only strict training rules which saved McCarey from buying the drinks.

A source of pleasure to Palmer has been the daily rowing stunts on the small lake near his training quarters at the Eastside Athletic Club.

Manager Lowes is in receipt of a letter from Spike Robson, at Philadelphia, stating that the latter is coming to Los Angeles after his match with Abe Attell. He wants to get on in a twenty-round contest with Attell to decide the championship. Lowes says he will make 124 pounds.

Lowes also is contemplating bringing over from England Joe Bowker to meet Abe Attell, and "Digger" Stanley to box Jimmy Walsh for the featherweight and bantamweight championships, respectively. He is waiting, however, to see how Jack Palmer fares with Sullivan.

Jack Sullivan is in good shape, as he always is before a fight. The Twin is completing his training at Lewis's gym., and is going through his round of stunts. Sullivan has had something to say about the choice of a referee. He may object to Tommy Burns on the grounds that Burns may be prejudiced because of the decision Sullivan gained over him more than a year ago.

Sullivan says that he is willing to meet Palmer half way in any proposition that come up. He asks that the fight public here give the visitor the same kindly consideration that the English fans gave him while he was over there.

BIG CATCHES OF POMPANO.

Unusual Sport Reported at Port Los Angeles.

Hundreds of Fine Food Fish Taken by Rodsters.

Surf Season Seems Fairly on. Some Big Fish.

Pompano fishing has been very good along the western beach, particularly at the long Port Los Angeles wharf, during the last week. Dozens of local rodsters have raided the immense schools of these delicate fish, now feeding inshore, and thousands of them have been taken during the last two weeks, particularly in the spell of fine weather which was closed by the last heavy rainstorms.

One of the biggest catches fell to Judge Harry Rose and a party of four at Port Los Angeles, more than 500 being taken, the largest running as heavy as three to the pound, which is something unusual for pompano in this part of the country although they attain a much larger size on the Carolina and gulf coasts in both their varieties.

The pompano is, in many ways, aptly called "the trout of the deep." He is an active little fellow and of such surpassing delicacy of flesh that 40 cents a pound is the average price of his kind in market. Not very difficult to catch, but still hard enough to put the novice to all manner of wonderment at his failure to succeed where others are raising three and four "pomps" at a haul, there is nevertheless some skill required to succeed in this branch of marine angling.

The flesh of crawfish carefully dried and shredded has long been looked upon with favor by pompano anglers, but it has one serious drawback in that it is hard to keep upon the hook. Pompano are capable bait thieves. For this reason a majority of the fishermen use the flesh of various kinds of sharks. The varieties known as skates and angel-fish afford about the best of all known baits for pompano, and their toughness enables the angler to turn all his time to account without having to re-bait after every haul. A pompano run is most uncertain; it may continue all day unabated, or may change with the tide. A fancy to migrate may seize the school at any time, and without warning the biting stops.

POMPANO EQUIPMENT.

Too much care cannot be paid to equipment if the angler hopes to make a success of pompano fishing. Those who live at the beach or have friends there generally keep long cane poles for the purpose, with lines a little longer than the pole, provided with ten or twelve-foot single gut leaders to which are attached, by short snells, at intervals of six inches, small No. 10 hooks, of Carlisle sizes. A small sinker completes the paraphernalia. Often three or four rods are used, being secured to the wharf so the fish cannot dislodge them. Pompano will hook themselves and the first one on will, almost invariably, toll more to their fate.

The veteran pompano angler never raises his gear for one fish, preferring to take the chances of losing the one rather than of wasting his time pulling in until four or five have been hooked.

The amount of pompano that can be caught by two or three accomplished anglers in a single tide is remarkable. Several hundred is not at all uncommon. When the little fish are on the feed they bit fiercely and seldom fail to hook. Their mouths are very small, and for that reason it is necessary to use a tiny hook, but the little barbs sink in deeply and take a hard hold. The pompano has a rather tender mouth, and in raising a string of five or six of them the careful fisher will save the most, working them to the surface gently and without any appreciable jerk.

Very frequently the practice of "chumming" yields good results in pompano fishing. This may be described as decoying the fish within range and keeping them there by throwing over a quantity of bait minced very fine so that the fish cannot get enough of it to stay their appetites. Some of the best catches are made in this way, although when a number are fishing together it is not necessary to go to the trouble as the baited hooks are of themselves lure enough.

During a pompano run, boys often make good wages catching the little fish for market. They generally fetch a fancy price even when plentiful. Last week catches were reported from points all along the west coast line, Playa Del Rey, Manhattan, Redondo, all contributing to the grand total. So far as known the Rose party holds the season's record to date.

Pompano are affected adversely by storms, and for that reason not much sport is to be expected with them today, although in the bays it is not unlikely that some schools will be encountered, rough weather outside having driven them in.

SURF FISH RUNNING.

The Bay City wharf was crowded with surf fishers, last Sunday, among whom were Robert Campbell, Oscar Baer, Dionisio Botiller, Max Loewenthal, Charles Luckenbach, "Broncho" Spear, and others. Botiller won the day's honors. He captured two fine surf fish of almost three pounds weight. Sport on the whole was poor, although nearly everybody managed to get a decent mess. Max Loewenthal recently purchased a Catalina tournament rod, and celebrated by landing a silver button fish the first time out. His son subsequently hooked and landed another with a rod which weighs under nine ounces.

In a basket of seined fish which came up from Sunset beach, early last week, there were half a dozen of unusually big surf fish of eight pounds weight.

Sea trout of good sizes are reported from Port Los Angeles. They usually appear with the pompano. Angling seems to be starting in rather earlier than usual this year.

GREAT FISHERS ARE ISLANDERS.

HAWAIIANS ORIGINATE BONE TROLLING JIGS.

Natives Become Very Proficient in Capture of Marine Game Fish With Crudest Kind of Tools—Local Varieties in Island Waters Are Common.

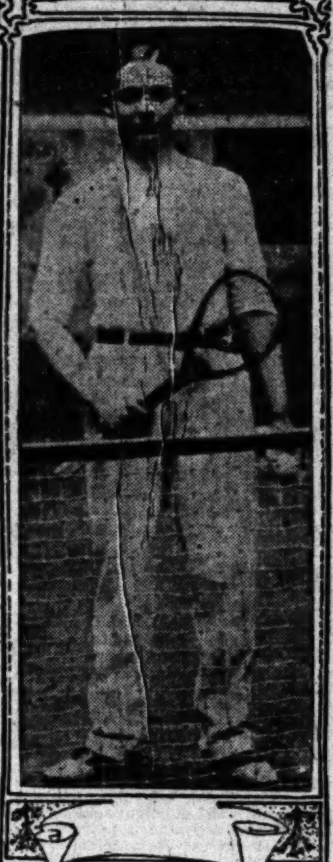
The bone and pearl jigs so much used in trolling have only been superseded within the last two or three years by metallic devices made for the same purpose. While the present form of the bone jig has come about through a sort of evolution, there can be but little doubt that the first were made by whalemen and other sailors after visits to the Hawaiian and other oceanic isles where similar devices are employed by the natives in fishing for bonita, albacore and other large predatory fishes of the mackerel order.

The method still employed by the Hawaiian islanders in the capture of these fish is picturesque in the extreme. With a stout twelve-foot cane pole and a line a little shorter than the rod bearing at its distal end a fish-shaped jig hewn out of mother-of-pearl, and armed with either a stout recurved bone or a modern fish-hook obtained from visitors, the native enters his canoe with another to row for him and sets out. The introduction of the barbed fish-hook has knocked a great deal of the poetry and skill out of the Hawaiian's piscatorial operations, but in remote parts of the islands where fishing is still carried on as it was a hundred years ago, sights can be seen that are well worth watching.

The canoes paddle about until the jumping of small fry and the presence of gulls and terns indicates that the desired fish are working below in the bait. Soon they begin rising, chasing the sardines and other small bait in a thousand directions, and it is then that the native angler gets in his fine Italian hand.

As a school of bonita (he calls them Ah-koo, or something that sounds like that,) dart by the prow of the canoe, the fisherman casts his jig with as much of a spat as he can, apparently thinking it attracts, rather than frightens the fish. Bonita are not very coy around the islands, or indeed anywhere else for that matter, and the native generally has a strike immediately.

With strength born of his outdoor life, the muscular Hawaiian swings that heavy fish out of the water at the end of twelve or fifteen-foot pole with one mighty surge, and whirling him about the boat in a steadily narrowing circle, throws his elbow akimbo, and in the pocket thus formed skillfully catches and stops the fish, dropping it beside him in the canoe.



JAY GOULD,
who defended court tennis championship.

The hooks have either no barb at all, or a mere excuse for one, and the slightest slack would mean a lost fish. The degree of manual dexterity exhibited by these natives is almost beyond belief; a white man armed with the latest rod and reel could not begin to catch as many bonita as one of them,

HIGH POWER MOTOR BOATS ARE BEGINNING TO TAKE PLACE OF SAILING YACHTS IN FAVOR OF SOME

YACHTING NOTES.

Sir Thomas Lipton has presented a cup to the Crescent Athletic Club of New York to be raced for in a class of fifteen-footers, to be built under the universal rule. A design complying with the restrictions regarding this trophy has been made by Henry Gielow, and a model was exhibited at the last meeting of the club, and won much approval. The little vessels will measure as follows: Over all length, twenty-six feet; waterline, eighteen feet; beam, six feet, ten inches, and draught, five feet. The sail area is to be 460 square feet. A number of members have signified their intention to build, and the class is especially recommended for the consideration of the younger amateurs of Los Angeles who have neither time, money nor experience sufficient for large vessels. These non-capsizable craft have cabin enough for two, and when strongly built are competent to make the passage to Avalon in good weather.

Percy Tatchell, honorary secretary for the London Model Yacht Club, recommends the use of sailing models for the purpose of ascertaining probable results under the international measurement rule. He says that one use of the model, in relation to her larger sisters, is that the balance of a boat can be obtained to perfection through the aid of a shifting mast-step, by means of which the whole sail plan can be shifted forward or aft till the spot is found where the sailing model keeps just full by the wind when the tiller is pinned amidships. He says that a model built accurately to scale costs about $50, and that it costs about this sum, or more, to shift the mast-step when the ordinary racer seems to need it. There are a number of model yacht clubs in or near New York, and a match open to models of 39.4 rating to the international rule (one inch to the foot,) will be sailed next Saturday at Kensington Gardens.

The power boat Dixie, which has been the star performer at the recent races at Palm Beach, will be taken to England to run for the Harmsworth cup races, to come off at Southampton next August. Howard I. Shaw says the Dixie proved herself to be a consistent speed model. Her best speed, with and against tide, was 29.23 statute miles. That the United States owns other fast boats is shown by the fact that in one of the races the Swallow, owned by E. H. Godshalk, lost to the Dixie by only one second. As to this, Mr. Shaw, who is a prominent member of the Motor Boat Club of America, says, as an expert, that as the Dixie did not carry her racing number in this contest she probably owes her victory to this fact, which suggests the keen edge to which motor boat racing has been brought. Shaw says: "It is only fair to assume that in a race of many miles at this high speed the carrying of a racing number of perhaps six square feet, together with the extra windage of the signal staff, would have resulted in the loss of some seconds."

The Seawanhaka International Challenge Cup has been held for nine years against all comers by the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club of Montreal. This strong defense brought annual challenges from many parts of the United States—all the way from Minnesota to New York and Massachusetts. One of these challengers, owned by Mr. Ordway of the White Bear Lake Yacht Club in Minnesota, was called the Yankee, and it is said that the same boat has now been brought to San Pedro for a Los Angeles owner, to race against the Detroit. The annual building of large fleets, from which to select defenders has apparently exhausted the energies of the Canadians, and it was decided at the last meeting of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club that no attempt will be made for several years to go after the trophy, which was lost last season to a Massachusetts challenger.

At the annual dinner of the Motor Boat Club of America, Admiral Coghlan presented the prizes won at the Hudson River racing, and Lewis Nixon, of ship trust fame, contrasted the engine crank and the cranky engine. Harry Payne Whitney got one of these prizes, and F. G. Bourne, lately commodore of the New York Yacht Club, got another. The president of the club, Commodore E. J. Schroeder, of Jersey City, naturally took a good share, as he is the owner of the celebrated Dixie, which will soon tackle the English fliers for the world's championship.

F. M. Smith, the owner of the Effort, is a happy man. In view of the great interest taken in the first race for King Edward's gold cup, which the Effort won, off Newport, in a click-clack finish, with only nine seconds to spare, the New York Yacht Club has decided to give Mr. Smith a replica of the much-desired trophy. The original gift does not change owners. All that Smith gets on that is the name of his yacht and his own name. But the N.Y.Y.C. thinks that a man who goes to such peculiar preparation for this contest, and succeeds, ought to get something to show for his victory, and it contains a suggestion of the New York Yacht Club's wealth that it can give a duplicate of a King's challenge cup to keep

CHICAGO EXPERT WITH THE BILLIARD CUE.

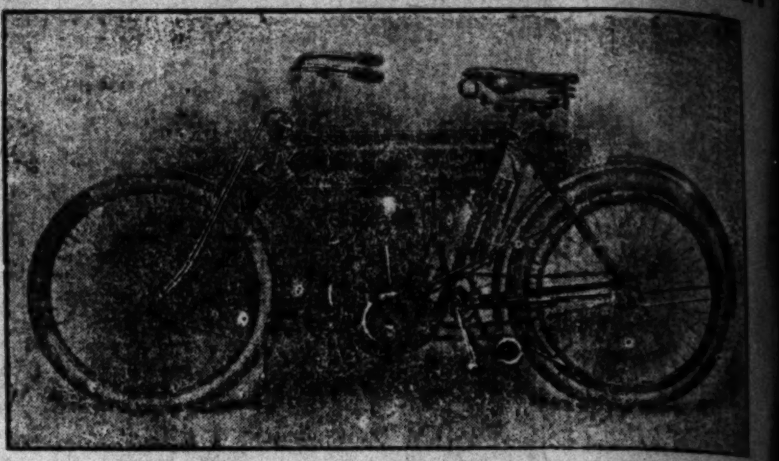
CALVIN DEMAREST,
who won national amateur championship at New York, recently.

Calvin Demarest, the amateur billiard champion, is but 19 years old, and comes from Chicago. He made a remarkable showing in the tourney at Chicago, being pitted against the finest amateur players in America. He equaled some of the high average records and altogether made a brilliant impression. He is hailed by some as a second Willie Hopp and may enter the professional ranks some day.

Do You Know the 1907 Yale-Californ



Of course you do, but do you know why it is the lea motor cycle, not only on the Pacific Slope, but all over United States?

The reason is told in three words: Standardization, ficiency, Dependability.

The '07 Yale-California is not made of lected parts that have been rushed through half a do factories to catch the early trade. It is built in the one tory in the United States that makes not only its mot but all its parts. Do you catch the tremendous worth that statement? It tells you why the '07 Yale-California has the perfect balance that marks the high grade of engineering and superior shop practice.

A few distinctive features are its perfect cushion fork, nickel steel, one-piece crank shaft and connecting rod; Phosphor Bronze bearings, its positive grip control, its extremely simple motor which gives a speed of from 4 to 4 miles, and its exceptionally fine lines and business-lik appearance.

We want you to see the 1907 model before you come any decision. You really can't afford to do otherwise.

Both these men weigh close to 180 pounds, and are powerfully built. Pemberton was a member of the 'varsity four picked by Murphy last spring to row against California. He is also a Rugby player, being a member of the fifteen that defeated the Blue and Gold in November and made so creditable a showing in Vancouver during the Christmas holidays. He registers from San Francisco.

Conant of Eureka and Gay of Riverside rowed on the 1908 freshmen crew which won Stanford's first boat race two years ago on Lake Washington, defeating the freshmen crews of Washington and California by wide margins. Coxswain Turner has held this position for two years, and is regarded as the best man Stanford has yet produced for this position.

When the eight which will meet California next month is selected, Coach Murphy will have four men in addition to the veterans to pick. Of the old men out, "Newt" Cole and Stark seem to be the most promising candidates. Both are fast, strong men, and not too heavy for positions in the boat. The men who will complete the "eight" will be chosen with a view to light weight and strength combined since the four men already practically certain of places are all heavy. For this reason several freshmen have a good chance to make the 'varsity, most prominent among them being Reynolds of Pasadena, Patrick of Vallejo, Houston, Fitting and Vose. Four of these men will be chosen as the 1910 crew, since the coach has not sufficient material in the first year class to form an eight. Unless California will consent to a four-oared race between the "baby" crews, this match may be called off.

Some of the Cardinal freshmen will be taken on the southern trip and used on the junior crews in order that they may gain experience in racing. Although the southern crews are reputed to be strong, especially the San Diego four, the Stanford men hope to carry off the honors next Saturday. The personnel of the crews may be announced any day. Meanwhile hard training will be continued on Lake Laguinita and at Redwood

U. S. C. TRACK TEAM WHICH IS STRONGEST IN THE SOUTH THIS YEAR.

ATHLETIC SUCCESS BOOSTS EDUCATION.

HARVEY R. HOLMES, professor of physical education at the University of Southern California, in an interview for The Times, gives some of the rules and methods which he has used successfully in bringing U.S.C. athletes out into a team of winners.

"I never give two men the same training, even for the same race," said Coach Holmes. "I hold that men with plenty of dash will do more in a meet than if they have more endurance and less ginger. I have them breathe much at night and morning. Systematic breathing exercises alone would in time make a fair athlete, without a track. Most track men don't breathe full enough—don't use full lung capacity.

"Eat all you want of what agrees with you," is Holmes's advice. "Plenty of sugar, a reasonable amount of cake, rich desserts as well as meat and milk, are beneficial. I regard sugar as one of the best articles of diet for a man in training. His endurance is greater and his energy lasts longer if he has plenty of sugar. Some omit sugar, but it is a mistake, for the system demands it.

"I believe there is a ten-second man in every university if he is just brought out. What surprises me is that in the big universities, where there are so many good men who were already fast before they entered the higher institution, there are so few good athletes. In every institution where I have coached I have been fortunate in taking men that never had run, and out of them find some who could do the 100-yard dash in ten seconds. Since coming to the University of Southern California, men I have coached have broken records in all of the fourteen track and field events.

"There is no reason why every college cannot have men pole vaulting eleven feet. They can if they will train them; you can take a novice and he will vault eleven feet if he has it in him."

Coach Holmes says one of the faults of training in larger universities is that the coaches do not study their men enough. "The art in training a man," said he, "is not to make him fit your arbitrary rules, but to adapt the training to his individual requirements. Rules can be but general in their application. While I have supervision of all outside athletics here, we are really making our strongest showing in the work of the gymnasium, which is equal to that done anywhere. Examinations are as complete and careful as can be, and I consider my success due to the minute personal study of every boy who takes work."

Holmes is not a great friend of college fraternities, and he thinks the greatest reason why athletics are poorly managed in some of the large schools of the East is because the college sports are dominated by cliques and fraternities. "Winning," he says, "is not the first consideration. Athletics is the greatest drawing card a school can have, but in order that this may be true, the best interests of the school must be uppermost, and the results will follow."

The coach considers that the results attained at the Methodist school are a sufficient vindication of this policy. There it is stated that the shaping of athletics in the South is due largely to Holmes's efforts in carrying out the best methods in vogue in other parts of the country.

One of Holmes's greatest lines of success has been in producing a winning team of football men. Since he came here he has lost but one college football game. This defeat was administered by Occidental College and the team points out that this was just after they had been hammered to pieces in a hard struggle with Stanford's giants. Holmes says he never figures out his football plays until he has sized up the men he is going to use, in weight, speed, and experience. The greatest disadvantage he has had here, he claims, is that the men have been new at the game and haven't had a comprehensive enough knowledge of it to execute the plays given.

From a track team that couldn't beat a high school, U.S.C. athletes have developed, in three seasons, into a class almost equal to that of Stanford and Berkeley. Before that, U.S.C. had never won a track meet; while since then, the wearers of the scarlet and gold have lost but one dual track meet.

Asked in regard to his interscholastic meet, the coach says it has probably brought more students to the university than the combined efforts of all other forces working in this direction. This is because of the opportunity these meets furnish for high-school men to become acquainted with the university, its teachers, and its students before they are ready to choose the college they expect to attend. To achieve this in a greater degree Holmes originated the idea of paying the railroad fare of all the high-school athletes who make the trip.

The interscholastic meet occurs next Saturday and promises to be one of the biggest yet held in the South.

MAINE ADOPTS BOXING LAWS.

CRITICS BELIEVE PRECEDENT WILL BE BENEFICIAL.

Regulation of the Sport Demanded to Elevate the Game—California and Pennsylvania Laws Vague on Important Provisions—Many Men Delight in Contests.

The puritanical State of Maine is taking the lead in revolutionizing the boxing game and placing it upon a plane of respectability where it can stand on a par with baseball, football, and college field sports.

Not only does the law, passed recently, permit prizefights, but it legalizes and regulates them. Critics say that the law is a model and other States probably will follow the precedent.

The Maine law fixes the weight of the gloves at six ounces; says that there shall not be a difference of more than five pounds in the weight of the men or the match cannot be made; provides that no decision shall be given by a referee; and demands a certificate given by a registered physician from every boxer. All these measures are considered good by critics who have studied the game closely.

The California law is lax relative to the provision requiring a doctor, for it does not state whether he shall be an ordinary physician, a dentist, or a horse doctor. This fact was brought out at the investigation of the death of Harry Tenny, killed by Frankie Neil. The California law also is somewhat vague, as it is possible to pull off forty-five round fights at Colma, while in San Francisco there are special fight privileges under its new charter, the local authorities, having full power to regulate prizefighting.

The nearest approach to the Maine law is the one regulating the fighting game in Philadelphia, allowing six round bouts and no decisions. The Philadelphia courts have decided that two men boxing with five ounce gloves where the principals get a specified amount for their services and where no decision is given by the referee, does not constitute a prizefight. Pittsburgh, in the same State, apparently does not hold the same view as there seldom is any boxing there, which seems to show that the Pennsylvania law also is somewhat vague. New York State may pass a four round law this session, but whatever advantage this would be to the followers of boxing is lost through the fact that the proposed law gives James E. Sullivan's organization, the A.A.U., a complete monopoly of the sport.

The Nevada Legislature, about eleven years ago, passed a law permitting finish fights for a $1000 fee, so that Fitzsimmons and Corbett could meet after six governors of States of the union and the President of Mexico had prevented them from meeting.

One trouble in the past has been that sportsmen have not given the game the proper open sport nor demanded that boxing be regulated along proper lines. While most all men like boxing, the great majority refuse to espouse it openly, and legislators do not care to have their constituents learn of their voting in favor of any bill legalizing the sport, even though under close restrictions.

LEONARD LAUDER, who is to meet Kid Berry here.

BOXING NOTES.

Young Fitzgerald may not box again until fall, as a result of the injury to his arm in the Coulon fight, the other night. A bone was broken.

Since his defeat by Young Erne last Saturday night, Spike Robson's chances to best Abe Attell are not so bright. Erne had the advantage of height, weight and reach. Robson's footwork saved him many times. Erne scored a knockdown.

Joe Grim is preparing to visit California. Kid Williams might prove a good opponent in a preliminary bout. Grim, however, wants to meet Joe Thomas.

Freddy Weeks is going East to take on the featherweights in Philadelphia. Since the Colorado boy knocked out three men in less than four minutes, the little fellows around Denver have been sidestepping him.

It is said that Honey Mellody had trouble making 145 pounds the night he fought Joe Thomas, although the latter tipped the beam at 142. Manager McCarey will insist that the men weigh 142 to fight for the championship.

Kid Goodman has accepted an offer to fight Packie McFarland, who defeated Joe Galligan at Davenport. If McFarland defeats Goodman, Jimmy Gardner will bring the former back East. Gardner is ready himself to meet Honey Mellody at any time, and will soon issue a challenge to him, posting $1000 to bind the match.

Mike Schreck is in Hibbing, Minn., finishing training for his contest at that place with Ben Tremble, Tuesday. Mike needs but little more work to put him in shape. The bout is scheduled for fifteen rounds.

Mike Schreck has been offered a match with Sandy Ferguson at Tonopah, Nev., the contest to take place in April. Manager Riley wired stating that he would give the men 80 per cent. of the receipts. Unless the proposed match with Tommy Burns shows more promise than it does at present, Schreck will accept the offer.

Kid McClung recently stopped Webster Fielding, "the fighting miner," in three rounds of what was to have been a forty-five round battle, at Rhyolite, Nev. McClung is making quite a reputation in the gold fields.

Jack Johnson, Joe Gans, Sam Langford and Joe Jeanette, posing as the negro quartette, are keeping the white men busy these days sidestepping matches. It is probable that these four could defeat any four white men of equal weight in a contest for points.

Sam Langford will meet "Tiger" Smith, a middleweight, in his first appearance on British soil. It was first supposed that he was going against "Gunner" Moir but it appears that Moir is coming to America. The fight will take place at the National Sporting Club of London on April 22.

That six-round stunt of Tommy Ryan and Hugo Kelly, near Rochester, N. Y., recently, has killed the fight game in that neighborhood. It is said to have been worse than Ryan's turn at Philadelphia with Jack Root a couple of years ago. Stage manager Jack Curley is now trying to book the master and pupil at one of the Nevada clubs.

May Sidetrack Nolan.

CHICAGO, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to well defined reports in sporting circles today Battling Nelson is about to return to his former manager, Teddy Murphy. Billy Nolan, who is unpopular both in Nevada and California, is having his troubles and the clubs are trying to overlook and slight him in their bookings. If Teddy gets Bat back again it will be a hilarious horse on the exacting William Nolan.

Match Completed.

NEW YORK, March 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Billy Honey Mellody, the welterweight champion, and Mike "Twin" Sullivan were matched this morning by Johnny Mooney, manager of Mellody, accepting the offer made to him for the bout by Tom McCarey. The men will come together in a twenty-round bout before the Pacific Athletic Club for 60 per cent. of the gross receipts on the night of April 22.

HOLMES CANCELS STANFORD MEET.

METHODISTS OBJECT TO TWO BIG ATTRACTIONS.

Rowing Regatta at Naples Scheduled for Same Day—Pomona Goes to Stanford April 9—Contest With University of Oregon Has Been Arranged for Early in May.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, March 23.—The meet between the Stanford and University of Southern California track teams scheduled for March 30 at Los Angeles has been called off at the suggestion of the southerners. In a measure replacing this meet for Stanford will be a meet with Pomona on the Stanford track on April 9. A contest with the University of Oregon has also been arranged for May 4. Stanford will take fifteen men to Eugene to meet the Oregon athletes, who have in their number Kelly, the famous 100-yard dash man, and other equally good performers. Oregon guarantees $500 toward the expenses of the trip.

The reasons given for cancelling the date with U.S.C. on March 30 are that the southern collegians object to two attractions in the South on the same day, March 30 being the date of the regatta at Naples between Stanford and various crews of the southern part of the State.

Arrangements for the intercollegiate meet at Berkeley on April 20 will be made Sunday night, when committees representing Stanford and California will meet in San Francisco. Stanford's delegates will be Manager D. D. Sales and Track Captain J. C. Macfarland, while California will be represented by Manager Snedigar and Track Captain Wilcox.

ATHLETICS AT REDLANDS.

Grammar Schools to Hold Field Meet and Y.M.C.A. Juniors Plan Vacation Events.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

REDLANDS, March 23.—The Redlands grammar schools are to have a field-day meet April 6 at the High School grounds. The events are to begin at 9:30 in the morning. The opening exercises will consist of calesthenic drills, in which a large number of pupils from each school will participate. Afterward will come the general programme in which the points made will count toward prizes. The prizes are banners, which will be awarded to the school making the best record in the boys' and girls' basketball games, the tennis doubles and singles for both boys and girls and the various track events. In the tennis matches the teachers also will have a chance to show what they can do.

Individual prizes will also be given as follows:: Boys' 50-yard dash, boys' standing broad jump, boys' running broad jump; boys' baseball throw, boys' one-mile relay race; girls' baseball throw, girls' 25-yard dash, girls' rope-skipping, girls' basketball throw. These events will take place in the morning.

In the afternoon the tennis and basketball games will be held. The exercises will be in charge of a squad of High School boys. The entries closed today. A basket lunch will be served at noon.

Y.M.C.A. ATHLETICS.

Physical Director Rufus W. Gilbert of the Y.M.C.A. is planning a busy vacation week for the juniors. Monday morning will be held a tennis tournament in doubles and singles. Tuesday morning there will be another game of basketball on the High School grounds, the Lowell school basketball team being their opponents. Wednesday morning the boys will go to San Bernardino for a swim in the new natatorium on Third street. Thursday they will play basketball with the Lugonia school, and on Friday morning with the second team of the High School. Saturday they will engage in a series of track events, and on Saturday evening comes the junior circus in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

During the vacation the intermediates will enjoy a swim in the San Bernardino natatorium Wednesday evening, and on Saturday afternoon they will take a hike over the country toward Crafton.

QUAKERS GOING NORTH.

Basketball Teams Are to Play for Intercollegiate Championship of the State.

The Whittier College champion basketball team is to make a trip North during the spring vacation of the college, which begins March 29. Games have been arranged with Stanford, University of California, University of the Pacific, as well as a game with the Santa Cruz Y.M.C.A.

The University of the Pacific team holds the intercollegiate championship of the northern part of the State, and as the Quakers claim to be champions of Southern California, the game at San José may decide the intercollegiate championship of the State.

The entire squad of ten men will be taken on the trip and the Quakers are very hopeful of landing the championship. All the men have been practicing hard during the past week, except Mills, the crack miler, whom Coach Thompson only allowed to throw a few goals.

Feeler, who was unable to make the 'varsity during the regular season, has been showing remarkably fine form, and probably will play center in most of the games on the northern trip.

American tourists who are interested in autoing will find plenty to interest them in Europe this year, no matter in what month they go abroad. There are thirty-seven separate international events, shows, races and other contests, several of them lasting for a week or more.

TRAINING HAMPERED.

Heavy Rains Have Prevented Active Athletic Work at University of California.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, March 22.—Not for many years has the training of athletic teams been so seriously hampered and even made absolutely impossible for days at a stretch, by long continued rainy weather as it has been this spring. For nearly a week the almost unceasing downpour has made active training for any of the athletic teams except boating almost impossible and but little can be done until the grounds are given a chance to dry. The loss of practice is felt particularly by the baseball candidates and the freshmen track team. Even cross-country runs have had to be abandoned, as the roads about the bay are so muddy and slippery that training on them would be very hazardous.

Trainer Christie is having his men work in the gymnasium on the bars, flying rings and with the Indian clubs and bar bells.

The pitchers and catchers of the ball team are able to work out some in Harmon gymnasium, but no batting practice is possible, and there is no chance to work out the fielders. The men are in rat-class physical condition except "Bob" Jordan, the 'varsity pitcher. He injured his arm some time ago in sliding to base, but it is rapidly improving and will probably be in pitching shape again by the date of the first game with Stanford, April 6. Should Jordan not prove able to last the whole series, Ghiradelli may be counted on to fill his place in an excellent manner

There is considerable talk in rowing circles in England of sending the Cambridge crew to the United States this summer for a try with some of our best college and amateur eights. # Hats to be Duplicated for Five Dollars or Less

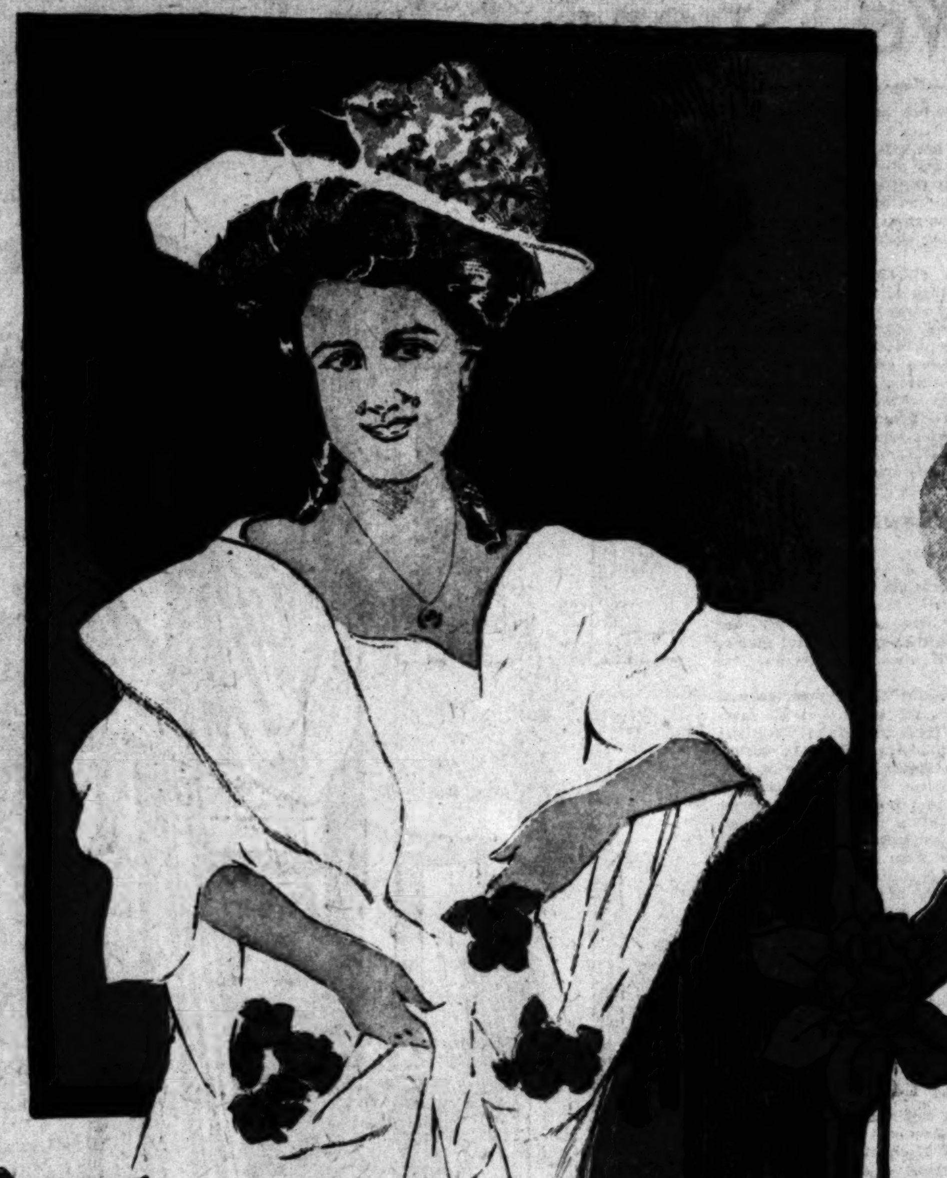
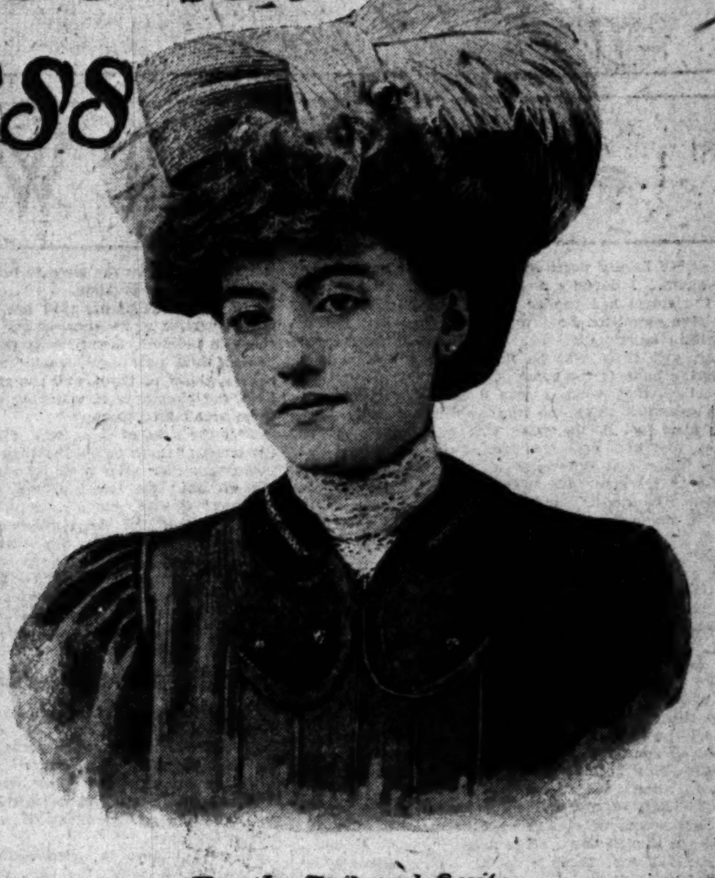
Light Blue Mushroom Chip





For the Tailored Suit.

Panama Chip with Coral Wings

A Fox Glove Hat

Forgetmenots and Point d'esprit

A Symphony in Browns

THERE is no season of the year when a well-dressed woman requires as many hats as in summer. Hot suns and sheets of dust soon work havoc with the best-looking headgear. Even when doubly protected, as the prudent woman usually has it, by parasol and veil, a summer hat somehow manages to get hopelessly shabby in a deplorably short time.

Most women, therefore, recognize the necessity of owning more hats for summer wear than for winter. This is, of course, an easy solution of the difficulty for the girl with a liberal dress allowance, but the majority of women in moderate circumstances must either reconcile themselves to one or two hats and shabbiness or to buying inexpensive hats and plenty of them.

Fortunately, the day is past when a cheap hat means a cheap-looking one. This season as never before milliners, even the fashionable ones, are recognizing the place of the hat that can be trimmed for a few dollars, and are vying with each other to produce good-looking headgear at moderate cost.

There are few women, for instance, even the most fastidious of dressers, but would be glad to have one of the attractive hats shown on this page today, any one of which can be duplicated for five dollars, provided you are clever fingered enough to do your own trimming.

The light blue chip hat in the popular mushroom shape is as striking and dainty an affair as one could wish, and would be charming to wear with lingerie gowns. It is trimmed in a single box-pleated frill of light blue velvet ribbon across the front, flanked on each side by a bunch of tiny brown roses and foliage. Under the brim is a large bow of the velvet ribbon and a chou of maline. The entire cost of such a hat is $4.75; or $1.50 for the hat; five yards of two-inch velvet ribbon, at 45 cents a yard, $2.25; and two bunches of flowers at 50 cents each, $1.00.

A copy of an imported model is the hat for the tailor suit, which is made of strips of brown straw draped on a wire frame, and trimmed with six-inch wide emerald green louisine ribbon, and three short uncurled plumes with quills exposed, of the same shade of green. As the feathers do not require recurling, old light-colored plumes may be dyed at home, still further reducing the cost. A strip of gold braid holds the ribbon. This hat requires a frame, 25 cents; four yards of straw, $1.60; three yards of ribbon, 60 cents; three short plumes, $2.25; one-half yard of gilt braid, 25 cents.

The small panama chip hat, with its bias folds of coral taffeta draped around a pair of coral wings and a tail feather, and its chou of taffeta in the back, can be made for $4.85; or, hat, $1.50; two yards of taffeta, $1.50; one pair of wings, 85 cents; cockatoo, $1.00.

The mushroom-shaped chip is indeed a symphony in brown, with its wealth of shaded brown chrysanthemums almost encircling the crown, save for a double fold of inch-wide velvet ribbon across the front and drawn smartly over the rim at each side, to be caught in the bandeau. This stylish chapeau can be made for $4.60, the hat costing $2.00, flowers $2.00, two yards of velvet ribbon, 60 cents.

For less than $4.50 one may duplicate the dressy little foxglove hat made of heavy violet net over a round sailor brim, raised at one side by a bandeau covered by a chou of laundered maline. The brim is bound with two folds of horse hair braid the color of the net, while the louisine ribbon around the brim is topped with the same braid. The foxgloves and foliage are slightly to the left side. The cost is: Frame, 25 cents; two yards of net, 80 cents; eight yards of fancy horse hair braid, $1.60; one and one-half yards of maline, 30 cents; three-quarters of a yard of 35-cent ribbon, 27 cents; a cluster of foxglove, 85 cents; foliage, 25 cents; bandeau, 10 cents, or altogether, $4.42.

The last hat is one of the fascinating new poke-shaped frames, covered in light blue point d'esprit bound in straw the same shade, and trimmed with a double Alsatian bow of wide soft blue ribbon and a chou of the same ribbon under the brim. Two wreaths of forget-me-nots outline the ribbon around the crown of the hat.

The whole cost of this very charming hat is: 2 yards of point d'esprit, 60 cents; 6 yards of straw, $1.20; two wreaths of forget-me-nots, $1; 6 yards of five-inch ribbon, $1.50; frame, 25 cents; three-quarters of a yard of muslin de soie, 40 cents; or as dressy and elaborate a hat as would please the most fastidious taste for $4.95 altogether.

The woman who trims her own hat must be especially careful in her choice of shapes and materials, lest she make a spectacle of herself. She will have ample opportunity to do so this season, with its quaint little poke shapes, trailing ribbons and ties, odd combinations of colors, and flowers such as never grew in any garden on earth. These novelties skilfully handled by the artist-milliner are one thing, though even then trying to the average woman, but let the amateur who does not have the knack of giving just those little touches that come only from long experience attempt millinery eccentricities, and lamentable, almost laughable, failure results. Avoid exaggeration, and stick to refined, conservative shapes and trimming if your hat is not to look home-made.

How Shall We Spend Our Easter?

It seems hardly possible that Easter is nearly upon us again. I dareeay most of you feel, as I do, as if Christmas had hardly gone far enough from us to have permitted Lent to come and go and Easter to be within hailing distance. Of course, it falls early this year, and there will be fewer spring flowers and fewer spring bonnets for some of us on that account.

I recollect that when I was a girl Easter bonnets were an essential thing, no matter when the day fell. Perhaps girls feel in the same way about their spring hats now, and it is only we older ones who think that it makes little real difference if we wear our winter bonnets until the snow has fairly melted. This year we will probably be glad of our furs as well, and those of us who go to an early service will hardly be able to tell from our physical sensations whether it is a Christmas or an Easter communion we attend.

With certain cold and possible frost outside there is all the more reason why the inside Easter should be warm and sunny, not only for ourselves, but also for those about us. There is a saying that "a good Lent makes a happy Easter," and I hope many of the Each and All girls will prove it this year. You have not forgotten the talk we had on Lent some weeks ago? I wish it were possible for us to have a comparison of experiences on the subject and learn from one another what Lent has brought us. What bad habits have we broken since Ash Wednesday? What selfish ways have we overcome? How often have we sacrificed our own pleasure to bring good of one sort or another to some one else? That, in my opinion, is better worth while than a long record of church services attended, helpful and inspiring though these often are.

But you will say, "This is not an Easter talk. It is all about Lent, and that is nearly over."

Well, the work you have done in Lent leads up to what Easter will mean to you and what you may make it mean to others. It should be a time of joy, of the awakening again to hope of the things that have been buried. To my mind, and to the thoughts of many others, I fancy it means in some respects even more than Christmas. It is such a time for the beginning of new and beautiful things in the world about us and in our own hearts. And with all the springing up of life around I hope there will be a crop which will show how the good seeds of Each and All have been sown and sprouted during the winter.

PLANS FOR JOY GIVING

What else does Easter mean to you this year besides the possible new bonnets, girls? Have you planned what you will do for others to bring the joy of Easter to them? Is this what Lent has done for you? Have you made schemes you mean to carry out during the Easter season that will make the name of Each and All more loved than ever? Of some of you I do not need to ask the question, so sure am I of an answer. From our Invalid Help Chapters all over the country I know there will come reports of what they have done to make Easter beautiful to sufferers and to the shut-ins and the barred out. Many of our other chapters will do the same sort of work, too, and a countless number of individual members from one end of the land to the other. I wish I knew what you are all planning for, so that I could talk about it here; but it is impossible to get the messages from all of you, and so I shall have to content myself with a few suggestions and with telling you what I have known to have been done in times past for Easter.

Flowers are always the sweetest Easter messengers one can send, but as at all other big festivals, they are expensive and beyond the reach of those who have to economize closely. One girl I know got around that beautifully last year and set an example that is well worth following. Along in the late winter she bought bulbs—freesias, hyacinths, crocuses, tulips, iris—and started them in the dark. She did not have much room to do it or much money to spend, but she managed it without great expense. Some of the plants were in bloom by Easter and ready to take to the friends whom she wished to remember at this season. She has told me that she had some of the happiest moments of her life when she went about with her pots of posies to those who needed cheering on Easter Day.

She made a very clever division between the plants that were in full bloom and those that were only on the way. The former she gave to her well friends, the latter she took to the invalids.

"I know the plants that are getting ready to bloom don't make so much show as the others," she said. "But those in blossom, beautiful as they are now, have really passed their best days, while the others have all their beauty ahead of them, and the shut-in and sick folk can have the happiness of watching their growth and seeing them break into bloom."

For the sake of those who will say ruefully that it is too late for them to do anything of that sort, I can tell you of another plan tried by some one else. She, too, put off until too late planting bulbs that would be in bloom at Easter, and she could not afford to buy the potted plants. So she purchased some neat little pots, made ornamental covers for them of bright crepe tissue paper, and in each pot planted seeds she knew would be sure to grow pretty rapidly. Some of the pots held morning glory seeds, others mignonette, nasturtiums and similar plants that were hardy and pleasing as well. She marked each pot with a label and sent a pretty card with it, and her friends were delighted with the gift.

INEXPENSIVE REMEMBRANCES

Apart from this there are many inexpensive growing plants that can be bought now at reasonable prices. A little pot of heliotrope, a geranium, the always satisfactory tradescantia or Wandering Jew, do not cost much but they bring joy to those who love plants and are really of more lasting pleasure than the beautiful azaleas and lilies that are in full bloom when they come and last only a few days.

I don't believe in extravagant Easter presents and celebrations, myself. We have too many demands upon our purses now for us to add fresh obligations. But the things one can do to mark Easter need not be costly. Even a card is often less welcome than a note of love and tenderness, a copy of a poem, a helpful or suitable extract from a book written and sent to one to whom all anniversaries are bound to bring more or less sorrowful thoughts. I have some charming Easter remembrances last year and the year before from you girls, but I do not know of anything that pleased and touched me more than a verse of poetry written by the hand of one who after suffering bereavement of the kind that spells heartbreak had been obliged to submit to a painful operation that bid fair to reduce seriously her ability to earn her own living. She, if any one, might have lamented and felt that the season that brought joy to others could hold none for her. Yet this is the verse she copied and sent to me:

> Lift up your heads, ye sorrowing ones,
> And be ye glad of heart,
> For Calvary Day and Easter Day,
> Earth's saddest day and gladdest day,
> Were just one day apart!

There are none of you but can send some such message of greeting to the friends about you or to those "long-distance friends" which Each and All has given every one of us in such numbers. Look about you as you did at Christmas and see where you can bring cheer. It may be the flowers or the growing plants of which we have spoken; it may be some bit of your own handiwork; it may be a colored egg to please a child, or one of the cards or notes of which we have spoken. So long as it goes with the Easter thought and the Each and All spirit and carries its message to the heart of the one who receives it, the remembrance is bound to be beautiful and helpful, both to the one who sends it and the one to whom it comes.

Make Each and All again a synonym for love and thoughtfulness and cheer that will cause all who hear of it long to know it better, to belong to it and to work for it.

A Verse for the Anti-Gossip

I read on the page about "Speak no evil, hear no evil." How do these lines not know who wrote them.

I learned them a good many years ago, a kindergarten, and I try to live up to E. H. G.

The lines are well worth living up to

WHAT THE VARIOUS WORKERS ARE DOING AND THINKING

More letters have come to the child-training question and will undoubtedly be of interest to the mothers of Each and All.

Child Training Again

I was so glad to read what you had written about the management of children—so glad that was your way as well as your opinion. I have tried to bring mine up that way—teaching them obedience from the first and love with it. I know sometimes I fail, but I try to do the best I can, and pray for guidance to improve.

Mrs. T. P. N. (North Wales, Pa.).

Blames Mother's Influence

When the discussion was going on of "How Mothers Should Train Their Children" my fingers just itched to take a pen and put in a word, but I didn't. Don't you feel, Mrs. Herrick, that the trouble is that women give to their children dispositions and traits of character before birth that afterward they try to curb and whip out of them, and constantly apologize for to their friends? Let women first govern themselves; then they will have no trouble to govern their children. I so often see poor little tots suffering from their mothers' indiscretions—ill, deformed, bad tempered and peevish. When I listen to the complaining mothers, I can't always hold my tongue. If expectant mothers would read the pledge beforehand and live up to it, I'll guarantee that their lives would be beautiful, as well as their children.

Mrs. C. E. T. (Winnipeg, Can.).

From the Mother of Three

I am a young mother with three hopefuls, all boys, and a stock of very original ideas on the subject of child raising, as the boys, "son," "kid" and "angel," are 7, 6 and 1 year old, respectively. I haven't the ideas quite "worked out" yet, still the youngsters are progressing, and the baby is really and truly a credit to me and his "raising."

I have read with interest the discussion on the management of infants, big and little, and as a mother and eldest sister, let me add, "ex curia," my verdict. I heartily agree with you that children should be ruled, not argued into things nor coaxed with "mystic phrases," etc. If a mother starts the coaxing and arguing plan, she lays out infinite work for herself. Children naturally love to argue, and from sheer perversity, I think, dislike to do any obvious duty. (Don't we older people do the same?) A child must learn to obey implicitly before he learns self-control.

Children are not, as a rule, in the least sentimental or given to introspection. That "wonderful human soul" is pretty well overshadowed by the healthy young animal in a normal child, and it is the worst thing one can do to teach children self-consciousness. The child that figured in the Elsie books never lived—she would have been intolerable if she had. An occasional spanking, plenty to do—real work—and lots to eat are, in my experience, the three things needful for children from 1 to 10 years. If you can add to the list a puppy and a baby, a mother too busy to interfere in every childish quarrel, and a father not too busy to be a court of last resort in extreme cases, as well as a good comrade to the youngsters, you have what is, in my idea, a good combination. And, by the way, let me add that a child, unless "put up to do it" by elder persons, never resents a just spanking. If there is ever resentment in a childish heart, it is of cross words and angry slaps. Mrs. P. M. B. (Chambersburg, Pa.).

"A Spanking is Something Necessary"

There are times in every child's life, I care not of what disposition, when a spanking is just the thing needed, and I think a sulky child needs it worse than any other kind. I feel sure it would effect a cure in time. One correspondent says the use of the rod is ignorance. I protest against that word. Some of the most intelligent people, and certainly the wisest, have made use of it. One must come down to common sense in the training of children. The writer further says that corporal punishment is the most stupendous monument of human love of power. Love of power, when it wrings our hearts to administer the same? I have a little daughter—a very sweet-dispositioned child—but there have been times when corporal punishment was the thing needed; that is, I spanked her, and I have found the results good. It is not often I have it to do, and I am glad, as I do not do it for love of power. CARNATION (Santa Ana, Cal.).

These letters should prove of interest and of help to all who care for children. The weight of opinion seems to be in favor of giving spankings when they are needed. It surprises me that so little has been said on the opposite side. Won't the non-spankers come forward?

Offers Help in Millinery

I am 20 years old, and am very much interested in your Each and All Society. I am a milliner by trade, but not very long ago I lost my invalid mother, so now I am keeping house for father and my four brothers. But I would gladly help any of the girls. I am interested in embroidery, millinery and music, and I would like to exchange postcards. MAY (Vancouver, B. C.).

An offer of this kind is likely to find prompt acceptance.

A Letter From Chicago

I am a former resident of Los Angeles. Will you please tell me if there are any members of Each and All in Chicago, Ill.? I am a young married woman, with experience in millinery. I will do all I can toward helping any of the sisters. Mrs. L. J. W. (Chicago, Ill.).

I regret to say that we have no chapter in Chicago, and very few members. Surely we ought to have a showing in that big city.

She Needs Friends

What I need mostly is friends. I have had a great deal of trouble, and am situated so that I lead a rather lonely life. I am 19, and would be so glad if some of the girls would write to me, and I also would be very glad to help any one in any way that I could. Perhaps I could help some one about fancy work, as I am very much interested in that. I also have a camera, but do not use it very much. BARBARA (Norwood, Mass.).

If the girls who care for fancy work and for photography would write to "Barbara," she would soon have the friends she craves. I hope her loneliness may soon be relieved.

An Esperanto Correspondent

I am much interested in the lessons on Esperanto that appeared on the page, and would like to correspond with some American girl from 20 to 25 years of age. I am 22. There are a good many points about the language that I do not understand, as I have to study it alone; but I think a great deal might be learned by correspondence, even if we did make some mistakes at first.

H. M. B. (Bolton, Mass.).

There are enough of our girls interested in Esperanto to provide for this member all the Esperanto correspondence she can handle. I hope some of them will write to her soon.

Thanks and an Inquiry

I am taking this means of answering all the lovely messages sent to me on Christmas from Each and All girls. I will try to answer all personally. I also want to express my sincere thanks to the girls for the many kind and cheerful letters I received during this trying winter, and a "tiger" for our president of the Invalid Help Chapter—E. P. D. Her letters are as good as a tonic.

Now, I want to ask if any one knows a respectable woman or girl who would like a home, with moderate wages, in return for light housework? I have been compelled to give up housekeeping on account of ill health. I have had my share of servants, but found all wanting. I want a steady person who will not wish to be out every evening of the week, or who will not expect to entertain her gentlemen friends with luncheon in my parlor. I prefer an older woman, and will promise her a good home. Mrs. C. H. (Tyrone, Pa.).

This letter has been delayed in printing by a pressure of other matter, but the thanks are no less earnest, even if tardy, and it gives me pleasure to print them. Can any one suggest such a helper as "Mrs. C. H." desires?

An Offer of Recipes

My business was that of a cateress before my departure into matrimony, and I should be glad to be able to help any one desiring any information in this line, or for any recipes in all lines of cookery.

F. M. R. (Agawan, Mass.).

A Baby Named for Each and All

I have a fine baby girl whose name I wish to enter on the cradle roll of Each and All. Her name is chosen to correspond with out society's title—"Edith Aimee S."—Each and All Society. It is not often one is named thus.

I am interested in fancy work, cooking, reading and sewing in general. I long to join a chapter for improvement. I could attend a meeting and help in many ways. My baby was born April 24, 1906.

RUBY'S MAMMA (Everett, Mass.).

This is an unusual compliment to pay to any association, and we all should appreciate it. I hope the little girl may take our pledge as her motto.

Of Interest to Stenographers

I am a public stenographer, and very often I have inquiries for stenographers whom I can recommend. I have secured some very good-paying positions for many fellow-stenographers, and would be pleased to help any member of Each and All to secure employment in this line. I am willing to assist any one I can in learning stenography.

For several years I have been making all my clothes, and have been unusually successful in this line. Willingly would I assist any one who would care to do the same thing. I can cut and fit as well as sew and design.

B. F. K. (Philadelphia, Pa.).

These kindly offers will appeal to others besides stenographers. The ability to cut and make one's own clothes is hardly second in usefulness to a knowledge of stenography.

A Towel Kimono

I have some nice cooking recipes, and will copy any of them for any one who wishes them. I also have a few hints for fancy work. There is a nice kimono made of a linen towel, to be worn after washing the hair. It is very simply made. Take a linen towel with fringe and double it in half. Cut the neck around and down a little in the front and bind with ribbon. Sew on ribbon to tie, and sew part up under the arms to make the armholes.

Mrs. L. (Frankford, Philadelphia, Pa.).

The advantage of a towel combing sacque is the ease with which it may be washed.

Two Recipes

A while ago one of our members—"V. R. E.," of Wildwood, N. J.—asked for a recipe for brown bread. Two members have sent recipes, and as the directions differ in some respects, I give both. Others besides "V. R. E." will no doubt be pleased to get the recipes:

BROWN BREAD, NO. 1

Here is a good recipe for brown bread for "V. R. E.," of Wildwood, N. J. I have used it a long time, and know it is good:

One cup of meal, half cup of flour, one cup of sour milk, quarter cup of sweet milk, quarter cup of molasses, half cup of raisins, one tablespoon of sugar, half teaspoon of soda. Steam two hours. E. K. (Danvers, Mass.).

BROWN BREAD, NO. 2

The following is a recipe I have used for twenty years, and if there is to be an entertainment where brown bread is used, I am always asked to make a loaf, until I think I can make nothing else. I will give it as I use it for my family of five, but it can very easily be enlarged or made smaller, if you will notice the proportions:

Two cups of cornmeal, two cups of ryemeal, four cups of sweet milk, two-thirds cup of molasses, one teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda. Steam without stopping three hours.

S. J. E. (Georgetown, Mass.).

An Amateur Photographer

I am an amateur photographer, and deeply interested in your Camera Chapter. I would like to correspond with some of the girls who are interested in the same. Are there any in my own city?

ANNA K. (Atlantic City, N. J.).

Will some of our other photographers write to this member? And how about the Atlantic City girls? Have we any photographers among them?

An Offer of Birch Bark

There is one little thing I can do for the club. If any desire birch bark for the making of fancy things, I can supply them, if necessary postage is sent.

M. C. (Rondo, Va.).

So many attractive articles can be made from birch bark that I am sure many girls will gladly pay the postage to get the bark.

Lists of Books

I am interested in music, reading and skating, and will be glad to send lists of good books for girls to any one who will write to me. D. M. (Danielson, Conn.).

This member has interests both indoors and out, and should be a pleasing correspondent.

A Boy for Our Cradle Roll

I want to tell you how much pleasure I have found in being a member of Each and All. There are several members who correspond with me, and one in Philadelphia who writes letters that would do any one good to read. Others sent postcards and wrote nice letters when baby came. A letter helps me so much. Baby can't come into our society, for the young men are not allowed; are they? My little girl, my oldest, says she will join when she is 12. Baby had lots of nice things from my Each and All friends. Mrs. H. L. T. (Roanoke, Va.).

We might admit such a very young man as this, if he would be willing to leave when he is older. But I am afraid we can't make exceptions to our rules.

A Piano Scarf and Fortune Telling

I have wanted a cluny lace piano scarf for a long time, but they are rather expensive, so I have decided on a Battenberg scarf, if I can get any one to make it for me at a reasonable price. I know there must be a good many among the Each and All girls who do this work, and perhaps one of them might be willing to do the work for me. I haven't a pattern, but I could very easily buy one—a good border pattern would do. I hope some one will offer to help me, as I am so anxious to see my piano decked out in a beautiful lace scarf. I will send materials or not, just as desired, and I think a price can be settled satisfactory to both of us.

If any one can give me the rules for telling fortunes by cards, I would be glad to hear from her, and would exchange with burnt wood. JACK (Lowell, Mass.).

We have many workers in Battenberg who would be able to help with the scarf, and several members understand fortune telling by cards. If they will write for "Jack's" address, inclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope, I will be happy to supply the needed information.

Willingness to Help

I am 47 years old, married, and have a little girl, 3 years (my own); also a stepdaughter, 13 years. My time is devoted to my household, but I feel sure I could spare some of it in helping some one or doing anything to help some one in any way. I can make almost any article in the sewing line. If there are any I can help in any way, or write letters to, or cast a gleam of sunshine in their lives, I will do so if it is in my power.

Mrs. J. F. W. (Pleasantville, N. J.).

Willingness to help such as this is sure to find a field. Chances are all about us, if we will keep on the lookout for them.

THE CITY SLEEPS

The city sleeps and dreams, and dreams are sweet.
How dark and still the street!
At peace, the citizens all silent lie;
There is no restive eye;
The breath is calm, no hurried feet go by,
Night falls and rest is sweet.

The strife and struggle of the garish day,
The world of work and play,
The turmoil and the fighting—all are past.
Nor loves nor hates outlast
The wondrous shadow of the truce that's cast
When night puts all away—

As if the citizens were only boys,
Grown tired of tasks and toys,
And seeking loving mother's knee, that there,
With bedtime kiss and prayer,
They might forget the daylight's little care
And surfeiting of joys.

O peaceful stars, compassioning, watchful eyes,
Make low the lullabies
That in vast unison the planets sing;
Let them wake not, nor bring
Too soon the pitiless, mad dawn on wing
That, gleaming, stirs the skies!

And thou, pale moon, pass on with silent tread—
Thou'st seen the world to bed.
Do ye, mild winds, snuff out her little light
With big clouds, soft and white,
As she upon the sleeping world shuts tight
The door, her "good-night" said.

And ye, black rivers, flowing to the sea,
Roll on most quietly,
Lest ye may wake the city, lying still,
Unconscious of the ill
Or good the morrow may bring forth to fill
Its cup—blest mystery!

And, last, O Father of the world, look down
With pity, not with frown,
And guard the city, proud and rich and great,
Forgot in its estate;
In childlike innocence, immaculate,
It sleeps—Thy Peace its crown!

HAD had a very restless night, so I arose early and was sitting in my open window, watching the half-light that precedes the n, and the long white road that went ing like a white ribbon up the

"You look as if you are hungry," I said.

one nodded.

"Ain't had nothink to eat since he went off," she remarked vaguely, taking a huge bite out of the pie, and smacking her lips after it.

"That's good!" she said, with pathetic emphasis, as the last bit of food disappeared. "Beats old Mother Pike's pies a cocked hat."

But I was interested in the child, not "Mother Pike."

"What's your name?" I asked.

"Yung Nicker," she returned in a matter-of-fact tone.

"Is that your real name?"

"Dunno. They all calls me that. Bill him as have just got six months, he allus says 'Yung Nicker', he do."

"Where is your father?" was my next question.

"Doin' time," was her reply. Then, a quick glance around, "Hadn't t be goin', missus? If your old comes knocking around, things'll lively for me, I reckon."

"There is no old man," I replied with amusement. "You are perfectly here."

Then she noticed my appearance in dressing gown and plaited hair.

"The swag," she repeated. "I always to hide it fur him whenever he took in. An' I've been a-watching this here place fur ever so long. Thinks I, next time pop gets took up, that'll be a fine place between them there flowers. Nobody'd ever think to look for it there."

"Well, I should hope not," I exclaimed. "What do you mean by hiding stolen property in my garden?"

She grinned from ear to ear.

"Blessed if you ain't green!" she cried. "Well, I'll be blowed! What d'ye take me fur? A thief?"

I hastened to apologise. But what did she mean?

"I s'pect I'll have to show you," she said, slowly, after a moment's consideration. "Only you'll have to promise solemnly you won't tell."

I promised I would not tell, and she led me back into the garden. A blackbird delving for worms stared at us in some astonishment. The birds are fearless in my garden. But Nicker stooped and picked up a stone.

BIRD'S NARROW ESCAPE

"See me hit that there bird?" she said.

But I seized her arm.

"Why, child, don't you know it is wicked to hurt a little bird? It's really murder."

She stared up at me curiously.

"Laws, missus!" she exclaimed, "if you aren't a funny 'un!"

We had reached the sweet peas now, and her face grew earnest.

"I had to be very careful," she said. "If I don't hide it good, the others'll collar it."

When the loose earth had been shoveled aside a small wooden box stood revealed.

"There 'tis," she cried.

Visions of stolen silver spoons, or even jewels, crossed my mind. Then she opened the lid.

What did I see?

Only a dirty clay pipe, a humble briar and a half-finished packet of tobacco, which loyal little Nicker was trying to keep safe hidden from grasping fingers until her father should have served out his six months' sentence and returned to enjoy his liberty and his pipe!

Can You Tell?

AN express train starts from New York for Buffalo and maintains an average speed of sixty miles an hour. At exactly the same minute a train starts from Buffalo, traveling at the rate of forty miles an hour. Which train will be further from New York city when they meet?

As an aid to the guessers, it may be said that Herkimer is the nearest halfway railroad station between New York and Buffalo, the distance between which is 441 miles. Herkimer is 224 miles from New York, so that a train running at sixty miles an hour would reach Herkimer in three hours and forty-four minutes. A train from Buffalo would cover the distance to Herkimer in five hours and seventeen minutes.

Stories for Little Folks

GRETCHEN was a little German girl, who lived with her mother on the borders of a great, dark forest.

Many of the children in the village were afraid to go into the forest, for it looked so big and black. But when Gretchen was a very tiny girl her father used to take her with him across the forest when he went to sell the butter, and so she knew it all and loved it.

One day Gretchen's father died, and her mother was too ill to walk the distance to sell the butter, so, although she did at first feel a little afraid of going across the big, lonely forest by herself, Gretchen bravely told her mother that she did not mind a bit, and that she would go.

AN ACCIDENT OCCURS

Off she started one fine afternoon, and reached the town and sold all her butter. But when she reached the forest on her way back it was almost dark, and Gretchen, thinking her mother would be anxious, began to run.

Suddenly she caught her foot in the root of an old tree, and fell and sprained her ankle very badly.

When she found that she could not walk, brave little girl though she was, she grew very frightened at being in the dark forest by herself and so far from home, and began to cry.

How long Gretchen had been crying she did not know, when she heard some little voices saying: "There! There! It's all right. We'll light you home."

She looked up and found the place full of little red-cap forest men, every one of whom had brought a lantern.

"We were cleaning up the forest and heard you crying, so we knew you were lost," they said. "Come along, we know where all good girls live."

"But I've hurt my foot, and can't walk," replied Gretchen.

"Oh, dear," said the little men, and for a moment they looked perplexed; but they soon thought of a plan. They fetched a big mushroom, and told Gretchen to sit on it. Then they carried her by turns, and in next to no time there she was at her own door.

Gretchen was never afraid of the dark forest after that, for she knew that the kind little men were looking after her.—A. F. C.

The Little Chronicle tells a very nice story about two young ferrymen.

"I wish I could earn some money," said Miller.

"I wish I could, too," answered Evert. "Can't you think of a way?"

"I am going to try," said Miller.

The two boys were talking as they came from school. At the corner they left each other.

"Good-night," called Evert.

"Good-night," Miller answered.

Miller was 10 years old. Evert was 7. They lived in Chicago. The next day was Saturday.

It began to rain in the morning. How it poured down!

When Miller went outdoors there were puddles of muddy water in the street. He wanted to cross the railway track. He had to go through a tunnel, under the track. A stream of water was running through the tunnel. A lady stood near by with an umbrella in one hand. With the other she held her skirts from the street. She did not know how to cross.

Then Miller thought of a way to earn money. He ran home and then went to Evert's house.

Soon both of the boys were going barefooted down the street. They were drawing a cart behind them.

When they came to the tunnel, there was a woman, a man and a little girl. They wanted to go downtown, but the water in the tunnel was too deep to walk through.

"Ride! Five cents a ride," called Miller, as he came up with the cart.

"Right this way," sang out Evert. He had heard coachmen say that.

"Get in," said the man to the little girl. He helped her into the cart and gave Miller a nickel. Then the boys splashed through the water to the other side. There Miller politely helped the little girl out.

"Now may I ride?" asked the woman. She tucked her skirt into the cart and held up her umbrella. She was soon safe across.

Next it was the man's turn.

"Can you carry me?" he asked, smiling. He was a heavy man.

"Oh, yes," answered Miller.

"Don't tip me out," said the man. He got in and they drew him carefully across.

Fifteen cents! How rich the boys felt. They sat down on their cart and waited.

The next person who came along was a Chinaman. He gave the boys five cents more. There were many others who were glad to ride through the muddy water.

WORK AT NIGHT

When people went home from work at night, the boys had to work fast.

"Don't spatter water on me," cried one woman, as they ran across.

The boys had not thought how the water was flying. After that they were more careful.

When most of the people had gone home from work, Evert said he thought it was time for them to go home, too. So they counted their money. A dollar and a half! They had never earned so much before in their lives.

They went home tired, wet and happy.

"We will try it the next day it rains. Won't we?" said Miller.

"Yes," answered Evert, "I won't care now if it does rain on Saturday."

After that, the boys spent many rainy days at the tunnel. They earned many nickels to put in their banks. They came to be called the ferrymen.

A Peculiar Palm

WITH A CABBAGE TOP

HERE you see a form of palm-tree which rejoices in the botanical name of Liviston Australis. It grows in Australia, and is the most common variety found in that country, being the only one that extends from tropical Queensland down southward to Victoria.

It is commonly spoken of as the cabbage palm, because the early Australian settlers used to eat the growing centre or heart of the tree as a vegetable. It really is good eating and has a peculiar flavor like walnuts, but as a whole tree must be destroyed to supply a single dish of the "cabbage," you can easily see why it is no longer utilized as food.

The average height to which the tree grows is about eighty feet, some few trees attaining a much greater height.

The tree pictured here was originally a part of the "bush," or thick woods, but has gradually lost most of its neighbors as the country has become settled up.

Some Good Outdoor Games

DO YOU boys know the game of Rounders?

The game is played with various numbers of players, but to be quite correct, there should be twenty, ten on each side, the "ins" and "outs." There should be five bases arranged in the form of a pentagon (five-sided figure), except in the event of your having only five players, when you should arrange only three bases in the form of a triangle.

The captains of the different sides draw lots as to who shall have the first innings, the losing side ranging themselves as fielders, with the exception of one of their number, who acts as feeder; a so-called bat is provided, but should be a stout stick or something of that kind.

The "ins" take their stand, one after the other, at No. 1 base. The first has the ball served to him and, if he fails to hit it, is allowed three trials; if he still fails, he is counted "out."

If he hits it he must drop the bat for the next player and run from base to base as quickly as he can, for any one of the fielders may seize the ball and pitch it at him. If he is hit, he is "out."

If he gets back safely to No. 1 base (in other words, "home") he takes his stand at the end of the row of "ins" to run when his turn comes.

Any striker hitting the ball so that it is caught is "out."

---

Another jolly game is Sling the Monkey.

The boys draw lots as to who shall take the part of monkey. The one to whom it falls is fastened up, given a large piece of chalk, and the rest then proceed to attack him with knotted handkerchiefs.

As they dance around him, hitting at him with their handkerchiefs, he tries to mark one of them with the chalk. If he succeeds, that boy becomes monkey, and the first is set free.

The boys should be careful not to hit out too viciously, and especially not to hit the monkey about the head and face.

---

Walk, Moon, Walk, is another nice game.

Moon is selected from among the players and blindfolded. He then stands with his legs wide apart, while the other players throw their knotted handkerchiefs through the arch formed by his legs.

When this is done they all start crying, "Walk, moon, walk!" and the moon steps about until he puts his foot on one of the handkerchiefs.

The boy whose handkerchief is trodden on then becomes moon, having first "run the gauntlet" between two rows of his comrades, who hit him with their knotted handkerchiefs as he runs.

At the Party

A GOOD joke is going the rounds of the clubs.

A certain young gentleman was invited to a party at a private lunatic asylum, and, according to his wont, selected the prettiest girl in the room as his partner, and kept up a very animated conversation with her.

In the course of the evening he said to the doctor:

"Do you know, that girl in the white dress with blue spots is a very curious case? I've been talking to her, and I cannot for the life and soul of me discover in what direction her mental malady lies. Of course, I saw at once she was mad—saw it in the odd look of her eyes. She kept looking at me so strangely. I asked her if she did not think she was the queen, or whether she had been robbed of a large fortune, or jilted by the Prince of Wales, and in various ways tried to find out the cause of her lunacy. But I couldn't. She was too artful."

"Very likely," answered the doctor; "you see, she is not a patient; she is one of the housemaids."

Meanwhile the pretty housemaid went to her fellow-servants and said: "Have you seen the new patient? He's been dancing with me—a fine man and bronzed, but as mad as a March hare. He asked if I wasn't the queen, if I hadn't been robbed of a large fortune, and whether the Prince of Wales didn't want to marry me. He is absolutely mad. What a pity, and such a fine young man!"

Sixteen-Foot Beard

FORTY-EIGHT years ago Mr. Robert Latter, a respected resident of Tunbridge Wells, England, decided to grow a beard. At that time he was following his occupation as an engineer, with his sole ambition centred upon his work.

The rapidity with which his beard grew, however, supplied Mr. Latter with a new idea. Everybody took a pride in something, he argued to himself, and he decided to try and grow a beard which would eclipse any in England.

And Mr. Latter has succeeded. At the present time his beard is more than sixteen feet long, and is so cunningly concealed that only a few of his friends know that he possesses a beard of such marvelous length.

At first Mr. Latter cultivated two small curls beneath the chin, and as their length increased he used to wear them beneath his waistcoat. Eventually these curls attained such a length that for his own comfort he had to inclose them in a bag, which was renewed every birthday.

Then Mr. Latter took to plaiting his beard, and as it became too large even to be carried in a bag he wound it round his waist, and thus the beard forms a natural garment which its owner declares he would not part with at any price.

What One May Become

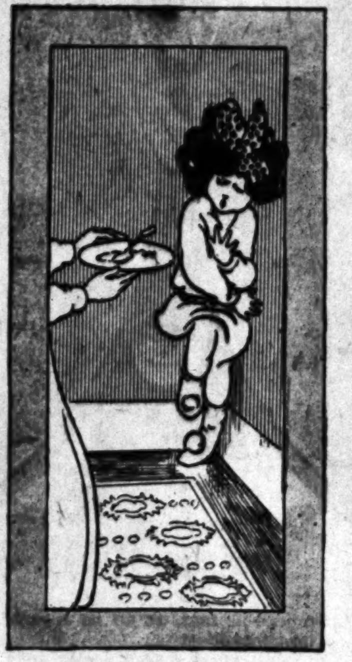
LITTIE Teddy Tadpole,
I regret to say,
Always looked the dark side—
Grumbled night and day.
Now you may behold him,
Sitting 'neath a log,
For the grumbling tadpole
Is a croaking frog.



"YOU MAY BE A GRUMBLER"

You may be a grumbler,
If you're so inclined;
But I don't advise it,
Lads and lassies, mind!
If along life's pathway
Cheerfully you jog,
You'll become a "croaker,"
Like old Teddy Frog.

—Marian Isabel Hurrell.

The Cat Got Out

THE school principal was examining the class in arithmetic.

"Now," he said, "here is one more problem. If a cat should fall down a bottomless hole and try to climb up, and for every two feet it climbed per second it slipped down three feet. How long would it take to get out of the well?"

There was a twinkle in his eye, and the class proceeded to smile. But the serious boy grabbed his slate and quickly filled both sides of it with figures.

"Good gracious," said the principal, sternly, "haven't you sense enough to see that the cat would never get out of the well?"

The boy looked up from his figures.

"That cat would get out somewhere in the Indian Ocean in 484 days 9 hours, sir," he said quietly, as if he had not heard.

And the class, remembering that the diameter through the earth is only 7926¼ miles, after all, smiled some more. He who laughs last "chortles" with delight.—Star Monthly.

The Story of a Dormouse

PERSONALLY, I consider it little short of an insult to call me a mouse. I am really first cousin to the squirrel, and my nearest relative, the loir, which lives in the beech woods of France and Germany, has the hairs in its tail in two rows, exactly like a squirrel. I scorn any connection with a crumb-stealing, wainscot-gnawing creature like the common house mouse.

Having thus attempted to vindicate my character, I will give you a short sketch of my career, from which you will be able to judge whether or no I am right in what I have said about my family.

Born in a Nest.

I was born, not in a dark hole behind the cellar stairs, but in a most beautifully built, globular nest, which was delicately suspended among the thick, dead herbage in the centre of a brambly hedge. The nest was about the size of a cricket ball, made entirely of grass and bents cunningly interwoven, the coarser pieces being outside, while the little inner chamber was lined with strips hardly thicker than horsehair. I think that a dormouse might safely challenge the world of four-legged creatures as architect. Our cousins, the squirrels, as often as not steal old crows' nests, or make their homes in hollow trunks. A dormouse is never guilty of such slackness.

There were six of us, and, judging from the looks of my own families, I have no doubt but that we were as ugly a lot of blind, hairless, helpless little miseries as you would wish to see. However, we grew rapidly, and within three weeks were almost as nimble and active as our parents. Day by day we made longer explorations in the wonderful recesses of the hedge, sometimes even venturing a little way out into the fast-growing grass of the adjoining meadow. Father and mother encouraged us to climb as much as possible.

They said we were safer above the ground than upon it. We had sad proof of this before long. One of my sisters, a rash little thing, went off down the hedge one day to a beech-tree, which grew perhaps fifty yards away from our nest. Mother had taken us there once before, but warned us not to go again without her.

When mother found out where she had gone, she followed. Alas! she was too late. She hurried back, shivering with fright, and told us the terrible news that a stoat had caught and devoured her child.

Stoats and weasels are our worst enemies. They can climb almost as well as we—at least, in the hedges. Snakes, too, are a terror to our race, but our chief reason for keeping within the cover of the hedges is our dread of kestrels and sparrowhawks, which swoop down upon us out of the sky.

What We Like to Eat.

All summer long we feasted upon buds, grass, seeds, and berries, and when autumn arrived we moved to a hazel coppice, where we grew fat as butter on plump nuts, the shells of which we cut through with our long, sharp front teeth.

October found us storing nuts, acorns and beech-mast for winter use; and then, when the leaves fell and the first hard frosts blackened the land, back we all went to our nest, and, squeezed in tightly together, went warmly to sleep. On calm, sunny days we would crawl out for a little food, but most of the time we slept soundly until near the end of March. Then, one bright morning, we said good-bye to one another, and each separated to find a mate and build a home for him or herself.

A Jolly Memory Game

ARRANGE ten or a dozen articles on a table, place a very clearly marked number beside each one. Then call in your company and give them just one minute to the second for observing the articles and numbers. Then they must return to the other room and try to write down the articles in the order they were arranged, numbering each properly.

At first it will be most difficult for most players to remember everything and every number. But with practice they will find they can depend on their memories more and more.

It is one of the very best games for the family to play. If father or mother complains of failing memory, recommend it to them. It will really benefit them, just as some form of calisthenics will benefit their stiffening muscles.

What is Beauty in Woman?

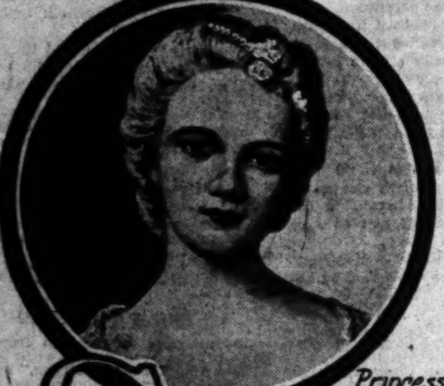
The Different Types that Have Enjoyed their Periods of Popularity



Princess Louise, daughter of Louis XIV

SOME ONE remarked, innocently enough, many years ago, "There's no accounting for tastes," and the saying had such a ring of homely truth in it that it has never been permitted to die out.

See how accurately it applies, as no other aphorism does, to the question of beauty in woman. Artists may paint or model, poets rave, lovers sigh, each with his own clear-cut idea of the ne plus ultra of face and form divine, but to what do their conclusions amount?

Even persons of equal aesthetic education cannot agree. One is charmed by a brunette, another by a blonde; a third prefers the happy medium. This man protests that beauty must be sought in woman's face alone; that man sees it in her form or carriage. One looks no further than the mould of the features; another disdains the exterior of the temple, attracted only by the light streaming from within.

To one man a pretty pair of lips is beauty; to another, a dimpled chin; to still another, a large, lustrous pair of eyes or pearly ears.

So all we know is that certain men or nations of certain times have shown preference for certain types of womanly beauty—or what they have called beauty—and why it is so we cannot tell.

WHENEVER men have tried by cut-and-dried rule to define beauty—to make a concrete thing of it, like the flavor of a cigar or the speed of a race horse—they have failed.

Yet, indefinable and incongruous as they have been, certain types of beauty have from time to time in the civilized world arisen to claim universal homage.

Perhaps it has been that some one of high place or attainments, like a king or poet, has expressed an opinion, and the populace has chimed in; or, as has occurred in some instances, the public has been first to see the beauty, and the critics have been forced to agree.

But evidently the mistake that people in all these times have made has been in trying to explain their preferences.

Even in the days of "the glory that was Greece"—in, perhaps, the most aesthetic period that the world has known—men tried to lay down rules of beauty; but, undoubtedly, then, as now, there arose every now and then an independent woman who boldly shattered every one of the rules and still made men call her beautiful for some indefinite reason which they could not express.

The Greek idea of beauty—as any one who visits an art museum occasionally can verify for himself—was the least flexible of all time.

One might almost call it wooden. Every feature must be just so. The head must be exactly such and such a shape, the hair done up in such and such a manner. The eyes must be just so big, just so far apart and sheltered by eyebrows of just such a length and thickness.

The nose must be perfectly straight. The lips must denote nobility, not love or passion. Their curled edges must extend just so far, to a hair's breadth, beyond the nostrils; the lower line of the ear must be just on a line with the mouth, and the uppermost point must be horizontal with the tail of the eye. And so on.

One was as near like another as the proverbial two peas in a pod.

Then came Rome, with its dashes of color, which changed the Greek statue into a living, breathing picture. The form was little changed—only soul was added. This meant a new school of womanly beauty.

The obstacles, the restrictions, which the Grecian artist had to encounter hampered not the brush of the Roman. Yet woman had remained the same, only men's aesthetic notions had changed.

What the men of Greece saw in their women to make them lovable was the same that the Romans saw in theirs, but it was measured up by a different gauge.

So it has been down to the present. It is doubtful if the woman who attracted men in Homer's day was essentially different in her beauty from her who inspired the muse of Tennyson, who today furnishes inspiration for the pot-boiler poet of the magazines.

How, then, are we to determine beauty when we see it? The question becomes highly important in view of attempts being made to say who is the most beautiful woman in America. Every village fair must be enlivened with a beauty contest. Two of the great American cities, Chicago and New York, are debating as to which has the more beautiful women.

In a contest in England, recently, Lady Beatrice Pole-Carew was picked by vote as the most beautiful woman in the empire.

In all these beauty contests the trouble has been that the decisions must be made from photographs, or half-tone reproductions, which cannot, of course, indicate aught of the expression, the indefinable Something, which is the real test of beauty.

For instance, in so far as the English contest was concerned, all that a majority of voters knew was that Lady Pole-Carew took a finer photograph than any of the others; for their only means of comparing the various beauties was from that source.

However, the result was, without doubt, fair, for the winning beauty has been seen in London fashionable life for several years, and is universally recognized as charming in face and manner—in fact, fit to be regarded as a typical English beauty.

Can her type of beauty be defined?

Possibly. A close study of the lady, of her features, bearing, manner and expression, leaves no doubt whatever as to the keynote of her beauty. It is simplicity.

Such a face with the least bit of consciousness added would become arrogant, insufferable. There is no such element in it. It is wholly unaffected. Neither the natural beauty nor the elaboration which wealth would make possible seems to have the slightest place in the mind. The poise of the lovely head is such as to recall Wordsworth's lines:

A violet, by a mossy stone half hidden from the eye,
Fair as a star when only one is shining in the sky.

And the glance of her large blue eyes is as that of a simple country maiden, all unconscious of the lovers and gayeties and money-mad world that throbs "over the hills and far away."

Further than this, it is hardly necessary to describe her face. It is not the face of a painted doll, nor yet of a pallid statue. It is normal, wholesome, an epitome of goodness; a womanly face, yet beaming with maiden enthusiasm.

The hair hangs in what Poe described as "a humble and careless curl." The cheeks glow with what the lady herself declares is the color fanned into them by the winds of her native Ireland.

Doesn't it seem perfectly natural to associate a popular beauty with the Green Isle? For example, when a model was sought for the silver statue to typify the State of Montana at the Chicago World's Fair, it was an Irish girl, Ada Rehan, who was chosen, simply because, like Lady Pole-Carew, she possessed beauty of a simple type.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, an American present-day beauty of another type, has her no less enthusiastic votaries.

Here is the austere dignity which attracts while it repels—which is charming by virtue of its very tantalizing repellence. Hers is the tall, lithe, graceful sweep of the goddess, with a goddess' regal eye and the cold iciness of an aristocratic lip—

A daughter of the gods, divinely tall,
And most divinely fair.

Critics and those who have given study to the aesthetic side of womanly beauty—if such an ephemeral thing be admitted as an aesthetic side to such a psychological subject—seem very much taken with this colder style. Such world-renowned artists as William M. Chase and Julien Story love to paint her.

Then there is the happy medium, she whom Byron thus describes:

She walks in beauty like the night
Of cloudless chimes and starry skies;
And all that's best of dark and bright
Meet in her aspect and her eyes.

Perhaps a satisfactory example of this type is Mrs. Grover Cleveland, whose beauty was widely heralded when she occupied the position of "first lady of the land," and who in her girlhood, as Miss Frances Folsom, was famed for her loveliness.

Essentially girlish—that redundant type of girlishness which characterizes a masterpiece of nature's handiwork—she yet took advantage of such artificial embellishments as clothes and arrangement of hair, which gave the effect of natural simplicity combined with regal stateliness. She represents the beauty of the period twenty years ago.

Such, too, was the type of one of the famous beauties of Civil War times—perhaps the most notable of all of that period—Miss Emilie Von Schaumburg, as she was, or Mrs. Hughes Hallett, as she now is.

She was one of the most popular entertainers of her day, a fine linguist and possessor of a musical voice, which was displayed to great advantage in the charitable concerts given to aid the soldier and sailor of the Civil War.

Miss Von Schaumburg: Famous Beauty of Civil War Times

At the time of her greatest popularity she resided in Philadelphia, and now she continues to shine in France. The courts of Europe [illegible] the charm of her face and personality. The picture shows her as she was just after the close of the great conflict, when her fame [illegible] almost over two continents.

One thing seems certain, dress does not make a beauty. In the days of crinolines and hair plastered over ears women were lauded as divinely beautiful just as now. Those forms of dress and coiffure which, in old family picture albums, today look to the ordinary person as monstrosities did not detract, in the eyes of the gallants of former days, from the beauty of the wearers.

The famous Harriet Lane Johnston, once known far and wide as "the beauty of the White House," wore hoop skirts and hid her pretty ears beneath her hair. But what did that matter, when her eyes beamed with brilliancy, her cheeks flushed with health and her lips were parted in winning laughter?

She was Harriet Lane when her uncle, James Buchanan, became President of the United States, and it fell to her lot to preside over the Executive Mansion, which she did with a grace that won unbounded admiration.

Another lady of the White House, in an earlier period, acquired such fame for personal attractiveness that she was known as "the beautiful Dolly Madison."

A frequent visitor to the White House during President Madison's administration was Marcia Burnes, another famous beauty of her time, who became Mrs. John P. Van Ness. She was an open-faced girl, brilliant and witty and the admired of all admirers.

In France it has usually been the [illegible] faced, doll type of woman that has won the admiration of poets, artists and rulers, but as the owners of such faces have almost all been brilliant in conversation, intrigue and the arts of entertainment, it is not easy to say how much their looks were to be thanked for their popularity.

The Princess Louise, daughter of Louis XIV, was perfect in form and visage, yet knew how to use jewelry and fine clothes to enhance her beauty. She was the famous beauty of her father's brilliant court.

France has always been partial to blondes.

Whether the French taste must change when the blonde type of beauty dies out, as is predicted to occur within the next few generations, it is not difficult to foretell.

For so long as woman exists, no matter what her complexion, she will be called beautiful, and men will bow at her shrine.

After Thirty Years.

THE STORY OF JOHN FERGUS'S MARRIAGE AFTER LONG WAITING.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

The minister had merely proclaimed for the first time the banns of marriage between John Fergus, bachelor, and Mary Jane Wilson, or McGlashan, widow, "both of this parish."

"It's indacent, that's what it is," said Mr. Danks, the fish merchant. "When I say it is indacent, I refer to this intimation o' merriage that fell on us a' day like a thunderbolt, and I tell ye, Joseph Ridhorn, that ma opeenion o' this proposed merriage is ——"

"O' nae value to onybody."

"We'll see aboot that. What has that auld miser, John Fergus, done for the kirk, I ask ye?" demanded Danks fiercely.

"He's never done onything to disgrace it, onyway."

"What d'ye mean?"

"In ither words," replied Mr. Redhorn calmly, "I wud suggest the advisabeelity o yer keepin' yer nose for yer fish an' no' for pokin' into ither folks' affairs."

"Especially," went on the painter, "the affairs o' a man that lost his best arm in a railway accident when he was little mair nor a youth."

"That's naethin' to dae wi' him bein' a miser," the elder snapped fiercely. "If he lost his arm, Providence sent him a legacy o' fully £3000 the vera same year, an Providence never intendit him to pit by the bigger hauf o' the interest."

"Maybe, Peter Danks, maybe. Bein' an elder, ye've dootless ha' mair communications wi' Providence than yer humble servant."

"Humph! Dae ye mean to tell me that Jane McGlashan, wha's fifty if she's a day, is merryin' John Fergus for onything but his siller?" Mr. Danks cried bitterly.

"I'm no' tellin' ye onything. But supposin' she is merryin' him for his siller, what business is it o' yours or mines? Nevertheless, I believe her wee shop keeps her comfortable, though ye wudna think there was muckle profit on sweeties an' tobaccy, an' newspapers, et cetera. Dinna excite yersel' further, Maister Danks. That's ma advice to you."

But Mr. Danks was not satisfied.

"He'll be livin' on her, an' savin' every penny o' his interest," he said viciously.

Mr. Redhorn stopped short in his walk.

"See, Maister Danks," he said sharply, "John Fergus gi'ed me ma first job, an' didna haggle aboot the price. As for Mrs. McGlashan she gi'ed me a bottle o' medicine last year that cured ma indigeestion—an' I'm Mistress McGlashan's freen for life. An' mind ye, Peter Danks, if ye try to mak' ony mischief aboot this merriage, I'll forget ye're an alder, an'—as shair as ma name's Joseph Ridhorn—I'll come when ye're sleepin' an' pent yer hoose pea-green, wi' bad words in scarlet on the door."

Whereupon Joseph left the dumfounded elder, and made for his modest dwelling. The first thing he did on entering the somewhat cheerless and untidy apartment, the atmosphere of which was redolent of something like Irish stew, was to take a dose from a bottle that stood on the mantelpiece.

"Here's to her!" he said, and quaffed the nauseous-looking drug. "If she hadna tell't me about this, I wud still be a meeserable dyspeptic."

Presently he sat down to attack the contents of the pot which he had placed on the fire before setting out for the church.

"It'll be something to tell Peter Brown an' his guid wife when I write the nicht. They never thocht or said evil o' anybody," he reflected. "Maybe Peter'll mind aboot Fergus an' him gettin' the legacy. I'll ask him."

As Joseph rested after a hearty meal a brilliant idea suddenly struck him.

It took him a full week to acquire courage sufficient for the carrying out of his brilliant idea.

At last, about 8 o'clock, on an October evening, he stepped stealthily from his door. About a furlong beyond the village he came to a cottage standing by itself on a half-acre of ground. A faint light filtered out between the closed shutters on the right-hand window.

"Weel, here goes!" he said, half aloud, as he stood on the steps and knocked on the door.

The dor was opened an inch and a voice shouted, "Wha's that?"

"It's me—Joseph Redhorn," replied the painter.

"It's a dirty nicht, Maister Fergus," Joseph remarked amiably, smiling and blinking in the lamp light.

"Ay," said Fergus shortly. "Ye maun be keen on business to come oot on a nicht like this."

"But I didna come to see ye on business," Joseph exclaimed. "Let me in, an' I'll tell ye ma reason for comin'."

Fergus hesitated. "Weel, ye best come in," he said at last. "It's no' a nicht for the doorstep for man or beast."

Mr. Redhorn followed his unwilling host into the kitchen.

"Sit down," said the other, pushing a chair nearer the hearth, and taking another for himself.

"Thenk ye," replied Mr. Redhorn, "Wud ye try a ceegaurette?"

"I dinna smoke," he said quietly. "Thenk ye a' the same, Joseph Redhorn."

A long silence followed. But the thing had to be faced, and at last he forced himself into speech.

"I was gaun to tell ye, Maister Fergus, hoo I managed to commence the smokin'. Ye see, I used to be a martyr to dyspepsia, if ye ken what that is, an' I thocht ma case was hopeless till yer wife——" Fergus started. "I mean yer intendit—gi-ed me a sample o' a mixture. An' noo I'm a new man! I can eat onything."

"Weel, weel," said Fergus, "I'm shair I'm glad to near ye've got, quit o' yer trouble."

"Ay," went on Mr. Redhorn solemnly, "It's the inner man that coonts. But there's anither thing. Dae ye ken wha gi'ed me ma first job when I set up in Fairport? It was yersel'! An' if I seemed to forget it in the past, ye maun blame it to ma internal organs that made me a dour, soor man for mony a lang year. An' that"—continued Mr. Redhorn excitedly—"that's the second reason for ma comin' to see ye the nicht—to—to congratulate ye on the important event that—that's loomin' in the near future, an' I hope I'm no' intrudin'."

"Ye're vera welcome here, Joseph."

"Thenk ye," the painter returned. "If—if ye're no' itherwise engaged," he stammered, "I—I wud be rale prood to be yer—yer best man. I've had nae experience, but—"

"Are ye in earnest, Joseph?"

"Ay, I'm in earnest!"

"Ha'e ye no heard what the folk says aboot me?"

"I'm no' carin' a snuff for public opeenion," returned Mr. Redhorn stoutly.

"I believe ye're a man, Joseph Ridhorn," he said. "Listen, an' I'll tell ye something. To begin wi', what doe ye think o' me for savin' money a' thae years?"

"I never thocht aboot it till the ither day, and then I thocht ye wud ha'e a guid reason for the savin'."

"Aweel, I'm gaun to tell ye. Mind, it's atween consel's. Listen! I lost ma arm when I was three an' twinty. I was coortin' a lass at the time. But ye canna keep a wife, an' maybe weans, on the wark o' yin arm, an' that the left yin. At least, I couldn't. An' it came to pass that the lass merrit anither man. An' the next year ma fayther's brither dee'd an' left me near three thousand pound. I had a brither, but he got naethin' left him—the reason for that I dinna ken. He was a clever lad. He micht ha'e been chancellor o' the exchequer if he had gotten the richt chance. So I gi'ed him the three thousan' pound, an' he was to pay me 5 per cent. But he never managed to pay mair nor yin an' a quarter. It wasna his fau't. Things was aye against him. Hooever he peyed that reg'lar for near thirty year, but it didna leave me muckle for gi'ein' away to furrin' missions an' the like. I stoppit gaun to the kirk, seein' I couldna pay ma footin'. An' I wasna gaun to tell everybody that ma brither had the len' o' ma siller. He dee'd the year afore last—bankrupt. I had been savin', Joseph, an' the savin's ha'e kept me up till noo. This wee hoose is ma ain. That's a'. Mary's keepin' me frae the—the puirhouse. That's the truth, Joseph."

"I'm vexed for ye, John," said Mr. Redhorn at last. "But—but yer guid time's comin' noo."

"Ye'll keep what I've said secret, Joseph?"

"I'm thinkin' the folk should get a bit hint o' the truth. Will ye no' leave the thing to me, John, seein' I'm to be yer best man? I'll be awfu' discreet. I'll get Peter Brown to write from Gleson mentionin' casual that he was glad to hear o' the marriage, but vexed to hear by accident that ye had never got the guid o' yer fortune o' thirty year syne. Hoo wud that dae?"

"Man, man!" cried Fergus, "a body wud think we was auld freens."

"So we are, but we didna fin' it oot till the nicht."

"I'm gled ye cam' to see me. What brocht ye, really?" Fergus asked rather abruptly.

Mr. Redhorn actually blushed. "Weel, I decidet because I was shair there maun be something rale fine about twa folk that gets merrit efter waitin' thirty year, whatever public opeenion says aboot them."

Mr. Fergus laughed for the first time that evening.

"Ye're a proper champion, Joseph! It's a wonder ye're no merrit yersel'."

The morning after the wedding Mr. Redhorn entered the little shop.

"A packet o' ceegaurettes," he said in a very offhand tone.

The comely little woman behind the counter looked up at him with a smile on her lips and a tear in each eye. She may have been nearly 50, but she did not look it then.

"John's up at the cottage," she remarked. "We're thinkin' o' startin' a wee business in vegetables an' fruit next year, forbye wur shop."

"I wish ye success, Mistress Fergus."

"I see ye're in a hurry—but Maister Ridhorn, did naebody say onything nasty about John wantin' to marry me when he had lost everything? Tell me, please?"

"Naebody kens that he had lost everything, Mistress Fergus."

"But—but—you ken, Maister Ridhorn—you ken. What did you think o' John?"

"I thocht o' him wantin' ye for thirty year," said Joseph.

"Oh, then, I'll tell ye the truth. Ye see, I kent aboot John's brother, an' I heard when he dee'd bankrupt. An' then I—I—I askit John to merry me. He couldna refuse."

ART OF FRENCH COOKS.

The White Clad Workmen and Some of Their Delicate Products.

[New York Sun:] There are 300 pastry cooks' shops in Paris. They manufacture 3,300,000 pounds of dry pastry—the sort of things we call fancy crackers—every year. The annual output of macaroon is 1,200,000 dozen.

The production of what we would call the cake and pie bakers has not been figured up. It is described as incalculable. But there are some figures collected regarding the raw materials consumed. They use, it is calculated, about $600,000 worth of butter every year, and $100,000 worth of almonds.

One house alone spends from $1200 to $1500 a year on rum, kirsch, peppermint and anisette for flavoring. It absorbs 1500 pounds of chocolate and $800 worth of vanilla. It uses 250 pounds of powdered sugar a week and about 400 pounds of loaf sugar.

It consumes 500 eggs a day. Another house gets away with 1000 eggs a week. These houses make nothing in the way of candy. The material is all used in cakes, tarts, puffs and the like.

Besides the business they do themselves, the Parisian manufacturers of pastry keep a large part of the world supplied with expert pastry cooks. There are said to be in London alone 12,000 men who either are French pastry cooks or at least learned their trade in the big Parisian shops.

There are a large number in America, too. Even Germany, the Parisians say, has to depend on Paris for everything eatable it gets in the pastry line. German confectionery is a horror to the eyes of the Frenchman. He admits, however, that Vienna is a close competitor of Paris, but it has not such a hold on the taste of the world.

It takes years to develop an artist in pastry. Many go through the long apprenticeship and don't develop. It takes a natural aptitude, the French say; cooks are like poets, born, not made.

Anyway, the apprenticeship must be begun at 13. The beginner is a picturesque little figure as he goes on errands with his big wicker basket, from which the other boys try to steal buns and tarts.

He is usually fat and rosy, for he is allowed to wear out his longing for sweets and creams until he acquires a sort of disdain for them. He wears a snow white, soft, flat cap, a white jacket and white apron.

Every one wears the same snow white rig in the pastry kitchens. The upper workmen sometimes finish it off with a light pink or blue silk handkerchief tied loosely over the shoulders so as to give a sort of sailor effect to the costume.

The spotless white uniform is obligatory. It corresponds with the spotless cleanliness of the kitchens themselves, with their batteries of shining tins and burnished copper.

The apprentice begins between errands by watching operations and learning the names of things. His training is considered the most expensive to his master of any trade. The materials he uses are of the most destructible kind, and what he spoils is a dead loss.

There is no way of patching up burned sugar, cream gone wrong or scorched dough. Many a box on the ear or worse the mitron—so they call the baker's boy—receives in recompense for his early efforts.

First he is put to work on the heavier kinds of cake. Then he is intrusted with filling the skeletons of tarts or puffs with fruit or cream. Presently he gets a chance at flake or puff paste, and enters on the bewildering task of classifying them.

There are more than a hundred separate and distinct kinds of paste; the distinctions between them are often a matter of mere shading, so to speak, but it is in that slight distinction that the fine art of paste-making resides. The slightest error is a culinary catastrophe.

A pinch of salt too much may convert a mass of flaky dough intended to reach perfection as fruit tarts into material for oyster patty frames and nothing else. The brittle, laminated trifle that should surround a cylinder of sweetened cream so lightly as hardly to be detected by the palate may, through a slight excess of flour, become unfit for anything lighter than coffee cake. It is many, many months before the beginner can be trusted to live up to these gradations with sure judgment.

After three or four years, however, the learner who is going to learn the trade at all knows enough to cook the grade of aide patissier. He is now allowed to take up the fine art of sugar work in its humbler branches.

He learns how to boil sugar for ornamental work, to smooth it; to reduce it to the pearl state and to the puff state in which it clings to the skimmer like a stalactite; then to produce the brittle condition in which it is ready to crumble like sand and to turn it into caramel. He must also learn to gauge the point of treatment when it reaches the feather condition and can be made to flow in thin unbroken threads so as to be used for ornamental purposes.

Then there are all sorts of cakes to learn about and tarts and pâtés and soufflés and bouchées and custards and creams. Every one has a formula and many of the formulas have half a dozen variations. There are twenty-three different kinds of soufflé.

There are innumerable custards—Portuguese, Parisian, Milanese, Turkish; one has recently been added in honor of the new political alliance, called the Anglo-French. It would take a book to describe the various kinds of charlotte, ranging from the Montpensier to the Princess of Wales.

Urbian Dubois in his book, which is a great authority on pastry, specifies fifty-eight different sorts of cream cakes with directions for each. Here, by way of sample, is his recipe for Rose Bavarian cream:

"Take 100 grams (about three and a half ounces) of rose petals taken from blooms not too mature, and above all freshly plucked; bring half a pint of syrup to a boil; take it from the fire and drop the rose leaves into it, a few at a time, stirring it constantly. Strain it and add your whipped cream to it, not forgetting a few spoonfuls of plain cream. Beat it all up and you will have the most exquisite cream ever dreamed of—that is if you haven't spoiled it in the making."

As aide ratissier the learner has been receiving about $7 a month besides board and lodging. After three years of this, or some six years altogether of apprenticeship, he becomes a journeyman pastry cook and his pay becomes from $20 to $2. a month with bed and board. He may then take up a specialty.

Some go in for flake pastry, others cultivate short dough; some take up those delicious little sweetmeats which are known everywhere as "petits fours," for which the demand is enormous. The man who can turn his hand to any sort of pastry with success soon reaches the rank of second chef, and brilliant openings are within his reach, whether in large manufacturing establishments or in private kitchens at home or abroad.

The pay of a pastry chef in Paris is from $50 a month up, always with his board and room, so that he is regarded as earning the equivalent of say $1000 a year as a minimum. When he shows inventive genius and contributes new ideas to the fashionable sweetmeats of the day, he becomes, as it were, a sole performer and his emoluments are proportioned to his gifts and popularity.

In the set piece, piece montée is the height of the pastry cook's art. Every specimen, from the wedding cake of everyday life to those towers of macaroons and mases of sugar filagree which are sometimes used to adorn banquet tables calls for imagination and artistic perception and for trained skill in its realization.

There are men who make a specialty of sugar scrollwork, weaving it from sugar putty, which they squeeze out of the point of a paper "tutt." Others make a specialty of sugar flowers and foliage. The flower artist works in front of a chafing dish covered with a great sheet of metal on which his material—sugar of various hues—is kept warm.

From a little ball of sugar, which he works with his fingers, the petal, the bud, the leaf, is rapidly and accurately molded. While it is still warm it is soldered into its place in the bouquet. He can conterfeit the carnation the fuchsia, the lily, with wonderful fidelity, but, of course his specialty is the rose. He can make a dozen full-blown roses an hour.

Some of the set pieces are ambitious in design. A chocolate ship or motor boat is often seen navigating an ocean of pistache, while the crests of the waves are done in sugar floss. From a mountain made of caramel a spray of sugar floss trembles over a basin filled with delicately-tinted jelly. Castles are built of sponge-cake bricks cemented with rich heavy creams or fruit jellies. Sugar animals are dotted over mountains of almond cake tinted with pistache where grass and trees ought to be.

At a dinner celebrating the opening of the Simplon tunnel the mountain and tunnel were shown in cake of variegated composition and color, with a crest of sugar snow. A train entering the tunnel was all sugar work, the glaciers of clarified sugar.

The most frequent call for elaborate work, however, is for birthday and wedding cakes. These are usually more or less convention in design—classical, the cooks call it—but sometimes there is a departure from the settled rule.

The cake built for the wedding of Stanley, the explorer, was decorated with incidents from his travels. Tropical scenery and African savages were modeled in sugar work for its adornment.

The wedding cake for the marriage of King Alfonso of Spain to the Princess Victoria of Battenberg was made in London—by Frenchmen, the Parisians say. It was shipped to Spain in a case seven feet high.

It measured nearly four feet in diameter and weighed more than 1200 pounds. The main design was a Spanish vineyard and the base was garlanded with daisies, orange flowers, myrtles and white roses.

The Newest Fashionable Craze.

The newest drawing-room favorite is the moth—in the cocoon stage.

Ladies, who have lived in fear and trembling of the invasion of the dread destroyers of furs and fine cloth, now buy moth and butterfly cocoons, and watch, with absorbed interest, their strange transitions.

Inquiring yesterday at a well-known naturalist's, the Daily Mirror learned that the sale of cocoons is increasing steadily.

"There is quite a large trade in the cocoons of the Asiatic Atlas moth, the wings of which sometimes measure twelve inches across," said the manager. "The cocoons reach England in the spring, and change into moths about June. They cost 2s. 6d. each.

"As a hobby, moth-breeding is cheap and fascinating. All that is required is a small cage, costing 2s. 6d., in which the cocoon is hung, to be kept in a dry, even temperature. In the early summer the moth will emerge, and can be quickly killed with chloroform for one's collection."

The dearest cocoon sold by the firm is the Actias Selene, which costs 3s. 6d., and the moth of which is light silky blue in color, with an eight-inch expanse of wing.

Some thirty other varieties are sold, which cost from 1d. to 2s. 6d. each.

"From a business point of view," said a well-known entomologist to the Daily Mirror, "money can be made out of cocoons. There is a butterfly farm at Bexley, Kent, where a thriving trade is done in insect breeding.

"I know men who regularly make from £200 to £300 a year out of moth breeding, but it requires a thorough knowledgee of entomology, coupled with extreme care and delicacy, to make this queer profession a success."—[London Mirror.

THE ANGRY DINNER.

A Pertinent Plea for Peace in the Family at Meal Time.

Some families do not mix. Individually they are charming people; put together they behave like the two parts of a seidlitz powder, fuss noisily, and are bitter and cold. You meet the master of the house by himself, and find him a tame and even cheerful creature. His wife is a little lachrymose, but essentially a good, considerate soul. The son and heir is no more interesting than a young man should be, but as harmless as new milk. The eldest daughter has no more charms than strict propriety approves, but, taking her by herself, you would call her rather restful than otherwise. Then all these worthy people assemble and sit down to the family dinner, and you have an orchestra of snarls.

They choose that solemn, sacred moment to remember all their mutual injuries. Mamma wails at papa, papa growls at mamma, the son sneers at the daughter, the daughter is feline to the son. Over the soup every one remembers all the things that somebody else ought to have done, and comments on them in acidulated language. The letters nobody posted, the messages somebody forgot, the invitations nobody gave, the ghastly guests that somebody did invite—you hear of them all over the fish. And if the joyous subject of one another's sins should fall before the joint is done they proceed to comment on manners, morals, and brains. Papa lets it be known that he never knew such a fool as his son. Son hints, not delicately, that his father's manners are merely disgusting. Mamma scatters a few heavy innuendoes concerning her daughter's friends. Daughter suggests that a woman who talks scandal will, without doubt, perish everlastingly. Every one's temper being now in a state of violent inflammation, every one's nerves have been thoroughly rubbed with spiritual sand paper, the evening's installment of family life is at an end. The son goes out, the daughter goes out, mamma goes to bed, papa grumps alone over his paper. Such are the joys of home.

Now, all this is an error. Snarls are not a digestive—they are not even a delicacy. In fact, if there is one moment of the day when you should struggle to preserve peace on earth and good-will toward men it is at dinner time. Grumbles and snarls lead to dyspepsia. Who can afford to fall out with her stomach? You may say, if you please, that this is a low and carnal view and consideration for your stomach shall never induce you to forgo one snarl. This is not wise. While you have a body—a thing with which, after all, few of us show any inclination to dispense—it is merely futile to pretend that you have not. The body will take care to remind you of its existence. Some people talk and think as if there were a high and lofty virtue in treating the body with contempt, whereas it is merely stupid. Dyspepsia is not the badge of a saint, or always of a fool. Laugh and grow fat, says the traditional adjuration. Fat being the last thing any of us want to be, it has lost much of its point; but laughter is still a good digestive. For plain reasons of physical well-being, dinner should be at least a time of peace. Whatever civil or uncivil wars are raging in the family, there should be a truce for dinner.

Of course, there is not. It is just the other way. Dinner being the only time at which the members of many families see each other, they must use it for snarling. Breakfast is eaten with grit loins and staff in hand, and there is no time to quarrel then; every one is out to lunch; only with dinner comes the chance to wrangle. What is the good of having a family if you can't wrangle with them? Papa likes one thing, mamma likes another, each one of the children prefers something different, and the whole intellectual family have the utmost scorn for the tastes of any single one. That is all right. But they need not say so.

There are quite a lot of things worth having in this vale of tears, and one of the best of them is peace. It is more use about a house than hot and cold water on every floor. It is more comforting than sneers of the finest vintage, and more invigorating than the largest income. You may be the most beautiful, accomplished, and witty of women, you may be the most capable and fascinating of men, but if you bring not peace but a sword, one would rather have you remain on the doorstep and admit some dowdy, quiet little soul, some dull, genial fellow of the kind that does not worry. From time to time you hear of a home that has come to grief and split into several pieces. Most often the explosive cause was not a great and tragic trouble, but—just snarls. A long series of wrangles ruined every one's common-sense, and the happy family came to the conclusoin that, having been utterly miserable together, they could not be more miserable apart. Which is generally quite a mistake. Few of us are naturally constructed to live alone. If the scattered units of the exploded family miss nothing else, they are sure to miss someone to snarl at.

It is all very absurd. There are very few of us who, when all accounts are cast, have the right to snarl or sneer at our parents or our children, our brothers or our sisters. We are all responsible for each other. The daughter you do continually reprove is what you made her, and you at whom she consistently sneers are very largely what she made you. No one has any right to be in a bad temper. The first duty of woman and man is to consume their own smoke, to swallow their own grievances, instead of setting them before some one else. That is a disgusting habit which does not belong to the best society. The best society is where every one is peaceful and joyous.

To be peaceful—that is what every one has a right to expect of you, and what you have to help every one to be. Because no other state of mind does any good. The angry dinner whereat you all set yourselves to say something nasty to each other is not amusing, is not inspiring—never, in fact did anything for any one. That is the fundamental insanity of family jars—they don't take you anywhere. The sneer, and the snarl, and the wrangle, they never assisted the least to make any one what you would like her to be. They may perhaps have turned some one into a likeness of yourself, a creature of which you approve much less when you meet her in real life than when you see her in the glass. But the more excellent way, the way of leaving your grievances with your hat and umbrella, or washing them off in the bath, that is wholesome and antiseptic. Let no one suppose that this is anything so unpopular as a creed of unselfishness. Quite otherwise. I preach the most satisfying and refined selfishness, and that is to seek peace and ensure it. There are not many causes worth national war. There are fewer worth civil war. Is there one that is worth permanent strife in the family? Every family, of course, will arise and cry aloud that it knows nothing of war, but that is merely because a good many have never known peace. Peace wants advertising. The simplest way to it is to get a sense of humor. Or, if you find that too expensive, endeavor to remember that while you are yourself, by divine right, the most important person in the world, there are other people just as important; also, that while they have committed infinite offences against your majesty, you have kept things even by committing precisely the same number against them. Tenthly and lastly, this is a very pleasing world if you will consent to be pleased with it.

THE BABY IN THE CAR.

And How the People It Smiled or Stared at Received Its Attentions.

[New York Sun:] Some people are alarmed, abashed, ashamed, disturbed and put out and made to feel foolish in all sorts of ways when a strange baby fixes its eyes upon them and stares at them steadily in a public conveyance, but not so affected were the two most favored with the regard of a one-year-old girl baby seen one day last week in an elevated car.

This baby was held in the arms of its father; mother not present. The car was less than a quarter full; plenty of room everywhere, and opportunity for observation, if anybody wanted to observe.

On the same side with the father and the baby, but three seats away and with the intervening seats vacant, sat a young woman reading. Presently she let the newspaper fall in her lap for a moment, and glancing around she found that baby's eyes fixed on her. Was the young woman disturbed by this?

Quite the contrary. She smiled at the baby, and the baby smiled at her, and then these two had quite a little game.

The young woman would turn her head and look away for a moment, and then look around again at the baby and smile; and this pleased the baby very much; and it would smile back at her and gurgle and wave its arms at her and jump in its father's arms for joy at this encounter. The baby liked the young woman and the young woman liked the baby, and they got on together gayly.

Sitting opposite, on the other side of the car, was a middle-aged, bachelor-looking sort of a man; he also reading a newspaper; and presently when he looked up he found the baby had him fixed with his eye. And the baby didn't smile on this man nor gurgle at him, nor wave it arms. It just stared at him fixedly, with eyes wide open; and really it made this man quite comfortable.

He tried propitiating the baby with a smile, but it was an awkward, artificial smile, and it brought no response in kind whatever; the baby just continued to fix him with its cold, steady stare.

The man didn't know what to do about it, and he was debating in his mind about it and still looking at the baby and trying to look pleasant and as though he wasn't disturbed, when the guard stepped inside from the platform and closed the door and said:

"——ifty—'een' stree' next," and then faced around and leaned against the door jamb and looked along down the car.

The baby had heard the door closed and had turned its head and faced that way at the sound, and now the two, the guard and the baby, found themselves looking right at each other and the baby smiled at the guard and he smiled right back at the baby.

He wasn't a young man, the guard, nor was he old; about the same age as the man on the other side of the car whom the baby had just stared at, but the baby regarded the guard very differently, as the guard did the baby. Perhaps he had babies of his own, but anyhow the baby liked him and smiled on him, and to the baby's smile the guard responded instantly.

Then the baby looked away from him, and then looked back, roguishly, positively roguishly. If it had been a boy this would have seemed like a game of peek-a-boo, but this was a girl baby; and really her actions seemed to be prompted and animated by the pretty coquettishness of her sex.

So she would look away, to look back at the guard in a minute and smile on him; he waiting for her and smiling in return, and finally the baby waved its arms at him and gurgled at him, while all this time the young lady on the other side was looking around in vain, in hope again to catch the baby's eye.

But she caught it again finally, and then they had another game of smiles; and so the baby divided its attentions thereafter between the guard and the young woman, with never so much as a look as the bachelor-looking middle-aged man on the other side of the car, to his evident relief; though clearly he was not entirely at ease until at last he saw the father, with the baby's arm around his neck, get up with it to leave the car.

Ways of Cooking Fish.

Fish needs to be very thoroughly and well seasoned. Twelve minutes to the pound is the rule for baking. When possible, rub in coarse salt on both the inside and outside of the fish and allow it to stand for some time, then wash thoroughly and wipe dry before preparing. Before cooking some varieties of fish, such as flounder and halibut, many cooks marinate it for an hour or two in a mixture of four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and a little salt and pepper. A bit of grated cheese is sometimes used, and the fish is turned several times, that the mixture may penetrate thoroughly. For large, firm fish steaming renders the flesh more delicate. After thoroughly cleaning the fish wrap it in a dampened and slightly floured cheese cloth, lay on a plate, and steam till the flesh leaves the bones. Small fish are more palatable when rolled in corn meal and fried briskly in hot salt pork fat.

For fish cutlets, remove the skin and bones from sufficient fish to make one pound, and pass twice though a meat chopper. Any kind of large fish will do, but halibut is especially fine. Cream one-fourth cupful of butter and work evenly through the fish, adding three tablespoonfuls of cream, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper, and, if liked, a few drops of onion juice. Form the mixture into eight cutlet shapes, roll in sifted bread crumbs, and chill. Beat an egg with one tablespoonful of water, dip the cutlets in, roll again in crumbs, and fry in deep fat about five minutes.

To bake a fish, split lengthwise, as for broiling, and remove the backbone by running a sharp-pointed knife along under it and scraping the flesh away. Pick out all the fine adjoining bones and press the flakes back into place. Allow the fish to lie in salted water half an hour, then drain and wipe, put into a buttered baking tin (skin side down,) add bread stuffing, if desired, cover with thin strips of bacon, and bake until firm and brown. Serve with a browned butter sauce flavored with mushroom catsup.—[Home Magazine.

The Woman Automobilist.

The women have played an important part in the automobilism of the streets during the week.

Inspired by the news that two women successfully applied for cabmen's licenses in Paris, Miss Dorothy Levitt, the famous lady motorist, determined to test the possibilities of motor-cab driving as a new profession for members of her sex in London. Taking a motor cab from its garage, Miss Levitt ran out into the most crowded streets. Turning and twisting about among the traffic, and making her work as difficult as possible, she thoroughly exhausted the dangers and difficulties of her task. As a result of her experience she is convinced that there is a splendid opening for motor-cab women. Not only, she declares, can a woman hold her own as a public chauffeur, but she would also fill a long-felt want. A lady, in her opinion, would much sooner entrust herself to the care of a daintily-attired woman chauffeur than to the usual burly cabby, who is only too prone to abuse a woman unless she overpays him.

ACTRESS AND MOTOR OMNIBUS.

That women are not only good motor drivers, but also practical mechanics, was proved by an incident in which Miss Julia Neilson, the well-known actress, figured prominently. A motor omnibus had broken down in a busy London thoroughfare. With despair written upon their oily, blackened faces the driver and conductor were standing disconsolately, looking at their leviathan of the streets, never hoping to see it move again when a smart motor car, occupied by a lady and her chauffeur, drew up beside them. The lady who was Miss Julia Neilson, jumped out and came to their assistance. Taking a rapid survey of the machinery, she immediately pointed out the defect in the machinery, and then, with a smile, stepped back into her car, and drove away. By following out her directions the astonished motor omnibus driver was able to once more proceed on his way within less than a minute.—[London Mail.

The Linen Outfit.

The young housewife with little money to expend may begin with a small supply.

Six or eight pairs of sheets are essential.

One bolster and two pillow slips should be allowed to each pair of sheets.

Several white "honeycomb" spreads and a white Marseilles counterpiece are needed.

At least two dozen face towels, a dozen fine cup towels, a dozen dish towels and four roller towels are essential.

Four white tablecloths, one of finer quality for "occasions," will do for a beginning.

There should be a dozen napkins to match each cloth, and, if possible, a dozen extra fruit napkins.

A dozen hemmed cheesecloth dusters also belong to the outfit.

THE TERRORS OF THE TINY TADS.

1—On Easter morn the Tiny Tads all try to see how far Beyond the other fellows' eggs the ones that they roll are.

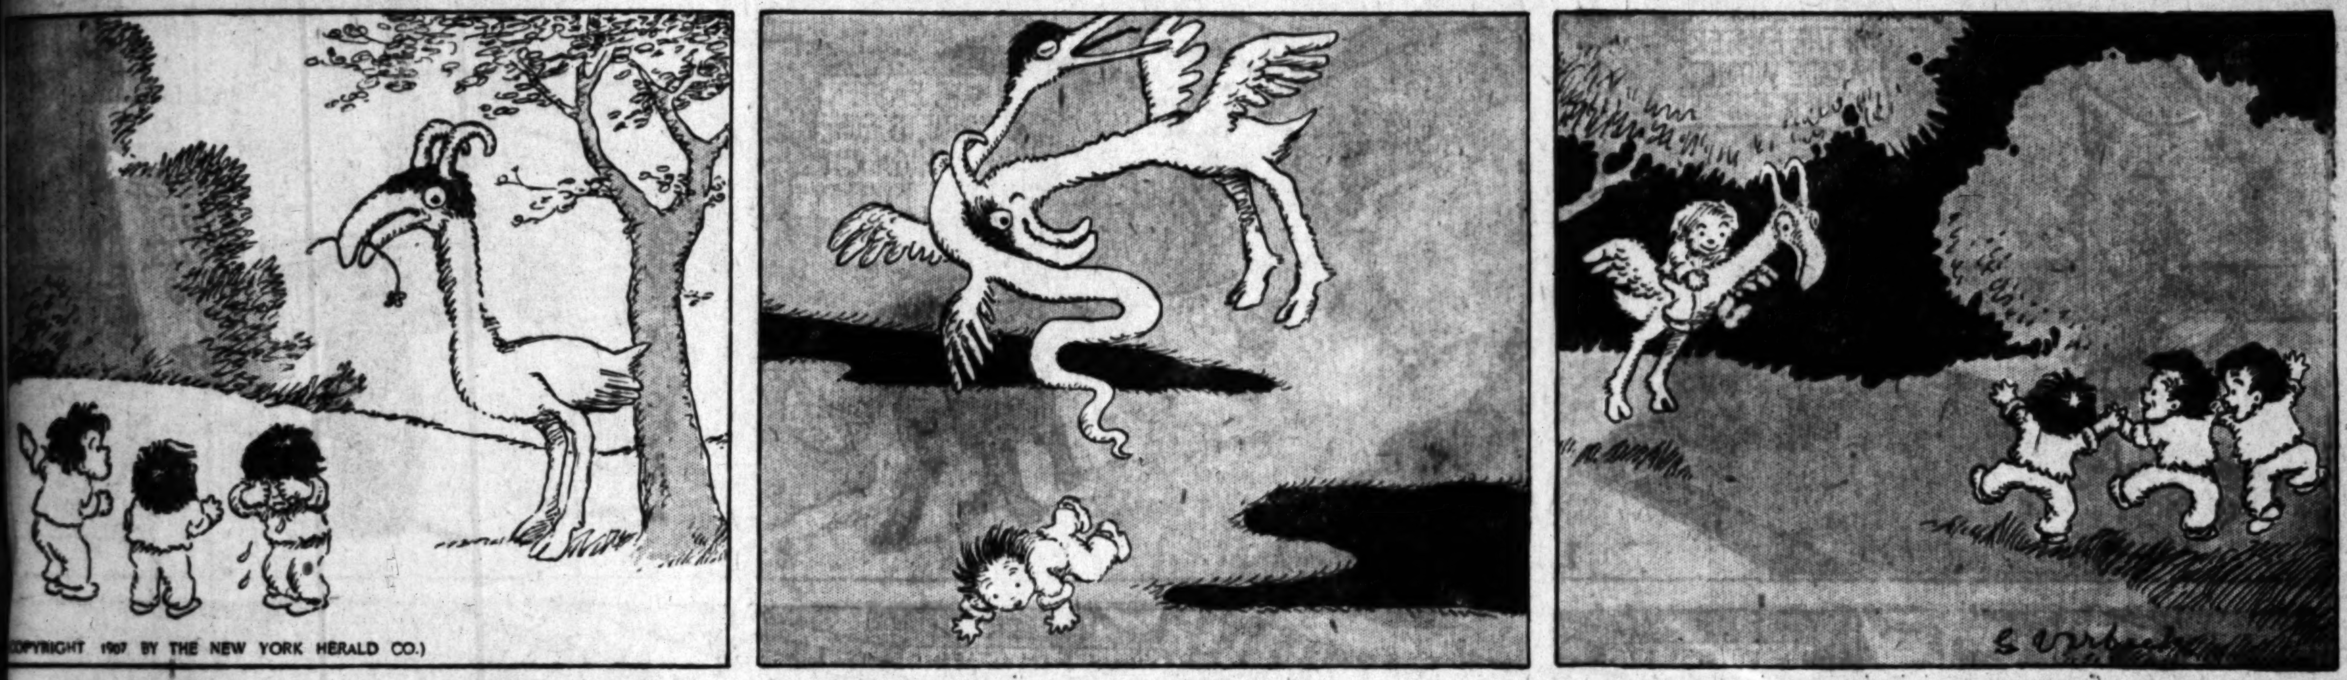
2—I hope you understand just what it is I want to say,
But, anyhow, there comes a big Magpython down their way

3—And wraps himself around a Tad and flies away with him,
And will not let him save himself by holding to a limb.



COPYRIGHT 1907 BY THE NEW YORK HERALD CO.)

4—The other Tads go running to a beast beneath a tree;
"Oh, Flamingoat," they wildly cry, "please look up there and see."

5.—The Flamingoat just gives one look and then he travels some,
And buts the bad Magpython squarely on his tummy-tum.

6.—And then he scoops the Taddy up before he hits the ground
And flies with him to where his comrades gladly dance around.

POLLY SLEEPYHEAD

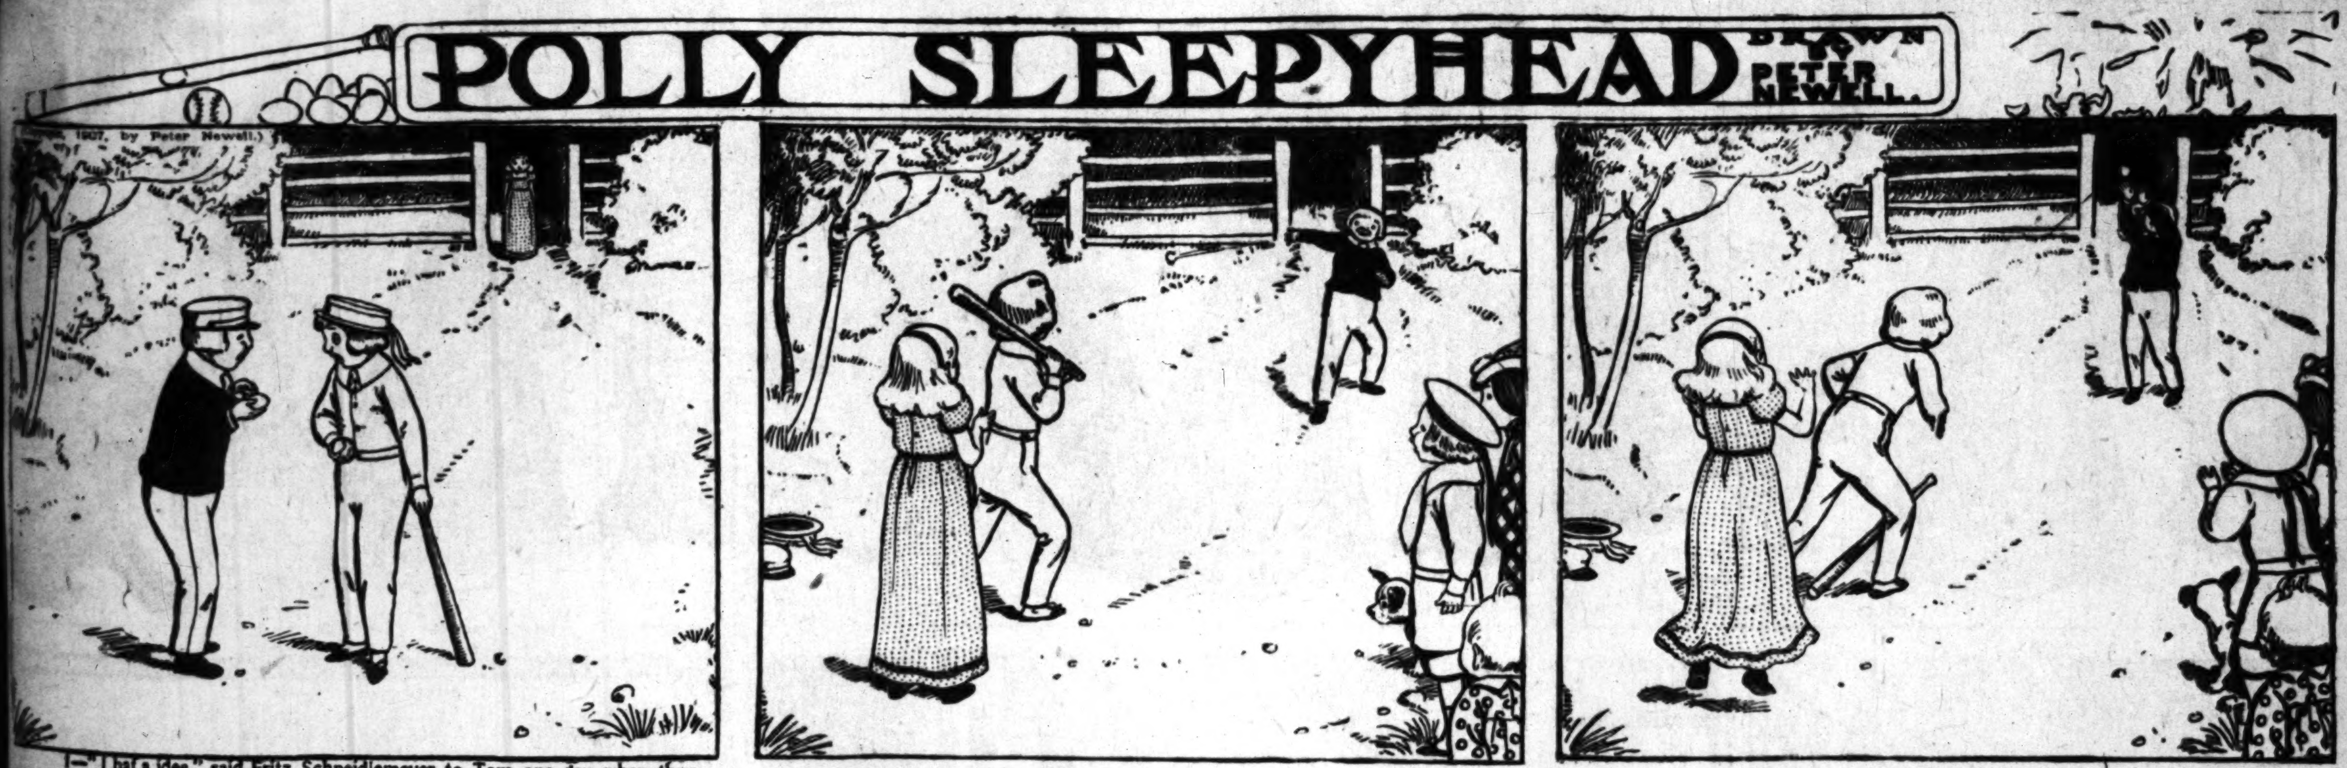
DRAWN BY PETER NEWELL.

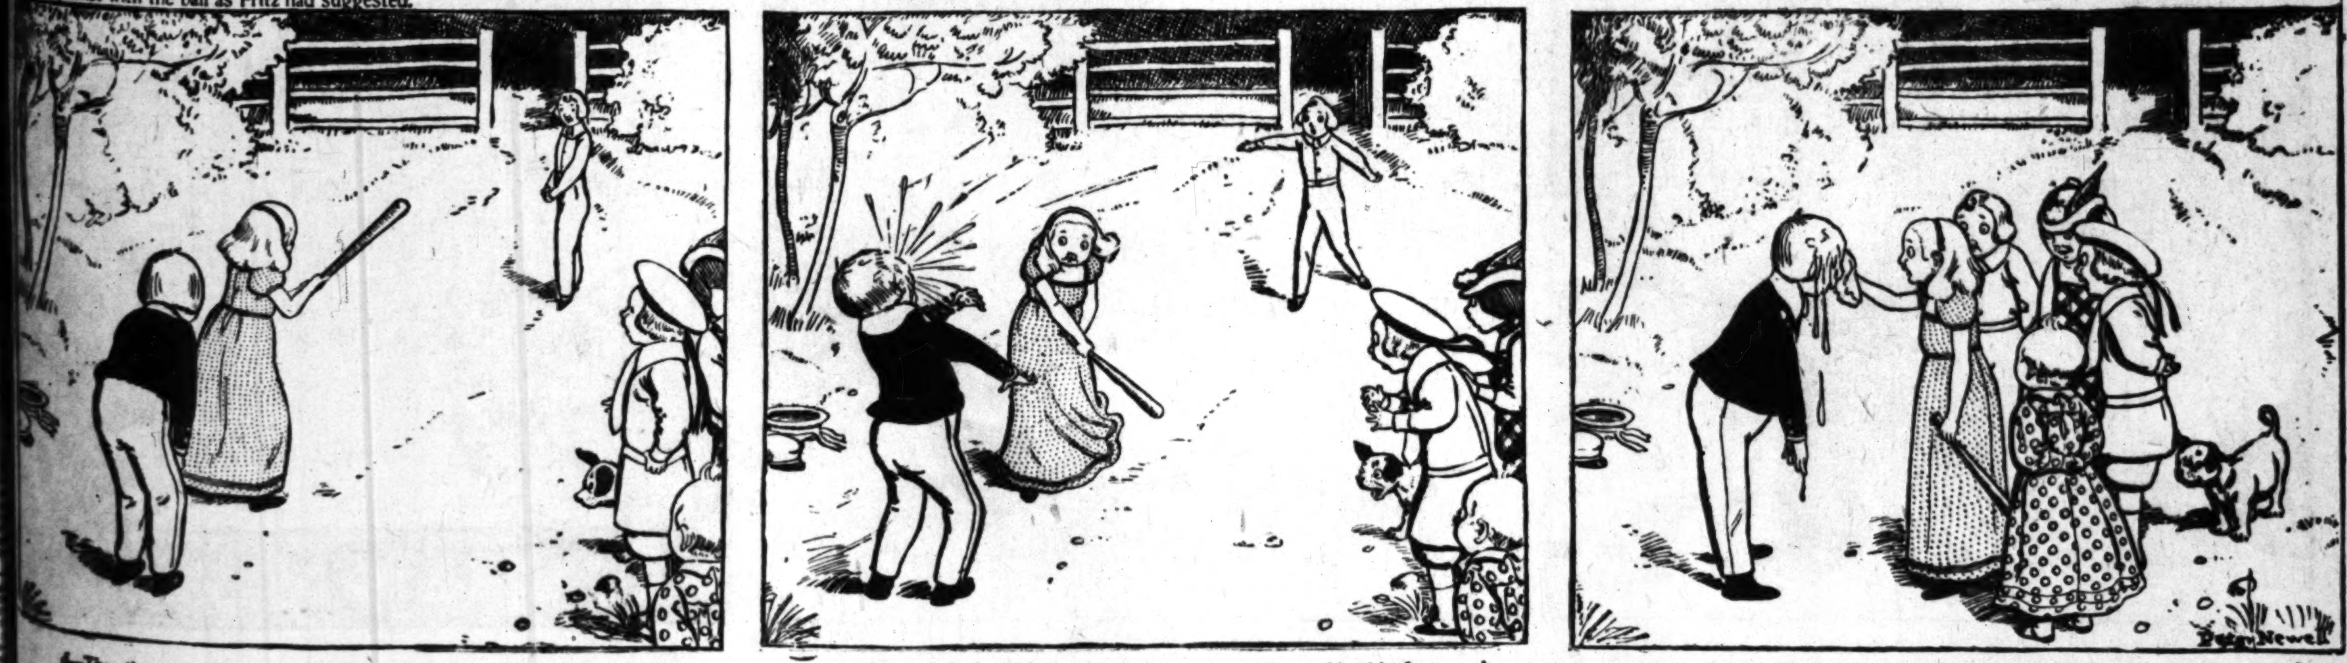


(Copyright, 1907, by Peter Newell.)

1—"I haf a idee," said Fritz Schneidlemeyer to Tom one day when they were playing with a ball and bat. "Here's an egg—put dis in your pocket mit der ball, and ven Polly's to de bat, t'row de egg instead of de ball—see?" "Fine!" said Tom. "I'll go get Polly at once." But before going he secreted the egg in his pocket with the ball as Fritz had suggested.

2—The game opened with Tom at the bat while Fritz pitched and Polly stood in the catcher's place. "Dare's a daisy!" said Fritz as he sent a ball right over the home base.

3—Tom hit the ball and sent it straight at the pitcher. "Out!" shouted Fritz as he grasped the flying ball in his fat hands, and all the spectators applauded the brilliant play.



4—Then they moved up one and Polly went to the bat while Tom was pitcher and Fritz catcher. "Are you ready?" asked Tom as he deftly substituted the egg for the ball. "All ready," answered Polly as she braced herself for a telling strike.

5—Tom pitched the ball—the egg, I mean—with considerable force and Polly struck at it and missed! But the egg wasn't wasted—oh, no! but struck the grinning Fritz squarely between the eyes! To say that he was surprised would be putting it too mildly.

6—"Why, Fritz," said Polly as she brushed the batter from the gasping boy's face with her handkerchief, "your brains are oozing out! But never mind, it won't be much loss!"

RESOLVED

THAT DYEING EGGS FOR EASTER SUNDAY, IS BETTER THAN DYEING YOUR HAIR YELLOW AND HAVING IT TURN RED, WHITE AND BLUE. NOW! THE ONLY BLUE THAT TIGE AND I KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT, IS WASH BLUE AND BLUE MONDAY. WE NEVER FEEL BLUE, BUT THE DEAR LADIES DID- I GUESS BECAUSE THEY BOUGHT THEIR HATS FOR FAST COLORS. THE COLORS WERE SO FAST, THEY SIMPLY RAN INTO THE BASKET OF EGGS WHEN THE WATER STRUCK THEM AND THE FAIR ONES RAN HOME CRYING. WELL! WERE I A LADY, I'D NEVER WORRY ABOUT AN EASTER BONNET AS LONG AS THERE WAS A YARD OF CARPET, A LACE CURTAIN, A STUFFED CANARY BIRD, A WIRE FENCE, A PAPER OF PINS AND A FEW CARROTS IN THE HOUSE. WOULD YOU?
